The developments of the war in South Africa, its serious conflicts, the deeds of heroism of its participants, the great massing of Boer Armies and the unprecedented forward movement of British troops to the Cape, coupled with a universal desire for information concerning a country of which very little is known, have intensified public interest in the subject to an extent hitherto unequalled. With characteristic enterprise, this paper will supply the demand for South African literature that present conditions have created. To this end we now offer our readers the first number of a magnificent art series to be issued in weekly parts under the title of "GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA in Peace and in War." Illustrating and describing the current military events of the day and the sights and the scenes throughout all South Africa by aid of camera, pencil and pen, presenting a pictoral history of the men were sitting on a sea front ng cigars and interchanging those mpliacks and confidences which we t to bestow on strangers. They of- ppear so much and always mean tle. The acquaintances were lazily ng the manners and dress of the s and persons who passed by and e also quietly and curiously taking of each other. One had already some weeks in the town, and one nly arrived recently. They were com notes and impressions of the place people, and were surprised to find they had little or nothing to quar- bout. Indeed, they discovered they sed many points of agreement, with enough antagonism to enjoy a talk her. And at this moment they were sing the agreeable subject of pret- omen.

r face is only a blur of red," cried Marcus D'Urban, as he adjusted his lasses and gazed pensively after a y disappearing figure.

's all that confounded veil," replied casual friend, Thomas C. Sharples, of rican extraction, a short oldish man, had made a fortune by hard work desperate speculation, and in appear- resembling the half burned stump of ar, with a head of hair like the gray at the top.

eils," said the baronet, who was g and handsome, and an eligible elor, "are the refuge of the destitute ugly, whose characters have survived complexions, and must be guarded almost as much jealousy and care." ut the sun, you know, plays the mis- with a pretty skin of pink and e, and parasols are more for orna- t than use."

ently, Miss O'Gilvie returned, and time for some reason her thick veil lifted off her face, displaying dark and eyes of hazel, and radiant rosy ion, and the inimitable air of good ding. Her wandering gaze accidently that of the baronet, with its usual guid melancholy expression, and she dvertently, half unconsciously and olly unintentionally smiled and then ered her veil again to hide her pretty fusion.

I bet you a thousand, Mr. Sharples," ttered Sir Marcus under his moustache, I woo and win and marry that girl ore Sunday next. That is my future e."

"Done!" exclaimed the American, eag- y. "An even thousand you don't — at's so."

t was Sunday evening and the two quaintances were staying at beautiful tbourne, and living at the Grand Ho- where also was Miss O'Gilvie and her id Burdekin. Nor did Sir Marcus find hard, considering how often they were own together, to make himself socially wn and conversationally acceptable to . A slight assistance, which a happy ident enabled him to render her, brou- t him at once into the inner circle of her friends. And by a judicious expenditure of gold he ascertained from the venal Burdekin something about Miss O'Gilvie's tastes and habits, and much useful information. She liked riding, she liked boating, she liked golf, she liked billiards and read a good many novels. And to be forewarned was to be forearmed. Her pet novelist had just published a new book called "The Loves of Lucifer," in diary form, and full of the raciest reading. Naturally the baronet procured this at the earliest opportunity and was causually and ostentatiously absorbed in it when O'Gilvie happened to pass.

"Wonderful writer," he innocently observed as she approached him, "and this is a most successful work."

"I am glad you tastes agree with mine, Sir Marcus," she replied, falling readily into the baited trap.

"You have anticipated me, then?"

"No, indeed; I have not seen it yet."

"Permit me, then, to lend it to you. I know it all by heart," which was a bold statement, as he had not read a single page, and had no idea of doing so, having a lively horror of novels generally.

"A thousand thanks. I was just looking for a really good book, and now you have supplied my need." And her whole face softened as she graciously inclined toward him her small, proud head with its dusky crown of abundant hair.

"May I," asked the baronet, cleverly, seizing the psycholigical moment, "have the honor of riding with you to-morrow?" It was Monday evening now.

"I shall only be too happy, Sir Marcus," she answered, sweetly, "A groom is a dull companion."

"Let me provide the mount, Miss O'Gilvie, as I know all about every decent horse for hire in Eastbourne, and I will get you the best possible."

"I shall be grateful," she replied. "I like a live animal, and not one that has just stepped out of a Noah's ark."

"Ah, I know exactly what will suit you—fire and form both, and yet as steady as a church; no vice whatever, and nice, easy action. Lady Causton rode her a fortnight ago," which was true enough, but Sir Marcus did not add that the fair rider never tried Black Bess a second time.

So it was arranged pleasantly between them, and at 11 o'clock they started from the Grand in the direction of Pevensey. It was a perfect cool morning in September, and a cool, fresh breeze was blowing.

"She is a darling," said Miss O'Gilvie as they trotted merrily along through the eastern end of the town, "and goes like a little angel."

In fact, Black Bess was suspiciously quiet and good, and appeared quite to have forgotten her bad character and antecedants. But in truth she felt there was a fine horsewoman on her back and was only seeking for a fit occasion to try which of the two should be mistress. And the baronet, had, of course, previously assured himself that Clara O'Gilvie had a good seat and was accustomed to ride to hounds. So he felt certain that, whatever happened, and even if it came to the worst, he and she between them could perfectly well manage Black Bess.

When they had proceeded two-thirds of the way on to Pevensey, sometimes trotting, sometimes cantering, the wicked mare took unreasonable offense at a rather rough section of the road, and then pretended to be frightened at some cyclists who came whirling by in a cloud of glory and dust. And suddenly, without the least warning, she was up the bank on the left side like a cat and then over the hedge before Clara O'Gilvie, who was day dreaming, had fairly realized her position. However, she retained her seat and her self-possession, with a firm grip of the reins.

It must be admitted that Sir Marcus was delighted at this second opportunity of doing good service for his lady love. His chestnut thoroughbred followed the fugitive and cleared the bank and hedge like a bird and went in hot pursuit after the two truants. But the runaways had got a capital start, and Black Bess seemed resolved to keep it at all costs. The style in which she cleared her fences without a check gladdened the heart of the young baronet, who, seeing that Miss O'Gilvie was in no real danger, devoutly hoped that the hunt might be indefinitely prolonged. He was riding for a wife, and he meant to win and be in at the finish—in the church.

Away they flew, the pursuer and the pursued, mile after mile, across hedges and ditches and palings and brooks and banks, over one railway line, through one or two gardens and harvest fields, yellow with sheaves of corn, down dim hollow lanes and up hillsides, through an outlying and unused portion of the cemetery, in spite of two stone walls which had tobe leaped, the mare, game as ever, still leading by several lengths. But fate in the form of a nasty, stiff piece of plowed land now confronted Black Bess. She stumbled, made a desperate effort to re cover herself, but failed and fell.

Sir Marcus was at the spot immediately. He found Clara O'Gilvie shaken a good deal, bruised a little, but frightened not in the least. And the mare fortunately was not hurt and seemed too exhausted to bolt. The lady insisted pluckily on mounting again and riding quietly home, but she proved to have miscalculated her powers, and, in making the effort, fainted away. This gave the baronet the third opportunity, and he proved himself a man of many resources. And when, some hours after, they drove home slowly together in a tumble-down country fly, they appeared to be on the best possible terms and were even (though somewhat diffident) calling each other by their Christian names. Sir Marcus wisely refraining from proposing yet—he had another and better and more daring card to play and the sum of £1,000, as well as a wife, was at stake.

"Clare, dear," he mummured softly in her shyly averted shell-like ear, after breakfast next day, "let me row you out this afternoon, as the sea is like glass, and it is too hot for anything else."

"If you wish, dear," she replied, blushing sweetly, "but remember I cannot swim —in case of accident."

"A mishap is impossible in one of these tubs and on such smooth water." And so it was arranged, and another trick devised, a little caddishly, at the expense of poor Miss O'Gilvie.

Lunch was over, and Burdekin, the lady's maid (proposed faintly, for propriety's sake, by her mistress,) had been rejected, and the offer of Thomas O. Sharples to accompany them politely declined, and they were fairly off. Sir Marcus had cunningly loosened the plug in the hole by which any sea splashings were drained off on the return of the boat, and as it was close to his hand he felt master of the situation and supremely happy.

"You must not go very far from the shore, Marcus," sighed Clare, "as an astrologer told me to beware of water, as I should meet my fate there."

"We will keep as near as you choose, dearest," he replied, stealthily withdrawing the plug.

Clare had shut her eyes conveniently, and drowsily whispered, "I should love to float like this forever to the music of the wave."

"Not alone, I hope."

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been a ofavorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

SCAVENGER OF THE VELDT.

The Aasvogel, Which Keeps the Wide Plains Clean.

Although the term "vulture" has been used for all time as a term of the vilest opprobrium, no one who knows the bird, its appearance and its habits could doubt for a moment that it expresses a depth of degradation which is barely conceivable.

And yet the vulture does a great deal of good in acting as the scavenger of the veldt. But for his quick eye, carrion taste and love of dead meat the disease germs in the carcasses of dead oxen would be far more prolific and dangerous.

Throughout South Africa is found the aasvogel. Go anywhere you like on the veldt, and sooner or later—and in all probability the former—you will find the remains of his ghastly meal. There are hundreds of thousands of oxen used in the transport and trekking service. Many of them die from exhaustion, want of water or cruelty from their Boer masters. Or they may eat of the poisonous tulp, a bulbous plant growing in marshy places.

A kurneyor, or teamster, soon knows if any one or more of his oxen have been eating tulp. The neck of the ox swells, his eyes close up, he gives short, sharp coughs, and his case is generally hopeless. Sometimes, however, he may be saved, and this by a peculiar, homeopathic sort of remedy. If the bulb of the tulp plant is crushed into pulp, mashed with hot water and forced boiling hot down the throat of the ox he may recover.

The quickness of the eye of the aasvogel is simply astounding. An ox falls out of the team, evidently ill. He is outspanned from his yoke fellow, and he goes down to the spruit, or stream. The sky above and away to the horizon on all sides is absolutely clear and cloudless.

Hardly has the breath left the body of the poor ox than you may observe far, far away up in the sky a tiny black speck, then another and another and another, until there are 20 of them. Gradually they get larger and larger, circling round in ever diminishing circles all the while they descend. The dead ox forms the center of the circumference of their flight. Within a few minutes the grisly horde swoop down upon the still warm beast and commence their ghoulish task.

An hour afterward there is nothing in the spruit but a bundle of bleached white bones that might have been there for months. The sky is clear and speckless again. The aasvogel has scavenged the veldt.

Whittier's Predicament.

Whittier held "Gail Hamilton" (Abigail Dodge) in the highest esteem, and the letters that passed between them are really most delightful. Here is one of the series in The Ladies' Home Journal that is truly characteristic of Whittier. It was written in 1866:

"I must tell thee something droll. Last week the Amoskeag veterans from New Hampshire and a Massachusetts company, with military bands, came and paraded before our house, and Governor Smyth of New Hampshire and one or two officers called on me. When they left and I stepped out to see them civilly off, the men in epaulets got up a grand military salute, with music and three cheers to wind up with! Was ever a Quaker in such a predicament? I did, I fear, somewhat compromise myself by lifting, almost involuntarily, my hand to my hat. But I resisted the temptation and only pulled my hat lower down over my brows by way of testimony."

Mr. P. M. Gunter, inspector for the Gilmour Company, who are operating this winter in Galway and Harvey, called on the Times yesterday. He says that the northern settler looks for his Times as regularly as he does for his noon-day meal. Everybody reads the Times.

HUMAN BRAIN CELLS.

THEY REFUSE TO WORK UNDER TOO HIGH A PRESSURE.

Put on Too Much Steam and These Minute Organisms Go on Strike. Why Men Go Crazy or Become Absentminded.

Keeping pace with scientific thought and progress certain problems which in the past have been shelved for want of light being thrown upon them have been taken up again one by one to undergo further examination by the aid of improved science.

The newest revelation in this direction tends to the science of the mind and includes the following problems:

Why does a man act queerly when he is intoxicated?

Why is a man absentminded on occasions?

Why does a man sometimes become violently insane, often a dangerous, raving lunatic?

Such questions as these have puzzled our immediate fathers, who have hardly ever satisfactorily explained them away or indeed thrown much reliable light upon them. The human brain is composed of cells, and each cell is a simple bit of nerve substance, from one end of which, like an octopus, spring a number of tentacles, while from another part arises an arm different from them and of great length. The long arm is intended for transmitting impressions from one portion of the brain system to another, it being made to touch the tentacles or short arms of the next one to it, the latter in its turn effecting contact with a third cell, and so on.

Thus a message is conveyed and the mind gets its news. The entire brain is made up of these cells, whose number is legion and whose full strength is grouped in systems, these systems in turn being arranged in communities, the communities in clusters and finally the clusters in constellations, by which divisions they are known to physiologists.

So long as the mind is in a healthy condition each little cell, or brain octopus, attends to its business faithfully and gives no trouble, but as man generally is an animal who usually refuses to live the life spanned out by nature and adopts instead the life laid down by the modern artificial process of living, instituted forsooth by civilization, mental disturbances frequently arise through the brain becoming abused in various ways, from overwork and alcohol principally.

Your octopuslike brain cell is a living little thing, and it can endure a great deal of abuse from you, but if you should go a little too far it rebels and refuses to work any longer by breaking contact with its companion cells, which it can do by withdrawing its long arm and getting itself out of circuit. But this rebellion is conducted by whole groups of cells acting together in full harmony.

Now the object of this "strike" is simply to avoid overwork, for each tiny cell has stored within its minute space only a certain amount of energy, but if you put on the high pressure this is easily consumed by the operation of the brain, and the organism breaks down from exhaustion. Now, take the first of the problems just stated. When a person takes too much to drink, the cells in those patches of the brain that are responsible for the conduct of muscular movement become affected and the man staggers.

When the dose is very large, the cells, which, although stupefied, have tried to keep their master on his legs, now cease working, and the man sleeps like one dead. Finally, if more than enough of alcoholic drink be taken, the effect on the cells is to paralyze them, and the unfortunate man dies.

There is some relation between extraordinary activity of the mind and insanity. Geniuses are apt to exhibit symptoms of mental alienation, and, singular to relate, their children are usually inferior to those of average men.

For instance, not to go out of England for example, Cromwell was a hypochondriac and had visions, Dean Swift inherited insanity and was himself not a little mad, Shelley was called by his friends "Mad Shelley," Charles Lamb went crazy, Johnson was another hypochondriac, Coleridge was a morbid maniac, Milton was of a morbid turn of mind, nearly approaching insanity (modern ideas of hades are largely formed on the description evolved by his diseased imagination), and Byron said he was visited by ghosts.

This mental alienation occurring in the foregoing cases shows that certain specific groups of brain cells have come under the baneful influence of the guiding spirit called talent or genius, which has used up all the energy stored in each cell and each group of cells, to the detriment of the whole, with the result that their ceasing work has brought about various types of insanity as depicted or, to phrase it more softly, induced disturbance of the mental equilibrium.

The remaining problem is absentmindedness. This is produced by a temporary disjunction of certain groups of cells. A man becomes so absorbed in his study of some particular subject and lends his whole mind to thought that the hard thinking disorganizes the groups of cells employed in the process of reflection, their tentacles being turned all one way, to the detriment of mental action generally, and so the man with the tentacles of his brain cells turned in the one direction passes along the streets lost to all observation or mental inception and does all manner of queer things because he is not conscious of what he is doing.—Pearson's Magazine.

A QUEER EXPLOSION.

HOW A MOUNTAIN LOCOMOTIVE CAME TO AN UNTIMELY END.

There Was Neither Fire in Her Furnace Nor Water in Her Boiler, and Yet She Managed to Blow Up in the Most Approved Style.

Mr. Henry Alquist, a prominent railroad man, relates the story of a curious wreck, the facts in which he will vouch for.

"It is such a remarkable thing," said Mr. Alquist to a reporter, "that I fear many will be inclined to brand it as 'pipe.' I have been railroading now for over 20 years, and never in all my varied experience have I seen such a unique and complete wreck as the one I speak of—that of engine 1,129 of the Rio Grande Western. Railroad men will tell you that locomotives seldom explode nowadays, but 1,129 did and in a very peculiar way.

"At the time this wreck occurred I was holding down the job of train dispatcher at Soldier Summit, Utah, and a tough old job it was. Never been there, I suppose? Well, Soldier Summit is a station on the top of one of the Wasatch divides, a bleak and lonely place, where the Rio Grande Western has a roundhouse and coal chute located. At the summit are long snowsheds covering the tracks. These sheds protect the line from the winter. And it is only due to this method that a train ever gets over the mountain.

"On both sides of the mountain the line winds down in a succession of winding curves to lessen the grade. Running off from the railway are switches, which, diverging from the grade, run up into the hills and gradually come to a dead level. These switchbacks, as they are called, are so constructed that they can be thrown from any point on the grade. And if a train breaks in two while ascending the steep grade the runaway cars can be switched on to one of these spurs, where the breakaway finally stops after it has run up the spur as far as the momentum attained in its descent will take it.

"All heavy trains have an extra locomotive before the grade is tackled. These are called helper engines and are kept in roundhouses at each side of the mountain with steam up.

"One night I got word from Clear Creek, a town in the western valley, that the 9:20 freight would be 30 minutes late on account of having to pull out a crippled engine, 1,129. She had burned out her flues and had to be hauled to Grand Junction for repairs.

"That night about 10 o'clock, after I had passed down the Salt Lake express, I heard the freight coughing up the long grade from Clear Creek. There was a snowstorm raging, and the wind howled around the station like the mischief. When the overdue 9:20 pulled into the shelter of the big snowsheds on the wind swept summit, the first thing I asked was, 'Where's the dead engine?'

"'Behind the doghouse!' shouted the 'con.' But as I held my lamp above my head I failed to see it. I was just about to call his attention to it when, during a lull in the storm, we plainly heard the familiar rattle of the rails as the runaway engine flew at lightning speed down the mountain. No. 1,129 had broken loose and was tearing down the grade to destruction.

"I jumped and pulled the lever which opened the spur switches. This I knew would prevent a smashup, as the engine would run up on the switchback and come to a stop. But I was too late. Almost at the same instant I threw the lever a terrific explosion was heard from far down the mountain. The runaway had exploded."

"I thought you said a moment ago, Mr. Alquist," interrupted The Scimitar man, "that the locomotive was a 'dead one?' If she had no fire under her boiler, how could she explode?'

"That was the only thing I couldn't understand myself," the railroad man replied. "I could easily see how the dead engine could break loose on that grade, and I could understand not hearing its descent during such a howling blizzard, but the explosion floored me. The only theory which in any way solved the mystery was that the old kettle was blown up by compressed air.

"You see, when the engine broke loose from the freight and started down the mountain the pistons in the cylinders began to act as air compressors. During the rough trip up her throttle probably jarred open, and as the speed increased with every revolution of her drivers her boiler soon filled with compressed air. It was not long before those flying pistons had worked up a pressure of nearly 500 pounds to the square inch, which came in faster than it could escape by the safety valve, and before the old machine reached Clear Creek her boiler let go."

Wanted to See the President.

The Washington Star says that a big, gawky country lad went to the White House the other day just as the president had gone out for a morning stroll.

"I wants ter see the president," he announced to the first man he met.

"Well, there goes the president now," said the man addressed, pointing to the president's retreating form.

"Dern my time!" the young man ejaculated. "He walks just like any other man," and the fellow struck out so that he could get close enough to see the president well.

LOVE ON THE FARM.

A potato went on a mash
And sought an onion bed.
"That's pie for me," observed the squash,
And all the beets turned red.
"Go away," the onion, weeping, cried;
"Your love I cannot be;
The pumpkin be your lawful bride,
You cantaloupe with me."

But onward still the tuber came
And laid down at her feet;
"You cauliflower by any name,
And it will smell as wheat;
And I, too, am an early rose,
And you I've come to see,
So don't turn up your lovely nose,
But spinachat with me!"

"I do not carrot all to wed,
So go, sir, if you please,"
The modest onion meekly said,
"And lettuce, pray, have peas!
Go think that you have never seen
Myself or smelled my sigh,
Too long a maiden I have been
For favors in your eye!"

"Ah, spare a cuss!" the tuber prayed,
"My cherryshed bride you'll be;
You are the only weeping maid
That's currant now with me!"
And as the wily tuber spoke
He caught her by surprise
And, giving her an artichoke,
Devoured her with his eyes.

HE WASHED DISHES.

he Hard Job One Boy Had All the Way to Europe.

The girls who have complained in arious keys because they had dishes wash may be glad to hear of a oung man who can look at the matter through their eyes, perhaps more . He had shipped as "boy" on a catle steamer for Europe because he anted to save as much as possible on is transportation, and—but the rest of he story sounds better in his own words:

"About 4:30 in the morning I was wakened and told to go to work. I astily dressed, for the first and last ime on board, for during the rest of he voyage I took care not to undress. It seemed scarcely worth while. I arrived on deck and found the steward waiting for me. He showed me into the pantry, introduced me to 'Pants,' as the pantryman was called, and told me that my chief duty during the voyage would be to wash dishes.

"There was already a large pile of dirty dishes waiting to be washed, and I rolled up my sleeves, fixed the hot water and began to work. I had these almost done when another and larger lot was brought in from the dining room. This proved to be the daily programme. I no sooner had one pile washed than others were brought in, and I was never done. I don't think I ever saw so many dishes before in my life, and I hope I never shall again. There were 60 passengers aboard besides the cattlemen, and six meals were served each day. From the dishes that came out to be washed, I think that each passenger must have used at least six plates at a meal."—Detroit Free Press.

Destroying the Point.

Every one knows the man who is notorious for so telling a story as to destroy its point. An English nobleman, Lord P., was noted for his success in thus ruining the prosperity of a story. The author of "Collections and Recollections" exhibits a specimen of his lordship's peculiar art.

Thirty years ago two large houses were built at Albert Gate, London, the size and cost of which seemed likely to prohibit tenants from hiring them. A wag christened them "Malta and Gibraltar because they can never be taken."

Lord P. thought this an excellent joke and ran round the town, saying to every friend he met:

"I say, do you know what they call those houses at Albert Gate? They call them Malta and Gibraltar because they can never let them. Isn't it awfully good?"

Some one told Lord P. the old riddle, "Why was the elephant the last animal to get into the ark?" to which the answer is, "Because he had to pack his trunk."

Lord P. asked the riddle of the next friend he met and gave as the answer, "Because he had to pack his portmanteau."

DEADLY SNAKES.

Various Signs by Which Their Character May Be Recognized.

To distinguish between venomous and harmless snakes is easy in practice, but it is difficult to explain in words alone, as there is one external characteristic which distinguishes them. It is rather a peculiar, varying union of many separate marks that brands the dangerous reptile.

Generally speaking, all snakes may be divided into two great classes—those which have the head covered with numerous small scales and those which have it covered with large, regularly fitted plates. Leaving out the elipidæ and the poisonous sea snakes, with which the hunter will have nothing to do, all snakes with small head scales move about by night and those with the large plates on the head by day. This may be known by their eyes, for the first have vertical pupils like the cat's, while those of the latter are generally circular in form. The long, active day snake, gliding about from bush to bush or hurriedly taking refuge beneath some protruding rock or tree stump, is harmless. Even should he lie coiled in the sunshine he will flee from approaching danger. But a serpent nicely coiled in some secluded nook which instead of fleeing gathers himself closer together is most probably dangerous, particularly if he be more or less marked with a suggestion of irregular crossbars or whitish or dirty yellow and darker brown or blackish. This is the characteristic coloring of our most dangerous snakes, the rattler, the copperhead and the moccasin.

The following points embrace all the peculiarities of our American vipers, and the last two are especially noteworthy as the crowning proofs of venom:

(1) Moving about at dusk or by night, generally on the ground, and very rarely ascending trees or bushes. (2) Seldom flying in alarm, but rather coiling for defense. (3) Colors generally subdued in tint, with a semblance of irregular crossbars of lighter and darker shades. (4) Tail short, body stout, neck thin, head flat and very broad, especially behind. (5) Scales keeled—i. e., each scale has a ridge down the middle, which gives the skin a rough appearance like a rasp. (6) Head covered with small scales, sometimes larger over the eyes or nose. (7) Eyes with vertical pupils like a cat's. (8) Two pits or holes between the eyes and nose, suggesting four nostrils. (9) Two long, curved, perforated fangs in the upper jaw just in front of the eye, one on either side and so hinged that they lie backward, hidden from view in a membranous sheath, but erectile at will.

Some of the first seven peculiarities may be found in harmless snakes, but it is only in the vipers that they are united.—Outing.

How She "Guides" Them.

There is a jolly mother in Brooklyn who has several grown up sons boarding at home with her, and they declare she wants to "boss" them all the time, just as if they were children. She laughingly repudiates their charge and declares that she merely wishes to advise and guide them, but has long ago ceased to rule them. Here is an example of the way she "guides" them: At dinner the other night a big meat pie and a small roast duck were brought on together. The duck was intended for the father principally. The boys were death on duck, their mother well knew, but it would not make a mouthful apiece for them; so, addressing the boy who sat nearest her, she said, "Which will you have, Bobbie, duck or pie?" and at once began cutting the pie.

"Duck!" said Bobbie promptly.

"No, Bobbie," answered his mother cheerfully, "you can't have duck, dear. Take your choice, my son, take your choice, but you can't have duck!"—New York Tribune.

New Zealand Oddities.

The crow in New Zealand strikes as sweet a note as any heard in the woodland, says Henry D. Lloyd in The Atlantic. The robin has no song and no red breast; the native hen is the greatest of rat killers; there is a caterpillar which turns into a plant. These and some other productions of nature have done for New Zealand what the kangaroo and the ornithorhynchus have done for Australia—given it the suggestion of oddity and the marvelous. Rabbits and sweetbriers, introduced for pleasure, spread like wildfire, and it is an attraction to be duly advertised in the sale of land that it has been cleared of sweetbrier and fenced against rabbits, and then later the rabbit becomes a profit instead of a pest and is exported by millions to feed the English.

Amateur Photography.

Let me call attention to one of the most universally popular mistakes that have to do with photography—that of classing supposedly excellent work as professional and using the term amateur to convey the idea of immature productions and to excuse atrociously poor photographs. As a matter of fact nearly all the greatest work is being and has always been done by those who are following photography for the love of it, and not merely for financial reasons. As the name implies, an amateur is one who works for love, and viewed in this light the incorrectness of the popular classification is readily apparent.—Alfred Stieglitz in Scribner's.

Minnesota's First Book.

The Rev. S. W. Dickinson, an agent for the American Bible society, says that the first book printed in Minnesota was a Bible. It was printed in 1836, about 12 years before the first issue of a newspaper in St. Paul. The Bible was in the Ojibway language and was printed on the mission press at Lake Pokegama, Pine county, under the supervision of Rev. Mr. Ayer, who likewise had charge of the mission farm at that point.

MATRON AND MAID.

Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain is not the typical American girl which some people represent her to be.

Mrs. Mary Lease has renounced her residence in Kansas and will hereafter make her home in New York.

The Duchess of Sutherland frequently attends meetings of socialistic women in company with Miss Margaret MacMillan, a socialistic lecturer.

Miss Mayme Jester, a niece of Buffalo Bill, is said to be the only female press agent on the road. She left the newspaper business to go into this new field.

Miss Emma Thursby has returned to New York and will resume work with her pupils at once. A recent report of her illness was unfounded, as she is quite well.

Dr. Cornelia de Bay of Chicago, a successful woman physician among the Dutch of that city, and herself of Dutch descent, is about to give up her practice and go to the Transvaal as an army nurse.

Mrs. Julia Grant, widow of General Grant, will complete her personal memoirs before Christmas. She has been engaged on the work for nearly ten years. Society is interested in the appearance of Mrs. Grant's book.

Miss Anne M. de Beck, who heads the movement among Chicago women for the presentation of $5,000 swords to Generals Wheeler and Lee, has already had the designs for the swords worked out and announces that over half the necessary funds have been promised.

A young girl, Miss Emma M. Hery, is the superintendent of the Denver public schools. She was a newspaper woman and an active member of the Denver Woman's Press club. She is a Democrat and was elected on the straight ticket. Her opponent was also a woman.

It is rumored in Paris that Amelie Rives, now the Princess Troubetzkoy, will settle there permanently and establish a literary salon for the purpose, primarily, of securing a French translation of her literary works and such other recognition as she thinks they deserve.

Mrs. John M. Thurston, the bride of the Nebraska senator, is described as of medium height, graceful, with changeful dark gray eyes, occasionally flashed with blue, perfect figure and mobile features. She was born in Tallahassee, Fla., 27 years ago and is a graduate of Wellesley.

Under the stimulating influence of Miss Grace King, the historian of New Orleans, the Louisiana Historical society is to establish in the Crescent City a historical museum. The society hopes to obtain by and by the Cabildo building, an old and historic pile now occupied by the state supreme court.

CHICAGO AND GRAND OPERA.

Chicago, having tired of grand opera, now proposes to become the world's art center, regardless of expense.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

One explanation of the failure of the grand opera season in Chicago is that the people are saving their money to buy automobiles.—Kansas City Star.

Mr. Gran says Chicago is a poor town for grand opera. The people out there will probably strike back by declaring that Gran is an all fired poor judge of packed meat.—Washington Post.

After losing a great deal of money Manager Gran has discovered that Chicago does not care for grand opera, her people being busy listening to the grunt of dying hogs and having no time to hark to the trills of a Sembrich.—Louisville Post.

Chicago is feeling rather mortified over the cold reception it gave to Mr. Grau. It would seem that Chicago is about on a par with Rochester as a "musical center" in the matter of giving welcome and support to great artists.—Rochester Democrat.

THE FRENCH PRESS.

Sober minded Frenchmen think that undue attention has been paid in England to the obscure draftsmen whose vulgarities have adorned the pages of the Parisian gutter press.—Philadelphia Record.

Considering all the abuse the English papers heaped upon France in the matter of Dreyfus, it is not surprising that the French papers should retaliate with unfavorable comments upon English policy.—Philadelphia Times.

The sort of cartooning to which Queen Victoria is being subjected in the comic papers of Paris is a reminder of the fact that there is no country in the world where that sort of journalism descends to such depths as in France. Its cleverness and keenness are impaired by coarseness and indelicacy.—Boston Herald.

Too Small.

Uncle 'Zek'el Watson was accustomed to seeing good sized squares of cup cake, 'lection cake or gingerbread on the supper table, and when he had his first plate of ice cream in a city restaurant he looked with some disfavor upon the macaroons and small sponge drops which accompanied it.

"How do you like it?" asked his niece, who was doing the honors of the city for her uncle.

"The ice cream is first rate," said Uncle 'Zek'el. "I call it extry good. But when you come to these things," he added, lifting one of the sponge "lady fingers" and surveying it doubtfully, "I presume to say they're all right enough, what there is of 'em, but there isn't enough of 'em; just nothing but gape and swallow!"—Youth's Companion.

Books.

When I consider what some books have done for the world and what they are doing, how they keep up our hope, awaken new courage and faith, soothe pain, give an ideal life to those whose homes are hard and cold, bind together distant ages and foreign lands, create new worlds of beauty, bring down truths from heaven, I give eternal blessings for this gift.—James Freeman Clarke.

Successive Waves.

The following waif is going the rounds of the state press: We are told of a young lady in a neighboring town who waved her hand at a stranger, and in three days they were married. Two days later the young lady waved a flatiron at her husband, and the next evening he came home waving a divorce.—Nashville Banner.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Police Court.

At the police court on Saturday morning a young man was charged with disorderly conduct. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5. His friend also paid $5, and an Emily man for common assault was fined $5 and $1.50 costs. It will be remembered that the Emily man interfered with the police theother day, when the two were being placed under arrest for endeavoring to settle the Boer question with their fists.

New Readers

We have just received a neat little book of new readings in Scotch and English for social gatherings. The selections are from the works of Mr. John Imrie, Toronto, and are up to date. For sale at the Times Bookstore.

40th ANNIVERSARY

One-tenth of each purchase returned in Cash during this Anniversary Sale.

J. T. STENSON.

Saturday Market.

The Saturday market was a large one, there being plenty of produce offered, but buying was rather slow. There were plenty of eggs at 20 to 22c, chickens brought 40 to 60c; turkey $1 to $1.50 and geese 75 to $5. Ducks were very scarce and sold at 70 and 80 cets. Pork was moving freely at 5 1-2c; wood for $350 to $4.50 per cord.

Sunday School Libraries.

The Times Bookstore is prepared to supply Sunday school libraries and new books at marvellously low prices. Books repaired and rebound at the Times bindery at low prices. It pays to patronize us.

Electricity Club.

Organization was completed of the Y.M.C.A. Electricity Club, the future of which appears very bright.

The following officers were elected: Hon. Pres.—Arthur Stevenson, Pres. F. C. Smallpiece, Vice-Pres.—W. S. Robinson, Sec.—Donald Potter. The first regular meeting will be held on Monday evening. Any person who wish to join should do so at once.

Wedding Stationery.

We have just received direct from New York a large stock of Crane's wedding stationery. Invitations printed to order in the latest styles. Also, wedding cake boxes of latest designs. The Times job rooms make a specialty of printing at home cards—the very best and nobbiest patterns.

Boer and British.

The local war between the Boers and the British continues, and battles are fought almost daily, with varying success. On Saturday Mr. Dumble threw some lyddite shells into the ranks of the combatants in the shape of a couple of five dollar fines. On Saturday night, another engagement took place on the veldt, in the rear of the Snowden House, between a Boer and a Britain. The latter planted a fifty pound shot on the nose of his enemy, when quarter was asked, and given. There was no Spion Kop in the neighborhood at the time, so the warring forces seperated to their respective kopjes.

County Maps.

Only a few copies of the splendid new map of Peterborough County left. Mounted on canvas with wooden rollers, $2; paper 50c, Times Bookstore.

Slippery Walks.

There is a by-law, we believe, which compels citizens to keep the walks in front of their places constantly sprinkled with sand or ashes. There is no attention being paid to this by-law. The lamentable accident which happened to Miss Sherwood on Friday evening goes to prove that there is need to have the by-law enforced. In many places the walks are covered with ice, and exceedingly dangerous, particularly for elderly people. We do not see how the town can very well keep the walks sprinkled. It should be the duty of the individual to see that the walks in front of their place is looked after in this regard. This is the way it is done in Toronto, we understand. The by-law should either be rescinded or enforced. If the latter the council should advertise the provisions in the papers of the town, as well as by poster, and instruct the police to see that it is carried out.

Double Trading Stamps.

For the next few days double trading stamps will be given at the Times Bookstore. Our stock of fancy goods will be cleared out at cost to make room for fresh importations.

The Children's Eyes.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I was pleased to see a letter from Dr. Jessie Birnie, dealing with children's eyes, in print on Saturday. The Dr. has spoken words of truth and wisdom that should not go unheeded. I happen to know of a case in this very town where a young girl's eyes had been so badly neglected that she is an invalid. How many poor little souls are there that suffer daily from headache which is caused solely by the eye? Scores, I am sure. Mr. Walker, the efficient inspector, should make a study of the subject of light and shade in the schools. The desks could be arranged and the walls colored so as to give some effect to Dr. Birnie's suggestions, as a start. Later on some scheme for systematic examination of the eyes of the pupils could be made, which might be made to include the teeth.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, etc.,

A PARENT.

LOYALTY OF THE IRISH.

Home Rule Members Grow Furious at the Remarks of Other Irishmen.

London, Feb. 3.—Irish members took an uppermost part in yesterday's debate in the House od Commons. It began by John MaNeill, an anti-Parnellite, enquiring why the Irish militiamen were sent away from Ireland, and unexpectedly Wm. Johnston, Conservative member for South Belfast, declared, "Because they are rebels," and this precipitated a lively few minutes. John Dillon followed by remarking, "Irish rebels are good enough for you to fight behind in the Transvaal."

When the debate on the address was resumed, George J. Goschen, First Lord of the Admirality, proceeded to defend the Government. Referring to the admirality he said that they knew their position, and the btrong and weak points. They had regard for the situation from the point of view of the Empire, and not from that of South Africa alone. It would have been a criminal act to do otherwise, but it would be unwise to paradetheir strength. "If Germany or any of the great powers had been in our position would they have been more patient?" Mr. Goschen asked. He then said he realized the position was serious, but, he added, there was no reason for any feeling of insecurity.

Vote Might Do Harm.

Sir Edward Clarke, member for Plymouth, who followed Mr. Goschen, suggested that at the end of the debate the amendment to the address should be withdrawn, as the vote might be misunderstood in the Transvaal and throughout Europe. He said that whatever difference of opinion there might be regarding the inevitability of the war, more mischief, in his judgment, would be occasioned by stopping hostilities than by conducting them to a successful issue.

Col. Saunderson, Conservative member for North Armagh, in alively speech criticizing the pro-Boerism of the Nationalists, provoked another scene by declaring that the Nationalists never attacked in front, but always from the rear.

This remark was met by an uproar from the rIish benches, Mr. Dillon complaining that the Nationalists had been grossly insulted, and others jeeringly asked Col. Saunderson why be did not go to the front.

That Jameson Raid.

Mr. Chamberlain, being asked in regard to a letter sent by Mr. B. F. Hawksley, counsel for the British South African Company, to Earl Grey, formerly British administrator of Mashonaland, under date of Feb. 20, 1897, in which he said that Mr. Chamberlain would have no one but himself to blame if the cable despatches feferring to the negotiations of 1895 were produced before the Parliamentary Committee of Enquiry, replied that that they were communications between third parties, and he had no knowledge of them at the time they were exchanged. He assumed that the cable despatches were those which Mr. Hawksley had declined to produce. The cable messages were sent to him in 1896 for confidental perusal, and he returned them with a letter, saying there would be no personal objection to their publication.

Can eat any kind of food since she left off coffee and uses
Postum Food Coffee

"Coffe caused dull headaches and dizziness, with steady indigestion, until I discovered the reason of the trouble, and this was proven by leaving off coffee and taking Postum Food Coffee. The dizziness, headache and indigestion have entirely disappeared.

"My mother, Mrs. Burlingame, Kenilworth, O., was a great sufferer from stomach trouble and indigestion for many years. She had to live on a very restricted diet, until during the past winter she gave up coffee and began using Postum Food Coffee every day. It is now three months since she made the change, and she is so much improved that she can eat nearly any kind of food. It is evidence to us that the coffee caused the trouble and that the Postum Food Coffee helped her build her way back into health and strength." Mrs. J. M. Gould, W. Farmington, O.

DECKER THE COUNTERFEITER.

He Was Suspected While Residing in Montreal.

Montreal, Feb. 3.—Anthony Decker, whose arrest at Baltimore on a charge of counterfeiting has caused so much of a sensation, was well known in Montreal. He came to this city some 17 years ago from Phidalphia. He obtained employment as an expert engraver with the Burland Lithographing Company, and remained with them, excepting for about two years, when he went to the Sabiston Lithographic Company. He was in the habit of telling wonderful tales about his travels and property, so wonderful that none of his fellow workers believed them. He had a good sized family of children, but none of them worked much, and he was not, as a rule, flush with money. The oldest boy, who is at present arrested, did very little. A small boy had been working as an errand boy, and one of the daughters worked till she left Montreal. His companions at Burland's say that he was always telling about counterfeiting—how easy it was and what money there there could be made by it. Some of them of them were pretty suspicious of him. It was known that he had a hand press at home at te time when the news of the circulation of one dollar bills became known first, and appeared in the papers. Decker one day, pulling out a roll of bills, showed two of the counterfeits, and discussed their good points. None of his associates were surprised at te news of his arrest.

The circumstances surrounding his departure from Montreal were strange, and caused some comment byhis employers. The heads of the firm were away at the time, and on their arrical back to the city of Montreal they were informed that Decker had left very suddenly; in fact, had disappeared without leaving any clue to his whereabouts. His family said that he had gone to Germany, and others that he had gone to New York. The family also has since gone away, leaving no trace.

Decker's Telegraph Code.

Ottawa, Ont, Feb. 3.—Great satisfaction is expressed here at the capture of the Decker gang of bank note counterfeiters. The several arrests are a tribute to the shrewdness of Colonel Sherwood, Commissioner of Dominion Police, who has had his men quietly working upon the case for months, and when the hour to capture the Boers arrived, they were safely corralled. On the several parties arrested evidence of a most incriminatory character was discovered.

Decker, who has been travelling also under the aliases of Rose and Denntger, evidently knew at the time that suspicion would point to him, as, indeed, the Montreal papers had broadly hinted that he was the author of the counterfeit one dollar Dominion note which was discovered in circulation last year. Decker was therefore constantly on the move, but there were detectives on the track, and the United States service, at Colonel Sherwood's request, has been shadowing him for some weeks.

Among Decker's effects at Baltimore there was discovered yesterday a telegraphic code, whichis unique in its way. Sentences have been constructed to guard against any possible danger, as, for instance, "R. A." I am being shadowed by detectives." "W.T." "this place is getting too hot for me." "J.L." I have escaped. "G.P." send me one hundred dollars, and many sentences of a similar character.

A report to Colonel Sherwood from Constable Parkinson, of Woodstock, Ont., states that the effects discovered in Carl Decker's possession include plates and dies for note printing, engraving tools, and six cans of colors for tinting purposes.

The elder Decker will be extradicted and allthe parties tried at Woodstock. The arrests are regarded as among the most important ever made in this class of crime in Canada, owing to the skill and experience of Decker senior.

BILLS OVER A CENTURY OLD

They Show Tea to Have Been a Cambridge Student's Favorite Drink.

There is a bill for groceries, etc., furnished for an undergraduate at Cambridge in the year 1788. The bill contains one or two items of furniture. Apparently the undergraduate took over rooms already furnished at a valuation, and certain articles had to be bought new, such as a hearth brush, a pail, a mop and a "Holland gotch." One knows not what this means, but it cost 2 shillings 9 pence (43 cents).

The undergraduate would seem at first sight to have consumed tea in a most reckless manner. On Oct. 24 he is charged 2 shillings for Hyson and 1 shilling 6 pence for Congo. On Nov. 1 he is charged 2 shillings for tea and on the same day, which looks odd, 6 shillings 6 pence for tea. On the 9th of the month he buys a new teapot, the old one, one supposes, worn out with hard service. However, this tea lasts him till the end of the term, so that his tea costs him for the two months no more than 11 shillings, or $2.75, and as the price of tea at this time varied from 8 shillings to about 25 shillings we may conclude that he got through no more than a pound during the term.

In other words, this young man took for breakfast a slight repast of weak tea and bread and butter. Dinner was then served at 12, so that breakfast was only what the Indians call a "chota hazri." On sugar he spent 4 shillings, which means six pounds at 8 pence a pound. On candles he spent 24 shillings 8½ pence, or about 3 shillings a week. He burned wax candles, mold candles and "wax twist." Salt was a shilling a packet. On two occasions he bought sand. Was, then, the floor of his room sanded? It would seem so.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Soak flannels in cold borax water. If very soiled, make a slight lather. Souse up and down and rinse well. They must never be rubbed.

Scrubbing brushes should never be allowed to soak in water, either hot or cold. Shake them when finished with and stand them in the air to dry.

Shoes that are not in use need to be aired and cleaned once in a fortnight at least, or they will not wear as long as if they had been worn each day.

A broom that is plunged into boiling suds once a week will become tough, so that it will last much longer, will not cut a carpet and will always sweep like a new broom.

BULLER'S MOVEMENTS ARE KEPT VERY QUIET.

Despatches Claim He Is Relieving Ladysmith, But Officials Say He Remains Inactive.

BESIEGED LADYSMITH IS IN A SORRY PLIGHT.

Deaths From Disease Still Reported in Scores—Indications That Lack of Food Is Causing the Mortality—Prompt Action is Very Necessary.

London, Feb. 5.—As was only expected by those who are capable of reasoning clearly the British War Office denied the report circulated with such pertinacity during the past week that General Buller has once more crossed the Tugela and is engaging the Boers. It is stated further that no immediate movement is anticipated, and the cannonading heard at certain points in Natal is accounted for by practice firing, or what is probably more accurate by range-finding on the part of recently arrived artillerymen at Zwartz Kop and Mount Alice. As was intimated last week in this despatch the probabilities are all against a resumption of the advance for the relief of Ladysmith until some time has been devoted to reorganization and reconnaissances. As to the condition of the beleagured garrison nothing official is known beyond the all too frequent lists of deaths from disease published by the War Office. Hunger and disease, however, go hand-in-hand, and there is every reason to fear that the mortality in the garrison is due in great measure to scarcity of proper food. One thing is certain, and this is that the gallant band under General White is rapidly being decimated by an enemy far more dangerous than the Boers, and that when the head of the relieving column enters the town its members will be greeted with woeful sights. That White will hold on as long as he can keep absolute starvation from his lines is undoubted. The time is nevertheless approaching when the condition of the besieged will become critical, for it can scarcely be credited that they have been provisioned for a much longer period. It is evident that Roberts and Kitchener must move with remarkable celerity into the enemy's country if they wish to create the diversion which will save White and prevent a castrope such as British arms have not sustained for half a century.

QUIET AT THE FRONT.

London, Feb. 5.—The correspondent of the Associated Press learns officially that absolutely no confirmation has been received by the War Office of the report that Gen. Buller has re-crossed the Tugela River and is marching on Ladysmith. On the contrary, according to the information of the War Office at the present moment, there is every indication that things are quiet at the front and that no immediate movement is anticipated.

Regarding the despatches from Ladysmith saying that Buller's guns have been heard there, it is surmised that some practice may have been going on with the new batteries, which have just reached the front.

"RESIGNED BUT DETERMINED.

Ladysmith, Feb. 5.—All is quiet here except an occasional change of shots between British patrols and Boer pickets. The enemy's movements are constant, but we can find nothing about them. The garrison is resigned but determined.

ADVANCE FROM BELMONT.

London, Feb. 4.—Generals Roberts and Kitchener are clearly at work upon a general plan of capaign, and when operations are opened there will be activity all along the line. There is no definite information from any quarter, but there are hints that General Tucker is carrying some battalions and batteries towards Modder River, that General French has been in consultation with Generals Kitchener and Kelly-Kenny, that Stormberg is nearly surrounded, and that a considerable force is massed at Belmont for a sudden movement toward the Orange river bridges behind Colesberg.

THE REVERSE AT STORMBERG

London, Jan. 20.—Extended accounts of the British reverses at Stormberg, Magersfontein and Colenso are coming in by mail from war correspondents. The correspondent of The Times describes Gen. Gatacre's reverse at this point in part as follows: "The infantry had been at work, or in the train in open trucks, or marching since 4 a.m. on Saturday. The actual march occupied seven hours, and it is, therefore, little to be wondered at that the men were wholly incapable of making a supreme effort when at last they were surprised by receiving fire at short range while marching in fours in fancied security. On receiving the enemy's fire the companies at hand rushed at once against the kkopjes from which it proceeded and advancing from boulder to boulder, swiftly commenced to ascend. Indeed, it is a fact that a considerable number actually reached within a few yards of a lower line of 'sconces, which could not, however, be reached without ladders. But at this juncture our own artillery, failing in the [illegible] uncertain light to observe the ascent of the infantry, opened fire upon the enemy and, several shells falling short, dealt destruction among the assailants of the position. A partial retirement instantly ensued and having been brought to a standstill the attack gradually melted away until, convinced that the case was hopeless, the general ordered the retire to be sounded. Had the order been promptly obeyed the troops might not improbably have been withdrawn without very serious loss, and a fresh attempt might even yet have been successfully prosecuted. But it was not to be. Many men were loth to retire because they were anxious to go on, while not a few were so utterly exhausted that they simply preferred to stay where they were at all hazards than to undertake the ordeal of a rapid retirement over the open ground at the foot of the hills. Eventually, as if on retirement was executed by those who responded to the order, the soldiers moving back at a steady pace without the least hurry or confusion, and halting constantly to fire."

BRITISH SUCCESS AT COLESBERG

Rensburg, Feb. 3.—The New Zealanders, Rimington's Guides and a squadron of Life Guards made a sweep of several miles along the hills adjacent to the British right flank. One kopje occupied by Boers was rushed, the Boers clearing out after a slight resistance. One New Zealander was wounded. Small parties in the distance retreated whenever the British horse appeared.

DASTARDLY BOER WORK.

London, Feb. 3.—The Standard, among its death notices, to-day prints the following: "McLachlan—On Christmas Day, shot in Market Square, Harrismith, Orange Free State, South Africa, for refusing to fight against his own countrymen, John McLachlan, jr., aged 30, eldest son of John McLachlan, of Wandsworth, and grandson of the late John McLachlan, of Lambeth.

The Spectator, commenting on the above, says that if the statement contained in the notice is true "the whole English-speaking world should ring with denunciations of a crime so despicable.

SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE.

Lorenzo Marquez, Feb. 5.—Several foreign consuls here have no difficulty in satisfying the Portuguese authorities that their countrymen are going to the Transvaal on business unconnected with the military operations, and the influx continues. The majority of the immigrants are soldiers of fortune recruited on the continent, whose usefulness in the field is not dependent upon their ability to handle a rifle. The Campania brought a number of French artillerists who understand the working of the Creusot guns.

RIGORS OF THE CENSORSHIP.

London, Feb. 5.—There was some additional news from Zululand that a Boer force, with artillery, had attacked Nqutu and forced the Magistrate and his staff to surrender. There was no positive information at midnight respecting a fresh movement by General Buller's troops. The rigor with which the censorship was enforced suggested that a new combination had been formed, but there was nothing known either at Pietermaritzburg or Durban respecting it. Despatches from Modder River, Naauwpoort and Major-General Gatacre's headquarters were equally inconclusive. Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener have been content to cable from day to day, "Situation unchanged," and the War Office apparently knows as little as the public respecting the scope and direction of the new movement of the forces.

The Rigid Censorship.

The chief obect of the censorship has been explained to me by a high official in these words—"In any campaign, and especially in this campaign, it helps us and hinders the enemy if we can disguise our concentrations." This is probably the true explanation of the total lack of information of real value from every quarter of the field of operations. Lord Roberts' bulletin during the evening dealt with Mafeking, where Baden-Powell's entrenching has been successfully conducted, as previously stated in press despatches, to take their guns out of rifle fire. One British commander at least has learned the art of using the spade against an enemy that is constantly entrenching.

BOERS DESTROY CULVERTS.

Modder River, Feb. 3.—A strong cavalry and artillery reconnaissance was made to-day of the Boer position to the westward of Modder River station.

The balloonist saw a considerable number of Boers trekking toward Jacobsdal.

The British shell fire directed at the Boers was ineffective, owing to the prevalence of a dust storm.

The Boers yesterday were busy destroying the railway between here and Langeburg, from a point two thousand yards from the British advanced position.

Thirty-three explosions were heard, and doubtless the line and culverts were wrecked for a considerable distance.

GALLANT BRITISH SIGNALLERS

Spearman's Camp, Feb. 3.—During the storming of Spion Kop Lieut. Martin of the King's Own Regiment, with Signaller Goodyear of the West Yorkshire Regiment, and Lomas and Turner of the Lancashire Regiment, established a heliograph station on the summit of the hill, where they were exposed to the heaviest shell fire of the enemy.

Their work was most important, as their signalling connected both sides of the hill. The heliograph was knocked over three times by shells. Lieut Martin was called away early in the day to attend to other duties, but the men remained throughout the day, performing their work in the most heroic manner.

GEN. PRETORIUS SENT BACK.

Cape Town, Feb. 3.—General Pretorius, made a prisoner at Elandslaagte, has recovered sufficientyl after the amputation of his leg and will be sent back to the Boer army, arrangements having been made with Gen. Methuen to hand him over to Commandant Cronje.

A SUSPICIOUS BULLETIN.

London, Feb. 5.—1 a.m.—Rumors were again in the air at midnight that Gen. Buller's army had recrossed the Tugela. The Central News echoing Charles Williams' announcement, stated on the authority of a Durban despatch, that the troops started on Friday night and were marching toward Ladysmith yesterday. The bulletin had a suspicious look, since it was accompanied by a rider that no definite information would be alowed to come through until the town was relieved. The report was well within the range of probabilities, but no importance could be attached to it until official confirmation was received. The War Office neither encourages or interferes with the amateur strategy now going on in the newspaper offices.

Much Speculation.

There was no bulletin from General Buller, and the military writers were left at liberty to plan his campaign for him in this morning's journals and to send him across the Tugela as far west as Bethany, and again at Potgieter's, or further down at the junction of the Little Tugela with the main river. Fleet street was mainly occupied at midnight with this amateur campaigning. A heavy mail had come in from Cape Town, and there was a big budget of special correspondence from Natal and Modder River, already in type for this morning's press. Despatches from the seat of war were numerous, but of little account.

ROBERTS ON THE EVE OF SUCCESS.

The General Will Do the Right Thing and Will Do it With All His Might.

London, Feb. 5.—For the first time the Morning Post's military expert assumes a cheerful tone. The war will come right, he says in this morning's issue, "in spite of the bungling of last summer and this winter. There have reached South Africa since September 25,000 men; there are 200,000 British troops in South Africa, and by the end of this month the grand total will be greatly augmented.

"Roberts is a commander who knows his own mind. He will inaugurate measures to bring together into one army the forces now scattered over a wide area between Kimberley and Queenstown, and will invade the Orange Free State. His advance will draw the Boers from small objectives and command their attention. The nation may rely with perfect confidence on his doing the right thing and doing it with all his might. Ladysmith may be trusted to hold out until Buller has opened the way or Roberts has begun to move."

The Leader expert still insists that an effort was made late on Saturday night or early Sunday morning to cross the Tugela east of Swartz Kop. He says the movement must have been slow, and suggests that Dundonald's cavalry was threatening the Boers' northern lines of communication while the artillery is moving across the Tugela against the Boer positions east and south of Spion Kop.

Messages From Ladysmith.

There were heliograph messages from Ladysmith as late as Sunday expressing the anxiety with which the beleaguered garrison awaited relief, but showing no signs of the precise direction from which it was expected. There was also a fresh edition of the tales of natives runners respecting serious Boer losses at Spion Kop, where an unusual number of Boer officers were reported killed or wounded. There was an untrustworthy story from Durban that the Boers had shot and wounded colonial soldiers. The Boers have been wily and tricky during the campaign, but not unmerciful to the wounded.

AN APPEAL TO THE U. S.

London, Feb. 3.—The papers here publish extracts from a document emanating from the office of the Secretary of State at Pretoria, dated Dec. 16. The document comprises 10,000 words, and is countersigned by Secretary of State Reitz. It seems specially written for the American public. It says—"We to a great extent depend on America and Europe for our food stuffs. It will be criminal on the part of the great powers to suffer this nation to perish by famine since the sword has failed. Since in 1870 the President of the United States acknowledged our republic as a sovereign State Americans have flocked here in numbers. In every instance the hand of fellowship has been extended to them. Not a single case of disagreement is on record, but with the first war note of the oppressor we are informed that America is acting in league with the enemy. If our sister republic has no sympathy with us, if the boasted condescension of the British is to be preferred to sincerity and truth, we will no longer believe in the justice and integrity of the American nation and her profession of Christianity we will consider empty sound."

THE PAY OF CANADIAN CONTINGENTS.

Canada Wants to Pay Them a Higher Rate Than the British Soldiers Get.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—The correspondence between the Canadian Government and the British Government in regard to the Canadian contingents will be presented to Parliament this afternoon, when the debate on the address will be proceeded with. The correspondence will not contain much that is new, but it will aid materially in facilitating the debate.

In regard to the pay of the contingent, it will be shown that New Zealand offered to pay all cost, but this offer was rejected, as the Colonial Office thought it best that all the colonies should be on the same footing, and that the arrangements provided by the War Office should prevail.

It is not known what course the Canadian Government may take in regard to this matter, but there is no doubt that the members of the contingents will be paid the difference between the Imperial pay and what they would have got if they had remained continuously under the control of the Canadian militia and the Canadian Government.

The subject will be discussed at length, as Sir Charles Tupper evidently desires to move that Canada stand the whole shot in the field and out of it.

BOERS IN ZULULAND.

Head Laager, Ladysmith, Feb 3.—Boers with artillery from the Vryheid district attacked the Ngutu Magistracy, Zululand, aJn. 31. They captured the Magistrate and 11 whites and 34 colored police, their horses, 340 rifles and much ammunition. The prisoners were sent to Pretoria.

AMERICAN GENERALS.

What United States Soldiers Would do in Roberts' Place.

Special to the Times.

Washington, Feb. 5.—A Morning Times representative gathered the following information as to the course the leading American military men would take in South Africa if they were in Roberts' place.

Information as to conditions in South Africa are too indefinite to give a conclusive opinion. Anthony Wayne's remark in a council of war always was "Fight, Sir! Fight!" This might be applicable. Those now in command in Natal are well versed in their profession and should be credited with ability to do what is proper under the circumstances.

JOHN R. BROOKE.

A Very Serious Position.

The present situation is a very serious one. You will understand why I cannot express any personal or professional opinion.

NELSON A. MILES.

Do Not Abandon Ladysmith.

With his great superiority in men and resources, General Roberts should invade Boer territory, destroy the communications of his enemy, seize Blomfontein and push on to Pretoria. The abandonment of Ladysmith would have such grave consequences, both political and military, that the British commander should not listen to such a suggestion unless the garrison is unable to hold out long enough for the advance of another and stronger relieving column.

DANIEL E. SICKLES.

Roberts Should Go Home.

If England intends to prosecute the war in South Africa I think that Roberts should concentrate his forces to strike at some important position of the Boers, but in my judgement the best thing he could do would be to take all his forces back to England.

WADE HAMPTON.

Reinforce and Try Again.

General Roberts should do nothing except to concentrate and reinforce his armies.

W. P. CARLIN, Brigadier Gen.

Natal a Dangerously Hilly Land.

It was a grave error for General White to shut in himself among the hills about Ladysmith. He should have retired to the coast or to level country, where reinforcements could reach him. It looks as if the result would be the fall of Ladysmith. The present failure to penetrate the Boer lines was to have been expected. The British will probably now organize a separate army, strong enough to penetrate Boer territory by another line and thus turn the Boer position about Ladysmith.

But the final result is not to be reached by capturing one or even many positions, but a long series of hard fought battles in which superior numbers and resources ought finally to prevail. It is a battle between heroes, who will fight it out to a finish.

JOHN M. SCHOFIELD.

Position is Strategetically Bad.

Speaking of the South African war, Brigadier General J. C. Breckinridge, inspector general of the army, says—

"The situation is generally what everybody ought to have anticipated when the war began. The English have undertaken the subjugation of a body of God-fearing frontiersmen, who know how to take care of themselves in the open and overcome the obstacles of nature, and how to handle their weapons, and who are as fearless as any white men living. Besides, they are so distant from England that time becomes a matter of first importance, and the British Government is now undergoing the same experience it did with our ancestors, though probably with greater difference in the present case, as the points of assault are farther from the sea coast, which is her channel of communication.

"The tactical requirements of the situation, fluctuating day by day, prevent an absolute judgement being passed upon what induced a movement on any particular day. In general terms it seems that no general officer, under the conditions and armaments existing on modern battlefields, is entitled to anticipate victory unless he has a positive instinct for the enemy's flank, and in this case General Buller, after first striving to pierce the centre, has made some effort to turn the enemy's left, and without success. This, of course, is purely tactical. Whether it will be adviseable to engage in further tactical manoeuvres or make an attempt to solve the problem by a strategical operation in a matter that can only be wisely decided upon the ground.

NEW TREATY FOR THE BIG PANAMA CANAL.

United States Gets Power to Build and Operate a Waterway Across Central America.

CANAL TO BE OPEN TO THE WHOLE WORLD.

New Treaty Vests in the United States an Exclusive and Unchallenged Right to Build and Control Canal, That Not to Fortify Approaches.

Washington, Feb. 5.—A treath has been entered into between Britain and the United States which removes all obstacles standing in the way of the Nicaragua Canal, and abrogates the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. The new agreement has been signed by Secretary Hay, on the part of the United States, and Lord Pauncefortе, on the part of Great Britain, and will be sent to the Senate in a few days. In principal, the new treaty vests in the United States an exclusive and unchallenged right to build and manage the canal, both signatory powers guarantee the canal's neutrality, and the United States is pledged to refrain from fortifying its approaches or otherwise restricting open access to it for the world's commerce. All the other powers are to be asked to observe the canal's neutrality, which is to be placed on the same basis as the Suez Canal in international politics; that is, all warships are to be permitted to pass through the new canal in time of peace and war, but no military advantage is to accrue to any power through the seizure of the canal's gateways. Virtually, however, the Nicaragua Canal is to be under the control of the United States.

It is expected that decided action will follow the passing of this treaty, as it dissipates the last doubt that the United States cannot own and control a waterway across the continent. Both branches of the administration are in favor of the project, and President McKinley, in his message of December, 1898, referred to the urgency of the work. Negotiations have been in progress during the past year, and at no stage did the British Government express a desire for compensation in exchange for the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

BABY'S EYES BURNED OUT.

Little Italian Boy Took a Red Hot Poker and Blinded His Sister.

Philadelphia, Feb. 5.—Tony Santoro is five years old, a mischievous little Italian boy, who lives at 523 Baker street with his mother and father and a fifteen-months-old sister, Pepita. During the day Tony's mother and father leave the boy alone in the house to take care of the baby. Both parents must work to earn enough to live.

Yesterday Tony invented a fine new game. He had seen the fire made by his mother and when she went out he thought that it would be fun to do what she did. So he took the poker and thrust it into the hot coals. He turned it and twisted it. The coals glowed and little Pepita crowed as she watched the game.

Then Tony took the red hot poker out and waved it. Pepita crowed louder than ever.

No one can tell from what hidden springs come a child's impulses. Tony stopped waving the poker. He went over to helpless little Pepita and thrust the hot end into the baby's eyes.

When the mother and father came home the little one was screaming in agony. At the Philadelphia Hospital for the Insane, where she was taken as fast as a heartsick mother could run, it was said she will never see again. There are even doubts about the baby's life.

Having Fun with the Boers.

London, Feb. 5.—Several of our soldiers were guilty of very shabby tricks upon the guileless Boer. A squadron of Lancers in one of the patrols took with them one day a Lancer of straw. This figure was left near a Boer position, and, viewed from a distance, looked like a veritable cavalryman. The figure was left on a rock and it was not long before the Boers were having shots at the soldier who so daringly exposed himself. Mauser bullets had no effect, and it is alleged that, getting exasperated, they turned one of their big guns on the dummy. The Liverpools one day set up a row of effigies, and the Boers were driven nearly crazy by the indifference these men showed to their fire. Then there was the bogus artillery some of our people constructed one night on the town lands in front of Umbulwana. They were figures of men and something which looked like fifteen-pounders. The Boers blazed away at this battery, and "knocked particular hell out of it," as an artilleryman with many delightful grins, said, only to find out that they were being fooled.

The Ring.

New York, Feb. 5.—A man who wants to fight Jeffries arrived in New York to-day. He is eight feet in height and between his extended finger tips the distance is seven feet nine inches. He weighs 375 pounds. His length of stride and the phenomenal reach of his arms are what he depends on to get away with the world's champion fighter. Hassan Ali is the giant's name. He is 24 years old. He is an Arabian. He has heard and read of Jeffries, and is confident that he can defeat him by getting in a knockout blow before Jeffries can get anywhere near him. His hands are about twelve inches in length. His feet are enormous. He is said to have the appetite of six men and to sleep on a specially-made bed of gigantic proportions.

Hockey

The Fenelon Falls team done up Bobcaygeon by a score of 20 goals to 0. Are Peterborough Juniors afraid to tackle the Falls boys?

Toronto Telegram of Saturday.—Belleville's complaint about mob-like treatment in Kingston is re-echoed in Peterboro. The last colts of that town played in the Penetentiary City last night, and though they were defeated by the Cadets, the latter did not win the round. After the match, so 'tis said, pandemonium reigned. The Peterboro lads thought they had fallen into a Boer trap. Bayonets were fixed, but a peace committee, with a W. T. Stead at its head, quelled the foaming crowd, and it was another evidence to Peterboro that Kingston cannot take defeat without raising a turmoil. Referee George Sheriff, good fellow that he is, also met with the hostilities of the crowd, and had he not dared the whole mob to come out on the ice and take a look at him, he would not have been able to return to Brockville. Now Kingston, for the sake of Guy Curtis' reputation, cease everlasting kicking against teams and referees. Let there be peace.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

General Hutton says that the public should not form any judgement on the merits of his quarrel with Colonel Hughes until both sides of the story are heard. That's so. Now let us hear Col. Hughes' side.

Spion Kop not being the key to the Boer position was partly the reason for Buller making a bolt for the Tugela.

A FOOD QUESTION IN NATAL.

A Horrible Outlook in the British Provinces.

The eastern campaign in South Africa provides little new matter. Writing from Pietermaritzburg the correspondent of the Daily News says:—

"There are strong grounds for the belief that a famine among the native population of Natal will have to be added to the horrors of war. Stocks of maize (or 'mealies' as the grain is called in this country) are fast diminishing, and consequently the principal article of native diet, so far as locally grown supplies are concerned, bids fair to disappear entirely from the market. Possibly the Government will import, as was done on a previous occasion when a famine threatened in consequence of rinderpest carrying off the oxen and the natives being prevented from plowing, but if this plan is resorted to, the tax of 2s. per 100 pounds imposed on imported maize under the Customs Convention entered into with the Cape Colony and the Orange Free State by the Binns Ministry, will have to be abolished, and this will not please the Protectionist party, by the votes of whom the present Ministry hold office. There are various reasons to account for the insufficiency of this season's crop. The military authorities have been large buyers of both mealies and meal; and thousands of natives employed at the mines have been thrown back into the Colony, and these, no longer earning money with which to purchase oxen for plowing and seed for planting, have to be fed.

"Furthermore, two-thirds of the farmers of the Colony have been obliged to suspend farming operations through being called out on active service, or owing to the inroads made by the Boers through the northern and midland districts. Those who have not been affected in this manner have abandoned work on their farms for more lucrative employment in the service of the Imperial Government, chiefly for purposes of transport, £2 per day being the rate of pay for the hire of a wagon and a span of oxen. It will thus be seen that agricultural interests are being entirely neglected, and though the ordinary consumer will suffer as the result of that neglect, the natives of the Colony, of whom there are more than half a million, will undoubtedly be the chief sufferers, for not only will they be deprived of the staple article of their food supply, but they will be compelled to face the poverty entailed by the curtailment of their spending power, as the result of the stoppage of mining operations on the Rand.

"The natives bore their losses from the scourge of rinderpest with amazing fortitude and complacence, but the horrors of famine following so closely on the heels of the cattle plague will render it necessary for the occupant of the office of Secretary for Native Affairs to keep a cool head and to administer his department with tact and sound judgment, if a serious disaster is to be averted.

HOW BRAVE GEN. GORDON DIED

Neufeld Says He Fell With His Face to the Foe after Cutting Down Nearly a Score of them.

The killing of General Gordon at Khartum, in January, 1885, closed a drama for the finale of which the English speaking world waited breathlessly. His death was not known in England till long after it really occurred, but it brought an unexampled shock and sorrow to her highest minds. How it struck home to Stevenson's heart we have only lately read in his Letters; and an endless anthology of grief stricken and indignant utterances could be called from other writers. The political effect of Gordon's tragic taking off was also considerable. But exactly how he met his fate is a matter of inference. All of his English companions whom he could send away in advance he urged to escape the doom which he saw impending; and no English speaking eyewitnesses survived to tell the tale.

This facts lends extraordinary interest to the account of the matter contained in Charles Neufeld's "A Prisoner of the Khaleefa, just published in this country by the Putnams. A captive at Omdurman for nearly twelve years, knowing Arabic well, and in contact with many native survivors of the seige of Khartum in 1885, he professes to have entirely new and perfectly authenticated evidence as to the way in which Gordon went to his death. His story is in flat contradiction of the accepted account. That, as built up on the narratives of Slatin Pasha, Father Ohrwalder and others, represents Gordon as coming out to the top of the palace staircases, when the Dervishers broke in, placidly asking them what they wanted, then suddenly felled by a spear thrust from behind, dragged down the steps and decapitated. But now hear what Neufeld says.

"Those who knew Charles George Gordon will believe me when I aver that he died—as they must all have believed that he died, in spite of the official and semi-official accounts to the contrary—as the soldier and lion-hearted man he was. Gordon did not rest his hand on the hilt of his sword and turn his back to his enemies to receive his mortal wound. Gordon drew his sword and used it. When Gordon fell his sword was dripping with the blood of his assailants, for no less than sixteen or seventeen did he cut down with it. When Gordon fell his life's blood was pouring from a spear and pistol shot wound in his right breast. When Gordon fell his boots were slippery from the blood of the crowd of dervishes he shot and hacked his way through in his heroic attempt to cut his way out and place himself at the head of his troops. Gordon died as only Gordon could die. Let the world be misinformed and deceived about Sudan affairs with the tales of so-called guides and spies, but let it be told the truth of Gordon's death.

"Each day at dawn, when he retired to rest, he bolted his door from the inside and placed his faithful body servant Khaleel Aga Oraphall, on guard outside it. On the fatal night Gordon had as usual kept his vigil on the roof of the palace, sending and receiving telegraphic messages from the lines every few minutes, and as dawn crept into the skies, thinking that the long threatened attack was not yet to be delivered, he lay down, wearied out. The little firing heard a few minutes later attracted no more attention than the usual firing which had been going on continuously night and day for months, but when the palace guards were heard firing, it was known that something serious was happening. By the time Gordon had slipped into his old serge or dark tweed suit, and taken his sword and revolver, the advancing dervishes were already surrounding the palace. Overcoming the guards, a rush was made up the stairs, and Gordon was met leaving his room. A small spear was thrown, which wounded him, but very slightly, on the left shoulder. Almost before the dervishes knew what was happening three of them lay dead and one wounded at Gordon's feet; the remainder fled. Quickly reloading his revolver, Gordon made for the head of the stairs, and again drove the reassembling dervishes off. Darting back to reload, he received a stab in his left shoulder blade from a dervish concealed behind the corridor door, and on reaching the steps the third time he received a pistolshot and spear wound in his right breast, and then, great soldier as he was, he rose almost above himself.

"With his life's blood pouring from his breast, not his back, remember—he fought his way, step by step, kicking from his path the wounded and dead dervishes—for for Orphall, too, had not been idle—and was passing through the doorway leading into the courtyard, when another concealed dervish almost severed his right leg with a single blow. Then Gordon fell. The steps he had fought his way—not being dragged down—were encumbered with the bodies of the dead and dying dervishes. No dervish spear pierces the live and quickening flesh of a prostrate but still conscious Gordon, for he breathed his last as he turned to fave his assailant, half raised his sword to strike, and fell dead with his face to heaven."

This is the account which Neufeld says he gathered from various Khartum survivors. In an appendix he gies the testimony of the very body servant of Gordon, Orphall, which he received after his escape to Cairo, and which differs from his own story only in unimportant details. Even so, it would no doubt be rash to accept this new light upon the manner of Gordon's death without reserve.

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

Cheedle and I spent the evening alone together, Mrs. Cheedle being out of town on a visit to some relatives and this was our crucial glass of whiskey and soda. We had been very candid with one another, and were in a fine glow of honesty.

"It's a breach of confidence, I'm afraid," said Cheedle. "And it isn't a thing you ought to know, because you are vain enough already. (No offence, old man. We're being frank, you know. Hang it all, I'm vain, too.) But I tell you this for her sake."

"Her sake? Whose?" I asked.

"All in good time," he replied. "I wouldn't tell you at all, Phil if I didn't repose so much confidence in your good taste; for whatever else you may be, Phil, you are still a gentleman."

"A colored imitation, at least, I hope," said I.

"You know my wife's cousin?" he began.

"She has so many."

"Awful crowd! But I mean the pretty one."

"Little girl with flaxen hair? Rather—a shade—too conscious of her profile."

"Yes, Ha, ha! Miss Marsh." He sipped solemnly.

"Well?"

"It is a pity. My wife told me. I should never have suspected it myself. She's a little bit impressed by you."

"In love with me?"

"Damn your complacency! I suppose so."

"Poor girl!" said I.

"She isn't a fool, either."

"Not a bit of it," I cried.

"That makes it all the more extraordinary."

"I don't see that."

"My object in telling you is to warn you against that infernal trick of yours on her. You know what I mean? That way you have of talking to a woman as if she were the only one of her sex in the world."

"A reprehensible habit. So dangerous!" said I. "I will be careful."

"Yes, do be careful, old man."

We were silent awhile. I got up, murmuring again, "oPor girl!" bade farewell to Cheedle, and went home. I had not intended to be at the Massie's party on the following evening, but knowing that Miss Marsh would be there and feeling anxious to begin the cruel business of disillusionment at once—that it might be he sooner over—I dressed and went.

The drawing room was very crowded. I looked about for Miss Marsh, and presently espied her in a far corner. By slow stages I made my way toward her. She marked my approach with a wistful face, and when I was close enough made room for me beside her. Poor thing! We shook hands, and I noted a tender light in her eyes. My heart ached with pity.

"How hot it is in here!" said she.

Oh, these hollow commonplaces uttered calmly in a gale of passion!

"Yes," said I. "I wonder if we could get out into the conservatory?"

We managed it by dint of many profuse bustlings, strewing our path with apologies as we went. Our end attained we sat down side by side under a tub palm, and looked at one another.

"How pleasant it is out here!" she murmured.

"So cool," said I.

Conversation was certainly difficult.

"The usual rumor concerning you is out," said she.

"Indeed!" I cried. It was no time to be witty.

"They have married you again, Mr. Wroughtnight."

"Who is the unlucky lady this time?"

"It would not be fair to tell. And—two are mentioned."

Poor girl!

"You know that Rumor is a lying jade, Miss Marsh?"

"By nature—yes. But sometimes—by accident—she speaks the truth."

How valiantly women cover up their scars.

"Of course," said I, "there is no foundation for the rumor."

"I had hoped there was," said she, softly.

Brave heart! It was a dire business.

"There may be some day," I murmured. "I mean that I expect I shall marry sooner or later."

"Oh, I hope so," said she. "When you are a little older. Some strong, helpful woman with ideas. Not a poor little society butterfly—like me."

"If she were like you," said I, and stopped.

"She won't be," said Miss Marsh, quickly.

My heart was torn with pity of her.

"One so seldom marries the person one wants to," said I, breaking the truth to her gently.

"And how much better for us that is, isn't it?"

The rejoiner hardly pleased me.

"How do you mean, Miss Marsh?"

"I mean that the object of our first love is so rarely the person to make us really happy."

I remembered that this was her third season.

"First love is the only love," said I.

"Oh, no," said she.

"Oh, yes," I repeated firmly. It was no time for mawkish faltering. My duty was plain.

"Mr. Wroughtnight," said she, "believe what I am about to say. You are too young yet to know what is best for your own welfare."

It seemed an odd way to talk, as I was at least two years her senior; but I reflected that she was distraught—that she was fighting against her own happiness.

"I think," said I, "I know what is best for me, young as I may be. When my fate comes along—"

"That time is not yet, of course," said she.

Oh, anxious, despairing heart!

"No," I cried, and shuddered in dread expectation of some tragic sign from her. But she was strangely calm. It almost seemed to me that a light of relief leaped into her eyes. The relief of the tortured soul at hearing sentence of death!

A great silence fell on us. She mused, looking at me with strange intentness.

"Mr. Wroughtnight," said she, "I have a mind to be honest with you. I have a strong prejudice in favor of honest dealing. My honesty may cost me your good opinion, but I don't mind that. I mean that I have enough faith in your good sense to believe that you won't think me unwomanly and immodest in saying what I propose to say."

I rose in great agitation.

"Miss Marsh," I said, "pause, reflect. Don't speak yet. You may save us both much pain."

"Nonsense," said she sharply.

I was surprised and a little affronted.

"I beg your pardon," said I, "Go on."

She fluttered her fan nervously.

"I am afraid," said she, "we don't quite understand one another. At least, I think I understand. But you don't.

I moistened my dry lips. "Go on," I said again, breathlessly.

"Mrs. Cheedle has told you something about me?"

"No."

"Mr. Cheedle, then? Somebody."

"Yes," said I.

"What have they told you?"

"I—I cannot repeat it. Miss Marsh, let me implore you to say no more. Let us go back."

"No," said she. "I will tell you what they said. They told you that I—I am— am in love with you."

"They were mistaken," I cried, still willing to spare her.

"Yes, they were," she responded calmly.

I gasped and leaned back in my chair.

"They told me," said she, that you were in love with me."

A bitterness of humiliation flooded my soul.

"I have no doubt they meant well," said she.

"Oh, there is no doubt of that," I agreed sourly.

"Perhaps they thought they might make a match between us that way. Young married couples are always the busiest match-makers. And really, do you know, I think they showed some knowledge of poor human nature in this instance, at any rate."

She smiled. I felt too sick to smile.

"I am sorry," said she, "if you feel at all hurt by this revelation of truth."

Then I saw the absurdity of my position, and summoned my sense of humor to the rescue. It was not possible to remain insensible to Miss Marsh's magnificent command of her own dignity.

"I was a fool," said I.

"I, too," said she, "but it does not matter, now it is all over, does it? And, anyway, nobody will know. We shall both keep the secret inviolate, I dare say, for our honor's sake."

"I am afraid you must think me rather a conceited ass, Miss Marsh."

"Don't be silly," said she; "you thought as I did."

"But with less reason," said I, bowing.

She looked reproachfully at me.

"I have been sincere with you, Mr. Wroughtnight."

"That is why I pay you compliments, I want to restore the balance of things."

"We seem to understand each other now. I think we might be friends," said she.

She gave me her hand, and I clasped it warmly. But whenever I recall that absurd interview my very body blushes.

THE DEATH BADGE

Is Spared to Many a Home, Because Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart Never Fails to Cure Heart Disease—Relief in 30 Minutes.

The pall of death has hovered over many a diseased heart, looking for the last flicker of the candle, and Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart has stepped between the patient and the grim hand, and nursed the sufferer back to perfect and permanent health. Thos. Petrie, of Aylmer, Que., had heart disease for five years, was unable to work. The doctors gave him up to die many a time. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart gave him relief in thirty minutes, and four bottles cured him. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Sing While Marching.

A German army doctor has discovered that singing possesses health giving properties. He claims that it intensifies the respiratory movements, thus rendering the lungs capable of dealing with more air. This increases and strengthens the action of all the organs of the body. Appetite and thirst increase, and the more frequent movements of the diaphragm materially aid digestion. German foot soldiers are therefore encouraged to sing on the march.

Electric Bell Substitute.

A substitute for an electric bell has been devised by a deaf couple. Not being able to hear the bell themselves, and having no servant, they have fixed up an arrangement by means of which when the button at the front door is pressed, the electric lights all over the place light up, and remain so until the button is released. By a reversal of the arrangement, all the lights are switched off when the button is operated after dark.

HUMBLED THE SENATOR.

He Tried to Assert His Independence, but Failed Miserably.

The writer remembers a good many years ago when the late Ezekiel Clarke was a member of the state senate from Johnson county. It is well known that the senator or member from Johnson county is always expected to get a large appropriation for the state university. To fail would be political death. Senator Clarke was anxious to succeed and during the early part of the session voted for everything. If another senator had a bill, all he had to do was to go and whisper in Ezekiel's ear, and he would vote "aye."

One day, however, Ezekiel came into the senate with hair cut and a clean shave. He sat upright in his seat and began to slaughter right and left. State Senator George F. Wright looked across to where the senator from Johnson was sitting and inquired what change had come over the senator from Johnson county. The other senator replied that the appropriation bill for the state university had now passed both houses, and the senator from Johnson was going to make up for lost time.

Clarke kept on punching heads until the senator from Jefferson, Moses A. McCold, rose and solemnly introduced a bill for an act entitled "An act repealing the appropriation for the state university." A broad smile passed around the room, and everybody except the senator from Johnson saw the joke. But the spirit of levity passed away from Senator Clarke. He at once assumed his humble attitude, and the other boys voted him as usual during the remainder of the session.—Des Moines Capital.

FLYING COLUMN IN ZULULAND.

London, Feb, 3.—A despatch to a London paper from Pietermaritzburg says The appearance of the flying column of scouts in Zululand has created some uneasiness among the Boers over the border. A number of Boers have been hurriedly withdrawn from Ladysmith and Dundee to Vryhold to protest that place and oppose any British advance. The Boer force there is about 1,000 strong with three guns.

A REMARKABLE MAN.

CLARK, OF MONTANA, WHOSE SENATE SEAT IS CONTESTED.

He Himself Doesn't Know How Many Millions He is Worth—An Expert Assayer, Practical Architect and Master of Art and French.

The most famous senatorial battle in recent years was that fought before the last Legislature of Montana, when William A. Clark and Marcus Daly, millionaire rivals in business and politics were the candidates and Clark won, after many weeks of balloting. The contest is not yet ended, however. The Daly faction carried a protest to the United States Senate declaring that Clark should not be seated, because, they alleged, his election was procured through bribery. A committee of the Senate is now investigating this charge and the testimony adduced has been the sensation of the week in political circles in Washington. It is claimed that Clark spent $800,000 to obtain his seat, that one State Senator received $35,000 for his vote, another $25,000 and others smaller sums, yet each large enough to be regarded by the average man as a fortune. Clark enters a general denial. He is defended by ex-Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia.

One feature of the investigation was a unique phrase coined by former State Senator Whiteside, of Montana, who was a witness against Clark. He admitted that though a Daly sympathiser he had deliberately pretended to be a supporter of Clark for the purpose of getting the secrets of Clark's campaign and then using them. When the turpitude of his conduct was pointedly described by Clarke's lawyer, Whiteside defended himself in this language:

"A lie is when you state a falsehood to a man who has a right to know the truth; if he has no right to the truth, it is not a lie."

Clark's Interesting Personality.

Senator Clark is the richest man ever elected to the United States Senate. His wealth is so vast that he cannot estimate it. But it is not his wealth alone that makes him of interest. His varied career and his versatile accomplishments make him one of the most remarkable men in public life.

He was born on a farm near Connellsville, Pa., January 8, 1839, and lived there until his seventeenth year, receiving a common school education. When the family settled in Iowa he studied law and taught school. Early in the '60's he drifted west. With all the ambition of the young man of 24, he located in Montana, and started in to make a fortune. He tried merchandising, mining and other ventures. When the Butte copper mines were discovered about 1875, Clarke was among the first on the ground and had the best opportunities of getting good properties. From this time on Clarke made money fast, and by '84 he was reckoned a millionaire and his interests had begun to expand all over the west. With the first million made the others came more easily and during the past fifteen years Mr. Clark's fortune has gone on growing. He is the sole owner of the United Verde copper mine in Arizona, which makes a net profit of $400,000 a month, and for it he has refused $50,000,000 in cash and a block of stock offered by the Rothschilds. This mine is capable of if worked to its full capacity. He has a beet sugar farm and factory near Los Angeles, which cleared $400,000 the first year. He owns one of the largest coffee plantations in the world in Mexico. He owns a gold mine in Arizona paying $100,000 a month. He owns mining interests in Butte worth $100,000 a month. He is spending $50,000 a month in the Coeur d'Alene district, Idaho, developing the largest lead mines in the United States. He owns a coal mine in Carbon county, Mont., which is said to be the best equipped in the country. He is probably the largest live stock owner in Montana, one herd alone being worth $250,000. He has extensive lumber interests in Montana. He owns a bank in Butte. He owns a newspaper, the Butte Miner. He is a very large holder of gilt edge railroad securities. He owns the finest residence in Butte, and is spending $2,500,000 in building his New York city home, and nobody knows how much other property, cash and other available assets he has. As an example of the amount of ready money he carries, here is a case: When the late A. W. Lyman was appointed internal revenue collector he asked Mr. Clark to go on his bond. They were both in New York city at the time and Mr. Clark said he had no real estate there, but that he had cash in four or five banks, and they went to the nearest one having an account with Mr. Clark. The books showed a deposit of over a million dollars to his credit, and the others were about the same.

A Marvellous Worker.

Now as to the man himself. He has a great capacity for work and for years his working hours were from 7 a.m. to 12 p.m. His application and energy are intense and he is thorough in all he undertakes. When he started into the business of mining he learned assaying himself and became an expert; later in life he took up the study of French and is now conversant with its literature, and now speaks it perfectly; he spends three months every year in Paris; when he became interested in art and pictures he applied himself as he did to other subjects and after careful and general reading he studied all the galleries of Europe under the tutelage of competent critics so that to-day there are very few men who know as well as Mr. Clark does the real merit and value of pictures. He knew exactly what he was doing when he paid $42,000 for a Fortuny picture at a sale in New York. He has studied architecture and could make his living as an architect if necessary. His real greatness is his masterful power of analyzing any business proposition submitted to him, and his wonderful capacity to systematise and conduct large business enterprises.

A Gentleman.

He seems to know intuitively what there is in a proposition, and how to carry it to a financial success if he takes hold of it. Mr. Clark is not a man of strong personal magnetism, but he does not affect the air of haughty reserve common to a great many wealthy men. He is a faithful friend and there is no sacrifice too great for him to make for friendship's sake. With the keeping of all engagements he permits nothing to interfere, and what he says he will do that he will do to the very end. Although conscious of his merit, and not averse to anyone else recognizing it, he will freeze a flatterer out in a minute, and no one can pave the way to his favor by conventional compliments. He is not a maker of literature, but he knows his newspaper as he knows other things and when he wants an editorial written he sits down and writes it.

Mr. Clark is a widower with two sons and two daughters. The sons show the business capacity of the father, and the younger one took high rank at the University of Virginia where he was graduated. All the family possess unusual linguistic ability; they are all thoroughly conversant with books, music, art, current thought and events, and when they are all together they constitute an interesting and delightful family.

His Political Career.

Mr. Clark's life has not always been devoted to getting rich and seeking pleasure. He has performed stern duties. In 1877 he was major of a battalion that pursued Chief Joseph and his band of Nez Perces Indians over the hills and plains, suffering hardships such as only the western pioneer knows. In politics he has ever been a fighter and his battles with Marcus Daly, the rival copper king, have endured for years. Both are Democrats and both have been eager for leadership. Clark has had the best of it. He was the orator for Montana at the Philadelphia centennial in 1876. He was president of the Constitutional Convention in 1884 and again in 1889.

Tom Carter defeated him for Congress in 1888 through the aid of Daly. In 1890 he was elected to the Senate, but there was a contest at Washington and his Republican opponent was seated. In 1892, when Daly wanted the State Capital located at Anaconda, his home town, Clark took a hand in the struggle and Helena became the capital. Clark had no special interest in Helena, but he wanted to beat Daly. Mr. Clark was Grand Master of the Montana Masons in 1877.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

SOME COVETED SCRAWLS

Rare Autographs For Which Immense Prices Have Been Paid.

The most prized autographs in the world are those of Shakespeare. Only seven are claimed to exist, three signatures to his will (each with a different spelling), two to conveyances of property, one in the folio edition of his plays (doubtful) and one in a Tudor translation of Montaigne. This last is in the British museum and cost over 3,000 guineas.

One thousand guineas was the price given by the late Mr. Alfred Morrison of Carlton House terrace for an autograph letter written by Marie Stuart to the archbishop of Guise. This and two other letters (one to the pope and the other to the king of France) were written by the unfortunate queen of Scots on the morning of her execution. The letter to the French king was destroyed during the days of the terror, while that to the pope is still preserved at the Vatican.

The well known bookseller Bernard Quaritch gave £1,000 for an autograph of Columbus, which was exhibited at the World's fair at Chicago. A Chicago autograph dealer is said to have offered to give $100,000, or over £20,000, for a genuine autograph of Shakespeare if brought to him within a year of making his offer. It was a safe bluff, for since the tragic fate of Chatterton no forger has cared to tackle the quaint scrawl of the Bard of Avon.—Collier's Weekly.

Family Peacemakers.

More family troubles are adjusted by the magistrates in this city than the average person would willingly believe. There is hardly a day passes that every member of the minor judiciary is not called upon by a determined husband or wife, usually the latter, to issue a warrant. Nine cases out of ten the applicant is considerably excited and is eager to invoke the aid of the law in settling some trifling controversy. By calm argument and assurances the visitor can usually be persuaded to give the offender of her or his peace and happiness another chance, and a home is perhaps saved from being broken up.—Philadelphia Call.

The Architect.

One must wonder why it really is that so little is said or thought about architecture, the grandest, the mother, of all arts, a great, a most useful, science, one in which a greater revolution has lately taken place and in which more progress has been made, with more stupendous results, than in any other, remarks a writer in The International Magazine.

Was it not Richelieu who, paraphrasing an ancient writer, said: "If it is versatility you seek, go find an architect. He must be an artist, or his buildings will offend the eye; an engineer, or they will crumble into trouble; a lawyer, or he will get his patrons into trouble; a doctor, or his buildings will be hygienically unfit to live in, and, last, but not least, he must be a gentleman, or we will have nothing to do with him."

Time to Give Up.

An Iowa judge recently related an amusing incident that had occurred in his court when a colored man was brought up for some petty offense. The charge was read, and as the statement "The state of Iowa against John Jones" was read in a loud voice the colored man's eyes bulged nearly out of their sockets and he seemed overcome with terror and astonishment. When he was asked if he had anything to say or pleaded guilty or not guilty, he gasped out:

"Well, yo' honah, ef de whole state o' Iowa is ag'in dis one pore niggah I'se gwine to give up right now!"

WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA—BATTLE OF SPION KOP.

Jimmy and the Baby.

Jimmy's mother kept cows and sold milk. Jimmy himself had nothing to do with the cows, though sometimes he used to carry the milk pail to his mother's customers. The customers all liked Jimmy, with his round, freckled face and bashful grin, and they used to ask him how business was, for, although Jimmy was only 12 years old, he had a business. He made coffins—baby coffins—and sold them to the undertaker. They were nice pine coffins, with all the edges carefully joined. Jimmy received 50 cents for each one.

One day Jimmy stopped at the house of one of his mother's customers to leave some milk. A little boy met him at the door.

"We've got a new baby!" said the little boy. "Would you like to see it?"

Jimmy nodded. The little boy's aunt laughingly led Jimmy to the cradle where the new baby was. Jimmy gazed at the infant for some time, speechless with admiration or some such emotion.

"What do you think of it, Jimmy?" asked the aunt.

Jimmy grinned.

"I guess I'll have to make a nice little coffin when I go home," he said.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Boers Great Pioneers.

The Boer is the ideal pioneer. From the days of the great trek, in 1837, and even before that he opened up countries hitherto unexplored by a white man. A great deal of fuss has been made of mighty travelers, English and foreign, who have traversed Africa, to the vast pecuniary benefit of their publishers and with no small meed of fame to themselves, but there was scarcely one of the old voortrekkers and hunters of the forties and fifties who did not accomplish feats of endurance, peril and lengthy travel which were [illegible] de Saying.—London Mail.

THE ARCTIC MOSQUITO.

It Is About the Most Terrible Insect Pest in the World.

"Nothing that has ever been written about the arctic mosquito begins to come up to the real thing," said a guest in the St. Charles corridor the other evening. "I went up the Yukon river in the summer of 1866, representing the Alaska and Dominion Trading company, and we struck mosquitoes as soon as we got into the hills. They are twice as large as our familiar bayou species, and their sting is like the prod of a hot needle. They sweep along the valleys in dense clouds, and if they catch a man unprepared they are liable to blind him before he can escape. I heard stories of children being stung to death and can readily believe them.

"Whenever we went ashore we wore heavy hat nets and took the utmost precaution, but were certain to suffer more or less. One of our party cut the tongues out of his shoes, and a narrow line of sock was exposed under the lacing. Next day he was bitten there at least a hundred times, and his feet were so terribly inflamed that the shoes had to be cut off.

"Another man, a fireman in the boat crew, got drunk on Alaska whisky one afternoon and lay down to take a nap in a corner of the engine room. I noticed him a little later and was horrified at the solid brown mass of mosquitoes that had settled on a small exposed section of his cheek and throat. In an hour his face was swollen out of all resemblance to anything human, he was unable to swallow and was burning with fever. It was a week before he was able to be about. I saw a number of cattle near Fort Hamilton that had been made stone blind by stings near the eye.

"The arctic foothill mosquito is without doubt the most terrible insect pest in the world."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Race With the Sun.

The London Daily Mail says if an aerial machine were capable of traveling at any rate up to 1,000 miles an hour a traveler in it, starting westward from London at a speed of 600 miles an hour, would arrest the progress of time. If he started at 10 a. m., it would always be to him 10 a. m. Should he find his unending day monotonous, he could reverse his direction and get a quick succession of short days and nights of some six hours' duration, but he could regulate the length by the speed of his machine. Suppose he traveled from London one night at 10 o'clock westward at a speed of 1,000 miles per hour. He would soon experience the sensation of seeing the sun rising in the west where it had set a short time before.

A Send Off.

A few of Mr. R. H. Leary's most intimate friends joined by his employees entertained him to an oyster supper on Saturday evening, after which he was presented with a pair of handsome gauntlets. "Bob" was taken by surprise, and acknowledged the gift in suitable language. Short speeches were then made by Messrs. J. Doughty, Chas. H. Moore, J. B. Oke, G. Gunsolus, T. Tindall, J. Stanger, William Collins and others. Mr. Leary accompanied by his wife and daughter, left yesterday morning on a trip to Mr. Leary's two brothers in Texas. The Times extends best wishes for a pleasant trip and safe return.

ANOTHER TERMINUS.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL CAUSING TROUBLE.

Port Hope is Putting up a Fight, and is now Followed by Cobourg.

The Cobourg Post, after quoting an article published in the Toronto Tory organ, says:—

The Post has often wondered why the Minister of Public Works clung to the undesirable route by way of the Trent River to Trenton, when he could have saved 30 or more miles by striking due south from the southern shore of Rice Lake to Cobourg. The Trenton route will cost in the neighborhood of $4,000,000 while by way of Cobourg not more than $1,500,000 would be required. When there is such a vast difference in the cost, it is not to be wondered that the Minister of Public Works hesitates about letting a contract for the work as advertised for. Although we have the summit a few miles north of Cobourg, the top of which is 750 feet above the level of Lake Ontario, that point can be overcome by commencing a short distance east of Harwood, and then follow the valley and stream on into Cobourg. At this place we have what could be made the best harbor on the north shore of Lake Ontario, with plenty of water, and a good bottom for dredging. There is no better port available for the purpose of transferring from the barges that come down the Trent Valley Canal from the far north and west into the larger craft such as are used to carry the grain from Kingston to Montreal. Such boats can be loaded to the fullest capacity of the St. Lawrence Canal. We see that Port Hope is putting forth every effort to influence the Government to divert the canal from the head of Rice Lake to that town, but the drawback to Port Hope is the inability of the harbor commissioners at that place to keep a sufficient depth of water to allow a fair sized vessel to enter or leave without striking a rock. Our friends to the west had better turn all their influence towards helping Cobourg secure the plum.

EVER RENEWING.

We are continually renewing and assorting our stock of Perfumes, Atomizers, Tooth Washes and Powders, Brushes and Combs, Hand Mirrors, Manicure and Toilet Articles generally; all up-to-date goods at lowest possible prices.

No need to say much about our continued success in our dispensing department. We are accurate in our work, which always insures safety to our patrons and the public.

Our sales of Paine's Celery Compound are increasing steadily. It is the most popular medicine; we strongly recommend it.

Our best efforts are always put forth to make our establishment the "popular drug store."

Ormond & Walsh, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont.

A Family Scrap.

A big row took place in a house opposite the gas house Sunday. It was a family affair and was carried on with all the warmth and enthusiasm that characterize such engagements. It was a battle of some duration, raging morning, afternoon and evening. The matter will be settled at the police court this morning.

On to Ottawa.

The adjourned meeting of the farmers owning land along the Otonabee was held at the Council chamber Saturday afternoon to discuss their grievance with the Government about the drowned land. There was a fair attendance and considerable discussion took place as to what course to pursue in placing their claims before the Cabinet. A big excursion and deputation was decided upon and final arrangements are being made regarding the date, rates, etc. An effort will be made to have this trip of the farmers to the capital assume mammoth proportions.

Orange Entertainment.

The members of L.O.L. No. 321, Downer's corners, are noted for their hospitality, their entertainments always being first-class. They are now advertising an oyster supper to be followed by a musical and literary entertainment, to take place on Thursday evening, Feb. 22. Oysters will be served from 7 to 8, after which the programme will be presented, to be followed by a few hours of social enjoyment. Busses will leave the Morgan House at 6.30, 7 and 7.30, for the hall, returning after the performance. Return tickets 10 cents; admission 25 cents.

A large number of people are suffering from colds.

The C. P. R. express from Toronto was delayed a couple of hours yesterday by a heated box.

The excursion to Ottawa under the management of the drowned land owners should be liberally patronized.

A man named James Davis, a mill hand in Lindsay, had his hand badly cut by a saw on Saturday.

A family row occurred on Simcoe street yesterday and the matter will be ventilated at the police court to-morrow morning.

A public meeting is to be held in Lindsay on February 20 in regard to the building of a hospital in that town.

Chief Roszel has received from the Toronto Chief of Police a detailed description of the man suspected of murdering the late Miss Ferguson.

The trains on both the Grand Trunk and C. P. R. were from thirty minutes to two hours late yesterday in consequence of the recent snow storm.

It is said that a heavy bill for damages will be presented to the town as a result of the serious accident to Mrs. Sherwood on Friday.

An engagement between a Boer and a British sympathizer is reported having taken place in Otonabee a few nights ago, with the usual result—the defeat of the former.

Port Hope is just now enjoying a high old time. There appears to be a ring—on the Tammany line—ruling the affairs of the town, and to break it up some members of the council threaten to resign and go to the people. Mayor Quinlan has nominated himself as chairman of the Finance Committee, a step that is vigorously opposed by Councillor McMullin and others.

The police have received a communication from the Pinkerton Detective Agency giving a description of the bills that formed a money package stolen in Quebec Province some time ago. There were 900 one dollar bills in the package, bearing date March 31st, 1898, and having the signature of J. M. Courtney, Deputy Minister of Finance, and the counter signature of W. A. Bowie.

MRS. ANDERSON'S BABY.

You couldn't convince Mrs. Anderson that Cupid ever was as pretty as her little girl.

Mrs. H. C. Anderson is well known in South Britain, Conn., where she lives. She is very enthusiastic about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription although no more so than thousands of other women who have been similarly benefited. She writes:

"During the first month of the period of gestation I could not keep anything on my stomach. I went to bed the sixth of June and never got up till the first of August. I tried different doctors, but with little benefit. I began to take your 'Favorite Prescription' in November and I had a nice little baby girl in February following. I was only in hard labor about one hour and was up and dressed on the eighth day. I never had the doctor with me at all; just the nurse and two friends. This makes my second child; with the first one I did not take the 'Favorite Prescription,' and the little one was sick all the time and lived just about two months. This last baby is as plump and healthy as any mother could wish. She is about three weeks old now and is gaining in flesh every day."

Mothers who suffer undue pain prior to or succeeding the baby's birth are invited to consult Dr. R. V. Pierce, by letter, absolutely without charge. The great success which has attended the careful methods pursued by Dr. Pierce, has caused imitators to spring up, who make offers of free advice, which they are not competent to give, not being physicians. When you are invited to "write to a woman," ask the simple question, "Is this woman a physician?" You will find that she is not, and does not, and dares not claim to be, a physician. To offer such advice is deceitful. To receive it is dangerous.

Prospective mothers should send for a free copy of Dr. Pierce's great 1,000 page book the "Common Sense Medical Adviser." A copy in paper-covers will be sent on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of customs and mailing only; in cloth-binding 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

MACDONALD IS MAKING AN IMPORTANT MOVE.

He Prevented Two Large Boer Forces Effecting a Junction and Holds a Strong Position.

LANCERS HAVE BRUSHES WITH BOER PATROLS.

Lord Methuen Again Showing Signs of Activity—Troops No Longer Detained at Cape Town But Proceed to Some Point at the Front.

London, Feb. 7—4.20 a.m.

Lord Roberts has caused to be distributed in th etowns bordering upon the invaded colonial territory an invitation to Free Staters and Transvaalers to go into the desert offering them good treatment and a restoration to their farms on the British occupation of Republican territory. The manifesto guarantees that those bringing horses can sell them. Foreigners will have their passage paid to Europe. Colonial rebels are advised to surrender in preference to being taken prisoners.

Not a word has been received from the correspondents with General Buller for three days. It is as though Natal had been wiped off the map, excepting the heliograph from Ladysmith saying that the Boers are cannonading and that "fighting" is going on.

General MacDonald with 4,000 infantry, cavalry and artillery, threaten the Boer right at Magersfontein. This is the first sign of activity on the part of Lord Methuen for some weeks and doubtless his relation to the movements of the British further east.

It appears that General French's visit to Cape Town was to ask Lord Roberts for 7,000 more men. Whether he got them is not disclosed.

Troops are no longer detained at Cape Town. They proceed immediately to some point at the front. Three thousand disembarked Monday an dwere quickly sent elsewhere. No public reception was given to the arriving volunteers at Cape Town because they had to leave immediately.

As Lord Roberts since the battle of Spion Kop has had 20,000 fresh troops to dispose of, it is probable that some have gone to General Buller.

The World says it learns that Lord Methuen has disbanded Remington's scouts one of the most useful colonial commands, because he had ascertained that some members of the corps had been communicating with the Boers.

Walter Congreve, who received the Victoria Cross for gallantry in endeavoring to save the British guns at Colenso, writes: "I hever saw a Boer all day and I do not think anyone else did. Thousands of bullets pattered and shells burst all over the place but the Boers were invisible."

The Transvaal special war tax of two shillings and six pence per acre affects 3,000,000 acres of English owned land, a part of which is not worth more than the tax.

Cape Town, Feb. 6.

Five Boer prisoners at Simonstown tried to escape last night. They had fire arms and wounded a prison warden. Two of the fugtives were wounded and all were recaptured.

London, Feb .6

The Standard has received the following despatch, dated Monday, Feb. 5, from Koppies Dam—"General Macdonald with a brigade of infantry, a regiment of lancers and one battery has reached here from Modder River Camp in what is regarded as an important movement to the right of the Boer position at Magersfontein.

"Koppies Dam commands the roads from Kimberley to Hopetown and Douglas. Two Boer laagers at Kamulbosk and Griquatown are within striking distance.

"The arrival of General MacDonald's column was opportune, as it just prevented two large commandos effecting a junction. He now holds both banks of the river.

"Our Lancers had two brushes with the Boer patrols. There is great activity among the enemy, and strong forces are concentrating to oppose our further advance. The troops suffered from heat and scarcity of water during the march here."

Modder Spruit, Feb. 6

Messages from Ladysmith, dated yesterday, Feb. 5th, say continuous cannonading had been heard since five o'clock in the morning, with the occasional roar of a long Tom. The firing, it is added, continues.

Modder Spruit, Monday, Feb. 5

On Saturday the Pretoria corps discovered a party of British from Ladysmith entrenched at a railroad bridge, protecting a number of coolies who were cutting grass. A party of Boers despatched to the scene was attacked from the trenches and all retreated except four, whohiding permitted the British to advance within 50 yards when they fired a volley, killing three men. This was seen from the British fort, which fired a shell and sent cavalry to assist the British. The Boers beat those back, killing two men.

PRETORIA IS DEFENCELESS.

Cape Town, Feb. 6.—The Argus announces that ninety guns have been despatched from Pretoria to the front and that the Pretoria forts have been practically denuded of artillery.

LADY RANDOLPH AT DURBAN.

New York, Feb. 6.—A Durban despatch says that Lady Randolph Churchill began the serious work of caring for the wounded yesterday. The Maritzburg hospitals, crowded with suffers from the battels of Spion Kop, sent a large detachment of disabled in response to the invitation. They are mostly artillerymen, Lancasters and Inniskilling Fusiliers.

The men were removed to the hospital ship Maine under the personal supervision of Lady Randolphe Churchill, and she was most active. Everything moved like clockwork. The berths for the wounded are spick and span, nothing likely to conduce to the comfort of the invalids being overlooked.

STRENGTH OF THE BOERS.

New York, Feb. 6.—An eminent South African authority, a man whose relations with the Boer Government prevents the use of his name, sends this first accurate statement of the real strength and hopes of the Boer army, says a Paris despatch to the World. His statement may be reiled upon as exact.

The numerical strength of the army which is opposing England is as follows:

South African Republic soldiers, 28,000.
Orange Free State soldiers, 13,000.
Immigrant Boers, 5,000.
Uitlanders, 5,000.
Natal Dutch, 5,000.
Cape Colony Dutch, about 8,000.

Regarding the Boer's ability to hold out, the World's informant said: There is not the least doubt of their endurance and resistance for months to come They have money, mordern arms, and a hilly country which provides natural defences.

THE MOMENT HAS ARRIVED.

Queenstown, Cape Colony, Feb. 5.—General Brabant, in addressing the troops of the colonial division, said that the time impatiently awaited had at length arrived. The men had undergone thorough preparation, which was satisfactory to him and creditable to the officers and men. They were leaving for the front on Tuesday, and he hoped they would not return until the task entrusted to him by General Roberts had been successfully accomplished. He could not disclose the plan of operations, but if the intentions were carried out, the greatest glutton for fighting would have his fill.

The despatch adds that the Dutch commandants are repressing and punishing those who rob houses owned by the English, and that there is no looting except from the railroad buildings

MONEY TO BE RETURNED.

Durban, Feb. 5.—It is underatood that the prize court has decided to return the £25,000 of gold seized last October on board the steamer Avondale Castle in Delagoa Bay.

GOING TO SOUTH AFRICA.

Halifax, Feb. 6.—The military authorities were yesterday morning advised by cable that the Allan liner Cephalonia, which has been chartered as a transport, will leave Portsmouth, England, for Halifax on February 12th and to have the Leinster Regiment in readiness for embarkation from Halifax on February 21st. The Leinster Regiment will embark at Portsmouth for South Africa with the eight division.

OUR PRESTIGE IS INTACT.

Berlin, Feb. 6.—Lieut.-Col. Wachs, of the War Department, said to the Associated Press correspondent, yesterday: "The prestige of the British army cannot be said to have suffered so far as fighting qualties are concerned. Both privates and officers have behaved with the utmost bravery in action, as the lists of the dead and wounded show."

ANOTHER CANADIAN DEAD.

St. Thomas, Ont., Feb. 6.—A message has been received from Belmont, Cape Colony, announcing the death of Egerton Farley, aged 23, a son of John Farley, Q.C. He was born in St. Thomas. After joining the 25th Battalion he took a course in the London Military School, and afterwards was appointed to a lieutenacy in the 25th. He studied law with his father, and after passing his examinations in Toronto made a trip to the continent. He was among the first in this section to offer his services for South Africa.

ARTILLERY ARRIVES.

Durban, Feb. 6.—The transport Purnea, from India, has arrived, and landed a battery of artillery. A more hopeful feeling prevails here.

CHARGES NOT SUBSTANTIATED.

Cape Town, Feb. 5.—President Steyn and President Kruger have communicated with Field Marshal Lord Roberts, the British commander-in-chief, protesting againstthe destruction of farm houses and the devastation of property. Lord Roberts, in replying, declared the charges were not substantiated, adding that wanton destruction of property was contrary to British practices.

THIRTEEN THOUSAND MEN.

London, Feb. 6.—The War Offices announcesthat 15 transports will be despatched betweent o-day and Monday, with 13,000 troops, including the fourth cavalry brigades, militia battalions and 3,000 yeomanry.

SHARP FIGHTING EXPECTED.

London, Feb. 6.—The unfounded impression that General Buller's forces are fighting is still being made by yellow journals, in spite of the continuous asseverations ofthe War Office that it has no news to confirm the belief.

From Cape Town, under to-day's date, comesthe statement that up to this morning nothing has been heard there regarding General Buller's recrossing the Tugela River, while Field Marshal Lord Roberts, in a despatch dated Monday, Feb. 5, reports no change in the situation. In view of the latter's despatches it is impossible to credit the circumstantial reports ofthe engagement of General Buller's troops. The complete silence from the front and at home may be significant, as the wiseacres say, but it more probably represents that period of preparation which precedes an important movement.

Vague Reports.

In other parts than the Tugela the conditions ofinformation are scarcely more satisfactory. There is an inconclusive vagueness regarding General French's reported intention to seize Norval's Pont with anoverwhelming force of infantry News of sharp fighting in the neighborhood of Colesberg can be fairly expected within a few days in orderto pave the way for the forthcoming main advance by way of Blomfontein. General French is strategetically prohibited from running any serious risk.

Lord Roberts' replyto President Kruger and Steyn creates an excellent impression here.

From Kimberley and Mafeking there is nothing new, sout can be presumed that the intermittent bombardment of these places continue.

THE SON SEEKS DIVORCE.

An aged Father Fell in Love With His Son's Young Wife.

New York, Feb. 6.—Lawyer George Robinson, of 90 Nassau street, to-day served papers in the divorce suit brought by Ira DePuy, an artist, against his wife, Fannie DePuy, in which the husband's father is named as corespondent.

The father-in-law is 65 years old. Mr. DePuy has one hundred love letters that his parent sent to his wife.

Following is the copy of one of the letters—

All for One Little Kiss.

My Darling Little Duck of a Sweetheart—You are my life, my treasure, and if I were a king I'd glafly lay the riches of a nation at your feet for one sweet kiss from those ruby lips. Ah, dearest, how my heart yearns for you. You, my beloved, to whom all poets of passion sing their love songs! A kiss on paper, a million if you will. I love you; I love you; Dearest, joy of my heart, why did we not meet years ago? But fate at last has brought us together. Don't let Ire know of our clandestine love. It is so sweet to love. My whole heart yearns for you.

Adieu, my own beloved, adieu. We shall yet be happy in our love.

Your own dearest slave for life,

TOM.

The DePuys were married at Walkill, Ulster county, N. Y., on October 17, 1883. They have five children, all of whom are with the mother in Rutherford, N. J.

Mr. DePuy is still at Walkill. According to the papers in the case the couple lived happily until two years ago, when Thomas DePuy, the husband's father, paid them a visit. The elder DePuy is a wealthy ranchman near Omaha. He has white hair.

When the ranchman arrived at his son's home for a short visit two years ago he immediately began paying the daughter-in-law attention. So marked was his admiration that the son ordered his father from his house and saw to it that he started West. This crisis, however, was not reached until the father had prolonged hisvisit for nearly a month.

After the elder DePuy had gone the wife remained in her home. Soon the husband discovered that his father was corresponding with the wife. He succeeded in intercepting one hundred letters some as often as three times a week, that were sent by his father.

All these letters were full of love and each one begged the woman to use the utmost care that "Ire should not discover their love."

Mr. DePuy also held up letters sent from his wife to the father. After that Mrs. DePuy left her husband and went to Rutherford with the children. The husband declares that he has proof that his wife afterward kept up the correspondence with her father-in-law.

Will Ask $50,000 Damages.

Mr. DePuy in his suit also asks for the custody of the children. The eldest child is 14 years old.

Lawyer Robinson said to-day that suit would also be begun by Mr. DePuy for $50,000 against his father for the alleged alienation of the wife's affections.

Mrs. DePuy denies the allegation and will fight her husband's suit.

Coal vs. Wood.

Trustee Ferguson, chairman of the Property Committee, recommended in his report that coal be used instead of wood for heating the Collegiate Institute.

On motion of Trustee Eastwood the matter was left in the hands of the Property Committee with power to act.

Trustee Bamford drew attention to a complaint published in the Examiner, in which objection is taken to the custom prevalent in our schools of furnishing the children with slate pencils, which are handed first to one child in the morning and then taken up and given to another in the afternoon, thus favoring the spread of disease germs. He thought each pupil should use his or her own pencil.

Inspector Walker here explained that there are only two rooms in which this custom prevails, and he had, upon investigation, given instructions that the children were to keep their slate pencils in their desk and thus avoid an indiscriminate distribution of them. However, children will exchange and borrow pencils, nomatter how you try to prevent it; and he did not think disease germs were carried in this way to any great extent.

The Board then adjourned.

School Trustees for the year 1900 will meet in inaugural session to-night at 7 o'clock.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Hockey.

The Globe says that our Ernie is one of the best of the bunch of goal keepers. He is.

To-night's game ought to be a hummer. Upper Canada wants that Championship and wants it bad. Possibly, Peterborough Colts would like it, too.

The Whig says Frontenacs can beat Belleville. It also says that Royal Military College II can beat Peterborough III. Both teams tried to do those very things, but couldn't. If they couldn't, how could they? Belleville has challenged Frontenacs to play another game, so that gives the Whig a chance to put up or shut up.

The management of the Hockey Club tried to make arrangements with the Peterborough seniors for a game here this week, but were unable to do so. Peterborough claims that their team has gone out of practice and they could not be induced to meet the Lindsay team under any consideration. Requiescant in pace.—Lindsay Post.

If you want a game very badly, wait 'till the Colts get through their campaign, when they will make your team look like thirty cents.

Varsity defaulted to Stratford in the senior series and now Stratford meets Waterloo to-night.

In writing up the game played at Kingston the Whig meanly said that the R. M. C. team proved that it was the better team—except on the Peterborough "billiard board." The Whig knew when that was being written that there were two of the senior team on the Cadet seven—and it makes the mean insinuation all the meaner.

Campbellford wants to play a Peterborough team. Where are the Lake views?

The intermediate series has dwindled down to three clubs—St. George's, of Toronto; London and Belleville, the last named slub to play the winner of the first two.

"The funny reading—we mean the Pitzburg Post's description of the Queen's-Pittsburg game. Just read this—"The little Pittsburg forwards dashed into their bigger opponents like cats." Imagine "little" Walter our Walter, dashing into a man bigger than himself! It would be a case of an irresistible body coming into contact with an immovable one. The ice would melt with the heat of the friction thereof.

The Hardware team are right in it. They have secured the ice on two nights a week, and the fun will soon commence.

Cricket.

The intercolonial cricked match between New South Wales and South Australia was played at Adelaide and won by New South Wales by an innings and 393 runs, the score being 547 to 156 and 260. This beats the record in first-class Australian matches: Noble got 200, Gregory 176, and Trumper 165.

J. Rowbotham, J. Thisewlis and W. Bates, a trio of once famous professional players on the Yorkshire county elevens, died in England this winter within a period of seventeen days. Rowbotham and Bates have played in matches in this country.

Cricked must be booming around Philadelphia, for another crickes association was formed (beside the one of which the Belmonts, Merinos, etc., are members). It is composed of eight clubs.

G. L. Townsend, who was one of the English amateur team that played in Toronto last October, scored 2,440 runs and bowled 101 wickets during the last season, thus accomplishing a dual batting and bowling feat, that has only been performed once befYre, in 1876, by D. W. G. Grace. He is the only left handed batter that ever made that many runs in one season.

Talking about W. G., that reminds us that his elder brother, E. M., has also a remarkable record, having scored 72,482 runs and taken 10,000 wickets in all the matches he has played. He took all the 10 wickets in an innings no fewer than thirty-one times.

Curling.

The Peterborough Colts look like another three-time winners. If they should win they ought to drop out of the league or drop some of their youngest members, say Charlie and Dickie and Knapple and Gussie. Drop out, boys, and give the old her teams a chance.

The Colts play the final game for the cup this afternoon with Lindsay. If they win this game, the second cup will have been in succession and will become the property of the Peterborough Colts.

The Law About Prize Fights

Editor Morning Times:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly inform me through the columns of your journal, whether or no there is any law in this country forbidding prize fights? If possible I would like the exact text of the law, should there be one, and also a reason why it was recently violated in this city.

CONSTANT READER.

Ans.—The law regarding prize fights is condensed in paragraphs 92, 93, 94, and 95 of the Criminal Code. These paragraphs read as follows:

92.—In sections ninety-three to ninety-seven, inclusive, the expression "prize fight" means an encounter or fight with fists or hands, between two persons who have met for such purpose by previous arrangement made by or for them. R.S.O. c. 153, s. 1.

93.—Every one is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars and not less than one hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labor, or to both, who sends or publishes, or causes to be sent or published, or otherwise made known, any challenge to fight a prize fight, or accepts any such challenge, or causes the same to be accepted, or goes into training preparatory to such fight, or acts as trainer or second to any person who intends to engage in a prize-fight. R.S.O., c. 153, s. 2.

94.—Every one is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months and not less than three months, with or without hard labor, who engages as a principal in a prize-fight. R.S.O., c. 153, s. 3.

95.—Every one is guilty of an offence, and liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months, with or without hard labor, or to both, who is present at a prize-fight as an aid, second, surgeon, umpire, backer, assistant or reporter, or who advises, encourages, or promotes such fight. R.S.C., c. 153, s. 5.—Ed. Times.

County Orange Lodge.

West Peterborough County Orange Lodge met last night in annual session. The meeting was a most representative one, members being present from all parts of the county, and every lodge being represented. Invitations were received from Cobourg and Midland for the coming 12th of July celebration, but the members are desirous of having a monster demonstration in town, and appointed a committee to wait on those directly interested, and if sufficient encouragement is forthcoming Peterborough may have the largest gathering ever seen here. The election of officers resulted as follows—

Joseph Jones—W. County Master.
Joseph Hatton—W. Deputy Master.
Dawson Kennedy—County Chaplain.
Dr. Burgis—County Treasurer.
Sidney B. Weir—County Secretary.
J. Hetherington—County Fin. Secy.
Geo. W. Hare—C. Dir. of Ceremonies.
T. Holden—County Lecturer.
A. McCarthy—Deputy Lecturer.
S. Harrison—Deputy Lecturer.

The newly elected officers were duly installed by W. Bro. W. M. Graham, Past County Master, after which a pleasant time was spent when the officers addressed the meeting. W. Bro. J. R. McWilliams, Rev. Bro. Armitage, and W. M. Graham also addressed the meeting at length. The next meeting will be held in the Orange Hall, Lakefield.

REASON WHY BUTLER RESIGNED COMMAND.

The Geniral Disagreed With Milner Who Accused Him of Sympathy With the Dutch.

NEITHER PARTY WOULD TAKE RESPONSIBILITY.

The Then Commander in South Africa Warned the High Commissioner of the British Unpreparedness for War With the Boers—Canadians May Soon Fight.

London, Feb. 6.—A special from Durban says the Prize Court there has decided to return £25,000 of gold belonging to the Transvaal National Bank, which was seized onthe steamship Avondale Castle last October. The bank was transferring the gold from Durban to its branch at Delagoa Bay.

The Manchester Guardian prints in large type a statement of what actually took place between Major-General Butler, who formerly commanded the British troops in South Africa, and Sir Alfred Milner, Governor of Cape Colony.

In June last Milner sent for General Butler and asked him to reinforce the garrisons on the Transvaal frontier. General Butler expressed surprise at such a request. He said such a step would be so serious he would not feel justified in carrying it out unless he received written orders.

Milner, who at that time was also British High Commissioner for South Africa, and was conducting negotiations with the Transvaal Government, objected to this. He said he thought the strengthening of the garrisons should be undertaken by General Butler on his own responsibility. Butler pointed out that everything depended upon the policy that was about to be pursued by Great Britain. He said that if the Government was bent on preserving peace, it was necessary to strengthen the garrisons, and such a step would only provoke the Boers into crossing the frontier. If the policy of war had been decided upon, the measures proposed to be taken were ridiculous from a military point of view.

Butler argued that if war broke out the first thing necessary would be to withdraw the garrisons in a hurry, or see them locked up by the Boers. From a strategic standpoint, the positions to which Sir Alfred wished him to send troops, would be impossible to hold, and garrisons would inevitably be cut off and isolated.

Sir Alfred Milner expressed strong opinions in opposition to this view, whereupon General Butler informed him that war with the Boers would be a much more serious matter than he appeared to realize. The general said that if the war was confined to the South African Republic it would be necessary to have from 40,000 to 50,000 men on hand when hostilities broke out. But, he added, it is impossible to hope that we shall have to deal only with the South African Republic. It is a matter of certainty that the forces of the Orange Free State will join their brethren of the Transvaal, in which case the forces named will have to be further augmented, and at least two army corps will be needed, besides the troops already in South Africa.

To this, Sir Alfred Milner replied scornfully—"It is very natural for you to take such a line from your sympathies with your friends, the Dutch."

The conversation then closed, and Gen. Butler placed his resignation in the hands ofthe authorities. With the resignation he forwarded a memoranda containing the substance of the foregoing.

CANADIANS MAY SEE FIGHTING.

Kingston, Feb. 6.—Bruce Carruthers, staff-sergeant in charge of the regimental signallers at Belmont, says he has worked faithfully and hard to earn his position. He adds—"A son of Dr. Barclay is with us. He has just recovered from an attack of malaria and tonsilitis."

Lord Methuen told the Canadians that they were more likely to be attacked at Belmont than if they were at Modder River, as they held an important point.

Lieut.-Col. Drury, in a letter, note having dined with Lord Methuen and having gone around the sentry posts with him. The colonel expected to be posted to General Marshall's staff, the chief artillery adviser to General Buller.

BUILT A NEW LAAGER.

London, Feb. 6.—A cable from Reuteberg says—General French is holding in check a large force of Boers ar Colesberg. This morning a new Boer laager near Slingerfontein, where the burgers were placing new artillery, was shelled with lyddite. The effect of the shelling was to spoil all the work that had been already accomplished and to compel a general retirement of the Boers.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 7, 1900

NO COMPROMISE WITH THE BOER LEADERS.

Presidents Kruger of the Transvaal and Steyn of the Orange Free State, with Dr. Leyds their diplomatic agent in Europe are beginning to find themselves in a tight place; before many weeks have elapsed their position will be still tigher. These three individuals are the direct authors of this cruel and unnecessary war in South Africa. Political perversity, to which may be added foul greed, are responsible for the Boer declaration of war against Great Britain on October 10th last. Political perversity, because the way was kept open by the British government to the very verge of the war for an honorable and peaceable solution of the Uitlanders' grievances; foul greed, because President Kruger and his associate President Steyn coveted first the possession of the British gold and diamond mines as well as the undisputed political control of all British South Africa. Their scheme was "to drive the British into the sea," annex the British provinces of Natal and Cape Colon,y and extend a suzerainty over the other parts of Africa now under the "protection" of the British crown.

Nearly four months have elapsed since the Boer ultimatum was issued for the British to get out of South Africa on forty-eight hours' notice. Since that date, what progress towards establishing the joint Boer supremacy have Messrs. Kruger and Steyn made? None whatever. They have certainly advanced a short distance into Natal and Cape Colony, but are met with the stern resistance of the British army. They have encountered some fifty vigorous attacks from British troops in most of which they have been successful in holding their fortified positions and of inflicting severe loss on the enemy in killed wounded and prisoners. Further than that they have been disappointed and discouraged. Their own losses have undoubtedly been severe though concealed. Their courage, determination, mobility and resources have won for the Boers universal admiration. They have demonstrated to the militaryism of Eurppe a new condition of warfare in a rocky and semi-mountainous country furnished with the best repeating rifles and quick-firing guns. Their strategy and resources as skillful combatants has amazed the Breitish as well as the other onlooking nations. No one cares to combat these evident truths. Yet, what does it all amount to? They have made no substantial progress towards "driving the British into the sea," and never will. From every point of the compass either their entrenchments and lagaars are confronted by British army-corps—waiting for the opportunity to deal heavy blows.

Nearly four months of this desultory warfare is now convincing the Boer leaders. Hence, Dr. Leyds, the Boer agers of the utter hopelessness of their ent, is scouring Europe endeavoring to get up an European cabal against Great Britain in their favor. He has been at Brussels, at Paris, at Berlin, and is now off to see the Czar at St. Petersburg. Very possibly, he has been politely received and listened to, but there is no open evidence of any success attending his mission. None of the "Powers" care to take the initiative, and wisely too. They are perfectly informed through their ambassadors to the court of St. James that the British government, backed by a united people, are in no mood to listen either to threats or remonstrances of foreign powers at this crisis. The Boers declared the war, and that war has to be fought out to the bitter end, that end being the submission of the Transvaal and Orange Free State to the commanders of the British arm. No sort of peace, armistice, or other diplomatic fake will be tolerated by Britain either to stay the war or to grant accomodation to the enemy. Any government which would listen to anything short of the absolute surrender or dispersion of the Boer armies would be booted from power at short notice. After the enormous sacrifices the British nation has made for the protection of its interests in South Africa it is not to be thought of that any other terms than surrender—military and political surrender—will satisfy the British public. The blood of the two thousand of our slain warriors by Boer bullets and shell would cry aloud for vengeance at such an atrocity. Nothing, then, can be more certain that Great Britain will never relax her efforts till the last lagaar has either been taken or has surrendered.

The enormous forces in South Africa and to arrive give promise of ultimate success. Mr. Wyndham parliamentary under secretary of state in the House of Commons on Thursday stated that, "exclusive of the eight division and the fourth cavalry brigade, Great Britain had in South Africa 142,000 foot and artillery, 3,700 cavalry, 38 seige guns, 38 naval guns, 36 howitzers, 54 batteries of horse artillery and 234 field guns." Here is an overwhelming military array which the Boers will have to face sooner or later. The tremendous area over which these troops will have to spread prevents anything like a general concentration. A considerable portion of the whole have to be used in guarding the various lines of railway to keep the communications with the base of supply open and free from attack. In addition to the troops enumerated, there are to be added the Provincial contingents from Canada New Zealand and Australia.

That Lord Roberts and Kitchener are maturing plans for an invasion of the Orange Free State by a march north to Pretoria the Transvaal Boer capital, is now an assured fact. The advance will shortly be commenced for which the following troops are available together with cavalry and artillery. Forces with Generals French Gatacre and Kill-Kenny estimated at 10,000; within the past two weeks 15,000 men and 3,000 horses with 37 guns have arrived at Cape Town; on passage from England to arrive in two weeks 12,000 men, 3,500 horses and 98 guns. This makes up a total of 37,000 infantry, besides the cavalry and guns, available for a forward march north, leaving the forces under Generals Methuen Buller and White where they are now placed intact to keep the Boers from withdrawing to have the British advance through the Free State; and there is another complete division yet to be mobilized if required. The distance these troops will have to travel before they reach Pretoria is considerable; from Cape Town by rail the distance is to the Orange River (Norval's pont) 629 and thence to Pretoria about 450, total 1,079 miles. From Port Elizabeth about 700; from East London 694 miles. But, as Time works wonders, so all the intermediate difficultie will be overcome ere many weeks have elapsed. In view of these facts, no wonder that Dr. Leyds would like to promote foreign interference if possible; but he will fail; there will be no compromise with the Boer leaders on the part of Great Britain, and the coming naval preparations on a tremendous scale are a sufficient warning to hostile nations to keep their "hands off."

SKIN.

Each average human being has about 15,000 square feet of skin to look after and nearly 2,000,000 oil and sweat glands. The outer layer of skin is constantly wearing off and must be constantly removed to allow the new skin beneath to form fresh, white and beautiful.

MORMON WIVES' SAD LOT.

SORROW AND HEARTBURNING OFTEN THEIR PORTION.

Supplanted by a New Favorite, They Bear Their Burden in Silence to Save Their Souls.

The great interest which has been lately aroused in this country as to the position of the American people in regard to Mormonism as represented by Brigham H. Roberts, lately expelled from Congress because an acknowledged polygamist, led Florence Mildred Campbell to seek an interview with one of Brigham Young's widows, to learn, if possible, something of the lives of Mormon wives. She called on Mrs. Brigham Young XV and was graciously received. Mrs. Young XV was Margaret Pierce, who was born and reared in Massachusetts. Although now an old woman, she was doubtless beautiful when she became the Mormon prophet's 15th bride, and shows that she was well bred and carefully educated. Her features are regular, her eyes bright and blue, her voice sweet and kindly and her manner gentle and pleasing. She lives in a nice house on one of the beautiful suburban streets of Salt Lake City. She built it after the death of her husband, whose widows were all well provided for out of the enormous fortune which he left.

General Customs.

During the interview Mrs. Young XV said: "Polygamy is not practiced among us any more. We believe in it, of course, but respect the law prohibiting it. It won't be very long, however, before we make the laws. Then we can practice our religion according to our own belief. When a man had two or three wives it had not been the general custom for them to occupy the same house, though in many instances several wives have been compelled to live together. A man might have as many wives as he might be able to support, but as a rule each wife was supposed to have her own separate apartments, or house, where she lived with her children. As to relationship the children of the one man are all brothers and sisters. Each wife is aunt to the other wives' children, and each wife calls the husband 'Brother Brigham,' or brother whatever his name may be. The wives who had children always took precedence over the ones who had not. Indeed, the childless wife was treated with no consideration whatever. She was despised and humiliated and became merely a slave to the other wives and their children. The childless woman had but one way to gain favor with her husband, and that was to urge him to take more wives.

Reason for the Strange Faith.

"No man is really happy and contented with only one wife. No one ever heard of a Mormon man being untrue to his wives, or running off with other women. The women have the same loves, hates and jealousies which other human beings experience, and there is much sorrow and heartburning, but they find happiness and contentment in the belief that they are living in the great, true religion which is to conquer the world. Trials are necessary to discipline us and to strengthen us in our faith. Many Mormon women in their wicked moods feel it a great hardship that they must share their husband's affection and companionship with others, but this is very selfish. For the sake of their own earthly peace of mind they are willing to sacrifice other women's souls for eternity by depriving them of man's saving power. The most unhappy feature is that in almost all cases a man has a preference for one wife. This is the cause of many heartaches and great bitterness among the women, but they are taught to patiently endure their trials because our religion makes them necessary."

Then Mrs. Young explained that one of the teachings of Mormonism is that women have no souls and no power to save themselves. Redemption for them must come through man. Believing this, the suffering wives who have been supplanted in their husbands' affections by a new arrival bear their burden of sorrow in silence so they may not be everlastingly lost.

That the plural wives welcome relief from their sad condition, in some instances at least, is shown by the fact that Mrs. Young XV testified that "the happiest day of my life was when Brigham Young was buried."

JOHANNESBURG'S DEFENSES.

Refuse of the Mines Renders the Place Almost Impregnable.

Speaking of the surroundings of Johannesburg and the difficulty that the British will have in taking the place if it be resolutely defended by the Boers, Samuel Stockton, of that city, who is now in this country, says:

"The Rand bent of mines stretches for a full 30 miles between Johannesburg and the invading force at intervals of between a quarter and a half mile apart. At each mine are tailing heaps—that is, the mounds of ground-up rocks and debris, from which the gold has been extracted. These tailings, which are of tremendous height and breadth, and much resemble in size and contour the waste heaps outside of the anthracite coal mines in Pennsylvania, are each and all practically impregnable natural forts, while the short distances they lie apart, with cannon mounted on them, would make it absolutely impossible for the British to penetrate between. On the other hand, they cannot be battered down, and to attack them with artillery would be simply to waste ammunition, for the shells would be lost. Let them explode in any part of the mound, the shifting slag would immediately fill up the hollow thus made, and the pile would be as before. Absolutely no advantage would accrue to the attacking party.

"Just to give you an idea of how great a quantity of these tailings there must be, take the following calculation: There are mills with, say, 5,000 stamps, in the Transvaal, which have been running steadily for five years. They, or a large part of them, have really been running longer, but for the sake of argument, we will put it at five years. That means there are sufficient tailings adjacent to Johannesburg to construct a fortification twenty feet wide by six feet in height from that point continuously to Cape Town, and even further."

Roberts Should Go Home.

If England intends to prosecute the war in South Africa I think that Roberts should concentrate his forces to strike at some important position of the Boers, but in my judgement the best thing he could do would be to take all his forces back to England.

Yes, sir, he's my son, and I'm proud of the lad,
And I know it's all for the best
He should chuck his employment and leave his old dad,

So I'm here at the depot, to wish him good-bye,
And I mean to be cheerful and bold,
But this plaguey chill wind brings the tears to my eye—
God forgive me, I'm lonely and old!

The Queen she has need of my boy, and you bet
That I won't ask the wherefore nor how,
For it's little I've given Her Majesty yet,
But I'll give her my everything now!

I shall miss him, (dear lad!) for I only have one;
But we've got to do all that we can;
And the God who, we're told, gave up His only son—
He will comfort a lonely old man.

They talk about gallantry shown in the field,
Oh, it's splendid, no doubt; but to me
There is something as fine in the pluck that's revealed
When the farewells are said on the quay.

Tho' the tears are close by we must smile at our loss;
While the boys grip our hands we declare
They are bound to bring back the Victoria Cross,—
God knows—we've our crosses to bear!

Ah, sweethearts, you're young! You can wait for the joy
Of your dear one's returning to see;
Yes, it's hard—but it's hardest to part with your boy,
When you're old and you're lonely like me.

I'm broke, sir, my landlord declares I must go;
Don't blame him, I can't pay the rent.
But I won't tell my boy; it would grieve him to know
That his dad wasn't worth a red cent.

And he's off to the war, for his country has need;
And I mean to be brave, if I can;
So I'll smile as I whisper, "Good-bye and God-speed,"—
And—God comfort a lonely old man.

Having Fun with the Boers.

London, Feb. 5.—Several of our soldiers were guilty of very shabby tricks upon the guileless Boer. A squadron of Lancers in one of the patrols took with them one day a Lancer of straw. This figure was left near a Boer position, and, viewed from a distance, looked like a veritable cavalryman. The figure was left on a rock and it was not long before the Boers were having shots at the soldier who so daringly exposed himself. Mauser bullets had no effect, and it is alleged that, getting exasperated, they turned one of their big guns on the dummy. The Liverpools one day set up a row of effigies, and the Boers were driven nearly crazy by the indifference these men showed to their fire. Then there was the bogus artillery some of our people constructed one night on the town lands in front of Umbulwana. They were figures of men and something which looked like fifteen-pounders. The Boers blazed away at this battery, and "knocked particular hell out of it," as an artilleryman with many delightful grins, said, only to find out that they were being fooled.

Married in Detroit.

Mr. Wm. R. Lundy, Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, youngest brother of Mr. J. J. Lundy, was united in marriage to Mrs. Martin, of Toronto, on Jan. 24th. The ceremony took place in Detroit and was performed by the Rev. John Pickering. Mr. and Mrs. Lundy will take up their permanent residence at 416 1-2 Spadina avenue, Toronto. Mr. Lundy's many friends in Peterborough will join in congratulations.

A Druggist Says

Mr. F. A. Jacobs, the popular manager for Hugh Miller & Co., 167 King St. East, Toronto, when interviewed about Hutch said that it was a "goer." "We don't put any Hutch on the shelves," was his remark. "I have had to order nearly every night. The demand started with me shortly after the advertising commenced, and the sales have increased daily. I recommend Hutch because everyone who takes it says that it is doing him or her good, and I know a few special cases where victims of exceedingly bad stomach disorders are being cured."

It is remarkable that nearly every druggist in the city of Toronto—and there are two hundred of them—endorses Hutch. It is worthy of note that physicians have not hesitated to express their approbation. But, above all, it evidences the efficacy of Hutch when men of high standing credit it with relieving them of, in some cases, dreadful stomach ailments.

HE GOT A JOB.

A Prominent Resident of the South End is Rewarded.

A prominent ward heeler in municipal politics has been rewarded. He worked tooth and nail for Mayor Kendry at the last election, and was a strong Stratton man when that gentleman was contesting the riding for the legislature. He has been ever on the alert for an office—no matter how small the salary—so long as it was a steady job.

When Mr. Kendry became Mayor, the party referred to claimed the full credit of electing him, and intimated to some of his friends that he be made sanitary inspector, or be given a job on the police force. Some of his friends thought they would help him out, and sent him the following:

Sir,—It gives us great pleasure to inform you that you have been most unanimously elected to the high office of Treasurer of the branch of the Great Canadian Society for the Amelioration of the Condition of Decayed and Decaying Vegetables. A suitable diploma will be deilvered to you on the payment of $10.

K. E. N. DRY.

The envelope was adorned with pen and ink sketches of various kinds of fish and glasses filled with beer, the foam which flowed over the side in realistic clots. The Times would rather monkey with the hind leg of a mule than mention this appointment to our friend.

A Generous Subscription.

The Canadian General Electric Co. has made a handsome subscription of $1000 towards the National Patriotic fund. In so doing Mr. Frederick Nicholls, General Manager, of the company, writes:—"I have much pleasure in enclosing a subscription from the Canadian General Electric Co., of $1,000 to the National Patriotic Fund. When more is required let us know." Mr. Nicholls is of the right stuff.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

Extensive Lumbering Operations.

Ottawa Citizen.—Lumber companies that have their camps along Georgian bay and the north shore of Lake Superior have for the first time hired men in Ottawa this winter. Previous to the present season they had secured the shantymen from the vicinity of Peterborough and Trenton. Last winter a few Ottawa men got into the gangs of these companies, and it proved to be so satisfactory that early in the winter enquiries were made in this city for men. One company that has been working along Pigeon River in the Lake Superior district engaged 340 men in Ottawa. It is said of the shantymen from Ottawa that they very rarely jump their contracts. The majority from here were farmers' sons, and of a good class. Chitty & Co. state that they have sent over 2,000 men to the northern woods this winter.

UNITED SONS OF REST.

Amid the peals of the merry chime of bells, situated upon the dome of the noble order of intellectual integrity Hall Tuesday evening, the members came in such throngs that a noted commerical traveller and foreign buyer in the person of W. H. Thomas, of Lake St. Clair, representing "Do More and See Less" Co., of the French empire, with an up-to-date side line of railway tunnels and post holes, remarked to his dignified friend, Mr. J. A. Vance, who handled his celebrated exported cabbage leaf cheroots, that he had witnessed the diamond jubilee, the naval display, the deprature of England's heroic and gallant regiments of her noble army, the Black Watch, (which should be imprinted on every Briton's mind as the most precious gem), the reception of Admiral Dewey, the yacht race, the trial of innocent Dreyfus, the burial of the Mahadi and had seen the capture of Aguinaldo, but had never witnessed such a mammoth meeting as this one.

After the members were all suitably seated, His Honor the President marched up the aisle with the forlorn looking appearance of a mother hen which had patiently set an extra week to raise her brood, but an occasion of accidently nearing a stream found to her great indignation that they had deserted her and began to paddle their own canoe, told plainly that deep emotion was preying on his brain.

Owing to this being the night for the installation of officers, and being aware of the competition for this important and valued position for which he had received a check for the munificent sum of $3,000 payable in two weeks or to be charged the low rate of interest given by Mr. F. G. Kells of 15 per cent.

After Needle Throndyke had announced to His Honor that the hall was perfectly safe, except in case of a panic, His Honor arose and declared the meeting duly open, and announced the regular routine of business. After routine, the treasurer stated that the sum of 9,900 cents remained to the good of the order. Before the treasurer's words had died out, Bro. Jas Reynolds sprang like a lynx to his feet and mistaking the above for dollars, moved that the following long headed motion be passed. That $4,000 be given towards the Red Cross Fund, and $400 be used in buying sky rockets to fasten to some of our capitalists in devoting a little enterprise and that the remaining $500 be used in a story competition or a puzzling expedition.

Mr. Reynolds' motion proved very agreeable to all the members, and was carried amid applause, the only drawback being that the money had to be reckoned in cents instead of dollars.

His Honor then stated as the above had been carried he would see the money was sent in at an early date, and also announced that the members who wished to share in the story competition contest to be prepared for the same, with a truthful and moral story, not to exceed one hundred words, by next meeting, when the same must be read to the members and be submitted to the keen scrutiny of the English censor, John Howard.

When the next order of business "Good and Welfare" was announced, Bros. Thos. Redmond took the floor and stated that owing to the poor crop of potatoes there has been of late years, he undertook an experiment last year which proved a success, and which he has kept a secret up to the present time but thought that the same should be patented before the coming season, so decided to bring the matter before the society and allow the honor of his talented ingenuity to be shared in by the lodge.

Bro. A. Payne interrupted Mr. Redmond by offering him the liberal sum of 1 bag of his new hi-i-i-gh grade uniest-oats for the right, and received a scornful rebuke from His Honor.

Mr. Redmond then stated that his experiment which proved so successful was as follows—instead of planting 3 rows of potatoes he would plant one row and then one row of onions so that when the dry months of July come around the onions fetched the tears in the eyes of the potatoes and kept the tubers nourished to such a great extent that when fall came around he had to hitch a yoke of his noted short horns to draw the mammoth potatoes to the cellar.

The members became so interested in Bro. Redmond's experiment that many of them fell asleep, and only awakened when the President announced that a stenographic copy would beforwarded to Thos. A. Edison for consideration.

As this was the only important statement under this heading, the remainder was soon hurried through and the obituary expression of the Presidnet told plainly that the next order of business was the installation of officers, which was hurriedly proceeded with in the following satisfactory manner—Wm. Bruce, President; John Clark, Secretary; J. C. McMahon, Treasurer; H. McBrien, Death Watch, Committee men—A. Raper, A. B. Scott, Chas. Needler, H. Nattrass, W. Coombe; Chaplin, Jas. Sanderson; Sentinel, F. Horner; Gendarme, Wm. Scott; Detective, John Marshall.

The meeting was then closed in the usual moral and patriotic manner, amid a few melancholy sighs of the former president, the members departing out into the chilly night, while the janitor in his hurry forgot to lock the safe but remembered to seal the door.

THE ARCTIC MOSQUITO.

Children Stung to Death—Most Terrible Insect in the World.

"Nothing that has ever been written about the Arctic mosquito begins to come up to the real thing," said a guest in the St. Charles corridor the other evening. "I went up the Yukon river in the summer of '96 representing the Alaska and Dominion Trading company, and we struck mosquitoes as soon as we got into the hills. They are twice as large as our familiar bayou species, and their sting is like the prod of a hot needle. They sweep along the valley in dense clouds, and if they catch a man unprepared they are liable to blind him before he can escape. I heard stories of children being stung to death, and can readily believe them. Whenever we went ashore we wore heavy hat nets, and took the utmost precaution, but were certain to suffer more or less.

"One of our party cut the tongues out of his shoes, and a narrow line of sock was exposed under the lacing. Next day he was bitten there at least a hundred times, and his feet were so terribly inflamed that the shoes had to be cut off. Another man, a fireman in the boat crew, got drunk on Alaska whiskey one afternoon, and lay down to take a nap in the corner of the engine-room. I noticed him a little later, and was horrified at the solid brown mass of mosquitoes that had settled on a small exposed section of his cheek and throat. In an hour his face was swollen out of all resemblance to anything human, he was unable to swallow and was burning with fever. It was a week before he was able to be about. I saw a number of cattle near Fort Hamilton that had been made stone blind by stings near the eye. The Arctic foothill mosquito is without doubt the most terrible insect pest in the world."

STUMBLED, BUT WON A WIFE.

A Governor's Quick Wit Turns an Awkward Mishap Into a Triumph.

Governor Aaron V. Brown, of Tennessee, was a Chesterfield for politeness and a Talleyrand for wit. When he, a much-admired widower, was paying his addresses—as yet unavowed—to an attractive young widow, he called at her house one day and was ushered into a room darkened to the degree which the prevailing fashion of those days declared to be elegant, and before the Governor had familiarised himself with the surrounding objects in the gloom the young widow entered the room. With enthusiastic devotion he advances to meet her hastily, not noticing a low stool directly in his pathway; unhappily, he stumbled over it and plumped upon his knees directly at the feet of the object of his affections. Before she could utter a word of apology or sympathy the adroit Governor, seizing her hand exclaimed: "Madame, a happy accident has brought me where inclination has long led me." The formal declaration which followed was of course successful, for such ready gallantry could not be resisted.—February Ladies' Home Journal.

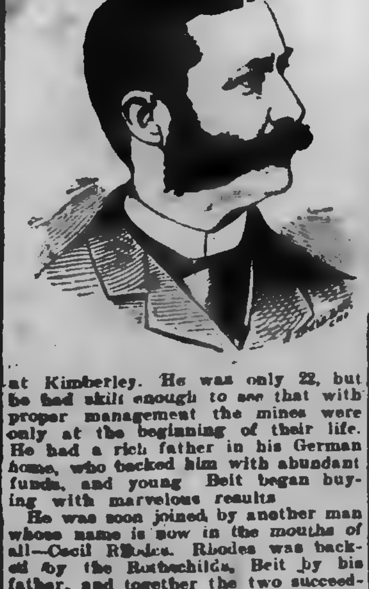
RICHEST MAN IN THE WORLD.

Alfred Beit, a South African Magnate, is Said to be a Billionaire.

The richest man in the world is without doubt a Loudoner who spends mostly all his time in South Africa and who is almost unknown in England. It is said that he is the only living billionaire and his power is felt all over South Africa and the far east.

This man, Alfred Beit by name, is only 46 years old. In appearance he is plain, almost shabby, and no one, unacquainted with him, would think him possessed of millions. More than any other man except Rhodes he is responsible for the present war with the Boers.

As a young man Beit was sent from Johannesburg to the diamond mines at Kimberley. He was only 22, but he had skill enough to see that with proper management the mines were only at the beginning of their life. He had a rich father in his German home, who backed him with abundant funds, and young Beit began buying with marvelous results.

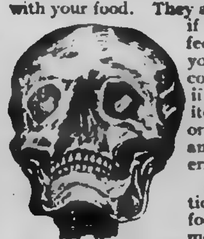


He was soon joined by another man whose name is now in the mouths of all—Cecil Rhodes. Rhodes was backed by the Rothschilds, Beit by his father, and together the two succeeded in forming the great diamond trust which, under the name of DeBeers, now controls practically the whole output of the most precious stones in the world.

At the DeBeers mines in Kimberley Messrs Beit and Rhodes do things on a big scale. Nine years ago they admitted that up to that time they had taken something like nine tons of diamonds from their mines. The mines yield a profit of close on $9,000,000 a year and pay a dividend of 40 per cent.

Last year Mr. Beit and Mr. Rhodes made the shareholders a present of their interest as life governors in the mine. As life governors they were each entitled to $150,000 a year salary.

Mr. Beit maintains a magnificent home in Park Lane, London, the Fifth Avenue of the world's metropolis.



CONSUMPTION.

The germs of consumption are everywhere. You may breathe them in with the air, drink them with water, eat them with your food. They are not dangerous if you are in perfect health but if you have a slight cold, or cough, or if you have inherited weak lungs, or if you are weak and run-down generally—look out!

Once consumption gets a strong foothold it is almost impossible to dislodge it. The time to cure it is at the beginning or before it starts. If you are run-down—build yourself up. Make every tissue so strong and well that consumption germs cannot find a foothold. Fill your body with rich, red blood—build up strong, healthy flesh—put your digestive system in perfect order. Don't drag along half dead. You may be well as well as not. The following letter from Mrs. Jennie Dingman, of Van Buren, Kalkaska Co., Mich., will tell you how to do it. She says: "Before I took

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

I was hardly able to do my work at all; had pain in my left side and back, and had headache all the time. I tried your medicine and it helped me. Last spring I had a bad cough; got so bad I had to be in bed all the time. My husband thought I had consumption. We thought we would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had taken one bottle the cough stopped and I have since had no signs of its returning."

CHILDREN OF THE SLUMS.

Depraved Even Before the Baby Lisp Has Left Their Lips.

"Perhaps what I have seen of child life in the slums has made upon my heart the deepest scars," writes Mrs. Ballington Booth, in the February Ladies' Home Journal. "Poor little scraps of humanity, sick, puny and deformed, or what was even worse still, vile and evil in word and disposition before the baby accents had left their words! The street swarmed with them, playing, quarreling, fighting amid the jostling crowd and traffic until late into the night, and the houses were full of little figures that slept on the floor or crouched in the corners to get away from the drunken and brutal, who delight in abusing the weak. In summer, Death's angel mows them down through the hot season as the scythe cuts the flowers amid the hay, and it has often seemed to me that on such a mission his black robes vanish and he is a veritable angel of light."

Death of Mr. Armstrong.

We regret to be obliged to chronicle the death of Mrs. Armstrong, wife of Mr. Moses Armstrong, formerly with Mr. Wm. Buller, but now employed at the Stanley Piano Company's works, which sad event occurred yesterday about noon. The deceased, who was a daughter of the late Mr. Joseph Buller, had been in her usual good health up to about ten days ago, when she caught cold, and pneumonia set in. Everything possible was done for her, but without success. She leaves two young children. The funeral will leave the family residence, corner King and Bethune streets tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery.

The Stars and Stripes.

The body of Arthur Brown, son of Mr. John Brown, of Fenelon township, near Fowler's Corners, arrived to-day from Idaho, and was sent on to Cameron station at 11 o'clock. The coffin was opened at the station here by Express Agent Wilder. The remains were in a good state of preservation, and were wrapped in a large American flag, the deceased having been a private in the United States army. He volunteered for service in Cuba on the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, and served all through the campaign. Although he escaped Spanish bullets he contracted fever, which left him with an enfeebled constitution, and a mild attack of pneumonia proved fatal. The funeral will take place tomorrow to Riverside cemetery.—Lindsay Post.

FROM TOM MILLER.

Corporal Miller Writes Home About Modder River.

The following letter speaks for itself, and will be read with deep interest by Tom's many friends in Peterborough:

Modder River, Jan. 2nd, 1900.

Dear Mother,—We are still stationed hree waiting for more troops, but I expect by the time you get this we will be in Kimberley. We have a big hill to take here and it is going to be a long tough job for us. The Boers are well entrenched and have barbed wire fences all around the hill so we have to cut them as we go along, which makes it very dangerous for us. Last night we had to go up within 3000 yards of this hill to dig a redoubt. We left camp about five o'clock and had to wait under the shadow of another hill about one mile away from this hill till it got dark, and while we were there the Boers opened fire upon us with their big guns, but did no damage to us. There was one of our big guns about 200 yards on our left and a few niggers with some mules. One of the shells dropped between us and the big gun and you should have seen the niggers fighting for it. As soon as it lit on the ground the niggers ran for it and started fighting to see who would get it. We are going on outpost duty to-morrow morning at 3 o'clock. On New Year's day I saw three Canadians from Ottawa, they are dying to get fighting with the Boers. They are ying at Belmont where we had our first fight. There is a rumor just came into camp that the Canadians had a fight with the Boers at Belmont and that they gave it to them hot, and captured all their horses and 40 prisoners. I don't know whether this is true or not but expect it is. Well, mother, I will have to close now with love to all, and to you, dear mother, from your loving son

THE WATER COMPANY.

All the reports, which were of a very satisfactory nature, were adopted.

A WORTHY EXAMPLE.

Monaghan's Reeve and Council the Right Kind.

At the council meeting in Monaghan held on Monday last it was suggested that a patriotic concert be given in the township, the proceeds to be devoted to the Red Cross Fund. Reeve Hunter and the council signified their willingness to allow the entertainment to be given under their auspices, and also to contribute towards defraying the expenses. The clerk, Mr. Geo. W. Bennett, was instructed to call a meeting to be held in Riverdale Hall on Monday evening next, Feb. 12, for the purpose of making all arrangements. The following names were suggested as a provisional committee: Misses Hamilton, Clark, E. Forster, Lillied, Fowler, Hooper, Anderson and Wrightmyer, Mr. and Mrs. H. Webber, and Messrs. T. M. Hunter, G. H. May, A Sanders, N. W. Maybee, Geo. W. Bennett, E. O. Bradourn, R. Fowler, B. Williamson, A. Lillico and W. H. Wrightmeyer.

Too much credit cannot be given Mr. Bennet, the efficient clerk, as well as Reeve Hunter and members of the council, for the part they are taking in the matter. It is an example worthy of imitation.

The Times would suggest that busses be engaged on the night of the entertainment, to run from, say the Times building to the concert hall, returning after the entertainment.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Hiawatha Encampment, No. 66, meets to-night.

The Times will shortly begin a first-class serial story.

The bite of a toothless dog might be called a soft snap.

A number of curlers went through to Campbellford yesterday.

The bugle band will practice at the battalion rooms to-morrow.

At the police court to-morrow John Murray, charged with vagrancy, was remanded for a week.

The Children's Aid Society yesterday took over a couple of healthy looking children who have been living in the same house.

The Robinson Comedy Company appeared again last night before a rather slim audience. Their entertainment was very good, however.

Mr. J. J. Kelso, Provincial Inspector of Children's Aid Society, is seriously ill in Toronto. Mr. Kelso is a frequent visitor here, and his many Peterborough friends wish him a speedy recovery.

The scrap which occurred on Simcoe street, near the gas works, on Sunday was aired at the police court yesterday morning and as a result John Richardson was fined $2 and costs amounting to about $5. Another charge of the same nature was dismissed.

One of our local boiler plate contemporaries heads an article the other day: "When May We Expect Peace?" We suppose this blessing won't be given to mankind until after ex-Alderman McWilliams whips Mayor Kendry at the forthcoming Dominion elections.

If Coffee agrees with you stick to it.
If not, use
Postum Food Coffee
as thousands of brain workers do.

"Coffee used to give me a sick headache occasionally, and the coffee habit was so fixed that if I quit it for a day a headache would follow. I was thus between two fires, and it was headache and sickness either way.

"Finally I was pushed to a point where I concluded to give up coffee altogether and try Postum Cereal Food Coffee. For a morning or two I stood the headache caused by a lack of my accustomed drug, but in three days I began to get on the right road, and since that time I have been getting better and stronger steadily.

"One can hardly realize the pleasure it is to feel well again, and yet I have my delicious morning cup of Postum regularly, which tastes like coffee, looks like coffee, and yet gives me true strength and health. Mrs. B——, 608 Croton Sq., Syracuse, N. Y., says—'Postum Food Coffee was recommended to me for rheumatism by the physician. He will not allow the use of common coffee, but says that Postum is strengthening and beneficial to a system under acute rehumatic suffering. I find it most excellent.'

"Professor Duvoll of the Syracuse University, says—'I cannot drink coffee; use Postum Food Coffee, which has a strengthening infulence for any one doing brain and nerve work.' Mr. Williams says—'Coffee produces dizziness, dullness and nausea, with me. I use, and much prefer, Postum Food Coffee, which gives strength and a true healthy condition.' Please do not use my name in public." Respectfully, Mrs. E. W. L., Syracuse, N. Y.

The Sidewalks.

Editor Morning Times:

Dear Sir,—Don't you think that it is about time that this town got out of the semi-civilized way it has of cleaning sidewalks? The canals made by the corporation snow ploughs may look all right when in their pristine glory of immaculate whiteness, but when the snow has stopped falling the banks of the canals soon loose their virgin purity and become an eye-sore to every one.

The ploughs heap up the snow on each side of the walk so that two people cannot walk together on account of the narrowness of the path. As the sun gets his work in the narrow path becomes hard on top, slippery and more slippery, and after every fall of snow there is a little more of the beautiful left on the walk by the plough which does not get within two inches of the top of the sidewalk. Then towards spring we are blessed with beautiful gutters of slush which have been kept from running away by those trenches built up on the sides by our town-fathers' ploughs.

You can't make the tax-payers clean their own side-walks, or throw sand on them, when the town collects taxes with which to do that very same work. The only remedy is to get rid of the ploughs and make every man clean the sidewalk in front of his own place.

COMMON SENSE.

A Hot Reply.

Editor Morning Times:

Sir,—The advice of a number of American generals anent the war, telegraphed from your Washington correspondent, and which appeared in yesterday's issue, is the cheekiest thing I've seen yet.

What a hell of a racket these fellows make over the British losses in South Africa! These fellows forget the disasters that happened to the Northern forces from 1861 to Chicamauga in 1863. Also, why in the name of goodness don't their own generals get the nigger whipped in the Philippine Islands? It seems about time the war in the Philippines was finished.

These fellows need not worry about the Briton in South Africa; he will do his best, and you cannot do more.

BRITISHER.

The Icy Walks.

Editor Morning Times:

Dear Sir,—Don't you know that it is the town plough that leaves the ice on the sidewalks and that you can't make the citizens sprinkle ice made by the town authorities. If you want to keep the sidewalks clean pass a by-law to compel every man to clean the snow off the sidewalk in front of his property. Call in your ploughs and then fine those who fail to clean their walks. Yours,

RESIDENT.

Tannery Destroyed by Fire.

Quite a blaze occurred at two o'clock this morning on Aylmer street when the old building known as Paterson's tannery was totally destroyed. The structure was an old rough-cast one, and being thoroughly saturated with oil and grease gave fuel to the flames, making it difficult for the firemen to subdue. Night-watchman Finnie gave the alarm and the brigade responded promptly, having a stream on in five minutes after the bell sounded. The fire was soon under control, but the building was completely gutted.

House of Refuge.

A number of the local ministers propose to wait on the Council in regard to a house of refuge. The Council will be urged to provide some place of shelter for the aged poor of the town.

GEN. BULLER'S ARMY ENGAGED IN A DESPERATE TWO DAYS' CONFLICT

BULLER'S FORCES GAIN IMPORTANT POSITIONS

After Two Days of Severe Fighting a Good Step is Made Towards Relief of White.

KOPJES CARRIED AT THE POINT OF THE BAYONET.

The Enemy as Usual Fought With the Utmost Stubborness and Attempted to Re-capture Lost Ground—The Work Accomplished So Far Splendidly Done.

Boer Head Laager, Ladysmith, Tuesday, Feb. 6, 11 a.m.

Further reports of yesterday's fighting at the Upper Tugela will show that the British lost heavily at Pond Drift, but took an unimportant position on a small kopje on the Molen drift side. Four Boers were killed. The British loss is unknown. They are still in possession of the kopje and the big guns have ceased firing.

Spearman's Camp, Wednesday, Feb. 7, 6 p.m.

General Buller commenced the advance for the relife of Ladysmith on Monday. The naval guns opened at seven in the morning and a feint attack was made in front of our position, three battalions advanced toward the Brakefontein with six batteries. At 11 o'clock the Boers opened with artillery fire and sent several shells among the British infantry, who retired an hour later. Meanwhile a vigorous attack was made on the extreme right, where the engineers expeditiously constructed a position. Several pieces of cannon, hidden among the trees on Zwart's Kop, bombarded heavily. The British infantry advanced and the Boers were entirely surprised. At four o'clock a high hill, a continuation of the Brakefontein, had been taken. The operations were excellently planned.

The name of the hill taken is Krantz Kloof.

Spearman's Camp, Wednesday, Feb. 7, 6 p.m

The bombardment of the Boer position was resumed yesterday morning. The Boers worked a disappearing cannon from the high Doorm Kloof range on the rightof the captured hill, but the British shells exploded its magazine and the gun was put out of action until late in the day.

Musketry fire was intermittent until the afternoon, when the Boers made a determined effort to take the hill.

Reinforcements rushed up cheering; the Boers were repulsed and the British advanced along the ridge.

Cape Town, Feb. 7

Fighting began this morning at Sterkstroom and is now in progress. No details have been received.

London, Feb. 8.

A special despatch from Spearman's Camp, dated Wednesday, Feb. 7, says "Our further advance is at the moment prevented, as the Boers infilade us from their positions on Spion Kop and Doorm Kloof. Our casualties, atglhouh estimated at 250 are trifling, considering the great importance of the movement just concluded.

London, Feb. 8.

Mr. Spencer Wilkson in the Morning Post to-day says;

"The British forces appear now to be everywhere on the move. In the absence of local knowledge it is idle to guess the site of General Buller's new attack. It, as seems likely, this is east of Potgieter's Drift, the distance to Ladysmith is only ten miles but the country is more open than other routes. In any event General Buller's troops will have to break the enemy's resistance by hard fighting. For the delay involved in crossing the river must make it difficult to gain the start needed to turn the enemy's flank.

"It is not known now whether Lord Roberts has moved to begin the campaign or not. It may well be that he has only moved to some point nearer the scene of operations where he can be in communication with all his generals."

London, Feb. 8.

The Standard has the following from Spearman's Camp, dated Feb. 7. —"The force under General Buller is again advancing to the relief of Ladysmith and after two days of severe fighting it may fairly be said to have made a good first step on the road to the besieged town.

"The movement was begun at an early hour on Monday morning by way of Potgieter's Drift. The eleventh brigade, forming a part of the 5th division under General Warrem made a feint attack upon the kopjes immediately upon our front. The assault was delivered at the outset under cover of naval guns on Mount Alice and subsequently under that of field batteries.

"The infantry advanced steadily toward the Boer entrenched position at Brakefontein and kept the enemy buisly employed. While this diversion was being made, the remainder of the infantry told off for the attack who had bivoucked over night on Mount Alice, moved along at the foot of Swart Kop in the direction

"A pontoon bridge was thrown across the Tugela by the engineers under the fire of the enemy. The first battalion to march across in the forenoon was the Durban Light Infantry of General Lyttleton's Brigade. They advanced again at Vaalkrantz, which lies on the most direct road to Ladysmith, and after two hours splendid work they got within charging distance of the Boers.

"The first of the kopjes was carried by them at the point of the bayonet with the utmost gallantry. Almost simultaneously, the first battalion rifle brigade cleared the second kopje, and after moving across the long ridge they bivouacked on the spot.

"The feint attack at Potgieter's Drift having served its purpose in preventing the concentration of the enemy at the critical point the eleventh brigade fell back to the river.

"In the course of the operation boththe infantry and the artillery has been subjected to a severe shell fire.

"Yesterday (Tuesday), at four in the afternoon the enemy, encouraged, doubtless by their success, at Spion Kop, endeavored to recapture the position taken by us at Vaalkrantz. They were beaten back, however, with loss.

"The work accomplished so far has been magnificently done. The shell and Maxim fire poured in by the Boers has been extremely severe, but our losses are, comparatively speaking, small.

"The Durban Light Infantry took a few prisoners in the course of their charge.

"The enemy, as usual, fought with the utmost stubborness. The British manœuvouring and the accuracy of aim on the part of the British artillery during the fighting on Monday were beyond praise. There is not the slightest likelihood that the Boers will succeed in dislodging us from the positions we have gained, and the prospects of the relief of Ladysmith are decidedly hopeful."

ADVANCING ON LADYSMITH.

London, Feb. 7.—The Associated Press learns that the War Office today received a telegram stating, briefly, that Gen. Buller had again recrossed the Tugela River, Feb. 5, and was now advancing upon Ladysmith.

FROM BOER SOURCES.

Boer Head Laager, Ladysmith, Feb. 6.—Since yesterday the British with naval and other guns have bombarded our positions on the Upper Tugela. The troops crossed the river at the Post and at Molen Drift with the object of storming our positions. At the former Gen. Burger beat them back and they recrossed in disorder. The fighting continues at Molen Drift with the Standerton and Johannesburg commandos. The cannonade was the fiercest yet experienced. There was a continuous roaring all day long. This morning it recommenced with an increased number of guns.

About five miles west of Potgieter's Drift, is another drift, and it is to be assumed that General Buller has made a second effort to force the Boer lines by this route at the same time holding on to Potgieter's drift and Pont. The fight did not commence until Monday last, so that the rumors of last week were unfounded. The above is from Boer sources and must be considerably discounted. According to it the British at Potgieter's were driven back over the river, while the force at the other drift is still engaging the Boers. The fight lasted all day Monday and recommenced on Tuesday. The road from the westerly drift, probabyl the main point of Buller's attack, leads in a curve towards the Ladysmith road, running through Acton Homes. It is evidently Buller's intention assuming that the despatch is reliable to use this road for working round the Boer flank.

THE CANADIANS GO TO THE FRONT!

Sent Forward From Belmont to Gras Pan En Route to Join General Methuen's Forces.

Belmont, South Africa, Feb. 3—Delayed by Censor—The Canadian Contingent, with the exception of "A" and "G" Companies, which are left here as part of the garrison, will leave Belmont this afternoon for Gras Pan, en route to Modder River to join Lord Methuen's forces.

DEARTH OF NEWS CALMS BRITAIN.

London, Feb. 7.—In the absence of any news of action in South Africa, the Morning Leader's expert discusses to-day the War Office's failure to appreciate Boer tactics. He declares his belief that Boer guns were sent from Magersfontein to Norval's Pont.

The Post expert takes up the possibilities of conscription, and says the War Office, that for 30 years has not known what to do with 230,000 volunteers, would not know what to do with half a million conscripts."

Discussing the censorship, the same expert says—"The dearth of information from South Africa has not proved a misfortune during the last few days. The public is calmer since Roberts adopted the wise plan of brief and reserved reports for publication."

TALK OF INTERVENTION.

New York, Feb. 7.—It is learned that under the terms of the Hague treaty, which has just been ratified by the Senate, an effort will be made before long to exert such offices as may properly be extended to the belligernts to bring about a termination of the war in South Africa, says the Washington correspondent of the Times. Before this treaty was adopted it was maintained that the United States could not, without exposing this Government to the suspicion of unfriendly motives, venture to suggest the use of good offices to both parties in the war.

Even now there may be some hesitation about declaring, by advances made even with the best intentions, tha the Transvaal is or is not a vassal State, but it is beginning to be appreciated that it may not be wise to defer too long the offer of friendly intervention to save lifes on both sides.

GERMANY TOO HONORABLE.

Berlin, Feb. 7.—With reference to the attempt of French diplomacy and journalism to induce Germany to join in a movement against England in Egypt, a high personage at the Foreign Office made the following statement last evening: "Germany will not join a movement to reopen the Egyptian question. Aside from the question whether France and Russia mean honestly, Germany is of opinion that it would be unloyal and unfair to seize a moment when England is deeply engaged elsewhere for such steps."

VOLUNTEERS NOT WANTED

Berlin, Feb. 7.—Dr. Leyds spent yesterday at Weimar, where he tendered his congratulations to the Grand Duke upon the 60th anniversary of his joining the Prussian army. He returned to Berlin last evening. As he does not find time now to go to St. Petersburg, he will return to Brussels, where an enormous mass of correspondence awaits him.

Dr. Leyds has announced that the Transvaal Government is not engaging volunteers for the war and will refuse to transport any to South Africa.

London, Feb. 7.—Important events are pending in South Africa. The British are about to make another attempt to break through the impenetrable line of Boer marksmen which has hitherto barred their way in three different campaign areas. Gen. Roberts and Gen. Kitchener have left for the front—a sure sign that operations of magnitude are about to be initiated. General Macdonald, with the Highland brigade four thousand strong every man aching to avenge Magersfontein, five hundred lancers and six guns, has seized Koodoo's drift, eighteen miles to the northwest of General Methuen's camp at Modder River. It is likely, therefore, that an effort to clear the Boers out of Northern Cape Colony and an attack upon the Boer position outside of Kimberley may be made simultaneously.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT VICTORIOUS.

Vote of Censure on Account of the Transvaal War Overwhelmingly Defeated.

London, Feb. 7.—The debate on the vote of censure in the House of Commons ended in a great victory for the Government just after midnight. Before the division the Irish members got up in a body and left the House, and some well-known Liberals also walked out. When the figures were announced, and it was found that the amendment voting censure on the Government was rejected by 352 votes to 139, there was a wild shout of triumph from the Government benches.

The debate in the House of Commons dragged yesterday, and brought to the front a swarm of ineffective speakers. Mr. Asquith and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman attempted to reply to Mr. Chamberlain, but each spoke in a half-hearted way in defence of the amendment, which has been a serious tactical mistake for the opposition. Mr. Chamberlain's speech had been supported from several unexpected quarters. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's strong imperialistic speech in the Canadian House had come like an echo of Mr. Chamberlain's closing passage respecting the federation of the Empire, and no liberal malcontent ventured to comment adversely upon the colonial Premier's outburst of loyalty.

The result of the York election was a decisive proof that the Unionist Government commanded the confidence of the country. Mr. Balfour was surrounded with jubilant followers when he closed the debate in which the Opposition had overreached itself and strengthened the Government.

The election in York City for a successor in the House of Commons to Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford recently appointed to the command of the second division of the British Mediterranean fleet resulted as folows:

Mr. George Faber, Unionist, 6,248; Mr. A. Murray, Liberal, 4,818; Faber's majority, 1,430.

JOHN REDMOND TALKS WIDLY.

Leader of Newly-Born Irish Party Says African Troubles Cheered His Party.

London, Feb. 7.—Mr. John Redmond in speaking in the House of Commons in support of his motion that the time had come to acknowledge the independence of the Transvaal, said the Irish party abhorred this war and intended so far as possible to maintain the independence of the Republics, defended with such heroism. Mr. Redmond admitted that when the empire was involved in complications a feeling of hope and satisfaction stirred the majority of the Irish at home and abroad. But the sympathies of the Irish would still have been pro-Boer, even if England had not been concerned and another power had attempted to "act the bully and oppressor in South Africa." England to-day, added Mr. Redmond, stood "not in splendid but in disgraceful isolation, Turkey alone lending her countenance."

While admitting that official expression of hostility had not been heard in the United States, "chiefyl because America, being engaged in the Philippine war, had not felt herself in a position to rebuke England as she would otherwise have done," Mr. Redmond declared that the overwhelming opinion of leading American statesmen was hostile to Great Britain in this war and said the "unanimous disapproval of the world demonstrated that the war was unjust, and it ought therefore to be stopped. As to whether the prospects of home rule were adversely affected by the attitude of the Irish, Mr. Redmond thought Irelanded had nothing to lose and everything to gain by raising her voice on the side of justice and liberty.

Mr. Patrick Joseph Power, member for the East Division of Waterford county, seconded Mr. Redmond's amendment.

ROBERTS AND STAFF START FOR THE FRONT

To Some Point in the Neighborhood of Modder River Bridge or Colesberg.

TWO DETACHMENTS OF BOERS ATTACK GATACRE.

Serious Fighting is Going on in the Neighborhood of Stormberg for Several Days—Paris Papers Recognize the Dignity and Patience of British Parliament.

Cape Town, Feb. 7.—An important state of the war in South Africa was reached to-day when Generals Roberts and Kitchener startedfor the front, presumably to some point in the neighborhood of the Orange River bridge or Colesurg.

London, Feb. 7.—While the suspense regarding Gen. Buller's movements and the operations affecting the fate of Ladysmith continues unrelieved even by the vaguest despatch, there comes from other quarters interesting news in the announcement that Field Marshal Lord Roberts, commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa, and his chief of staff, Major-General Lord Kitchener, have left for the front. As this information was held back for several hours by the censor it seems to indicate that an important movement is on foot.

It is quite probablethat the commander-in-chief wishes either to be present at or supervise the long-intended movement by General Gatacre to join forces with Gen. Kelly-Kenny, and thence strongly reinforce Gen. French, completing the latter's work at Colesburg and establishing without fear of serious opposition an advanced position for the main movement. This of course is greatly supposition, but it can be confidently said that the departure of Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener for the front does not indicate that the main advance has begun. The commanders will probably be back in Cape Town within a short time. It is pointed out that the term going to the front must not be interpreted into the idea that a great movement upon Pretoria by way of Blomfontein has seriously commenced. It will be a month or perhaps much longer before this can be brought about.

In the meanwhile the preliminary steps are likely to enliven the campaign with sharp fighting, and news from Sterkstroom, Thebus, and Colesberg is eagerly awaited.

ATTACKING GATACRE.

London, Feb. 7.—A despatch from Sterkstroom, dated this morning, announces that the Boers are attacking General Gatacre from two directions. Firing was proceeding between the outposts and a delayed Sterkstroom despatch, dated Feb. 5, announces that a body of troops left the camp on Feb. 3, and that important developments were expected.

ADMIRATION OF BRITAIN.

Paris, Feb. 7.—The Figaro expresses admiration at the attitude of the British Parliament. It regards the debate on the address, in common with the nation, as giving an example of dignity and unity in the face of defeat, and patience toward the Government, which has been unsuccessful in war. Most papers express the same view though sympathy for the Boers remains as strong as ever.

A FOOLISH IRISHMAN.

London, Feb. 7.—Mr. John Redmond, chairman of the United Irish party, was loudly cheered by all sections of the Irish members when he rose in the House of Commons to-day to-day to move an amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, representing that the time had arrived to bring the war to a conclusion on the basis of recognizing the independence of the Transvaal.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The Local Hockey Players Scored a Brilliant Victory Last Night.

The game of hockey last night was the real genuine stuff, although not so fast by any means as the game with "them Wellingtons." At times it was fast, very fast, but it often lagged while the two cover points indulged in some lifting practice. The referee had not much to do except call off-sides, at which Morgan was a long way the worst offender. He ought to be called down by his captain, for he certainly knows better, but he was too slow last night. The star game was played by Armstrong for Peterborough, and Morrison for Upper Canada. Hubert McHain, a graduate of the Colts' team, played his position on the Upper Canada team better than we ever saw him play before.

The club was honored by the presence of Mr. John Ross Robertson, the genial president of the O. H. A., who faced the puck at the beginning of the game.

The teams lined up as follows—

U. C. C.—Wells, goal; Keys, point; McBain, cover point; Worts, Morrison, Cook and Wilson, forwards.

Peterborough—Miller, goal; Cavanagh, point; Armstrong, cover point; Whitcroft, Morgan, Robinson and Lynch, forwards.

Referee—Peck Lillie, Toronto.

The puck was faced sharp on time and it was thirteen minutes fast work before the first goal was scored by Peterborough. U. C. C. took the next in ten minutes and in three minutes more scored another. In two minutes Peterborough evened things, but Upper Canada College got the next in a minute. The Colts then made the thing a tie before the whistle blew for half time. Score 3—3.

The second half was going five minutes when U. C. C. scored, following this up with another in 30 seconds. The next game, which was the longest ofthe half, went to Peterborough, but Upper Canada made it 3—1 one minute after. Then the rooters rooted and the boys played hockey and the umpire's hand went up atP eterborough's end three times in succession in one, three and six minutes, and the game ended with the Colts 1 up.

That is a lightning forward line of U. C. C., and they know how to get back. Getting back is the great weakness of all the Peterborough teams. They leave too much for the defence players.

Jimmy McFadden swears by Stratford Colts. Lionel King says thatP eterborough Colts have a lead pipe cinch, while A. Macdonald thinks the team that played last night will about do the trick—but where do the Simcoes come in?

Sporting Comments.

From all accounts the game between Cornwall and Iroquois to break the three-club tie was the real thing. It would have delighted a New York audience. At one time there were nine men on the fence, and it was a hair-raising yell that went up to the roof of the Morrisburg rink, when Turner, of the Cornwalls, went up against two of the Iroquois and shot a goal, with all the rest ofhis team but the goal keeper sittin' on de fence. Turner and McLennan were among the Cornwall players, and as they were not at all in shape they had to do a lot of "soldiering" in order to get their wind. 'Twas wonderful how often their skates needed fixing and their shoe laces became broken, but they made time. In consequence the game lasted three hours and a half. Cornwall won out and the final game is with the Caps.

The two rinks of Montreal ladies beat their sisters from Lachine in their match for the challenge cup. Score 37 to 19.

Great preparations are being made in Montreal for the games for the Hauley Cup between Winnipeg and the Shamrocks. The advance sale of seats is large.

The games for the Lindsay District in the Midland Colt's competition are being played at the rink here this afternoon. The clubs in the group are—Fenelon Falls, Beaverton, Lindsay. Messrs. Anderson and Grear are the skips for Lindsay.

On Thursday points will be played for the Bertham Tankard, the Walters Medal, the Uxbridge Cup, the S. C. Wood Medal, the MacGachen Buttons and the Provincial Medal. The competition for the first three is a handicap competition. Every player of the club should take part in this competition. Play will go on afternoon and evening on all four sheets of ice.

Mr. T. A. Pratt, of St. Paul, is sending the Club St. Paul papers giving an account of the great Northwestern bonspiel, which was played at St. Paul last week. Mr. Pratt is playing on Fullerton's St. Paul rink. This rink is one of the strongest aggregations of the Northwestern States.

What has become of the Lindsay-Peterborough games? It's about time these were commenced. Now, that the excursion has fallen through, there must be numbers of players anxious for a foreign game.

The Campbellford bonspiel for single and double rinks will be started this morning. The following clubs have entered—Keene, Bobcaygeon, Lakefield, Norwood, Campbellford and the Granites and Thistles, of Peterborough.

Montreal is to be favored with a sight of the New York team fromthe St. Nicholas Hockey club on the 20th. The game will be with the McGill College team.

The Crescent Athletic Club, of Toronto, has matched Casper Leon, of New York, and Jimmy Smith, of Tonronto, to fight 20 rounds at 115 pounds next Saturday night for the bantamweight championship of Canada.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 7, 1900

THE TIMES' WAR SERVICE.

Stirring events may now be looked for in South Africa, as it is evident that General Roberts and the other British commanders are concerting a plan of campaign for the invasion of the Orange Free State and a simultaneous attack on the Boer lines. Fresh reinforcements are being hurried to the front for the decisive struggle, which will be not long delayed, and perhaps is already under way.

The proprietor of the Times has arranged for even fuller despatches than heretofore. The Toronto morning papers are printed at 2.30, and are able to give despatches up to about 2, the Morning Times will get despatches up to a quarter to four—nearly two hours later than the Toronto papers. Thus, we will beat the Toronto papers.

The Times has also arranged for special Washington despatches, having a special correspondent in the American capital. In addition to the above the paper will get the important events transpiring in all parts of the world.

We have recently added an engraving department to our establishment, which is being gradually perfected, and which will be able to reproduce war scenes. We use what is known as the zink etching process, which reproduces scenes as clearly as photography.

The Times has during the past few weeks added several hundred new subscribers to its list. It wants at least 1000 additional, when we will be in a position to enable us to produce a thoroughly up-to-date morning daily newspaper—a journal that will be read throughout Eastern Ontario.

RUSSIA IN ASIA.

The gradual expansion of the Russian Empire in the East has made the control of Persia a natural if not an inevitable process. The Russian conquest of Asia, though accompanied by military occupation has not been accomplished by armed force, but by the slow and sure extension of Russian influence and administration. Great political results are often reached in these days through finanical channels, and the news that Russia has secured a new mortgage on Persia, by means of a new loan, fortells the ultimate control of that effete kingdom and an open way for Russia to the Indian ocean.

Western Europe having agreed to maintain the Turkish Empire as a barrier against Russia, the latter's great expansive force has found an outlet to the East and South. The building of the Siberian Railway and the appearance of Russia as a military and naval power on the Pacific coast, has been attracting attention lately, but that is only one branch of Russian expansion. Pushing across the Caucasus, it absorbed the country down to the boundary of Asiatic Turkey and of Russia, and by the Trans-Caucasian Railway has linked the Caspian with the Black Sea. At the same time Turkestan has been gradually absorbed, as far as Persia and Afghanistan, and the Trans-Caspian Railway, running close by the Persian border to Mery, and thence northward to Bokhara, to unite these Central Asian possessions, gives Russia absolute mastery of all this vast region, which is but an extension of her Eastern Empire.

Only Russia [illegible] the sea, a corrupt and enfeebled state where British and Russian diplomatists have played a varying game for mastery. But Russian diplomacy in the East is more than a match for any other. The terms of the loan made by the Bank of Russia will put the finances of the kingdom practically in the hands of Russian officials, who will not be worthy of their traditions if they do not secure any concessions that may be demanded, for railways and commerce or for military or naval privileges, if need be, or even find a pretext to foreclose the mortgage and extend the Empire of Russia to the Persian Gulf and to the borders of British India.

GENEROUS RAILWAY EMPLOYEES.

That great industrial army, thirty thousand strong, which is posted on the lines of the Canadian Pacific railway system is not unmindful of the other Canadian forces despatched or bound to South Africa or less peaceful duties.

A half day's pay subscribed by the men on the muster-roll of the C.P.R. would swell the Patriotic fund by about $20,000, and there would be no contribution of which Canada would feel prouder.

It is from the ranks of our workingmen that the contingents have been recruited, and the generous proposal of a great body of them to help earn for the wives and children left at home is further proof that the hearts of the whole people are with Britain in this war.

Such an offering from the employes of Canada's Imperial highway is peculiarly grateful.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Men who live on little are called economists, and men who live on nothing are called tramps.

•• • ••

Bravo, Italy! For the sake of one of its young women, the gallant little power was prepared alone to fight the oppressor whom the concerted powers would not undertake to coerce when he was deluging Armenia with blood. In twenty-four hours the Government of Turkey had to hand over the girl to the Italian Embassy or fight, and it handed over the girl.

•• • ••

At least a flying squadron at sea is a pleasanter sight for Britain than to see her squadrons flying on land.

•• • ••

Rather a pleasant fall leading to a hard winter than an icy winter leading to a hard fall.

•• • ••

England's proposing to equip another fleet flying squadron is like running in a kind of ocean greyhounds among the dogs of war.

•• • ••

When you come to think of it, what more natural than that Donald A. Smith should send a contingent to the relief of Ladysmith.

•• • ••

An interview between General Hutton and Lieut.-Col. Sam Hughes would probably be worth reporting.

•• • ••

Great Britain has a total of 213,000 troops, with 452 guns, in South Africa and afloat, only 18,000 being classed among those speeding toward Cape Town. The warlike resources of Great Britain have grown immensely since the Battle of Waterloo, when Wellington had only 26,000 British soldiers in the allied army that conquered Napoleon.—Buffalo News.

TREMENDOUS LYING.

To the Editor of the Times.

Dear Sir,—Ever since the commencement of the war in South Africa I have carefully marked down every day the number of English and Boers killed, with dates, places where, etc., etc., as reported in the daily papers, claiming to come from reliable sources, and come to the following astonishing result:—

The number of Boers killed and wounded, 27,194.

Prisoners, 3,000.

Total loss on the Boer side, 30,194 men.

They had only three victories, which would have been "terrible" defeats if the mules or something else had not interfered with the British plans. The reports about the Boers were as follows:—Poor fighters, cruel, cowards and no marksmen at all. As proof of their cowardice, two instances were given: One English woman chased 50 Boers, and a few regiments of the Boers threw their arms away and took to their heels when they discovered 200 Canadians on one of their "kopjes" showing that our boys must beat the English in heroic appearance. Then their guns and cannons were reported as old and too heavy for moving, sickness was among the men and horses, etc., etc.

The British on their side reported not less than 52 brilliant, dashing victories, lost only 327 men killed and wounded, and 2,000 in prisoners. The number of miles the Boers were driven back was exactly 185 miles.

Now the strange part of this all, comes in a report published last week and coming from the same sources as the above statements, that the number of British killed, wounded and prisoners is 8000 and that of the Boers some 4,000. There must be some tremendous lying going on somewhere. The number of miles the Boers are said to have been driven back by us exceeds that of the number of miles the Boers were from their own border at the beginning of the war. As for those 53 brilliant victories, claimed by us, where is the result? Surely, as Canadians and British subjects we have a right to ask such questions. Is it possible that England is following the same silly practices as America does in regard to her war in the Philippines? Always brilliant victories, thousands of natives killed; on the American side only two privates killed and one officer wounded, and as in all the reports of General Otis those two privates and that one officer are mentioned, one could almost imagine that the resurrection had commenced there. All the Christian nations and a great number of prominent Englishmen assert openly that the real motive of England for this war is gain, which is again vigorously contradicted by the press and the clergy. They claim that England don't want any more territory, and as for the gold and diamond mines England's moneymen would not take them if given to them. It is a war for humanity, to protect the poor black man from the cruelty of those terrible Boers, and to protect our own English brothers living among those savage Boers. Was there ever such a touching, magnificent spectacle! A powerful notion risking its very existence and shedding its blue and red blood—not for gain—but for the love of Christ. Noble, beyond expression! One question England has to answer, if she cares to be believed in the eyes of the world. If she sheds her blood now for those blacks and a few English Christians, why did she not act that nobly when the Turks murdered those 10,000 Christians in Armenia? Had the Turkish army something to do with English Christianity?

MILLMEN ORGANIZE.

An Effort to be made to organize Sawmill Employees.

A strong effort will shortly be made by local labor leaders to organize the saw mill men of the Ottawa valley and the Peterborough district and bring them within the folds of the American Federated Labor Union. The latter organization is wide-reaching in its jurisdiction, and has a strong voice in the control of the labor interests of the United States. It has lately been introduced into Ottawa, says the Citizen, and the line men have been organized under it.

Attempts have already been made to organize the mill men in Ottawa district, but as the unions were mostly local in their character and membership their success was short-lived. There has been no effort in this direction made in Peterborough, although over 2,900 men are "handed" here every year. It is now proposed however, to organize the mill men at Renfrew, Arnprior, Braeside, Rockland, Buckingham, Aylmer, Hull and Peterborough, as well as those in the Ottawa mills. Present organizations at Aylmer and elsewhere will be strengthened, defunct ones reorganized, and new unions formed.

The labor leaders claim that the mill men as a rule are called upon to work ten hours a day at only ten cents an hour, this wage in their opinion being insufficient. The coming season's mill operations promise to be more extensive than they have been for many years back, and as the lumber market is high, the present is thought to be the most opportune time for the mill hands to organize. Most of the mechanics employed in the mills, machinists, engineers, etc., are organized and the unskilled labor thus has an example of organization in its midst.

It is estimated that there are at least 6,000 mill hands at the centres mentioned, all of whom are eligible for membership in the new organization. Separate organizations would probably be organized at each point, each in touch and sympathy with the other and in a position to work in concert.

Deception Practiced by Greedy and Profit loving Merchants

They Try to Foist Imitation Dyes on Their Customers When Diamond Dyes Are Asked For.

One of the Ladies Who Could Not be Deceived.

Wise women are never deceived by the untrue and deceptive statements of greedy and profit-loving merchants and dealers. When a storekeeper tells you that some other make of package dye is JUST AS GOOD as the "DIAMOND," he is surely trying to mislead and deceive you. Successful home dyeing depends upon the use of Diamond Dyes; the use of common dyes means spoiled materials every time.

Read the following letter sent to the proprietors of Diamond Dyes by Mrs A. E. Parker, of Clarence, N. S.—

"Please find money enclosed for Fast Black Diamond Dyes for Cotton. I can't get it here, but I am offered something JUST AS GOOD. The JUST AS GOOD may do for some people, but I want the 'Diamond Dyes' as they are the best made."

Where is the Times?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see that fights between Boer and British sympathizers are becoming frequent. Recently a young man was waylaid on the Otonabee bridge by a young "Boer," but the latter was made to hunt his kopje, considerably the worse of the wear.

What I want to know is, who does not the Times come out and print the names of these people who are so antagonistic to the British arms in Africa? People then would know who they are?

FAIR PLAY.

Note.—[My dear boy, the editor of this g.f.j. cannot possibly referee these little scraps. We will be glad to publish the names of all parties engaged in such fights, when we can, so that the police may take action.—Ed. Times.]

C.P.R. traffic earnings for the week ending January 31 were $654,000, an increase of $96,000 over the corresponding week a year ago.

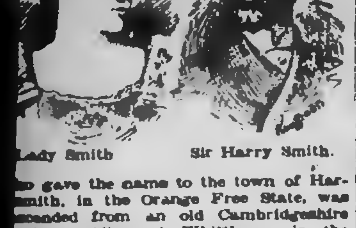
HOW LADYSMITH RECEIVED ITS NAME.

n interesting story is told of how the uth African town upon which the attion of the world is now concentrated me to be called Ladysmith.

ir Harry George Wakelyn Smith, Bart.,



Lady Smith Sir Harry Smith.

o gave the name to the town of Har-smith, in the Orange Free State, was scended from an old Cambridgeshire amily residing at Whittlesey, in the e of Ely, some six miles from Peterrough. His father, a surgeon, who ved to a great age, had four sons, three whom were soldiers and the fourth a ailor.

The three soldier sons went through the Peninsular war, and were at Waterloo and returned safely. Sir Harry was the eldest.

Sir Harry was at the seige of Badajos; here a very interesting incident occurred. He was standing with the general and staff when a Spanish Countess and her young sister came to the general for protection. Sir Harry was smitten by the charms of the younger of the fair petitioners; this ripened into love, and she eventually became his wife—Lady Smith, from whom comes the name of the town of "Ladysmith," now so famous.

Sir Harry was a good soldier, and showed great skill and bravery in the Sihk wars. At the battle of Aliwal (which was entirely his battle, and for which he was created a baronet, with a pension to Ladysmith), he defeated the Sihks with great slaughter. Lady Smith accompanied him wherever he went. She was at the battle of Chillianwallah, and received a medal, which is still in the possession of the family.

Sir Harry subsequently went to South Africa. From 1847 to 1854 he was Governor of the Cape, and did great service in the fights against the Kaffirs.

The names of the three South African towns—Harrismith, Ladysmith and Aliwal—perpetuate the fame of the brave soldier and his wife.

THE SON SEEKS DIVORCE.

n Aged Father Fell in Love With His Son's Young Wife.

New York, Feb. 6.—Lawyer George Rob-nson, of 99 Nassau street, to-day served apers in the divorce suit brought by ra DePuy, an artist, against his wife, annie DePuy, in which the husband's ather is named as correspondent.

The father-in-law is 65 years old. Mr. DePuy has one hundred love letters that e parent sent to his wife.

Following is the copy of one of the tters—

All for One Little Kiss.

My Darling Little Duck of a Sweet-art—You are my life, my treasure, nd if I were a king I'd glafly lay the riches of a nation at your feet for one weet kiss from those ruby lips. Ah, earest, how my heart yearns for you. You, my beloved, to whom all poets of assion sing their love songs! A kiss n paper, a million if you will. I love you; I love you; Dearest, joy of my eart, why did we not meet years ago? But fate at last has brought us together. Don't let Ire know of our clandestine love. It is so sweet to love. My whole heart yearns for you.

Adieu, my own beloved, adieu. We shall yet be happy in our love.

Your own dearest slave for life,

TOM.

The DePuys were married at Walkill, Ulster county, N. Y., on October 17, 1883. They have five children, all of whom are with the mother in Rutherford, N. J.

Mr. DePuy is still at Walkill. According to the papers in the case the couple lived happily until two years ago, when Thomas DePuy, the husband's father, paid them a visit. The elder DePuy is a wealthy ranchman near Omaha. He has white hair.

When the ranchman arrived at his son's home for a short visit two years ago he immediately began paying the daughter-in-law attention. So marked was his admiration that the son ordered his father from his house and saw to it that he started West. This crisis, however, was not reached until the father had prolonged hisvisit for nearly a month.

After the elder DePuy had gone the wife remained in her home. Soon the husband discovered that his father was corresponding with the wife. He succeeded in intercepting one hundred letters some as often as three times a week, that were sent by his father.

All these letters were full of love and each one begged the woman to use the utmost care that "Ire should not discover their love."

Mr. DePuy also held up letters sent from his wife to the father. After that Mrs. DePuy left her husband and went to Rutherford with the children. The husband declares that he has proof that his wife afterward kept up the correspondence with her father-in-law.

Will Ask $50,000 Damages.

Mr. DePuy in his suit also asks for the custody of the children. The eldest child is 14 years old.

Lawyer Robinson said to-day that suit would also be begun by Mr. DePuy for $50,000 against his father for the alleged alienation of the wife's affections.

Mrs. DePuy denies the allegation and will fight her husband's suit.

THE WRITERS.

Michael Davitt, during his days in parliament, did nearly all his literary work in the house writing room, where silence is enforced, sitting invariably in the same seat.

Paul Bourget has announced his intention of paying a second visit to this country. He will come next spring and gather material for a novel dealing with American social life.

Theodor Mommsen, at the age of 82 years, has published a new work, "Roman Criminal Law," as a companion to his great "Roman Constitutional Law." It is a volume of 1,078 closely printed, large octavo pages.

Bjornstjerne Bjornson lately saw for the first time the statue of himself set up before the National theater in Christiania. He turned red in the face and demands that it be removed, as it is a libel on his personal appearance.

THE PARIS SHOW.

The Paris exposition catalogue will contain 100,000 names.

The parks of Milwaukee will be part of the exhibit of that city at the Paris exposition. A series of photographic views of the public parks of that city will be shown.

It took a bid of 275,000 francs to secure the privilege of letting out seats for the Paris exposition of 1900. For the 1889 exhibition the successful bid for the monopoly was 39,000 francs.

Governor Mount of Indiana is personally supervising an elaborate exhibit for his state at the Paris exposition. One of the features of this will be a series of large photographs to show the progress of the "good roads" movement in Indiana, where there are now 50,000 miles of graded and graveled highway.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate, and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodies" of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

A WIFE'S DEVOTION SAVES HUSBAND.

Mrs. Maby's Successful Plea in Court for Man Who Shot Her.

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 6.—A remarkable case of a wife's unselfish devotion was witnessed in Judge Edward's court today. Stephen Maby, formerly in the hotel business in Wilkesbarre and here, was arraigned for feloniously wounding Mrs. Maby. The district attorney told the jury that he wilfully shot the woman through the leg, and that his crime was a grave one. Then the District Attorney called Mrs. Maby.

"It was only a flesh wound," she said, "and it never laid me up a minute. Yes, I had a doctor, but it was only a 32-calibre bullet, and really I was not hurt much. Mr. Maby has always been a good man to me and to my children. He has been unfortunate in business and could not get work, but indeed he was always good natured. There was no jealousy; nothing at all. It was an accident."

The District Attorney could get no word from her against Maby, and Maby's counsel, Mr. Von Storch, asked that the jury return a verdict of not guilty.

Judge Edwards then said—"This is a case in which we may read between the lines. Whether this woman has sacrificed the facts in her testimony we do not know, but we do know that if any man is under obligation to take good care of his wife during the rest of his days it is this defendant. He should demean himself the balance of his life for her attitude on what she calls this 'accident.'"

Maby was released after the verdict, and he went to the end of the court room where his wife was seated and fondly kissed her.

The incident profoundly affected the Judge and all who witnessed it.

Aggravating the Offence.

"You are charged, young man," the magistrate said, not unkindly, "with scaring the complaining witness nearly out of his senses by putting him through some mock ceremony of initiation. I can make allowance for exuberance of spirits among college students, but sometimes this exuberance is carried too far."

"It was this way, your honor," exclaimed the youth who appeared to be the spokesman—"we were out for a little lark, and we caught a jay."

"The fine will be $2 and costs each," said his honor, his face hardening.—Chicago Tribune.

Some Ready Made Law.

Bourke Cockran studied law under Judge Theodore L. Dwight. One day the professor asked a question which seemed easy, but was really difficult. With his magnificent voice Cockran answered the best he could, adding as a saving clause, "Such, I take it, is the common law."

The good old doctor gleamed benignantly through his spectacles. "That would be all right, sir, if you had made it uncommon law."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

It is brimful of tale and anecdote of persons and things you know, you ought to know, or would like to know. It is a mighty interesting paper with an interesting personality.

The Picture Supplement

is not equalled by any other newspaper on the face of the globe. The pictures are timely, interesting, newsy and new. They are in some respects superior to the original photographs, and no amount of description could do them the justice that your own eyes would.

NEW ESKIMO TRIBE.

They number 58, and Never Saw a White Man Until Recently.

The strangest anthropological "find" recorded in the last decade of the nineteenth century is, says a Washington despatch, the discovery on a lonely island in Hudson Bay of a lost tribe of Eskimo—a community which has been without intercourse with other representatives of the human species for centuries, and whose members never saw a white man until a few months ago. They are still in the Stone Age, knowing no metals; they grow no plants, and their houses are built of the skulls of whales.

The home of this strange tribe, which seems to have been cut off in some unknown manner from the rest of the world ever so long ago, is on Southampton Island—a piece of water-girt terra firma nearly as big as the state of Maine, situated at the north end of Hudson Bay. Apparently the people has dwelt there ever since pre-Columbian times, and today they live and subsist in exactly the same way as they did then.

Having been isolated for so long a period, it is natural that they should exhibit many peculiarities most interesting to the student of ethnology, and these are illustrated by a superb collection of utensils, weapons of the chase and other objects, which, through the agency of Dr. Franz Boas, has been fetched to New York in a whaling vessel and deposited in the Museum of Natural History.

The houses of skulls above mentioned, more properly described as huts, are built by putting together the great jaws of right whales, which are covered over with skins. In the middle of this primitive dwelling is an elevated place on which stands the inevitable stone lamp—chief essential of every Eskimo household. Indeed, the whole life of the family may be said to revolve about the lamp, the inmates depending upon it for their very existence. Without it they would be unable to occupy so frigid and otherwise uninhabitable a region. It is employed for lighting, heating, cooking, melting snow, drying clothes and in certain arts. Yet it is nothing more than an open dish of whale oil or seal oil, with a wick of dry moss soaked in fat.

The tribe comprises only fifty-eight individuals, about equally divided as to sexes. Its members speak a dialect peculiar to themselves, and quite unlike that employed by any other eskimo. A strait about thirty miles broad separates Southampton island from the western shore of Hudson Bay, where there is a colony of Eskimo, and once in a very long while it freezes clear across. This happened, it is said, seventy five years ago, and then a few hunters came over from the island to the mainland, where they were much surprised to encounter other human beings like themselves, having doubtless imagined that they were the only people in existence. This is now a tradition with the natives on the mainland, who say that the strangers brought two sledges with them, but went away again and never returned. Never before nor since has any news come from the lost tribe.

SHAVING ACCIDENTS.

THE BARBER DISCUSSES THEM WITH THE MAN IN HIS CHAIR.

Chances to Cut Throats That Are Not Often Taken Advantage Of—Narrow Escapes From Serious Mishaps—A Father's Dream.

"Did it ever strike you," asked the little barber, "how easy it would be for the man that shaves you to kill you?"

The man in the chair sat up quickly and looked carefully at the barber, who was feeling the edge of the razor with one finger. The barber smiled to reassure his customer and said:

"It seems a queer question, I know, but it is a wonder to me that there are not a number of people killed in that way every year. It would be the easiest thing in the world for the barber as he wielded his razor to make one sweep with it and sever the jugular vein, and you would be dead almost on the instant. Suppose, for instance, that the barber should go insane. There would be nothing to prevent his doing such a thing, and you would have no warning nor any opportunity to save yourself.

"There is always a chance of a serious accident happening to the man in the chair. I have seen a number of such accidents and have a horror of even nicking the man I am shaving. In fact, such an occurrence makes me feel out of sorts for the rest of the day. It was only a few days ago that I almost had an accident that gave me a great fright and completely unnerved me. I was shaving a young man, and in passing from one side of the chair to the other a button of my waistcoat caught in his hair. It pulled a trifle, and he moved his head suddenly just as I went to put the blade to his face. I came within an ace of slashing him, and only a quick jump back saved him. The perspiration stood out on me, and I had to call one of the other men to finish shaving my customer.

"But the worst accident I ever saw in a barber shop occurred while I was working in a small town in the west. One of the patrons of the place was a business man whose 8-year-old daughter was lying at the point of death. Her father put in most of his time at her bedside. One afternoon while she was asleep he came in here to get shaved. He was so exhausted through lack of sleep that he fell asleep immediately after he had taken his seat in the chair next to the one behind which I was at work.

"He dreamed that some one had come into the place to tell him that his child had died. With a cry of alarm he started up just as the barber laid the razor against his neck. Into the flesh it sank. He was not yet thoroughly awake, and as he imagined that some one was holding him back from his child he threw out his hand to free himself, and his fingers closed over the blade of the razor. So dazed was he that he could not realize what had happened, but sat there in the chair, with the blood streaming from his throat and fingers.

"The man who had done the cutting was the first to act, although half crazed. He hurried for a doctor while we stanched the flow of blood the best we knew how. Even as the doctor was at work sewing up the wounds a messenger came to say that the little girl had died suddenly in the greatest agony, calling for her father just before she died. He was under the influence of ether at the time and did not know, but afterward, when he heard of the circumstances attending her death, he insisted that he had heard her call as he lay there asleep in the chair and that it was her cry that had caused him to make his sudden movement.

"For years after the accident he continued to shave in the same shop where it had occurred, and it was never mentioned. He carried a reminder of it for the remainder of his life. In addition to the scar on his throat, the fingers of his right hand were all drawn up and useless.

"Sudden movements while in the barber's chair are always apt to be attended with serious results, and I could recall dozens of instances where it has been only the merest chance that has prevented serious if not fatal mishaps. Nine times out of ten where the person getting shaved receives a nick and lays the blame on the barber he should thank the wielder of the razor that it was no worse. The probabilities are that it was quick action by the barber that prevented a bad cut. A slight nick often would have been a case for the doctor or coroner were it not for the watchfulness of the barber. Here yesterday I happened to draw blood from a young fellow's face near his ear, and he made a great fuss about it, until I showed him that it was only the sudden withdrawal of the razor which resulted in the slight nick that prevented him losing a good part of his ear. Then he was grateful and thanked me, besides promising to be more careful in the future.

"But there are other ways the barber has of getting even," continued the little barber after relathering one side of his customer's face. "There is no need of his slashing a man. He can inflict injuries that will make his victim decidedly uncomfortable, and at the same time the latter will not be aware of what is being done." What the barber meant by this last remark his victim did not ask.—New York Sun.

DROPPING PEBBLES IN THE STREAM.

From the Bismark Tribune.

Drop a pebble in th' water—jes' a splash an' it is gone.
But th's half a hundred ripples circlin'
on an' on an' on;
Spreadin', spreadin', from the centre,
flowin' on out to the sea,
An' th' aint no way o' tellin' where
th' end is goin' to be.
Drop a pebble in th' water—in a minute ye forget,
But th's little waves a-flowin' and
th's ripples circlin' yet;
All th' ripples flowin', flowin' tio a mighty wave has grown,
An' ye've disturbed a mighty river—
jes' by droppin' in a stone.

Drop an unkind word or careless—in a minute it is gone,
But th's half a hundred ripples circlin'
on an' on an' on;
Th' keep spreadin', spreadin', spreadin'
from the centre as th' go,
An' th' aint no way to stop 'em, once
ye've started 'em to flow.
Drop an unkind word or careless—in a minute ye forget,
But th's little waves a' flowin' an'
th's ripples circlin' yet,
An' perhaps in some sad heart a mighty wave of tears ye've stirred,
An' disturbed a life et's happy when ye dropped an unkind word.

Drop a word o' cheer an' kindness—jes' a flash an' it is gone,
But th's half a hundred ripples circlin'
on an' on an' on;
Bearin' hope an' joy an' comfort on each splashin' dashin' wave,
Till ye wouldn't b'lieve th' volume o'
th' one kind word ye gave.
Drop a word o' cheer and kindness—in a minute ye forget
But th's gladness still a' swellin' an'
th's joy a-circlin' yet,
An' ye've rolled a wave of comfort whose sweet music can be heard
Over miles an' miles o' water—jes' by droppin' a kind word.

EARNINGS OF PUGILISTS.

LARGE SUMS MADE BY THE PRIZE FIGHTERS HERE.

Terry McGovern Won $3,212 in Eight Minutes in One Night. Jeffries' Fortune Now Estimated at About $250,000.

It now looks as if James J. Jeffries would clear about $250,000 out of his successful fight with Tom Sharkey, that sum including his share of the revenue from the picture exhibition and the income from his show. If he had never aspired to the ring and remained steadily at his trade he would be making $2.50 a day as a boiler-maker. "Terry" McGovern had no money to throw to the birds along in 1897, when he began knocking out everyone who stood up before him. In two years and a half he has made $25,000 in the ring and is rapidyl rounding into championship form, which will enable him to quadruple that sum. There are not many college professors who can point with pride to such a bank account as that of McGovern or "Kid" McCoy, representing money earned in the practice of their profession. There are not many college professors who are getting from $500 to $1,000 a week, the income of several of the "top-notchers," from the theatrical companies they have on the road.

"Terry" McGovern made $3,212 in eight minutes one night at Tattersall's when he knocked out Patsy Haly and "Turkey Point" Bill Smith in rapid succession. It takes a wise railroad president to earn that much money in that time. Robert Fitzsimmons has been fighting since about 1892 in this country and in that time has "cleaned up" close to $100,000, most of which he still has, being a thrifty and canny man. That is a pretty fair income—nearly $14,000 a year.

A United States senator draws only a bit over half of it, whatever he may be able to make on the side by judicious investments. All of which would tend to indicate that the merry pugilist, while his game does not last quite so long as that of the instructor in Greek of mathematics, makes a whole lot more money in his few brief years of glory than the college professor does in a life of slavery to books and classes.

It is, of course, difficult to state accurately what amount of money every prize fighter makes in a year. There are many expenses to be deducted from the big purses, which cut down the income appreciably, and again the amount of money received from theatrical enterprises and the amount of "gate money" divided between fighters at the various contests fluctuates very much. For instance, Jeffries received $34,000 for gaining the decesion over Tom Sharkey. Out of that purse he gave "Billy" Delaney $1,000, Tom Ryan $1,500, Jack Jeffries $500 and Dick Tona $500. These were all presents to his trainers and handlers aside from their regular salaries. His training quarters at Asbbury Park cost him about $300 a week for three weeks and there was almost another $1,000 gone. The referee, George Silar, received $250 from the winner, and in addition there were a hundred and one hangers-on around the training quarters who each received a "bit" of the big purse.

In addition to the purse however, both Jeffries and Sharkey will make a fortune out of the moving pictures. Each has a one-third interest in the exhibitions and from the receipts already secured it is estimated that the pictures will net $1,000,000 to the promoters and fighters who will share the receipts. Thus it is apparent that with the purse itself, the share of the picture receipts and the income from his theatrical company, advertised by his victory, it will be very strange if Jeffries does not clear $250,000 within a year from the time of the big fight. If he fights in the meantime and is successful this sum will be largely increased; if he is defeated, no one can foretell where he will finish financially.

His loss of championship honors would probably result in an immediate "slumpp" in his theatrical company and doubtless also in the picture company—which is one of the reasons why the champion is never anxious to "get on" a big fight soon after acquiring the top of the ladder—at least, until he has had time to taste of the financial sweets of success.

The money made by recent fighters in these days is far in excess of that made by the "old school" of pugilists, of whom John L. Sullivan was the king. He said in a recent interview that he ought to be a millionaire if he had taken care of his winnings and earnings in the ring and on the stage. When it is remembered that his career as champion of the world lasted just ten years—from 1882, when he whipped Paddy Ryan, until 1892, when Corbett defeated him—it will be apparent that at the rate at which modern fighters are piling up the shekels he ought to be immensely wealthy if he garnered all he got in those ten years, or even a fair proportion of it. Joe Gans has made $20,000 in the last year and he has scarcely started. He has no world wide fame and no show on the road. simply earned the money in purses, defeating fourteen contestants and only suffering one defeat himself. Half a dozen other fighters unheard of five years ago have large bank rolls and do not begin to aspire to the position or the fame of the great John L.

For winning the championship from Paddy Ryan Sullivan received $4,500. The promoters of a championship fight in these days would have to multiply those figures by ten to get their men into the ring. On his way home from the battel the champion netted $24,900 at exhibitions in various cities, and then he fought and defeated Elliott, the winner's end of the purse being only $2,600. More than that amount is paid in a purse every week at Tattersall's in this city to fighters without a tithe of the reputation Sullivan had as the champions of the world. After that the purses began to rise a little in value. Sullivan got $10,000 for sparring four rounds with "Tug" Wilson in New York city and purses of $12,000 each for fighting Charlie Mitchell and Slade. Then he went into the saloon business and made $100,000 in Boston. The next year he did better. He made $8,000 in thirty seconds by knocking out Paddy Ryan once more and $33,000 for licking Greenfield and John Laflin at Madison Square garden. Then he began to coin money, showing with a minstrel company, and finally putting his own company on the road. He made close to $300,000 in a few years. The top-notchers to-day expect to make that sum without any of the work of a theatrical production and taking no chances of defeat, which put an end to everything. Sullivan went on meeting all comers while he was running these shows and everytime he stepped into the ring he ran a chance of emerging defeated and losing all his prestige and money-making powers. He did it once too often when he met Corbett in 1892 and the long prophesied knock-out took place.

As an instance of the increase in the value of purses it may be mentioned that Corbett got $45,000 for thus gaining the championship. When Sullivan got it ten years before he received $4,500. In ten years he accumulated a million, but he was a phenomenon in the business. There were no competitors, and if there were he soon disposed of them. There were not half a dozen heavy weights of about equal ability vying for public favor and dollars as there are to-day, with Jeffries, Sharkey, Fitzsimmons, McCoy, Maher, Corbett, Ruhlin and others in about the same class, and McGovern, Dixon, Gans, Forbes and a host of lesser lights also dividing up the millions which the great American public spends to see pugilists. Sullivan got it all practically while he was in his heyday. The fact that each of the men mentioned is rapidly making a fortune out of the game, while hundreds of others are making good money at it and are eager to crowd the leaders off the ladder, shows what a great impetus pugilism has received of late and what an immense amount of money is spent in the aggregate upon it and its devotees.

It is perhaps not a sound argument against the higher education to point out that Terry McGovern has made $25,000 in two years and a half, while many a lawyer has not made a tenth of that sum, or that Joe Gans, the colored wonder from Baltimore, graduated from a fish and oyster market in that city and has made $20,000 this year. But it is productive of a whole lot of thinking.

ARTILLERY IN ACTION.

Long Range Guns and Lyddite Shells in the Boer War.

There has been much misunderstanding in regard to the guns and the shells in the Boer war. It was natural that the British should be outranged at first, since theirs was the real field army of invasion, far from its home base, which could bring up at first only field guns (assuming their unprepared state at the outbreak of the war), while the Boers could bring up their long range guns (necessarily guns of position and not true field guns), much earlier.

Although the long-range guns of the Boers prevented the British guns from being used to the best advantage in certain cases, it should be remembered that the British guns that were lost were not through the Boer artillery fire at all, but through infantry fire solely. The British attempted to do exactly what our field artillery at Santiago were blamed for not doing (at least by some of the infantry officers, who evidently did not understand the proper use of field artillery.) That is to say, the field artillery in South Africa, in order to carry out its orders, was compelled to expose its men at the guns without having its own infantry sufficiently in advance to protect them, and consequently had them shot down by the Boer infantry scattered about under cover.

As it was, the British have been compelled to improvise long-range guns, and improvising always means a sacrifice of other qualities in order to obtain the particular one desired. Thus, the latest is an adaptation of the carriage of the 12-pounder rapid-fire gun to the 25-pounder muzzle loader, which gives them a gun of long range, to be sure, but its mobility is far less than that of the field gun, the weight being nearly doubled.

The effect of the lyddite shells has been greatly exaggerated. These shells have been supplied to the navy, and were used with the naval guns that had been landed from the ships and taken to the front. They have been arranged with a delay-action fuse, so that they will not explode instantly on impact, but a few instants after, the object being to have them explode after penetrating a certain thickness of armor, thus producing greater effect against armor. In their use on land the Boers have constantly reported that only one in four explodes at all, and generally they will not explode unless they strike a rock.

The British artillery, in the intelligence, education, training and esprit of its personnel, is a model corps that may well be proud of its achievements, and so long as the war in South Africa preserves its present characteristics, it is the artillery that will win or lose the British battles, consequently the question of providing proper material, light guns of long range and a proper shell, which was neglected at the beginning because there was no chief of artillery to see that it was provided, must be met at once.

ARTILLERYMAN.

WORKING WOMEN.

Women are women after all. Mistress and maid are alike in physical make-up. Both are women. Both are subject to the ills and ailments peculiar to their sex. But the servant seldom gets any consideration. She is expected to do her work even if her head does throb and a dreary, dragging, bearing-down feeling makes her wish that each step might be her last.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made for maid as well as mistress. It makes weak women strong and sick women well, no matter what their station in life. It gives the poor working woman an equal chance with her richer sister and at exactly the same price.

The servant who uses "Favorite Prescription" at a moderate price per bottle is much more likely to get well than her mistress who calls in an expensive, local physician. If she will write plainly to Dr. R. V. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y., her case will have the attention of a physician who has cured more women than any one hundred other doctors and who has a record of over thirty years' successful practice. Her letter will be considered strictly confidential, will be promptly answered in a plain envelope, so that prying eyes of others may not get even a hint, and she will have the benefit of the very best medical skill without a cent of charge for it. Thousands of women have written and been cured. And by this method they have avoided the "examinations" and "local treatment" so invariably insisted upon by local practitioners and so abhorrent to every modest woman.

BOERS COULDEN'T BE SEEN.

British Soldiers Fought an Invisible Enemy at Colenso.

The Boers hold an exceedingly strong position at Colenso, says an English correspondent of the London Times treating of the situation, and no one can deny that they made an exceedingly able defence. To have lain low for two days when they saw our camp within easy reach of their big guns, and to have forborne to fire on the morning of the battle until they had us within easy reach while they themselves were all the time under shell fire, was a thing many more disciplined troops could not have done. Their position was excellently planned, their trenches and gun emplacements were extremely well hidden. All day we were fired at by guns whose position we could never find, and through the heat mirage we were never sure exactly where the musketry fire came from. It was one of the conditions of modern warfare. We had to attack an invisible enemy whose position could not even be fixed by the smoke of his rifle. It was rifle fire that caused our losses. Their shell fire, though accurate enough, was not deadly; and during the advances the men did not drop until they had come within effective rifle range. This was the case in spite of the fact that by far the greater number of the Boer shells burst, and burst accurately, too, sometimes right in the middle of our men.

Yesterday Morning's Blaze.

The loss sustained by Messrs. Brightman & Co., on account of the fire at Patterson's tannery, which we chronicled yesterday, amounts to $2,500, with $1,000 insurance. Messrs. Brightman & Co. speak in high terms of the way the fire brigade got their work in. There is theory as to the origin of the fire.

At the Parsonage.

Mr. Wm. Henry Noyes, of Toronto, formerly of Ashburnham, and Miss Annie Trollope, daughter of Mr. Henry Trollope, Water street, were united in marriage at the George street parsonage yesterday afternoon. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Mr. Sharpy. The wedding was of a very quiet nature. Miss Scott, of Port Hope, accompanied the bride and Mr. H. Trollope assisted the groom. The young couple left on the 4.45 train for Toronto, where they will reside. Their many friends in town will wish them a happy married life.

WON HIS CASE.

Doctors Said He Must Die, But He Rallied Under South American Kidney Cure, and Diabetes Was Absolutely Cured.

A prominent legal light in a Canadian Western town treated and dieted for years for what the doctors diagnosed an incurable case of diabetes. He became so bad that he had to quit his practice, other complications setting in, and his sufferings were most intense. Almost as a last resort he tried South American Kidney Cure, and, to his own surprise, immediately began to improve. This is over a year ago. He continued taking this greatest of kidney specifics, and today he is a well man. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Corporal Price Injured.

Word was received yesterday that Corporal Price, of the Second Canadian contingent, met with an accident which inflicted such an injury as will prevent his going to Africa. The nature of the injury is of an organic nature. He had been engaged in training horses, and it is thought that in this way he received the injury. Corporal Price is a son of Mr. S. R. Price, of Otonabee, who is a full cousin of Lord Roberts. The unfortunate accident will be generally deplored. If the injury is of a permanent character the Government should provide for him in a substantial manner.

Orange Demonstrations.

The matter of holding a mammoth Orange demonstration on the 12th of July engaged the attention of the County Lodge on Tuesday night. We hope our citizens will encourage the movement in every possible way. These demonstrations cost money, and unless our merchants assist liberally, the crowd will go elsewhere.

Danger of Smallpox.

Now that smallpox has broken out at Toronto Junction, it is necessary for our health officers to keep a sharp lookout for the dread disease. There are several cases at the Junction, and the danger of it spreading is very great. A man affected with the disease gave it to his barber, his tailor and a number of boarders. Indeed, it is hard to say just how far the germs have been scattered. It might be wise to even go so far as to watch the incoming trains. People, as a rule, flee from the source of infection, and this is where the danger lies. We commend the matter to the attention of Medical Health Officer Bingham.

Cottage Moved.

Mr. John Nugent has had his cottage moved from Bear Island to Little Otter Island, Stony Lake, the job being efficiently done by Mr. McCarthy, of Ashburnham. Mr. Nugent purchased Little Otter last summer, it being one of the most desirable islands in the lake. The house was taken over on sleighs without mishap. We understand that Mr. David Moore also contemplates moving his house to a better position on his island.

THE MORNING PAPER.

The splendid telegraphic service The Times has secured by which it is enabled to supply its readers with all the latest war news, is having its effect. The evening papers are squealing. The difference in the time between South Africa and this country is all in favor of the morning paper. Not only this, as a matter of fact the C. P. R. Telegraphic Company, which supplies The Times, practically has control of the War Office news—the only authentic war news that we get. As an evidence of the unreliable matter given the evening papers, it is only necessary to refer to a few of the "manufactured" reports published by them. The first of importance was General Buller's reported capture of 10,000 Boers, the relief of Ladysmith, &c., the surrender of Ladysmith, &c., &c.

The splendid news service of the Times is everywhere spoken of as equal to the Toronto papers.

One word to advertisers. The Times employs more than a dozen regular carrier boys; its circulation covers the town from the Locks to Auburn and from Ashburnham to Monaghan; Council meetings, sports and all leading events appear in The Times 10 or 12 hours ahead of the evening papers; it gets no daily "boiler plate" news service from Toronto; it is bright and newsy, and excludes all prosy matter; its circulation outside the town is at least ten times as much as the evening papers, a fact which makes it by long odds the best advertising medium in Eastern Ontario.

INAUGURAL MEETING.

Of the Public School Board—Mr. Peter Hamilton Again Elected Chairman.

The Board of Education for the year 1900 met in inaugural session last night at seven o'clock sharp.

The personell of this year's board remains the same as last year; the following gentlemen signing the necessary declaration papers:

Messrs. Fair, McBain, Eastwood, Hartley, Wrighton, Peter Hamilton, Edgcumbe, Denne, Ferguson, L. M. Hayes, Bamford, Hill, Stevenson and Drs. Burnham and Caldwell.

Mr. Peter Hamilton was again the Board's unanimous choice for chairman On taking his seat, he expressed his thanks for the honor conferred upon, him, but he candidyl thought it would have been in the interest of the Board to have changed their chairman this year. Still, since he had been re-appointed to this important position, he would endeavor to discharge his duties as conscientiously and faithfully in the future as he had during previous terms of office.

Dr. Burnham here moved that Trustees Ferguson, McBain, Fair, Hartley and the mover be appointed a committee to strike the standing committees—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

A Baby's Taste guided to GRAPE-NUTS

Rev. S. V. Robinson, Brooklyn Hills, N.Y., says: "A few days ago an incident occurred in my home that may interest you. Our baby boy, a fine specimen of two years and three months old babyhood, was brought downstairs immediately after he awoke. He was teething, and had eaten but little for two or three days, and had to be coaxed to do that. On this particular morning his first request was for Grape-Nuts of which he is very fond. His mother had some cornmeal mush cooked, and served him with that instead, but after he had looked at for a moment, he pushed it away indignantly, saying, 'I don't want that; I want Grape-Nuts.' He would not be satisfied until Grape-Nuts were served to him, which he ate with evident enjoyment. We were interested in his discrimination, and you will doubtless appreciate the boy's taste."

Probably no food in existence,—not even excepting the very best prepared baby foods,—is as well adapted to the use of infants as Grape-Nuts, well-soaked. The food is made up in granular form, and for children should be soaked a few minutes in hot water, when it becomes a mush, and should be treated with cream and sugar.

It contains the elements required for building the bones, and the gray matter in the nerve centres. A child or an adult fed on Grape-Nuts will show marked improvement in physical and mental ability. Many of the elders testify to the removal of physical ailments by abandoning portions of the food that have been in use, and taking Grape-Nuts regularly.

Sold by grocers everywhere, and made at the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

A Modern Prayer.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I happened to be on a wheeling trip last autumn and when speeding along I came to a neat little country church not a thousand miles from Peterborough, and as it was Sunday and the people were assembling, I dropped of my wheel and entered and was conducted to a seat not far from the door of the church. I never heard such a prayer in my life, and having my pencil and note book with me, jotted it down as near verbatim as possible. The minister who was evidently of the "old school," spoke in slow, measured tones said—

"Oh, God, Thou knowest the majority of Christians are like wasps—larger at birth than at any other time. And many of them grow small and meaner as time goes on. Thou knowest also that a great many members high up in the church drink beer and whiskey and go to dances. Oh, Lord, they call them germans and lancers but that's just to fool the people. They are regular old dances—nothing in the world but fiddling and dancing. We read the papers and in many cases they had printed the names of all the women and their partners. Oh, Lord have mercy on these miserable rascals.

"Then, oh Lord, a lot of them are giving card parties around here, going into hotels, visiting places of vice and playing the devil generally. No wonder that when they ask a sinner to turn from his evil way, he replies, 'Go 'way, you old devil; we know you.' We heard only this past week of a prominent church member who had been drinking beer ten years and went home and found his little boy dead drunk and as limber as a dish rag. Oh, Lord, have mercy on these miserable sinners, who pretend they are following Thee, but who go around with their breath smelling like an old swill tub.

"Thou knowest there are only a few righteous people in this place. All the rest are wicked, and were it not for these few good people the whole place would go to the devil. God would rain down fire and brimstone and destroy it like Solomon and Gomorrah. For these favors we pray," &c.

By publishing the above in the Times you will oblige,

A CONSTANT READER.

One Leading Cause.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I saw a letter in your paper commending Dr. Jessie Birnie for calling attention to the children's eyes. I did not see her letter, as it did not appear in the Times, but judge of its contents from what your correspondent says regarding it.

I think, however, the Dr. has hardly hit the mark. What is really needed for the protection of the eyes of the young, is a law that will prevent the carting of infants around with their sweet little faces turned up to the pitiless sun. Only yesterday I counted no less than six of just such cases. What these poor little things suffer no one can tell, and the injury inflicted to their eyes must be very great.

I would make it a criminal offence, if I had the power, for mother or nurse. If this was stopped, I think there would be fewer spectacles worn.

A PARENT.

Shell Dodging.

Editor Morning Times:

Sir,—I clip the following from an English paper which will be of interest to many of the Times readers just now: "Mention is made in the despatches of war correspondents of "shell dodging" and the average reader is at first at a loss to understand the precise meaning of the words, until their constant repetition leads one to believe that probably it is possible to see shells in their aerial flight, and consequently the soldiers are able to dodge them.

"A writer in an English paper says he recently had an interview with a sergeant-major of the artillery on the matter, and learnt from him the true meaning of the words. In all the sergeant's long experience, and he took a somewhat prominent part in the Kartoum battle of last summer twelve months, he said he had only seen three or four shells actually in the air, and they came from the gun he himself fired.

"He explained that there are a few guns with a somewhat slow muzzle velocity, and the men firing these can sometimes catch a glimpse of the shells in their flight; but it would be impossible for any man to see a shot coming toward himself.

"Dodging shells is done by getting under cover immediately before a gun is actually fired.

"'For instance,' said the sergeant-major, 'if I were climbing a hill, at the top of which a gun was directed against me, I could tell exactly when a shell was likely to come bounding along. Before the order is given to fire the men in charge of the piece 'stand clear,' and that is the warning note, so to speak. Keep your weather eye on the gun directed against you, and when the gunners stand clear you dodge the shot.'"

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, etc.

AN OLD SOLDIER.

[Note.—What bothers the Editor of this great family journal, and which the writer has failed to explain—how sergeant knew where to dodge to.—Ed. Times.]

BRITISH AND BOERS FIGHT DESPERATELY.

attle Continued Tuesday Evening and Without Doubt Continued Wednesday.

HELLS FELL NEAR WHERE CEN. BULLER STOOD.

ers Removed Their Big Guns From Hills South of Ladysmith to Assist in Blocking Buller's Advance, But Large Numbers of Enemy Remain.

London, Feb. 9.

e Daily Telegraph has received the ollowing dated Tuesday, Feb. 6, rom Spearman's Camp:—"This is he second day of the battle and the ighting has been fiercer than it was yesterday. At dawn the Boers egan the action by shelling our ivouac with their long Tom and Pompon. Guns from Doorn Kloof. Their six inch shells fell near the pot where General Buller and his taff were watching the engagement One shell burst amid a squadron of the thirteen Hussars but not a soul was touched.

ur guns from Swartz Kop, and on the plain soon silenced the enemy's rtillery but repeatedly the Boers rought back their guns popped them into work over the hills, fired a few rounds and then again changed their osition.

uringt he morning our gunners succeeded in blowing up the enemy's ammunition wagon upon Doorn Kloof. General Lyttleton's brigade was shot at from three sides and had a warm time upon Vaalkrantz.

esperate efforts were made by the Boers to recover the smoking hill The Durham Light Infantry, the King's Royal Rifles and the Scottish Rifles gallantly charged and cleared the position. Gen. Hildyard's brigade relieved Gen. Lyttleton's brigade toward sunset.

ighting lasted until nine. Several risoners have been taken. They ay that the Boers yesterday lost eavily. The enemy suffered sevely to-day. It is reported that among their dead in the trenches armed Kaffirs were found.

Durban, Feb. 8

large force of Boers attacked Nordweni in Zululand, destroyed the public buildings and took numerous prisoners. A force of volunteers with artillery has been despatched thither to support the scouts and to oppose a further advance by the Boers.

London, Feb. 9.

despatch to the Morning Post from Ladysmith, dated Tuesday, Feb. 6th, says—"Little can be seen of General Buller's action owing to the haze. It appears that the Boers have with drawn their big guns from the hills here southward.

A large force of Boers still remains and the garrison is preparing for a night attack."

London, Feb. 9, 4 a m

ll the messages from the observers with General Buller throw in a phrase or two about the strength of the Boer position and the difficulties of General Buller's work, but they do not carry even this beyond Tuesday evening.

heir last slender narritives leave the British advance on Vaalkrantz, in the centre of a semi-circle, where the troops are exposed to the Boer artillery on both sides and in the centre.

"The fighting continued Tuesday evening, and almost without doubt continued on Wednesday, as the Boers certainly would not leave this wedge into their lines unmolested.

BULLER HOLDS HIS GROUND.

London, Feb. 8.—A cable despatch eceived in this city from Spearman's amp, under to-day's date says:

"Buller holds his position. Relief is ertain."

BULLER'S LOSSES—233.

London, Feb. 8.—General Buller has abled to the War Office that the approximate British casualties in the ighting at Potgieter's Drift up to oon Tuesday were:—Officers, two illed, and fifteen wounded. Noncommissioned officers and men, 216 illed and wounded.

The officers killed were Major John on-Smyth and Lieutenant Shafto, both of the Durham Light Infantry. The Officers wounded include Colonel Fitzgerald of the Durham Light Infantry; Colonel A. J. Montgomery, of the Royal Artillery, and Lieutenant Sir T. A. A. Cunningham of the Rifle Brigade.

BULLER'S THIRD ATTEMPT

London, Feb. 8.—Presumably, Gen. Buller is fighting again to-day in his third attempt to relieve Ladysmith, and news of the greatest import may arrive at any moment. Yet there is more doubt here than exultation, for even if the recollection of General Buller's two failures, after auspicious starts were not keen in the minds of the public the list of casualties published to-day would be a sufficent reminder of the tremendous difficulties of his task.

The fact that he occupies Vaalkrantz the key to the lower ridges, while a praiseworthy and gallant achievement by no means signifies that he and General White will inevitably join hands. Before General Buller there are several day's of hard fighting. The British forces will undoubtedly be nerved to more desperate efforts than ever before, and if furious gallantry can carry General Buller over the kopjes that face him, Ladysmith will be relieved within a week.

It is more than likely that General Barton at Chieveley is strong enough to advance on the Tugela and render valuable assistance from the southeast while the beleagured garrison itself, according to the latest despatches, should be able to create a potential diversion when General Buller shall have overcome the initial difficulties in the kopjes immediately north of the Tugela.

ON TO LADYSMITH.

London, Feb. 8.—The Standard's correspondent claims it may be fairly said that the first step along the line to Ladysmith has been made good.

He says:

"There is not the slightest likelihood of the Boers dislodging the British from the position they have gained."

He adds that the prospects for the relief of Ladysmith are decidedly hopeful.

Another correspondent writes that the British position is improving, and still another, that they are gaining ground.

On the other hand, another correspondent cables that the further advance of the British is prevented at the moment, as the Boers enfilade them from their positions on Spion Kop and at Doorn kloof, but the telegram does not make it clear whether the advance was checked on Monday or Tuesday, or at what hour.

BOERS ATTACK GATACRE.

London, Feb. 7.—A despatch to the Central News, dated Sterkstroom camp, Feb. 7, 8.30 a.m., says—

"The Boers advanced against the British position early this morning. Simultaneous attacks were made on the British outposts at Pen Hoek and Bird's River Psiding."

The Boers are shelling the latter place vigorously. Both positions are well held, but reinforcements are being hurried from Sterkstroom. Pen Hoek is 17 miles east of Sterkstroom and Bird's Riveris 24 miles eastward.

BOER ATTACK FAILED.

London, Feb. 8.—The Boer attack on General Gatacre's forces reported on Feb. 7 fizzed out. The artillery of the burghers, after shelling the camp, retired upon the arrival of reinforcements. The British casualties were one man killed and four men wounded. The latest advices from Sterkstroom announce that Gen Gatacre's cavalry is in pursuit of the Boers.

Rensburg, Feb. 8.—The Boer position was vigorously shelled with lyddite for an hour early this morning, eastward from Slingersfontein and westward from the top of Kole's kop, a fifteen-pounder shrapnel gun paying special attention to the sites of the Boer guns, which have been unusually active of late. The Boers hold a position half way on the direct road between Rensberg and Colesberg. They shelled Porter's hill yesterday ineffectually.

BRITISH HOLD THEIR OWN.

London, Feb. 8.—A despatch from Durban, dated to-day at 7.20 a.m., says fighting continues on the north bank of the Tugela between the forces of Buller and the Boers. The English have command of the road to Ladysmith by way of Onderbrook, and are holding the position above Potgieter's drift, which they took in the fight on Monday night. The Boers are fighting stubbornly and the losses on both sides are becoming heavy. It is believed the Boers are preparing to fall back to Grobler's Kloof, where they believe their position is impregnable. Gen. Lyttleton is not only holding his own, but has managed to drive the enemy back. Colonel Wynne is having great success in his operations.

ROBERTS WANTS OX WAGONS.

London, Feb. 8.—That Lord Roberts is not yet prepared for his advance into the Orange Free State, and that present activity is merely preliminary to it, is evidenced by a despatch from Cape Town under date of Feb. 7, announcing that the director of transport was advertising for ox wagons and drivers. Without these it would be hopeless to think of carrying on the invasion, and it must be a month more beforethey are ready. Another preliminary sanctioned the formation of the new Colonial Yeomanry consisting of a troop of one hundred men for each district of the colony to protect the loyal farmers. This force will be officered from among the local yeomen.

Opinions divided as to whether Field Marshal Roberts and General Kitchener have gone to the Modder River or Strikstroom

TO PREVENT CONCENTRATION.

London, Feb. 8.—While nothing has resulted from the failure of the Boer attacks on Gatacre, it indicates that the burghers are fully alive to the importance of the concentration which is on the verge of occurring between the forces of Generals Gatacre, Kelly-anny and French, and they do no hesitate to take the aggressive against established positions in an attempt to thwart it, thoughit is believed that a sufficiently large body of troops will soon be massed at Colesburg to ensure the unopposed advance of the invading army when it is ready to start.

THE BOERS DISCONCERTED.

Modder River, Feb. 7.—General Macdonald maintains his position at Koodoosberg Drift. His movement has evidently disconcerted the Boers and at the same time safeguards the operations of a portion of the Canadian troops at Belmont, in the direction of Douglas, where there are still a few Boers.

The British casualties are two men.

The ninth lancers made several attempts to draw out the Boers, but were unsuccessful. The British hold the highest portion of the kopje, the Boer position being lower. Owing to the steepness of the southern slope of the kopje it is impossible to mount artillery. The usual daily shelling here continues.

The outposts report that the Boers are making advanced trenches in the open plain in front of aMagersfontein drift, presumably to prevent the British horse and field artillery from approaching within range of their positions.

THE TIMES CORRESPONDENT.

London, Feb. 8.—The Times says:—Spearman's Camp, Feb, 7.—On Monday evening an attack was made on the Boer position which consisted of a line of kopjes, strongly entrenched, extending from Spion Kop three miles to the east, and at the extremity curving southward towards Shiet's drift. Opposite Zwart's Kop is a steep hill, south of the river, where strong batteries of naval, field and mountain guns are massed. East of the line of kopjes are high hills. At Brakfontein a feint attack was made on the left by Major-General Wynne's brigade, supported by five batteries, which drew the enemy's fire. The main attack was made on the right, Major-General Lyttleton's brigade crossing a pontoon bridge built under fire. They attacked and took the southernmost kopje. The Boers mounting guns on Doorn Kloof, shelled our troops heavily, preventing a further advance and the men bivouacked where they stood on Tuesday, no further advance being made. The Boers maintained a long-range shell fire. During the afternoon the enemy fiercely attacked th' enorthern end of Lyttleton's Kopje, and were at first successful, but, reinforcements arriving, the position was carried at the point of the bayonet.

LACK BIG GUN PROJECTILES.

London, Feb. 8.—The Times says this morning—"Private advicesreached Parliament yesterday to the effect that the Boers, who are running short of big gun projectiles, have been making desperate efforts to secure fresh supplies. All the leading firms have been approached with a view to immediate delivery, and, as the British makers have proved chary of entertaining offers, their continental rivals are finding their opportunity.

COLONIAL CONGRATULATIONS.

London, Feb. 8.—Sir John Gordon Sprigg, the former Premier of Cape Colony, has cabled to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, in behalf of the Imperialists of Cape Colony, congratulating him on the Government's overwhelming majority in the House of Commons, and declaring the Government's policy if steadfastly pursued would secure South Africa under British supre macy permanent prosperity.

Col. Otter's Report.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—The Militia Department has received a report from Lieut.-Col. Otter, in which he states that his men were in good condition with the exception of four, who are in the hospital, one with a sprained ankle, two with sligth visual trouble induced by the sandstorms, and the fourth with dysentery. The conduct of the men has been generally good, although three Canadian sentries were courtmartialed for having been found asleep on post. Two of the men belong to "A" Company, British Columbia or Manitoba, and the third to "B" London Company. The punishment inflicted is not mention, but it was doubtless condign, for the fault is a very serious one when men are on active service. Col. Otter says the khaki uniforms are wearing splendidly

Advantages Retained.

London, Feb. 8.—In the House of Commons to-day, replying to a question as to whether Great Britain has relinquished all her rights under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty in respect to the Nicaraguan canal, and, if so, what compensating advantages, if any, have been secured in exchange, the Parliamentary Secretary for the Foreign Office. Mr. William St. John Brodrick, said there had been no question of compensation, the advantages of the former convention relative to the neutrality of the canal and the protection of trade and commerce under conditions of entire equality having been fully maintained.

Ask For Nearly two Millions.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—To provide for the payment of the Canadian contingents Finance Minister Fielding has introduced several resolutions. One provides that $850,000 shall go towards payment of the expenditures to be incurred insending Canada's contingents in South Africa, and another one says that $1,115,000 shall be devoted towards defraying any further expenditures that may be incurred in connection with the sending of Canadian volunteers for active service in South Africa, and for providing, as hereinafter mentioned, for a fund by way of allowance to such volunteers or their dependents.

Will Refuse That Bonus.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 8.—At the Conservative caucus held last night the private members were practically unanimous in support of Premier Macdonald in his attitude of refusing to pay the bonus promised to the C.P.R. by ex-Premier Greenway.

Mr. Greenway's present intention seems to be to lead the Opposition in the Local Legislature. This means that if any constituences are opened by protests Hugh John will add to his following as the rank and file Liberals will not follow Greenway.

Great interest is taken here by labour people as to who will introduce Mr. Puttee in the Dominion House.

Insuring Battery Men.

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 8.—Acting under orders from headquarters, City Clerk Drennan, D.H.C.R. of the I.O.F., to-day made at sight, Foresters of twenty seven members of "C" Field Battery. These men belonged to St. Catharines, Orillia, Niagara Falls, and Kingston. Twelve belonged to the first named place, two to Orillia, three to Niagara Falls and ten to Kingston. People of these places are placing insurance on the lives of these men, hence the orders to make them Foresters without the formality of initation.

Lieut.-Col. Stone intends disbanding the 5th Kingston Field Battery and replacing it with a garrison company to be commanded by Lieut.-Col. W.M. Drennan. He claims the 5th Kingston Field Battery has not been up to the standard for the past few years.

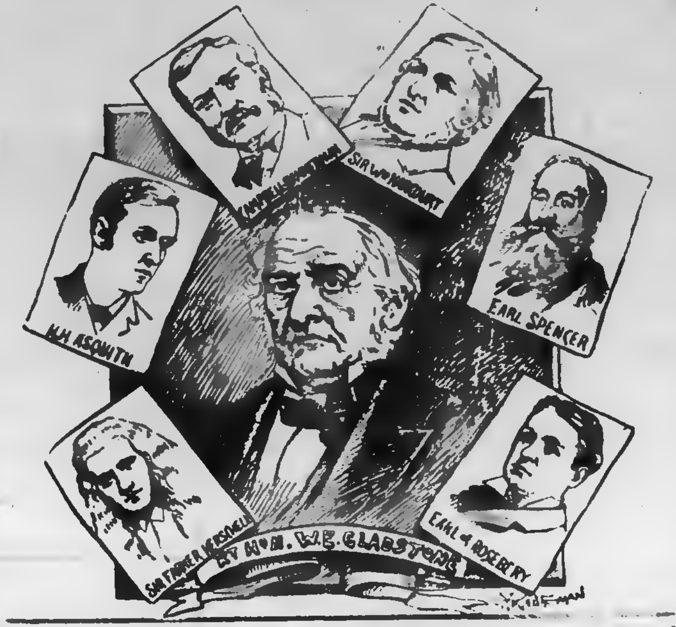
Government has to Hustle.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 8.—"The blow that killed father," as Hon. A. G. Blair said when the address passed, seems to have fallen rather heavily upon the Ministers. Council sat until 11.45 last night and are again to-day holding solemn conclave with a view to formulating business to keep the House going. Fortunatelyfor them yesterday and to-day belong to the private members, and so some breathing space is afforded the Government in the matter.

Hon. Dr. Borden this morning stated that it would be many days before he could make any announcement concerning the Lord Strathcona Horse.

A Conservative caucus was held this morning when committees were appointed for organization, to take up the question of campaign literature and to consider the necessary alterations in the election law.

GLADSTONE CABINET RESPONSIBLE FOR THE WAR.



It is now generally conceded that the concessions given the Boers after Majuba Hill disaster by the Gladstone Government of that day is the indirect cause of the present lamentable war. Had Britain asserted her rights then there would have been no war now.

WERE AS COOL AS IF ON PARADE.

The British Gunners Behaved Admirably During Monday's Severe Fighting.

London, Feb. 8.—Bennet Burleigh, the Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Spearman's camp, in a despatch, dated Monday night, says—"Under the personal direction of General Buller, the attack on the Boer position was begun this morning by nearly the whole of our batteries —72 guns—shelling the ridges where the enemy have their trenches and redoubts on the Brakefontein and the low crest facing Potgieter's drift.

"The enemy suffered severely. Several hills were smoking loke volcanoes from the effects of the bombardment, which set fire to their stores and the grass.

"While the third pontoon bridge was being constructed, under fire, near Shiet's Drift, the Eleventh Brigade, now under the command of Colonel Wynne, made a demonstration against the Brakefontein ridge, marching across the meadows with the support of seven batteries of artillery.

"At 11 o'clock the enemy opened a heavy cannonade of shrapnel, common shell, and pompon shell, chiefly from Spion Kop. This was accomplished by a rattling musketry fire. Our gunners behaved admirably, and were as cool as if on parade.

"The demonstration having gained its effect, the real attack upon the Boer left was delivered at 4 o'clock. The Durham Light Infantry carried Vallkranz, the key of the lower ridges, while Gen. Hildyard's brigade assailed the higher ridges. The general and his troops are bivouacking upon the field of battle. In the language of boudoir bulletins, mother and child are doing well. Our losses are trifling."

It is believed that the Boers suffered very heavily, as their ambulances were hard at work.

GEN. MACDONALD'S FORCE ATTACKED.

Boers Make An Unsuccessful Attack Upon the British at Koodoos Drift.

Koodoos Drift, via Modder River, Feb. 4, 1.50 a.m.—(Delayes by Censor.)—A strong force of mounted Boers attempted to rush the British position at Koodoos Drift at noon yesterday, not even succeeding in learning how the position was held.

The Engineers, who were still on top of the hill, heliographed to the Lancers to the north that the British pickets were retiring on main position. A number of Boers fired over a low ridge about 500 yards to the north. The enemy then extended, and it was seen that they numbered about 500.

They galloped towards the British position, but the British opened a sharp rifle fire, assisted by two Maxim guns.

The Boer force increased until it numbered about 1,200. Most of the enemy, leaving their horses in the hollows, skirmished persistently forward.

They failed, however, to move the British, and had themselves to retire before the fire of the British infantry parties and the Maxim guns, which were screened.

The British sustained no losses. The enemy must have lost several men before they abandoned the advance.

About fifty of them reappeared this morning. The Lancers emptied three Boer saddles. They did not touch the British.

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

Strong Pro-Boer Feeling Throughout the Union Which is Rapidly Increasing.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES CAUSING U.S. UNEASINESS.

Americans May Object to a Pledge Committing Them to Build the Nicaraguan Canal at Great Expense Without Necessary Fortifications.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Secretary Hay has concluded a convention with Great Britain whereby the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, under which the latter country might obstruct the exclusive construction of the Nicarguan canal by the United States exclusive and unchallenged rights to build the canal, commits both powers to a declaration guaranteeing its neutrality and pledges the United States not to fortify nor obstruct its entrances or approaches. The objection to the convention, if any shall be raised, will be on account of this last provision. Americans may object to a pledge committing this country to build the canal at vast expense only to permit its enemies free passage to harry its Pacific coasts in time of war. The United States, is, of course, entirely willing to permit all warring powers free passage through the canal provided that they are not at war with this country. But without the right to fortify, a superior, naval power, such as Great Britain herself, by the way, might seize the canal and use it in time of war, excluding American vessels from passing through.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES AND THE WAR.

The war in South Africa has been practically obscured in this country for the last few days by the troubles in Kentucky, the more so as matters have been rather quiet in the former region. Still, pro-Boer meetings continue to be held, chiefly because they offer a good opportunity to attack President McKinley for his Philippine policy. Such meetings almost invariably change to Democratic assemblies before they adjourn. There is no doubt, however, that the trend of sympathy is away from the British. It was something of a shock to the country to learn that 1,500 American scouts had been enlisted in this country and shipped to South Africa. This could, of course only have been done by the connivance of the Administration, which has so sternly prohibited Boer enlistments, and which, it is supposed, hoped that nothing would get into print concerning the scouts. Further a movement is on foot to prohibit the export of any more mules at present. It is said that this country is almost depleted of its supply and that any foreign complication would find it without adequate facilities for pack and wagon trains.

THE WAR.

"London was in deepest gloom over the failure of our troops in South Africa, when I left that city two weeks ago," said Mr. Fred I. Hutchings, who represents a large English mercantile house, and is in this city. "While factories are still running well, there has been a tremendous falling off in what we call town trade. Shops, places of amusement, jewelers, florists, caterers, and a score of other trades of that class are suffering greatly from the depression. No one feels like festivities. There are no dinner parties, no balls and social pleasures at this season of the year, when London is usually its gayest."

THE TRANSVAAL MINES.

Consul J. C. Covert, at Lyons, France, in a report to the State Department, gives support to the claims that at least half of the gold mines of the Transvaal are owned outside of Great Britain He says—"The French press is giving wide circulation to a recent report of the French consul-general in the Transvaal on the resources of that country. Interest in the subject is enchanted by the expressed opinion that "the Boers will be inclined to favor France as against other countries when the war is over;" also on account of the large interest that Frenchmen possess in Transvaal mines. A circular signed by the great economist and editor, Paul Leroy Beaulieu, affirms that the French possess not less than $300,000,000 in Transvaal mining property, and that the French, German and Dutch stockholders own probably more than half of the mines. The French consul at Pretoria asserts that France does not enjoy the share in the commerce of the Transvaal "which the well-known sympathy of the Boers for France ought to assure her."

NO WOOD PULP.

Commercial Agent Shotts, at Sault St. Marie, reports to the State Department as follows—

"The Government of Ontario has decreed that no wood pulp cut from Crown lands after the 1st of May, 1900, shall be exported from the Province. This step has been urged for some time, its advocates claiming that it would greatly stimulate the local manufacture of pulp and paper. It is stated that the Province of Quebec will also place on all pulp wood taken from Crown lands an export duty sufficiently high to practically prohibit its shipment. Such action has, of course, been expected for some time. Coming at this moment, when the price of paper has been advanced some 50 per cent., it is likely to have a strong influence one way or the other on the pending proposition to repeal the duties on pulp and paper. It is understood that the Canadian provincial governments will repeal their proposition if this is done.

NOTES.

The approaching marriage of Miss Lillian Pauncefote, daughter of Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Ambassador here, to Mr. Bromley of the embassy, adds interest to the social season, now approaching a climax in this city. The attractive young bride has been so feted the past two months that but little is left to be done in that direction by any of her friends, but there is no doubt that she can point to her last days of maidenhood at the capital as a proof of what American hospitality really means.

Anthony Decker, or Deetjen, arrested in Baltimore late Thursday night, on the charge of being implipated in a scheme to counterfeit Canadian bank notes, left for Canada Saturday afternoon, in charge of Chief Parkinson of the Dominion Secret Service.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 7, 1900

A MEATY MENU.

It can scarcely be charged against the Dominion government that the bill of fare which they, through the medium of the speech from the throne presented to parliament is a meagre one. It is sometimes charged that legislative bodies meet too often, sometimes apparently more for the purpose of allowing the legislators to air their eloquence and draw their salaries, than because there is any real danger for their meeting. But this cannot be said of the present session of the Dominion House. The speech foreshadows measures to provide for the payment of the contingents, the negotiation of reciprocity treaties, and the establishment of a dominion board of arbitration or conciliation, whose services would be useful in assisting to straighten out disputes between capital and labor. In addition to these very important measures others are foreshadowed, to renew and amend the existing banking laws, to regulate the rate of interest payable upon judgements received in courts of law to provide for the taking of the next decennial census, for the better arrangements of the criminal code and the laws relating to important subjects.

There is enough in the bill of fare presented to keep the legislators busy for several months if they feel so disposed.

A GOOD BARGAIN.

By the obrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, Great Britain has added one more reason to the many already existing for the United States continuing its present friendly relations with the Empire. While this action on the part of the Home Government is of a character that will gratify the people of the United States, it is also a distinct advantage to the commerce of the world (of which Britain is the chief representative), to have a canal constructed through the Isthmus of Panama on such terms as have been agreed between the two nations. The United States will have complete control of the canal, which will be built with American money, and at the same time strict neutrality is guaranteed, so that every nation in the world may use it upon equal terms. This is the adoption of the "open door" policy as applied to canals, and will give to Britain all the privileges that she would enjoy if the proposed new American waterway were constructed with British capital, and, at the same time, it is a concession to American dignity that will no doubt be highly appreciated at Washington on purely sentimental grounds.

The construction of the proposed canal will have a beneficial effect upon the trade of Canada. One result will be the development of British Columbia in a measure that is impossible so long as the journey from Europe to Vancouver must be made round Cape Horn, or across the continent by railway. It will, moreover, give to the territories a second outlet for the grain grown, and the animals raised, upon the boundless prairies of our Western country. Canadians, therefore, have a very direct interest in the construction of a canal at the Isthmus, and they will be pleased to see that the British Government has been able to reach an agreement upon this question that is so satisfactory to Imperial interests and, at the same time, to the advantage of the Dominion.

SITTING UP EVENINGS.

Disappointment of a Child to Whom It Was Permitted.

Every one who has ever been a child will recall that sense of injury entailed by being sent to bed early—that conviction that you are being deprived of the most interesting part of the whole day. There is really no knowing what the elders are up to when once they get the youngsters tucked safely in bed, but it stands to reason it must be very interesting, or why should they be in such a hurry to get the youngsters out of the way?

With some children this amounts to more than mere feeling. It was a little Peterborough girl of the latter sort who begged so hard to sit up just for once that her mother one evening not long ago said that she might. How the little girl's eyes danced at the prospect of all the wonderful things she would see for herself upon this, her first occasion of "sitting up!" How commiseratingly she regarded the other children, who were, as usual, packed off to bed at an early hour. She seated herself in her small chair and eagerly awaited developments.

But imagine her surprise when her parents—as was their custom—seated themselves at the library table and unsociably but hygienically, turning their backs to the light, began to read. For some time the small girl rocked away in her small chair in silence. Then came a sleepy, plaintive voice: "Is this all you do?"

How War Begins.

Tommy was reading the war news. When he finished he came over to his mother and said:

"Mamma, how do wars begin?"

"Well, suppose the English hauled down the American flag, and that the Americans——"

Here Tommy's father intervened.

"My dear," he said "the English would not——"

Mother: "Excuse me; they would—"

"Now, dear, who ever heard of such a thing?"

"Pray do not interrupt!"

"But you are giving Tommy a wrong idea!"

"I'm not, sir!"

"You are, madam!"

"Don't call me madam, I won't allow you!"

"I'll call you what I choose."

"I'm sorry I ever saw you! you are -o——"

Tommy (going out)—It's all right; I think I know how wars begin."

TELL MOTHER I'VE DROWNED.

The Last Words of a Little Lad as He Sank.

Derby, Con., Feb. 7.—Philip McGivney, 11 years old, was drowned last night on the reservoir of the Ansonia Ice Company, at Derby, Conn. Young McGivney was leading a score of boys across the pond when he went through. The others, with the exception of a younger brother, Frank, fled, leaving McGivney to his fate.

Frank tried to help his brother, but could not, as the ice was breaking under the efforts of the boy in the water. Finally, the lad gave up his struggles, and as he sank back into the water he cried to his brother, "Good-bye, Frank; tell mother I have drowned," and disappeared.

Sues His Mother.

West Orange, N.J., February 8.—Herman Winter's suit against his mother for money he claims is due to him for plumbing done for her will be heard to-morrow by Justice Condit. Young Winter and his mother agreed that she was to give him $2.00 a day for his labor, and he worked eighteen days. Mrs. Winter paid $26 and retained $10 for board. Her son claims the full amount and denies that any was to go toward board.

Mrs. Winter sets forth that she nursed her son three weeks while he had typhoid fever, contracted in the Spanish-American war, and that she was entitled to $36.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its characte ,the publishers have contracted fo its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery ,formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elisabeth, whose comments on the war have been a ofavorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

SIX DIED IN THEIR BOOTS

BIGGEST DAY IN THE OLD-TIME HISTORY OF MEDICINE LODGE

Four Men Robbed a Bank. Shooting President and Cashier. Mistaken Flight Into Blind Canyon and Speedy Capture.

"Did I ever tell you about the time we had the big funeral in the lodge, six men dead and all died with their boots on?"

The speaker was an old cattleman who knew the ranges from the days when Abilene was the cattle market of the great west down to the present time. He had just taken a big drink with an old friend from the city and they were sitting behind the stove in a southern Kansas joint watching a game of poker. The old veteran got up, gave the sand box a kick to provide it a more convenient location, and took a fresh chew from a long plug then settled down to tell his story.

"When I first went west in 1880," he said, "I had no experience with the range and there were many new things for me to learn. I bought a bunch of cattle on the Panhandle and trailed them through to Barber county. I and my cowboys squatted on some vacant quarters of land in the brakes west of the Medicine river. We were in the rough country several miles west of Medicine Lodge.

"Medicine Lodge is an old town as towns go in Kansas. Away back in early days the Indians gave the stream that runs through the town the names of Medicine river. It has peculiar properties and really served them as medicine. The Lodge got its name because it was a camping place for sick Injuns, and they would come two days' ride on their ponies across the ranges to get the water. Later the government made some treaties at the Lodge that made it headquarters and a trading post sprang up. By the time I located in the brakes to the west the Lodge was a right smart kind of a place. It had a faro bank and a dance hall and plenty of saloons, and a bank of deposit for the cattlemen. The town is just east of a country of peculiar formation. The prairie is cut up with great canyons, some of them 100 feet deep. Part of them are great sinks with sloping banks, but most of them have banks with very steep sides. They just break square off and a bunch of cattle that gets stampeded will tumble into these canyons and break their necks. To be candid with you, that country ain't worth a damn except for grazing cattle. You can't hardyl raise kaffir out there to rough your stock through the winter. It's just simply no account except for grazing, and not much for that.

Robbery and Double Murder.

"But I'm on the wrong trail. You wanted to know about that promiscuous funeral affair. It wa the first day of May, 1884, and we had had big doings in town the day before. I told you we had a bank there then. The saloons had degenerated into joints under prohibition and the town was getting mighty civilized by that time.

"Wiley Payne was president of the bank and a young fellow named Gebhart was cashier. Gebhart had been down east and had just got back that morning. He and Payne came down early and opened the bank a little earlier than usual. I was on the way to the bank myself and was about a block away when I saw four men ride up and tie their horses. Three went into the bank. There was an old woman crossing the street, and all of a sudden she yelled "bank robbers" at the top of her voice and began to run. With that the shooting began in the bank. Both the president and cashier were shot to death by the robbers. Every man in town who had a gun, and we all carried 'em, got ready to shoot. There was alot of cowboys at the hotel and in the joints. They had rode their horses into town and left them in the livery stable with saddles on. When the shooting began to get hot the robbers ran for their horses, climbed on and started up Medicine creek. The cowbiys were right behind them, riding and shooting. They couldn't get in range so it would be convenient to drop so they quit shooting and made the bronchos climb. They never once lost sight of them robbers. I don't know whether thy'd have caught them very soon if the robbers hadn't made a blunder.

"Harry Brown, the city marshal of Caldwell, and Ben Wheeler, his deputy, were the head robbers. Ben was a big fellow, more than six feet high, and he weighed 225. He was too heavy for his horse, and the horse was losing his wind. So what does they do but turns up into one of the deep canyons with the cowboys after them. It was a deep one without any outlet at the upper end. First thing they knew we had 'em penned in by the steep banks of the canyon on three sides and the cowboys on the other. It was a tight place, I want to tellyou, and it did not take them long to agree to surrender and go back to jail. I guess we did promise 'em protection, leastwise we said if they would go back with us we wouldn't hang them on the way to jail. But we declined to be responsible for accidents. That's natural enough. How could we help it if something did happen to them after they got back to jail?

Steel Combs.

A man who saw in a sidewalk showcase some steel combs and who wondered what steel combs could be used for found upon inquiry that they were used by furriers in combing furs. There was one of these combs that looked much like a comb of the ordinary kind, coarse toothed for half its length and finer toothed the other half. And then there was one comb that had teeth for half its length, the solid end serving as a handle.

There are other steel combs that are used for a similar purpose, as steel combs made to comb dogs with. The dog comb looks somewhat like the fine toothed comb in its general shape, but it is larger, toothed on one side only and coarser toothed than the so called fine comb. The untoothed side combs of this sort are used on various kinds of dogs, including, for instance, long haired dogs like the French poodle.—New York Sun.

THE MILITARY PROBLEM IN SOUTH AFRICA

BY MAJOR GENERAL O. O. HOWARD, U. S. A.

Washington, Feb. 7.—In my judgement the instant the Boers resolved to go to war with Great Britain and strike for absolute independence, they acted wisely in doing as they did. The situation required (1.) that they should put their capital in a state of defence, fortifying it and using for armament the best procurable modern inventions; (2.) that they should prepare to defend their borders—the borders of the Transvaal or South African republic and of the Orange Free State—along the three lines of approach by every military means; (3.) that they should begin offensive operations before their opponents could strengthen their garrisons and crush them in detail, and also they brought to battle column after column of their foes before the garrisoned forts could be relieved.

The first requisite President Kruger and his governing assembly were able to comply with, because they began years ago to get ready. By a singular combination of circumstances, their enemies, the Uitlanders themselves, furnished millions to their treasury, and the quick declaration of war gave the Boers complete and absolute control of the gold mines within their domain. The nearness of Delagoa Bay kept them in prompt communication with all markets of the world till the last moment, and even now they are permitted to get food supplies across or from Portuguese possessions lying on Delagoa Bay and bounding their eastern side.

The second object President Steyn helped the Transvaal people to secure, as well as that could be done with the men and means at his disposal. General Joubert, the Boer Commander-in-Chief, only needed enough men to put in strongest defense, with very little fortifying, the mountain passes of which Newcastle is the centre. Here a few brave men with modern arms can keep back the many. President Steyn within his State had more difficult problems to solve, because the Cape Town and Mafeking Railway ran for 150 miles along and near his western border, and because his only natural obstacle on the south for 300 miles, east and west line, was the Orange river, coursing in an apparently open country. These facts, evident enough to General Cronje, a Boer military leader of experience, carried the defense of all southern and western approaches to the two States beyond their own borders.

Cronje, who evidently had this important work assigned to him, has fulfilled, with more or less success, the third requisite. That is to say, he has done much, or he has had much done, beyond the western and southern boundaries, while General Joubert, besides reinforcing him, has done the same thing on the Durban and Pretoria Railway line, operating actively as far south eastward as Colenso.

Among the Boers the mounted infantry prevails. The horses carry the men rapidly from place to place, then they fight as infantry, and not as cavalry with carbines. Their artillery thus far keeps about abreast of the British, having modern pieces as well as older guns of large calibre, and abundant machine guns for close work in defense.

The English had several forts and garrisons within the field of prospective operations when war began; for example, 5,000 men at Ladysmith and 1,200 at Dundee, 2,000 at Kimberley, 800 at Vryburg and 1,200 at Mafeking, with enough more at Durban, Cape Town and elsewhere to make up an aggregate of 25,000 men—quite a force when concentrated, but very weak, when so far asunder, to hold such a vast region. Of course, it was only intended as a nucleus. The force at Kimberley, it is reported, now numbers about 8,000 for the defence of that important stronghold. Cecil Rhodes is there, and with his usual energy has doubtless put every man able to bear arms on the line of defense.

What were the British officers to do last October when the ultimatum passed and the Boers took the field for an offensive campaign? Plainly just what they did do, stand substantially on the defensive and wait for reinforcements from England and elsewhere. General White, with four-fifths of the garrison at Ladysmith, i. e., 4,000 men, was doing that very thing effectively at Glencoe on the 20th of October. * * * *

The troops for reinforcements were landed at Cape Town, East London and Durban (eight hundred miles up the coast from Cape Town.) The British navy added a wholesome contingent to each column. The work of relief had to be done at once.

General Lord Methuen, leaving Cape Town with the left column—small at first, but before long, by navy help, mounting up to five or six thousand—fought a successful battle against about an equal force at Belmont on Thursday, the 23rd of November. Then followed a second victory on Saturday the 25th of November. The fighting was severe enough and the losses great, but with an energy like that of our Sheridan, Methuen pushed on to Modder river. With reinforcements which had come up by rail he had at last nearly fifteen thousand soldiers, with considerable artillery. The Boers, some twenty thousand strong, hardly realizing that they had been defeated at Belmont and Graspan, were well placed in defense along the Modder River, entrenched on both banks and on an island which was convenient. The fight this time was stubborn, lasting fourteen hours. Methuen secured his crossing of the Modder River, but was able to advance only in sight of the strongest kind of entrenchments at Magersfontein. When ready, Methuen made an assault with like results to ours at Kenesaw, straight against prepared works with barbed wire stretched along the Boer front. This battle ended in a terrible disaster, where over a thousand of his men fell, with small loss to his Boer adversary.

The force under Gatacre and that under French, dispatched, as I fancy, from East London and intended to clear the cross railways to Middleburg and De Aar, were stopped and quite effectually debarred. On Saturday, November 9, Gatacre, with about four thousand men, made a night march, with guides who proved inefficient, to strike a Boer force at or near Stormberg. The Boers, superior in numbers, were in fine ambush, waited for his approach and repulsed his column with great loss and confusion to the British.

General Buller at Cape Town, seeing the greater immediate danger to General White at Ladysmith, hastened to Durban and to the front of that line. He threw his forces squarely against the entrenchments of the Boers, bringing up his splendid artillery to marvelous proximity to well-filled rifle pits. The repulse under the Boers' fire, steady and accurate in its aim, all along the well-hidden lines, was sudden and complete. Eleven British cannon were taken, and hundreds of officers and soldiers became wounded and prisoners or were slain.

Lord Roberts, the new commander-in-chief, has this military problem before him. He must choose one of the three lines of advance as soon as he shall have men enough to work out a decisive movement.

1. Will he take the Durban line? It is the shortest, but it is intrinsically the most difficult to carry and has the best Boer troops to defend it.

2. Will he choose the line through the Orange Free State? Possibly, but I think not. He will need however, to clear those cross railways and secure the country below to the Orange river, that he may have the connecting railways from Molteno via Middleburg to De Aar as a secondary base. That could be done promptly. Then he could go forward rapidly, repairing the western railroad above De Aar as he pushed on to join Methuen; then crush Cronje's force, relieve Kimberley and at once break across eastward to the central railroad, and use that road for a rapid advance upon Pretoria. Of course Joubert would retire from Colenso and Ladysmith the instant he saw Lord Roberts' plan. Then Buller could pick up General White's force of five thousand and press along with vigor to keep as many Boer soldiers as possible there to oppose his threats against Johannesburg and Pretoria by that route. If, after the crushing defeat of Cronje, Joubert and his stalwart President did not make piece, probably there would be first a hard-fought battle near Kronstad, and another, the last one, at Johannesburg.

The British will be constantly reinforced, while the Boers are already at their best in numbers, in morale and in supplies. General Winfield Scott, in 1861, by opening his hand and slowly closing it, showed how the Confederacy was to be conquered. We tried to keep many armies going, all at the same time, from the outer to the inner circle, of which Richmond mond was the centre; but ultimate success came to the Union forces by so combining armies as to greatly outnumber the enemy on some important line, and then defeat him in battle all along that line. Kimberley should be the Nashville Kronstad the Atlanta, and Johannesburg the Appomattox of the South African war.

Would that it might all be settled without the waste and horrors of war.

BOILED TO DEATH.

Fainted in Bath Tub and Was Parboiled.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 5.—Professor A. Leftamboy, a "magnetic healer," was found dead in a bath tub yesterday. His body has been parboiled to such a degree that the flesh fell from the bones when it was lifted out.

On the bath room floor lay his brother, George, unconscious. The water was heated by a steam apparatus operated by gas. Leftamboy is supposed to have fainted and the water continued to heat until it was near the boiling point.

It is supposed the brother was overcome with horror at the discovery of the professor's body and fell to the floor unconscious. He was still senseless at a late hour last night and it is feared he will die.

LOVE THAT NEVER DIES.

"It may be for years, and it may be forever."

The childish lip quivered, the sweet voice faltered and the dark eyes of the singer filled with bright tears.

The moon shone softly down on the upturned face of the girl and revealed to the dark figure resting against a rock the sorrow she tried so hard to hide.

The waves rose and fell with unceasing motion, and seemed to echo the last sad "Mavourneen, Mavourneen," that floated out on the air.

"'It may be years, and it may be forever.' Kathleen, it will not be forever. Can't you trust me, Kathie? It will only be for a little while, and then I will come back and claim my bride. Won't you trust me?"

"Yes; but there are fairer faces in your home. You will forget me, and then, Ned, I cannot live," and the soft eyes were full of passionate tears.

"Kathie, I cannot forget you! And, though there may be fairer girls over the sea, there is none so dear to me as you. I will come back, Kathleen, and you must trust me. Will you? Will you promise that when I come back I will find my own bright Kathie waiting?"

The promise was given, and the quivering mouth struggled bravely to smile.

Last kisses were pressed on lip and brow, and he was gone.

Back to her quiet life she carried the sweet knowledge of his love, and though her heart was sad when she thought of the many weary miles of land and waters that lay between them, yet the letters filled with love that found their way to the little home by the sea cheered and encouraged her.

And far away in her lover's new home a girl as fair and young as Kathleen was learning to love handsome Ned.

Edward Valare was not a bad man, and called himself an honorable one; but he found it pleasant pastime to call the bright blushes into his little cousin's face; and he had noticed her at first because she had Kathleen's pretty way of dropping her long lashes and giving him such shy glances.

Then his proud mother told him of cousin Edna's broad lands and overflowing coffers.

At first he would not think of it; but thoughts of the magnificent fortune that would be his if Edna was his wife would rise despite his efforts.

He had been writing to Kathleen late one afternoon, and came out on the lawn where Edna was with the letter in his hand.

"Cousin Ned," she cried, "I do believe you have been writing to your sweetheart. Tell the truth! Have you?"

She had left the rustic seat and was standing close at his side, trying to catch a glimpse of the name on the envelope.

"Give it to me. You should have no secrets from your cousin," she said, laughing and trying to gain possession of the letter.

He caught her hands and held them close in his own, and something in his eyes made her own drop, and the crimson blood tingled over her fair brow.

"Edna," he said, impulsively, "I believe I could love you if I tried."

The eyes were downcast no longer, but were raised to his, full of eager light.

The little hands trembled violently; and flattered by her emotion and unconcealed love, and forgetting everything but her beauty, he spoke words that could not be recalled.

When the summons came for tea he led his cousin to his mother, his affianced bride.

The letter he had written to Kathleen was consigned to the fire, and he tried to write another, breaking gently the news of his desertion. But the sweet face with the pleading dark eyes he had last looked upon in the moonlight on that foreign beach would rise up before him, and, full of remorse and regret, he turned from the task, bitterly repenting his folly.

Weeks passed and Kathleen's eyes grew weary with watching for the delayed letter.

"I told you the fine gentleman would forget you and turn to some fairer lass, and my words, ye see, are true," was the comfort her aged father gave her.

But the loving mother drew the throbbing head to her bosom, and cheered her with sweet words of comfort.

The letter never came. But a newspaper came in its stead.

Kathie turned with a sickening dread to the marriage notices. As she read the color faded slowly from her face and her lips grew white and rigid.

Well, she did not die. Death does not come for the wishing.

Five years passed away and found Kathleen still a maiden. It was her birthright, and she strolled down to the beach, where the moon was shining soft and bright, as it had done when, five years before, he had left her standing there, almost heartbroken.

She was living again in the olden time, when a firm, quick step aroused her from the sad reverie.

A well-known voice cried—

"Kathie! Kathie! I have come back!"

She turned a cold, stern face to the newcomer, and her voice was as cold as her white face as she said—

"You have come back, Mr. Valare, but too late."

"For the love of heaven, Kathie, do not tell me that!"

He caught her hands in his, he pleaded with her, but the rigid lines around her mouth were slow in relaxing.

"Kathleen," he said again. "I cannot give you up. Edna's grave lies far away and Edna's boy is waiting to call you mother. I have wronged you in the past but let my devotion in the future atone in part. Will you come to me?"

There were many "silver threads" in the brown hair of the man pleading so piteously to be forgiven that told of his suffering. And Kathie was only a woman. So the moon looked down on the same picture it saw five long years ago.

DAWSON PRICES.

An Idea of the Cost of Living in the Frozen City.

The report of Samuel C. Dunham, contained in a recent bulletin of the department of labor at Washington, gives some definite idea of how prices ran in the frozen city last winter. Here are some of the items given and the prices are a sample of the prices obtained in all other lines of business.

One restaurant kept open almost continuously during the winter, with the following bill of fare tacked on the wall: Bowl of soup, $1; mush and milk, $1.25; dish of canned corn, $1.25; dish of canned tomatoes, $2; stewed fruit, $1.25; slice of pie, 75 cents; doughnuts, pie, or sandwich, with coffee, $1.25; beans, coffee and bread, $2; plain steak, $3.50; porterhouse steak, $5. After small boats began to arrive in May restaurants were opened on every hand, and on June 20, 17 were running in Dawson, the charge for a regular meal being $2.50. Meals consisted of bread and butter, coffee, soup, fish, a small moose steak or stew a potato, eggs and pudding or pie. A porterhouse steak ordered by the card cost $5, poached eggs on toast $2, hot cakes and maple syrup $1. A leading restaurant, having a seating capacity of 32, employed three cooks, one of whom received $100 per week and the others $1.00 per hour. Four waiters, two men and two women, were employed on the day shift and two on the night shift—wages for the men, $50 per week, the women receiving $100 per month. Dishwashers and yard men received $5 per day. All employees were boarded by the restaurant, but they were required to lodge themselves. The rental of the building, which is a canvas structure 20 by 40 feet in size, was $900 per month.

The wine card of a leading restaurant for June 20 read as follows: Champagne, $20 per pint, $40 per quart; sherry, $15 per pint, $25 per quart; claret, $15 per pint; $25 per quart; ale, $5 per bottle; half and half, $5 per bottle; mineral water, $3 per bottle. Notwithstanding the high figures appearing on a Dawson wine card, it is quite as frequently consulted as the more elaborate wine card of a first-class restaurant in our large cities.

Lodging in bunk rooms, containing from 12 to 24 bunks costs $1.50 per night. A single room costs from $3 to $8 per night. In order to secure a night's lodging it is necessary to make application 48 hours in advance, and the application must be accompanied by the cash.

The leading gambling house and dance hall employs three bartenders, two weighers a bookkeeper and a porter. Bartenders receive $15 per day; the bookkeeper $17.50, weighers $15 and the porter $10. In the gambling department, one man at the crap game, one man at the roulette wheel, four faro dealers, one weigher, and two stud-poker dealers receive $20 a day each. In the dance hall 12 women are employed at $50 per week, and 25 per cent. commission on all drinks and cigars sold through their blandishments. Three musicians receive $17.50 per day each. The establishment pays $10 a barrel for water, using two barrels a day.

The proprietor of the leading saloon states that his receipts for the first three days after his "grand opening" in March amounted to $15,000, and the average daily bar receipts from April 1 to June 20 were over $2,000.

The Pavilion (a variety theatre and dance hall) opened about the middle of June, and the bar receipts the first night were $12,000. The theatre had three actors and six actresses under engagement at $150 each per week. Eight girls are employed in the dance hall, their compensation being 25 per cent. commission on drinks and cigars consumed by their partners. As champagne sells in this establishment for $40 a pint and is frequently called for, their earnings are large, even measured by Klondike standards, one girl stating that her commissions for the first week amounted to $750.

The one tinsmith in Dawson did a large business during the winter, principally in the manufacture of stoves, over 600 having been made, ranging in price from $40 to $75. Quite a number of ranges were made; a range constructed of No. 16 iron 5 feet by 3 feet, costing $300, and a pastry oven with a capacity of 72 loaves, costing $500. This establishment sells a Yale night lock for $6, and a pair of door butts for $16. From five to ten workmen were constantly employed during the winter at $1.50 per hour. The charge for outside work has been increased from $2 to $3 per hour.

The principal firm of contractors and builders on June 20 had 12 men employed in the shop on various kinds of woodwork at wages ranging from $10 to $17 per day. Skilled woodworkers receive $17, carpenters $15 and laborers $10 per day, ten hours constituting a day's work. The charge for outside work is $20 per day. This firm charges $250 for a poling boat 24 by 4 feet in size.

Three tailor shops were running full of orders June 20. They charge $125 for a sack suit and $150 for a dress suit, and pay their workmen $1.50 per hour.

On the same date four barber's shops were in operation, employing two to five barbers each. The prices are as follows: Shave $1, haircutting $1.50 shampooing $1.50, baths $2.50. A barber receives 65 per cent. of the receipts of his chair, making from $15 to $40 per day.

The four laundries in operation charge 50 cents each for washing undershirts, 75 cents for overshirts and $1.50 for white shirts, and pay their help $1.00 per hour.

A man just in the act of lifting a barrel of flour felt a hand laid on his shoulder. "Stop!" said the stranger, "You can't lift that." "How do you know I can't?" said the man. "Because I am a physician, and know it's impossible." "That may be," said the man, "but I know I can," and he stooped and lifted the barrel to his shoulder. "What made you so sure you could do it?" asked the astonished physician. "Because I've been doing it every day for years," said the man.

There are physicians who say in good faith to those whose lungs are worn by disease "It is impossible to help you." And yet thousands of these impossibles have been helped and healed by Dr. R. V. Pierce whose "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured them, when the hollow cheek, the rasping cough, the burning flush, and night-sweats have all pointed to consumption.

Ninety-eight out of every hundred such impossible cases can be cured says Dr. Pierce. What makes him so sure? Because he has been curing just such cases for more than thirty years. "Golden Medical Discovery" is strength to the stomach, life to the lungs, nourishment to the nerves. It makes new blood and the new blood builds a new body—a fit temple of health.

There is nothing just as good as "Golden Medical Discovery," so let no one deceive you into accepting a substitute.

"I beg to state that I have used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery since my correspondence with you and find great improvement in my case," writes Mr. A. F. Novotny, of New York, N. Y., (Box 1437). "I feel that I am in need of no more medical assistance. When I started to take your medicine I had a regular consumptive cough, of which I was afraid, and every body cautioned and warned me concerning it. I was losing weight rapidly, was very pale and had no appetite whatever. Now my condition is changed entirely. I do not cough at all, have gained eight pounds in weight, have recovered my healthy color, and my appetite is enormous. I can recommend your medicine, as it is a sure cure, no humbug, as are most other patent medicines."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

CLEVER, BUT SOULLESS.

One Woman's New Way in Which to Pay Social Debts.

"I don't know much of the ways of fashionable people," said a young physician not long ago, "for I am not in society, but if many society women are like one I know here in town I think I'm safer to be out of it. It was not this season, but it wasn't so long ago but that plenty of people can remember the circumstances. I had among my patients an elderly woman who lived with the daughter's family. The daughter lived, if not beyond her means, at least up to the very edge, went out a great deal and was entertained a great deal.

"The mother fell sick with a complaint which I knew would prove fatal. I did not inform the family till one day the daughter asked me to tell her frankly what her mother's condition was and just how long she could live. I told her that the old lady could not possibly last more than a fortnight. She begged me not to let anybody know how serious the case was. She didn't want her young daughters distressed, she said.

"Of course I told nobody, and just a week after that I read in the papers that Mrs. Dash, the daughter of my dying patient, had sent out invitations for a large dancing party, to be given on an evening a fortnight away. My patient did not live as long as I had expected. The day after she died I read in the papers that 'owing to the sudden death of her mother Mrs. Dash had been compelled to recall her invitations.'

"She had never intended to give a ball. She could not have afforded it, and she 'bluffed.' I have cold shivers every time I see her."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AN EXCITING LIFE.

Why the Chicago Girl's Brown Hair Turned Golden Hued.

"Gosh, Marier, but that wuz a close shave!" exclaimed Uncle Eben as he dragged his worthy spouse out of the way of a street car that was yet 20 feet away. "This yer Chicago life is 'nough to make a man's h'ar turn gray."

"Turn gray!" snarled his wife. "'Twouldn't be so bad ef thet wuz all it done. It's decent and respectable to have gray ha'r, but when it comes to makin a poor young gal's ha'r turn yaller jist on account of the excitement ov all these cars an railroads on stilts an bowlin people then's when I say it's a sin to hev sich big cities. I'm a-goin right out to 'Liza Jane's house, ef I kin ever find it, an stay right in it till we leave Chicago."

"How do you know it makes people's ha'r turn yaller?" asked Uncle Eben. "I ain't never hearn tell of ennything of that kind."

"Well, I see it with my own eyes—leastwise I see it turn brown agin after the poor dears wuz rested all summer in the country. You know them four gals what staid all summer over at Cousin Ellen's? When they fust come, they'd big brown eyes an fa'r complexions an right yaller ha'r. Purty soon every one of 'em's ha'r begin to get streaked in spots, an before the summer wuz gone they all had rich brown ha'r. Then I ast one of 'em what made their ha'r turn brown, an she said it wuz alla's brown, but that the excitin life she'd been livin in Chicago, whar she had to act in a theater every night, made it turn yaller. Poor thing! She looked so much better at the end of the summer that I hate to think of her comin back to this great, wicked city."—Chicago Journal.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Dull Business Days.

These are dull days for our merchants, and many and loud are the complaints heard of the poor business being done. This is largely due to unfavorable weather. The Times ventures to predict a brisk spring trade.

40th ANNIVERSARY

One-tenth of each purchase returned in Cash during this Anniversary Sale.

J. T. STENSON.

Double Trading Stamps.

For the next few days double trading stamps will be given at the Times Bookstore. Our stock of fancy goods will be cleared out at cost to make room for fresh importations.

The Opera House.

A company of special merit made the production of the Cherry Pickers at the opera house last night to a rather slim audience. The Cherry Pickers, which is essentially a stirring East Indian military romance, is one of those wide departures from beaten paths, which deservedly ride the wave of public favor for many seasons. It is one of those productions which appeals to the imagination just as the Old Homestead, The Sign of Othe Cross, or Shenandoah. The characters were all well represented.

County Maps.

Only a few copies of the splendid new map of Peterborough County left. Mounted on canvas with wooden rollers $2.00; paper 50 cents. Times Bookstore.

A Small Blaze.

The fire brigade was called out yesterday morning about four o'clock to a blaze which had broken out in a shed in the rear of the house occupied by the Misses Nicholls at 216 McDonnel street. It is supposed that it originated from an ash barrel. The fire had gained considerable headway and the shed was destroyed.

Six Weeks More of Winter.

Last Friday was Candlemas Day, or Lady Day, the day on which the seers base their prognostications of the weather still spring. On this day, so the sages say, Bruin, who has been lying for many a long day curled up in his den, comes out to take a look around. Should the sun be shining and he gets a glimpse of the shadow of himself, his bearship stretches himself, looks at his somewhat emanciated form, and, yawning, reluctantly turns to go back to his lair, sure that there will be six weeks more of winter. Last Friday was a bright day, so it is easy to draw the conclusion.

Death of Mrs. Courtney.

Mrs. Edward Courtney, of Mount Pleasant, passed away on the 6th instant. The deceased lady, who was 65 years of age, was a resident of Mount Pleasant, Cavan, for upwards of 35 years. Her husband preceded her to the grave about three years ago. She was born in Armah, Ireland, and came to this country 56 years ago. After residing in Hamilton, Dundas, Guelph and other places, the family settled in Mount Pleasant, where they have resided ever since. Mrs. Courtney left a family of four—two girls and two boys—Mrs. J. G. Dent, Lapeer, Mich, Charles R., Maggie A. and J. W. Courtney, Newburg. The funeral took place on Wednesday, the remains being followed to their last resting place in Mount Pleasant cemetery by a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. Mrs. Courtney was esteemed and beloved by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, and will be missed by many. Amongst the floral offerings was a beautiful wreath from the Foresters of Mount Pleasant.

NOT OUR PERCY.

The Trooper Price Injured at Halifax was Not Percy Price.

The report appeared in the columns of the Times yesterday that Trooper Price, of Peterborough, had been injured at Halifax and would be unable to leave with the Mounted Rifles for South Africa. Trooper Percy Price's father telegraphed to Lt.-Col. Greenwood to ascertain the facts in connection with the accident, and received a reply from Col. Greenwood that it was not his son, Trooper Percy Price, who was injured, but another man of the same name. Percy's Peterborough friends will be glad to learn that the report was untrue and that he is safe and sound and as fit as ever to give a good account of himself if he runs against any Boer or Boers.

A QUIET WEDDING.

Nuptials of Mr. Simon R. Armstrong and Miss Bertha Richards.

Belleville Intelligencer—One of those events which are pleasing and interesting in their character occurred at 9.30 this morning at the residence of Mr. James Richards, Dundas street. It was the marriage of his daughter, Miss Bertha, to Mr. Simon R. Armstrong, Town Clerk of Peterborough. The affair was quiet, only the immediate relatives being present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. C. E. McIntyre, pastor of the Bridge street Methodist church. The bride was becomingly attired in a tailor made dress of brown cloth, with a hat to correspond, and was unassisted. After the wedding breakfast had been partaken of, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong left for the east, where they will visit many places of interest before returning to their home in Peterborough.

The groom is a young man well and favorably known to many in this city. He was for some time previous to his removal to Peterborough an employee of the Intelligencer office. Since his appointment to the position of clerk of that stirring town, he has filled that office with credit to himself and the municipality.

The bride is a well known young lady of this city. Until recently she was a teacher in the public schools, and by her affable manner endeared herself to the children taught by her. She was recognized by the Board as one of the most painstaking and successful members of the teaching staff.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will extend to them congratulations and wish them every happiness in wedded life. In this the Intelligencer heartily joins.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The roads are in a very bad state.

Many of the newly laid sidewalks are several inches under water.

The Government have not awarded the contract for the lower section of the Trent Valley Canal. The canal boom is evidently broken.

We have received a letter regarding the forthcoming election for the Dominion Parliament, but as it comes from an anonymous source it cannot appear.

Albert Duftee, of Omemee, who met with such a bad accident by being impaled on a stake a few days ago, is progressing and his physicians predict his recovery.

The Fish and Game Commission of Ontario will petition the Legislature at its coming session to revise the game laws, which may bring about some very important changes.

Next Sunday has been appointed by the Anglican church as a day of solemn supplication and prayer on behalf of our armies in South Africa, throughout the ecclesiastical Province of Canada.

At the police court yesterday morning a young man was up on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty and was discharged with a warning not to appear in court again on a like charge.

Mr. Frazer Lazier, of Brighton, brought a fine mare to town last week for Mr. Tom Barnett. Mr. Barnet only drove the horse one before Mr. George Graham laid eyes on the animal, and now it is in the Oriental stables destined for the American markets.

At a congregational meeting of Charlotte street church last night the following were appointed society representatives on the Quarterly Official Board for the year—Messrs. Thomas Barrie, Percy Hamilton, George Minorgan, A. W. Cressman, A. B. Cunningham, Geo. Tovey, and J. C. Elliott.

The Times was favored with a call from Mr. J. W. Courtney, of Newburg, yesterday. Mr. Courtney was on his way home from Mount Pleasant, where he had been called on account of the death of his mother.

The Times extends its hearty congratulations to Mr. S. R. Armstrong on his marriage, particulars of which appear elsewhere.

Mrs. Byron Britton, of Gananoque, has returned home after spending a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Scott, Brock street.

Mr. G. W. Elliott, who was on the staff of one of our boiler plate contemporaries 20 years ago, is in town and favored the Times with a call.

The many friends of Mr. Walter Connors will be grieved to learn of his illness. He was taken to the hospital Wednesday night to undergo an operation, which was successfully performed. He is now doing as well as can be expected, but will be confined for about four weeks. Much sympathy will be felt for the newly married couple in their trouble.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The adjourned meeting of the Senior Lacrosse League, will be held in Montreal on Monday. The question of goal nets will be settled, and possibly a schedule.

Hugo Baird, of the Montreal Hockey Club is to be referee in the Stanley Cup matches next week.

•• • ••

Two or three sporting writers gave the O.H.A. a calling down for this years schedule and said that the clubs were thirty games behind the schedule. Well, up to the time of writing the juniors are exactly on time, as per the same despised schedule. In the intermediate series the clubs are one day behind and the seniors are almost on time, their delay being the result of a tie in the eastern section.

It looks as if the threatened new baseball league would be still born. Capitalists fight shy of it.

Chris. Graham leaves to-morrow night for New York. He has entered for the lightweight event in the National championship boxing tournament. We wish him success.

The Examiner says that "Alf" entertained "Cully" while he was here on Thursday night—there was nothing said about the size of the limit—it would not be fair to publish everything.

There was a great game of cards in New York on Wednesday night. The game was that quiet, innocent one dear to all German hearts, good old pinochle. "Al" Adams and "Eole" Pearsall were the two participants and they kept it up for twenty-four hours. At the end of it "Al" handed over 30 new crisp notes each one of which represented one thousand dollars.

The Canadian representatives were badly beaten in the Racquet games being played in Boston this week. Gillespie of Montreal was beaten by Shaw the amateur champion of the U.S.; while Rolland, champion of Montreal, had to run up against Miles the champion of England. The Lipton Loving cup, of which we gave an account last week, is now finished. It is of solid 18 k. gold and stands fourteen inches high. On one of the panels is the inscription "To Sir Thomas Lipton, from his American friends, 1899." It is valued at five thousand dollars.

After referring to Wednesday night's match between Colts and U.C.C. Club, the Telegram says: "Mr. Lillie made a most competent referee, so much so that Peterborough has begged him to handle their return match with the College. Peterborough should be proud, indeed, of its people who attend the matches. They are easily the most orderly people in the province. After the match both teams were entertained at the residence of Mr. McBain, sr., where a sumptuous repast was prepared for them. The College should do the right thing when the colts come up for the return match.

KNIFE USED IN WAR ARGUMENT

Englishman and German and Their Wives Fight at Danville.

Danville, Ill., Feb. 8.—The African war has reached Danville. Frank Specht, German, was stabbed three times last night by William Shoemaker, an Englishman, in an argument over the Boer war. Specht has an English wife and Shoemaker a German wife. They were both present and when the quarrel was confined to words each stood up for their own nationality. But when blows succeeded words each woman supported her own husband. It is doubtful if Specht will recover.

Iron Claim in Dispute.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—A dispute about a strip of land containing a valuable iron deposit, on Lake Boyer, Michipicoten, was aired before Hon. E. J. Davis, Commissioner of Crown Lands. It is a strip of land between the lines of a survey that is disputed. Both the Eley Mining Co., and F. H. Clergue claim the 21-2 acres. Messrs. Watson and Boland appeared for Mr. Clergue, while Messrs. Cassels, of Toronto, McKim, of Cleveland, and Van Every of Marquette, were present on behalf of the mining company.

Only Knee Deep.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear sir,—Did you notice in my letter of Wednesday that I said that as soon as we had a thaw, the trenches so skillfully made by the town ploughs would be ankle deep in slush? Well, if you were out last night you must have noticed that I was a little under the mark, for in some places it was knee deep. Get rid of those ploughs!

COMMON SENSE.

Doctors, Attention!

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Would you please let me know through your valuable paper, the Times, which I receive regularly, if the doctors of the Town of Peterborough have bargain days or if they give trading stamps, as I am not in very good health at present. I am troubled with fortid breath (whatever that means.) I got the last doctor to write it down; he said it was lation, and I want to consult another to see if they agree that it is so. You have a big lot of doctors in your town, and I thought you would be the best one to let me know if they have any bargain days or if they give trading stamps, or I have no objection to have my phograph enlarged so long as they have it done in either Indian ink or water colors, but I prefer to have trading stamps, as my wife wrote me she wanted to fill a book. I am, dear Mr. Times, yours truly,

CARRY O'LOUNS.

McDonald's Lumber Camp, Jan 31, 1900.

[Answer—We believe that four classes of business men never have bargain days, doctors, undertakers, preachers and lawyears. Under these circumstances we fear our esteemed though unfortunate correspondent will be obliged to hang on to his "fortid" breath for a time at least.—Ed. Times.]

Gunner Wallace's Dead.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Mr. David Wallace, father of the late Gunner Wallace, into whose death at Kingston an investigation is now being held, received a letter, fro Hospital Sergeant O'Hagan, asking him to furnish the sergeant with a letter and expressing himself well pleased with the treatment received by his son, under the medical officer and O'Hagan. He desired to forward it on to Ottawa, but Mr. Wallace's reply will not likely be satisfactory.

In his letter Mr. Wallace said—"I have your letter of the 6th inst., with regard to the treatment my son received in the barracks during his illness. I never did express myself as satisfied with the treatment he received, for I think, had he been sent to the General Hospital sooner, or if a proper guard had been kept on his bed, he would not have been allowed to get up and expose himself to the cold as he did."

O NEWS OF BULLER'S MOVES MADE KNOWN.

Looks as if He Never Seriously Contemplated the Relief of Ladysmith.

RITISH FORCE MAKE A SORTIE FROM CHIEVELEY

Armored Train Made a Sortie Towards Colenso and Landed 2000 Troops on Right of Boer Position But They Were Forced to Retire by Boer Fire.

London, Feb. 9

. Balfour, replying to a question in he House of Commons, this evening, s to whether British information had een received from the seat of war, aid—ur information points to the fact that General Buller is not pressing an advance from the position he has occupied. We do not consider it right to ress him for details of the operations which are in progress, nor if he does give such information, do we deem it proper to make this public until such operations are completed. The Government has no information as to whether General MacDonald has retired."

London, Feb. 10

the Morning Post rM. Spencer Wilkinson, to-day, reviewing the military situation, says—

Lord Roberts is evidently bout to begin his campaign, and there are signs that General Methuen's force will make the first important move. It is probable that the seventh division will soon be heard of as co-operating with General Methuen. The latest news regarding General Buller's operations is puzzeling. It looks now as if he never seriously contemplated an attempt to relieve Ladysmith, but only a demonstration to prevent the Boers from diverting reinforcements to Magersfontein. Looking to the distance from Ladysmith to Kimberley, a journey in which the Boers would get little railway help, for the transport of their forces, Lord Roberts has a clear week for the first blow, which will put a new face upon the situation. This hypothesis would account for the present state of things in both theatres of war, and the peculiarities of the the attacks of Monday and Tuesday would become intelligible, for if they had been intending it as a serious movement General Buller would have been largely reinforced and would have pushed the attack with greater energy."

BRITISH RETIRE.

Boer Head Laager, Ladysmith, Thursday, Feb. 8.—The British who were in possession of the kopje at Molens Drift abandoned it after a bombardment by Boer cannon and retired across the Tugela River to their former position. A desultory cannonade is proceeding at the Tugela this morning, but otherwise every thingis quiet.

THE THIRD DAY'S BATTLE.

Head Boer Laager, Ladysmith, Feb. 7. —The fighting on the upper Tugela River lasted until 8.30 yesterday—Tuesday—evening. Particulars are lacking.

Firing at both Colenso and along the Upper Tugela has been proceeding since five o'clockthis morning.

BULLER'S DIFFICULT POSITION.

London, Feb. 9.—A despatch dated Frere Camp, Thursday, Feb. 8, but probably written with the advanced lines, Wednesday, Feb. 7th, and sent to Frere by runner, says—"The forces of the enemy are on both our flanks and continued to render our position extremely difficult to hold."

BRITISH SORTIE FROM CHIEVELEY.

Head Laager, Ladysmith, Wednesday, Feb. 7.—An armored train yesterday made a sortie from Chieveley towards Colenso and landed 2,000 British troops on the right of the Boer position. The Boers immediately crossed the river and made an attack withrifles and artillery forcing the withdrawal of both the train and the troops to Chieveley.

SITUATION IN NATAL.

London, Feb. 9.—The report from Boer sources this morning indicates that Gen. Barton's Brigade at Chieveley, consisting of the English, Welsh and Irish Fusiliers, are playing an important part in the attempt which General Buller is making to forcehis way through the Boer line at Onderbrook, and reach the Ladysmith road. During Tuesday last a pretended sortie was made by an armored train with 2,000 troops in the direction of Colenso. Barton's object of drawing the Boers in that direction, and keeping them engaged away from the positions facing Buller, havong been accomplished, he naturally fell back to his camp. Fighting around Vaalkrantz was going on during the wholeof Wednesday according to the Boer reports, but information as to the result is lacking from official sources. The sole question now is, can General Buller make good his position in the centre of the enemy'y line by capturing Kranz Jloof, which command it to right and left respectively. To drive his weige through the Boer line and reach Ladysmith would not be sufficient. The force of the enemy must be dispersed and disorganized. Else Buller's force would only go to swell the garrison of the beleaguered city and be of nofurther use. The object is not only to relieve Ladysmith, but to inflict a crushing defeat upon the Boers as well. One without the other would be useless. Fighting is undoubtedly going on to-day and naturally intense anxiety prevails as to the utcome. If deserts go for anything Buller's gallant army certainly merit a sweeping victory as a reward for their immense persistence.

Later—It appears that at Vaalkrantz the British have met the same luck as at Spion Kop. According to a Boer report they have again found it impossible to maintain their position in face of a flanking fire, and arf again south of the Tugela.

WITH BRABANT'S HORSE.

Toronto. Feb. 9.—Major W. H. Merritt, of the Governor-General's Body Guards, is a member of Brabant's Horse, in Cape Colony, and in a letter to a friend in the city he says that he reached Cape Town just in time to join the last squadron of Brabant's famous squadron of horsemen. "The corps is 1,200 strong," he said, "divided into two regiments, first and second. Colonel Brabant is a sort of brigadier, and a major commands each regiment, with a second in command and an adjutant. All of these are Imperial officers. Each regiment has six squadrons of 93 strong, commanded by a captain, divided into four troops, with a lieutenant to each troop. The accompanying army of oxen and shrieking niggers with their big whips, make the transport department alone a formidable body. We have a lot of Australians, though chiefly local chaps, English, Welsh, Irish, Scotch; lots of refugees. One officer is a nephew of President Steyn, of the Orange Free State. Most are good riders and god shots. They are not taken unless they are, and with the exception of the local men, you may say that all the officers have seen service somewhere or other. On eof our squadrons has just done good work in taking Dordrecht from the Boers, with the assistance of the Cape Mounted Rifles. Only one of our men was wounded. We have an ambulance troop of some twenty men to be ready for the sharp work that is sure to come later on."

BATTLE NOW IN PROGRESS.

London, Feb. 9.—Beyond the fact that Gen. Buller devoted Wednesday to bringing more artillery and troops across the Tugela, nothing is known of his movements, but that he badly needed reinforcements is evident from the despatch this morning from Frere. It is still more patent that if is impossible fo rhim to advance till the artillery shall have been enabled to take up forward positions for th epurpose of subduing the Boer guns on both flanks. Upon the length of time occupied in this operation depends the duration of Gen. Buller's maintenance of the defensive. It is reasonable to suppose that the gun sand reinforcements were in position yesterday and that another attempt fo advance is now progressing, or at least that the bombardment preliminary to the actual movement of the troops is in progress.

Naval Guns.

Another Frere camp despatch says a Boer prisoner asserts that the burghers expected Gen. Buller to cross at Shiet's Drift and that thousands of Boers were being posted at Dornkloof to oppose such a passage, while on the captured hill there were only a few hundred Johannesburghers. This tends to increase the anxiety of those who believe Gen. Buller has scarcely begun the serous part of his advance, though encouragement is gleaned from the news that the heavy naval guns, after repeated attempts during which the mules rolled down the hill, have succeeded in reaching the summit of Zwarts Kop, whence they are doing excellent service.

Attaches Will Leave.

A despatch from Cape Town. dated Thursday, Feb. 8, says th eforieign military attaches will leave to-morrow. Their destination is not given, but presumably they will join Lord Roberts, whose whereabouts has not yet been made public. It was said to-day that one of the first steps to increase the home army will be the raising of thirty seven new horse and field batteries with barracks on Salisbury plain, and the addition of third battalions to numerous regiments which at present are without them.

A rumour that Ladysmith has been relieved is again current to-day, but the War Office authorities say that they have no confirmation of the report.

BOERS MOVE TO THE SOUTH.

London, Feb. 9.—A despatch to the Morning Post from Ladysmith, dated Tuesday, February 6, says: "Little can be seen of Gen. Buller's action owing to the haze. It appears that the Boers have withdrawn their big gun from the hills there to th esouthward.

"A large force of Boers still remains and the garrison is prepared for a night attack."

WONDERFUL RECOVERIES.

London, Feb. 9.—Sir William MacCormack, chief surgeon with the British forces in South Africa, in a communication to the Lancet expresses astonishment at some of the recoveries in the case of abdominal injuries from

GEN. MACDONALD HAS RETIRED.

He Rkpulsed a Fierce Attack at All Points, and Then Gave up His Position.

New York, Feb. 9.—The Journal has the following:

Koodoosberg Drift, Cape Colony, Feb. 8.—The Boers made a fierce attack on General Hector Macdonald's column, the battle being commenced Tuesday afternoon. The Boers were repulsed at all points towards evening but Macdonald has been ordered by Lord Roberts to retreat from Koodoosberg. The British lost fifty killed and wounded.

The Journal's London despatch says: The Government bill adding fifteen battalions to the regular army also creates a home force of half a million men, composed of militia raised under the old Militia Ballot Act, and volunteers. A hot controveray is certain to be bred, both in Parliamentt and the country over the attempt fo revive the Militia Act as involving a form of obligatory military service, against which there is deep-rooted and intense antipathy.

bullets. He does not specify the class, but presumably means the Mauser.

"The rapid closing of the small perforages which the bullet causes," says Sir William, "may account for the absence of any severe symptoms, but, in some instances, the nature and position of the wounds, and the direction which the bullet, in every probability followed, render recovery virtually without symptoms, or without symptoms of any importance, inexplicable."

BARTON'S BRIGADE ACTIVE.

London, Feb. 8.—A despatch from Pietermaritzburg, dated February 7, reports that the Chieveley column has been active during Gen. Buller's movement. The new naval gun on the railway has been especially busy.

WOUNDED ON THE MAINE.

London, Feb. 9.—Lady Randolph Churchill has cabled to the Maine Hospital Ship Relief Committee as follows:—

"Durban, Feb. 8.—One hundred and forty patients are now on board the Maine, mostly Fusiliers, Hussars, West Yorks and Lancers. There are 69 wounded, mostly from Colenso and Spion Kop, including stretcher-bearers whom he was forcing to serve as instructors to his navy. His capital was still at Dikwa, to the south of Lake Chad, in German territory.

Lord Strathcona Cannot Come.

London, Feb. 9.—In reply to the invitation sent by the Board of Trade to Lord Strathcona, proposing a banquet, the following cable was received to-day—

Not having quite recovered from cold, must defer proposed visit to Canada for couple of months. Deeply sensible of honor proposed in your telegram, while declining it. Accept my warmest thanks; and convey the same to members of your board.

STRATHCONA.

Shot by The Police.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—A gang of six men blew open the vault doors in the branch office of the People's Bank of Halifax, at Danville yesterday morning, and got away with $5,000. Ernest Fishbery, a young man who was near the bank when the burglars approached, was seized, gagged and blindfolded. The burglars had to blow open three doors with nitroglycerine before they reached the money.

Later in the day the police received word that six men were at Windsor Mills, about twelve miles from Danville

BADEN-POWELL USES THE PHONE.

He sits in a Bomb Proof Mound and Keeps in Communication With Outposts

London, Feb. 8.—An interesting letter has been received from Col. Baden-Powell, telling how he is conducting the defence of Mafeking by telephone. He made himself a bomb-proof mound in the centre of the town. He says:

"Here I sit in my bomb-proof bureau, writing these letters. Around me is telephone communication with each one of my outposts. At each one of these outposts a telescope keeps constant watch on the Boer outposts and guns. As soon as it is seen which way their fire is about to be directed, the wire communications send word and the bell with which each defensive quarter is provided, clangs in that part of the town where th eshell is about to fall. All in the open at once go do ground like rabbits."

and members of the Army Medical Corps. There are many cases of rheumatism and fever. Expecting additionals to-day. Owing to the excellence of the ship, the authorities are giving us many cot-cases. The staff is hard at work and everthing is satisfactory."

GERMANS HAD TO FIGHT.

Expedition in Central Africa Meets With Resistance

Liverpool, Feb. 9.—Some interesting information has come to hand from the Cameroons respecting the recent German expedition into the great Adamawa country, which is situated in the hinterland of that colony, having been secured for the most part by Germany through the Anglo-German Agreement of 1891. Adamawa is rightly considered one of the richest andl east known portions of Central African Continent. It is the southermost province of the Fulani Emir of Sokoto, and the Emir of Yolo, which is the capital of the country, and in the British sphere, renders yearly tribute to his liege lord of Sokoto.

In their efforts to open up the country the Germans have met with a good deal of resistance, and in September last they sent an expedition, under Captain von

A number of officers were sent after them. The men showed fight and the police fired on them, wounding two severely. The others were overpowered and all six were taken to Sherbrooke jail. About $5,000, supposed to be the money stolen from the bank, was found divided among them. The men gave their names as Edward McCarthy, Frank Allen, Andrew Mortimer, Jas. Moore, John Brookes and John Williams. The latter two were seriously wounded.

Deputation of Magistrates.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—This afternoon a delegation of magistrates will meet the Attorney-General and ask for certain reforms. Among other things, they will urge that justices of the peace be paid for holding preliminary investigations where people are charged with indictable offences. The delegation consists of Judge McDougall, John Ramsden, Erastus Jackson, Peter Ellis and James Wingfield.

How Miller was Caught

New York, Feb. 9.—Police Captain Reynols tells an interesting story of how he captured F. W. Miller, the 520 per cent a year syndicate man. He says he learned that a young man who was suspected of being a go-between was in New York, and shadowed him to Montreal. This man and the fugitive met on

A RECONNAISSANCE IN FORCE.

With the Object of Ascertaining the Strength of Enemy About Koodoo's Driff

London, Feb. 9.—General Macdonald's movement upon the Boer right flank at Modder river by way of Koodoo's drift turns out to have been a reconnaissance in force. The Highland Brigade, the Ninth Lancers and the 62nd Battery reached that place on February 4th, and after desultory skirmishing, evidently with the object of ascertaining the strength of the Boers in the locality and the lay of the land, were ordered to retire on the 7th to Methuen's camp, eighteen miles to the east. It is stated by the correspondent of the Times that the reconnaissance proved successful in its object. This may mean that the Boers were found in small numbers occupying poor defensive positions, or that they were in large numbers with strong defences. The retirement may be followed either by a flank attack in great force or in the abandonment of the idea of making any such attack. There is no doubt that the endeavor to ascertain if the conditions were favorable for such an attack is responsible for Macdonald's movement. As he has retired to his base the probabilities seem to be that he has found the flank attack impracticable. Had it been favorable he would assuredly have maintained his position and awaited strong reinforcements with which it could have been pushed home. There is, of course, the possibility that his whole movement was a mere blind to draw the attention of the enemy from some other quarter.

Kamptz, against the Mohammedan Emir of Tibati, an important place, and a great ivory centre. The expedition, which was successful, claims to have established German sovereignty up to 420 miles from the coast line. Captain von Kamptz seized several thousand pounds worth of ivory at Tibati. He also brought samples of British clothes imported into Adamawa by the Niger Company, via Binue, which it is hoped will be useful for German traders in competing for the Adamawa trade, via the Cameroons. The leader of the German expedition reports that the nativies in Adamawa raise grain crops regularly, and possess large herds of humped-backed cattle, of a much finer breed than those which are found on the coast. Owing tothe favorable nature of Captain von Kamptz's reports, several German firms have decided to open up factories at Yoko.

It was ascertained from native reports that Babah had captured several men a corner and shook hands. Captain Reynolds recognized him.

"He turned in surprise and looked at me when I spoke to him," says the officer 'Do you know me?' I asked of Miller. 'No sir,' he replied, 'I don't think I ever saw you before.' I am Captain Reynolds, of Brooklyn, I told him.

"He did not seem to care much. 'I'm willing to go back,' he said. 'I'm tired of being away, and want to see my wife and baby.'"

Miller had only 75 cents when he was was arrested.

On Ticket of Leave.

Kingston, Feb. 9.—Warden Platt says that so far only four persons in the penitentiary have been permitted to leave under the Conditional Libera tion Act, and they were only guilty of minor offences. The demand on the license of leave calling for frequent reporting to the County Sheriffs will not be enforced, as the men have been restored to their former positions among friends. The ticket of leave system will be slowly introduced, but promises to do good.

ONE HUNDRED MILLION FOR WAR PURPOSES.

Supplementary Army Estimates to Call for This Immense Sum of Money.

GENERAL MACDONALD WAS FORCED TO RETIRE.

Failure of Cavalry to Support Him Causes a Retreat—London Times Says the Period of Reverses is Finished—The British Losses Ten Thousand.

Koodoosberg Drift, Feb. 8.—The Boers yesterday (Wednesday) made a determined effort to drive the British from a hill connanding the drift. Mounting two 7-pounders at the northern exteemity they shelled the position intermittently the whole day. The Seaforth Highlanders gained a position on the rocky summit and kept up a sustained rifle fire, but suffered somewhat from the Boer shelling. A battery was sent and succeeded in silencing the Boer fire. Meanwhile two companies of the Argyle Highlanders, advancing along the plain in a westerly direction, found the Boers entrenched at a small drift. A sharp engagement followed, lasting the whole day.

General MacDonald now only required sufficient troops in order to completely surround the Boers. Gen. Babington was despatched from Modder River with a large force of cavalry and two horse batteries, but failed to reach here, although he started early in the day to enable him to get here early this afternoon.

This morning the infantry still remain in the old position.

Gen. Methuen ordered a retirgmnt to the Modder River, which is now proceeding.

The British losses were 50 men.

A CALL FOR $100,000,000.

London, Feb. 8.—In the supplementary army estimates, to March 31, which was laid pro forma before the House of Commons yesterday, it is reported that the call is for $100,000,000, instead of $30,000,000.

THE GAME IS BEGINNING.

London, Feb. 9.—The Times comments on the fact that General Buller is "playing his part in the general scheme which is being co-ordinated by Lord Roberts. It says on this point—"The British public is still kept in ignorance of the whereabouts of some 25,000 troops, and great developments may be expected. It is difficult to believe that the Boers are equally ignorant of the disposition of the British forces. The great game of war will, however, shortly be begun, and we may confidently hope that the period of reverses is drawing to an end."

TOTAL BRITISH LOSSES.

London, Feb. 9.—The casualties reported from the Upper Tugela bring the total British losses to 10,244 killed wounded and captured.

NIGHT ATTACK ON LADYSMITH.

Ladysmith, Natal, Feb. 3. by native runner to Estcourt, Feb. 7.—A night attack by the Boers on the town has been deemed possible the last three nights, especially on Wednesday or Thursday because of the intense darkness. The British artillery fired several star shells. But nothing happened. The Boer artillery surrounding us, which has been quite active by spells, was strangely quite to-day. I fancy that the new Creusot gun has supplanted the gun which has been firing on us from Telegraph hill. The shells from the new gun travel with a cleaner sound than those from the old one, and do not wobble during transit. A slight artillery fire was heard this morning. Large bodies of Boers have been noticed lately behind Blaawbank, Buluwana and Telegraph hills. It is impossible for anybody here to explain what their intentions are. Boers have also been seen returning to the vicinity of Colenso, after having visited their base of supplies at Elandslaagte.

Boers Fire on Horses.

The Boer guns at Blaawbank have been often firing at the British cavalry horses when out grazing. Yesterday a party of Boers cut out about forty horses losing two men in the operation.

The grass is excellent now, and, owing to the British taking advantage of it, "sniping has increased. The Boers captured two grass cutters Thursday.

The Buluwana hill gun Chieveley was shelling the Helpmakaar hill post yesterday, when a British private of the Sixtieth Battery was completely buried in the torn-up earth. He managed to extricate himself in a few seconds, and found he was not even scratched. The weather is warmer and brighter than it has been recently, but it still is cold for a South African summer. The spirits of th etroops and civilians are good in spite of the fact that everybody is consummately bored by the monotony of life here. There is universal complaint of the lack of news of both the war and general happenings. The local situation is threadbare Even the scraps of news published last night in the orders had an exceedingly cheering effect, and worked wonders.

BOERS IN ZULULAND.

Durban, Feb. 8.—A large force of Boers attacked Nordweni, in Zululand, destroyed the public building and took numerous prisoners. A force of volunteers with artillery has been despatched thither to support the scouts and to oppose a further advance by the Boers.

A GALLANT DEFENCE.

Pietermaritzburg, Feb. 7.—At Nqutu in North Zululand, Magistrate Major Higgnot and his clerks, aided by a few Europeans and 30 police, fought 500 Boers, under Commaudant Jochim Ferrier, for an hour and only surendered when two seven-pounders were brought to bear on him. The Boers lost two killed and several wounded. Higgnot and the other prisoners are at Helpmakaar. Three hundred scouts, under Adison, another magistrate, were only eighteen miles away. The Zulus are getting restless and are anxious to attack the Boers. The Helpmakaar Boer commando moved to Buffalo River during the attack on Nqutu. The two commandos numbered 1,000.

Tried a Lone Hand.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—A lone robber, well dressed, with money in his pockets and with a ribbed silk mask to cover up his features was shot and killed in C. H. Woerner's Park Pavilion, West Madison street, late last night by Frank Barum, an Oak Park lawyer, and Edward Sommerfeldt, the barkeeper.

The dead robber was 38 years old, five feet eleven inches tall, weigh 170 pounds, dark complexion, grey eyes, brown hair, and moustache streaked with grey. His hair was cut in football fashion. The letters "R.S." were marked on the dead man's linen.

Besides Sommerfeldt and Barum there was only one other person in the saloon when the robber entered. The robber commanded them to throw up their hands. Resistance was offered, and in the struggle the robber fired twice at his victims, one of the bullets taking effect in Sommerfeldt's arm. Sommerfeldt and Barum fired several shots at the robber, who fell dead at their feet. In the pockets of the dead man wat found $165. Barum and Sommerfeldt was arrested.

Postal Note a Success.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—There is no doubt as to the success of the postal note introduced a little over a year ago.

The revenue therefrom which started at five or six thousand dollars, has now almost touched the eighty thousand mark. By the end of the year it is expected that the revenue will reach $125,000.

The heart of Hon. Wm. Mulock is also gladden by the almost phenomenal growth of the general postal receipts. When the rate was cut to two cents it was thought that the deficit a year hence would be between seven and eight hundred thousand dollars. As a matter of fact, the deficit is only about $400,000, and while it was expected that it would be four years before the receipts would attain their normal size, it now seems probable that the revenue will have entirely recovered within two years.

Departure of Leinsters.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—Answering a ques tion put by Col. Prior in the House this afternoon. Hon. Dr. Borden said that the departure of the 100th Leinster Regiment is now the subject of correspondence between the Imperial and Dominion Governments.

A Western Wind Storm.

Indianapolis, Feb. 9.—A wind storm, whiol almost reached the velocity of a tornado, swept western Indiana and eastern Illinois early this morning. The storm was most terrific at Collings ville, Ill., where, according to th elatest information, several houses were destroyed.

Gen. Lawton Buried.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Major-General Henry W. Lawton was buried to-day in the National cemetery at Arlington. The services at the grave were preceded by those at the Church of the Covenant, in this city, where President M. W. Stryker, of Hamilton College, New York, delivered a funeral oration.

Never in the history of the capital has there been a more representative gathering of the nation's official life to pay a last tribute to the nation's honored dead. Flags hung at half mast. The President and his Cabinet representatives of the Supreme Court, of the House, and Senate, and of the army and navy all combined to fill the darkened church to its utmost. Great crowds surrounded the church and lined the streets along which the procession passed. Lawton was to the people the ideal American soldier.

British Steamship Aground.

Cape Henry, Va., Feb. 9.—The weather Bureau officer at Kitty Hawk, N.C., reports the British steamer Honiton ashore 21-2 miles south of Paul Gamiel's Hills, N.C.

Soudanese Look Serious.

London, Feb. 9.—A special despatch from Cairo says the mutiny of the Soudanese troops at Khartoum has assumed serious proportions and is causing great anxiety.

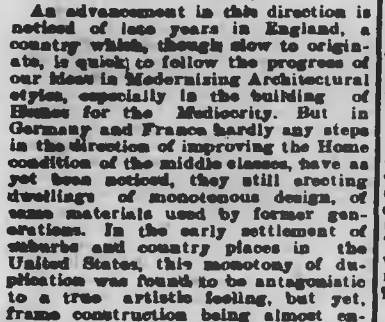
GOING TO BUILD ?

Modern Low Cost Residences.

(This is the first of a series of Architectural Articles prepared especially for The Times by the well known Architect, Mr. Chas. Willard Leighton, for the education and interest of those going to build. These articles will appear regularly each week in our daily and weekly editions, for the coming ten weeks, and will be illustrated by Low and Moderate Cost Cottages and Residences of various styles of Modernised Architecture, and are known as "The Leighton Illustrated Architectural Articles.")

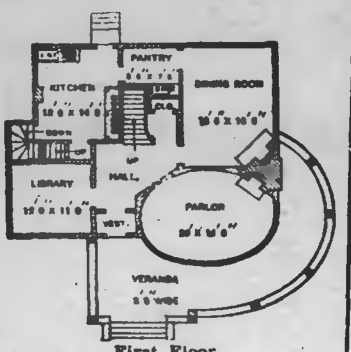
In the United States and Canada Modern Low Cost Cottages and Residences, in point of Architectural Beauty and accommodation are far ahead of other nations of the world. The picturesque scenery enjoyed by the tourist of our country, is enhanced on every side by the tasty homes, designed to fit the natural surroundings—in keeping with plain, valley, and mountain, harmonising as a whole—pleasing to the eye.

An advancement in this direction is noticed of late years in England, a country which, though slow to originate, is quick to follow the progress of our ideas in Modernizing Architectural styles, especially in the building of Homes for the Mediocrity. But in Germany and France hardly any steps in the direction of improving the Home condition of the middle classes, have as yet been noticed, they still erecting dwellings of monotonous design, of same materials used by former generations. In the early settlement of suburbs and country places in the United States, this monotony of duplication was found to be antagonistic to a true artistic feeling, but yet, frame construction being almost entirely employed, naturally some pleasing features were conceived that could not have been wrought with the stone and cement of the older countries, in the erection of smaller houses.



An example of the modernized Colonial Architecture for a Moderate Cost Residence, especially designed for the benefit of our readers going to build, is presented with this article. The prospective presents an exterior that would harmonise with almost any surroundings. The foundation walls are built of good local building stone, on field stone, laid up in the best cement mortar. If the soil is of good sound blue or yellow clay, footings need not be considered, but where the soil is, practically speaking, "marshy," footings should be used, and be good, large, flat stones, or concrete bedded. The cellar should be cemented, as when left unfinished the health of the resident is endangered, first, because the floor of the cellar cannot be kept clean, and secondly, because dampness has ready access to all outside walls, unless the foundation walls are filled in between the joists up to the top of the beams, or the under side of the first floor. The dampness will not only effect the plastering, showing in cracks in walls and ceilings, and sometimes the falling away of portions of the work (in which case the plasterer is often blamed for not having floated properly) but it will also ruin good floors of the first story, when oak and ash, and such woods are used.

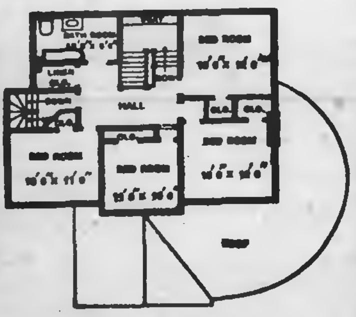
The house can easily be heated satisfactorily with hot air, though steam or hot water may be used if desired, if the expense is not considered too great—in Southern climates even hot air would not be necessary, as the range in kitchen and the open fire palces would suffice. The entrance vestibule is well designed, and the hall exceedingly attractive, looking as it does into rooms at either side, and into the parlor, and towards the cosy seat half way up the staircase. The parlor and dining-room should be wainscoted, giving the interior a colonial effect. The parlor being elliptical divides the light well, through the entire room, and also causes a circulation of air, which is more than necessary for a room little used.



First Floor.

Nothing is more difficult in the erection of a house than the correct plan and construction of the staircase. The stairs shown in this plan are 4 feet wide, having a rise to each tread of 7 1-2 inches, making an easy ascent to the second story. A noticeable defect in a good many houses, is that the rise is made 8 inches, or even 8 1-4 inches, and if such a rise is constructed, one feels the effect, especially an invalid, or one temporarily indisposed, when ascending, finding they have no motion forward, but seem continually making a climb all the time. The 1-2 inch, in the risers, saves a good deal of vitality.

The dining-room, shown on the first floor plan, explains itself, and appeals to every prospective home owner, for its light and accommodation. The butler's pantry is considerably larger than usually planned for a house of this size and cost, leaving plenty of room for an extra dresser if desired. The kitchen is well placed, and has the modern idea of the side or back stairs which does not effect the looks of the second story hall, and being shut off from the main staircase saves rough usage of same.



Second Floor.

All bedrooms in second story have abundance of closet room giving an average storage space of 12 square feet per room, large linen closet at bathroom, which latter room is planned for comfort and the pleasure of the bath, rather than stuck away "any old place."

Access to the attic by side or back stairs, attic being floored for storage in some parts, two good rooms, however, being finished off. The Dormer windows in this story insures complete and satisfactory ventilation for the entire house.

The veranda is especially designed to give a pleasing effect to the eye, as we approach the exterior of the dwelling, yet it is of commodious size, and would lend itself to extension or enlargement, if desired, without detracting from the artistic appearance. The elevation shows a low effect, which in nearly all cases protects the rooms from the sun's rays in the heat of the noon-day.

A brief technical description of this design we give as follows:

General Dimensions: Extreme width, 40 feet, not including veranda; depth, 34 feet, not including veranda or porch.

Heights of stories: Cellar, 7 feet; first storey, 9 feet; second storey, 8 feet 6 inches; attic, 8 feet.

Exterior Materials: Foundation, stone; first storey, second storey and roof, shingles.

Interior Finish: Hard white plaster; Trim in parlor, soft wood, painted ivory white; in hall, library and dining room, ash; in balance of house, N. C. pine. Flooring, N. C. pine in first storey and bath-room; elsewhere soft wood. Sta ircase, oak.

Accommodations, outside of those mentioned above: Large airy rooms with ample closet space. Cellar under whole house, with outside and inside entrance and concrete floor. Fireplace in parlor and dining-room. The oval parlor presents a very unique treatment of this principal room. Handsome staircase with coat closet under. Large wall space in library for bookcases. Servants W.C. in cellar, etc., etc., etc.

Cost: $4,600, complete. The estimate is based on New York prices for material and labor, though in many sections of the country the cost should be less.

Foreign Patents.

E. G. Siggers, Patent Lawyer, Washington D. C., U.S.A., reports the following patents granted by the United States Patent Office, January 30, 1900, to inventors residing in the Dominion of Canada. G. A QUEER EXPLOSION.

HOW A MOUNTAIN LOCOMOTIVE CAME TO AN UNTIMELY END.

There Was Neither Fire in Her Furnace Nor Water in Her Boiler, and Yet She Managed to Blow Up in the Most Approved Style.

Mr. Henry Alquist, a prominent railroad man, relates the story of a curious wreck, the facts in which he will vouch for.

"It is such a remarkable thing," said Mr. Alquist to a reporter, "that I fear many will be inclined to brand it as 'pipe.' I have been railroading now for over 20 years, and never in all my varied experience have I seen such a unique and complete wreck as the one I speak of—that of engine 1,129 of the Rio Grande Western. Railroad men will tell you that locomotives seldom explode nowadays, but 1,129 did and in a very peculiar way.

"At the time this wreck occurred I was holding down the job of train dispatcher at Soldier Summit, Utah, and a tough old job it was. Never been there, I suppose? Well, Soldier Summit is a station on the top of one of the Wasatch divides, a bleak and lonely place, where the Rio Grande Western has a roundhouse and coal chute located. At the summit are long snowsheds covering the tracks. These sheds protect the line from the winter. And it is only due to this method that a train ever gets over the mountain.

"On both sides of the mountain the line winds down in a succession of winding curves to lessen the grade. Running off from the railway are switches, which, diverging from the grade, run up into the hills and gradually come to a dead level. These switchbacks, as they are called, are so constructed that they can be thrown from any point on the grade. And if a train breaks in two while ascending the steep grade the runaway cars can be switched on to one of these spurs, where the breakaway finally stops after it has run up the spur as far as the momentum attained in its descent will take it.

"All heavy trains have an extra locomotive before the grade is tackled. These are called helper engines and are kept in roundhouses at each side of the mountain with steam up.

"One night I got word from Clear Creek, a town in the western valley, that the 9:20 freight would be 30 minutes late on account of having to pull out a crippled engine, 1,129. She had burned out her flues and had to be hauled to Grand Junction for repairs.

"That night about 10 o'clock, after I had passed down the Salt Lake express, I heard the freight coughing up the long grade from Clear Creek. There was a snowstorm raging, and the wind howled around the station like the mischief. When the overdue 9:20 pulled into the shelter of the big snowsheds on the wind swept summit, the first thing I asked was, 'Where's the dead engine?'

"'Behind the doghouse!' shouted the 'con.' But as I held my lamp above my head I failed to see it. I was just about to call his attention to it when, during a lull in the storm, we plainly heard the familiar rattle of the rails as the runaway engine flew at lightning speed down the mountain. No. 1,129 had broken loose and was tearing down the grade to destruction.

"I jumped and pulled the lever which opened the spur switches. This I knew would prevent a smashup, as the engine would run up on the switchback and come to a stop. But I was too late. Almost at the same instant I threw the lever a terrific explosion was heard from far down the mountain. The runaway had exploded."

"I thought you said a moment ago, Mr. Alquist," interrupted The Scimitar man, "that the locomotive was a 'dead one?' If she had no fire under her boiler, how could she explode?"

"That was the only thing I couldn't understand myself," the railroad man replied. "I could easily see how the dead engine could break loose on that grade, and I could understand not hearing its descent during such a howling blizzard, but the explosion floored me. The only theory which in any way solved the mystery was that the old bottle was blown up by compressed air.

"You see, when the engine broke loose from the freight and started down the mountain the pistons in the cylinders began to act as air compressors. During the rough trip up her throttle probably jarred open, and as the speed increased with every revolution of her drivers her boiler soon filled with compressed air. It was not long before those flying pistons had worked up a pressure of nearly 500 pounds to the square inch, which came in faster than it could escape by the safety valve, and before the old machine reached Clear Creek her boiler let go."

Wanted to See the President.

The Washington Star says that a big, gawky country lad went to the White House the other day just as the president had gone out for a morning stroll.

"I wants ter see the president," he announced to the first man he met.

"Well, there goes the president now," said the man addressed, pointing to the president's retreating form.

"Dern my time!" the young man ejaculated. "He walks just like any other man," and the fellow struck out so that he could get close enough to see the president well.

FAIR MILLBROOK.

Latest Budget of News from Peterborough Southern Suburb.

It affords us great pleasure in announcing that our previous suggestion has been responded to with such punctual alacrity by a number of our loyal citizens with the following noble and favorable result—A Red Cross entertainment will be given in the Town Hall on Thursday and Friday evenings, February 15 and 16, under a selected management of members of the different churches, who have secured the services of a large number of our best local talent as well as a number from Toronto and elsewhere. Messrs. Col. McLean and Major H. A. Ward, of Port Hope, will also be present and present the Fenian Raid medals to a number of our older heroes, who so gallantly served in protecting our country during the Fenian invasion. These gentlemen will also deliver patriotic addresses. The most prominent feature of the programme, will be the grand old play, "Temple of Fame," and beautiful tableau "Rule Brittania," in which fifty of our young ladies and gentlemen take part, and which no doubt will prove very interesting and instructive. We now take the opportunity of inviting those both far and near to attend the entertainment and make it a history breaker for our district, as it is one of the most noble and charitable works that can be done in looking after Tommy Atkins and his loved ones while he is upholding the banner that our forefathers so dearly bought, and shows the devotion and loyalty of all those who attend.

So let no obstacle or excuse stop you. If baby is sick leave it at the doctors, and if Alex. is thinking of Cupid's whispers, let him extend and swell the receipts in excess of all its predecessors.

Too much credit cannot be given Mrs. (Rev.) W. C. Allen, for the enterprising manner she took hold of the suggestion and bringing it to maturity, as she does all charitable works.

HOCKEY MATCH.

The long announced game between Keene and Millbrook Junior hockey teams took place at the open air rink Tuesday night, and proved a grand success so far as the game was concerned, although the spectators were not as numerous as might be expected, being more in favor of select euchre parties or penny readings although there is one excuse on the ladies' part, being the severe weather for standing under the shelter of the blue canopy. The ice also was anything but favorable, being rough and partly covered with snow, although no notice was taken of it after the whistle sounded. The game was a hot one from start to finish.

Mr. T. Nattrass, an old hockey player of the senior team was chosen as referee, and officiated in a very satisfactory manner.

As we have not been favored with the names of the Keene hockey team, we will have to omit the positions taken on the game, but when the game was called and whistle sounded our boys made a rush with the puck to their opponents' goal, and Mr. Will O'Brien succeeded in scoring, which was a very satisfactory beginning for the boys. When the whistle again sounded the Keene boys woke up and succeeded in rushing to the goal in a like manner, and succeeded in scoring. After that the game was a tight one, and neither side succeeded in scoring, although our boys claim they scored again, but however it being ruled out after considerable discussion by the referee. After playing for an hour and a half the score remained the same, and finally when time was called the score remained 1 to 1. The boys then adjourned to the restaurant, where, after doing justice to the good things, the Keene boys departed for home.

The Millbrook team intend playing the return game Tuesday evening, and we trust they will be successful.

Indian River.

The roads are in very fine condition at the present time. The farmers are more than delighted with the snow that fell on Monday last. They are hustling out their grain.

Mr. John Duff is greatly excited over the war, and many of the neighbors go to him for the latest news.

Mr. Dennis Sullivan was taken ill very suddenly last week. He is improving wonderfully at the present time.

Mr. T. R. Devlin met with an accident on Saturday last while removing some rails, breaking through the ice on the river and struggling for life when he was rescued by his brother. Owing to the swift current if help had not come it would have carried him under.

Mr. Kruger, from Caneville, was visiting friends in the town last week. Mr. A. White was glad to see him to have a talk about the diamond fields in Africa.

Mr. Charles Manley is engaged with Mr. Peter Walker for the winter, cutting shingles. Their machine is doing excellent work, cutting from fifteen to twenty thousand a day.

Mr. Dennis O'Brien has taken the contract of building a barn for Wm. Fitzgerald, 60 x 90. Well done, Dennis.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN.

SHOULD THE CZAR AND MIKADO COME TO BLOWS.

Comparison of the Military and Naval Forces Which They Could Put into the Field—Russia's Ponderance Would Be Three and a Half Times That of Japan on Water and Seven and a Half Times on Land.

Constant rumors of war preparations on the part of Russia and Japan have turned the eyes of the civilized world eastward. These two nations, one of which has figured prominently in all the modern history of Europe, and the other of which has but recently awakened from a hibernating sleep of centuries, are the two powerful political factors in the Eastern development, and both are seeking supremacy in the portion of the globe which they would dominate.

Close students of eastern politics have predicted that before the vexing questions were settled the two nations would clash over the complications which the questions have produced. That such a thing is possible the continual rush of military preparations on the part of both nations only serves to illustrate. The news columns of the daily press tell us, and reiterate the story day after day, that the Japanese Government is issuing rush orders to the firms of shipbuilders who are constructing new vessels for the Japanese navy, and the same thing is true of the Russian Government. Each day seems to bring the two powers nearer to the final arbitration of arms than to a peaceful diplomatic settlement of the questions causing the controversy. Japan is yet resentful over Russia's meddling with her settlement with China whereby she would have secured Corea had Russia not prevented such a settlement of the war in which Japan was victorious.

That their victory over China had much to do towards raising the Japs' estimate of their powers is certain, but should the good opinion of themselves produced by that conflict carry them to a clash with Russia the estimate of their powers would probably have a rude shock, unless they could make alliances which would override the preponderance which favors Russia's naval and military resources.

In view of the possibility of war between these two nations, a comparison of their naval and military strength is not without interest. On land both countries could put enormous armies in the field, but Russia's military resources in the number of men which she could muster for war if they were needed is so much greater than the best that Japan could do that a comparison seems farcical. The total strength of the army which the Czar could put in the field should occasion require it would be 7 1-2 times greater than any which the Mikado could muster to meet it.

The total force available for the military service of the Czar, including the active service, the reserve and men for the national defence, is 2,-790,000. To meet this force Japan could muster not more than 373,720. Even these figures, great as the comparison is, do not give the full extent of Russia's advantage. For the war of the present day the trained and organized troops are superior to the new levies, which lack not only the training and organization, but the equipments to fit them for the field as well. In this class Russia has still a greater advantage than that shown in the grand total of the forces of the two nations. In what she classes as her active service—that is, men thoroughly organised, disciplined and equipped—she has the enormous number of 1,269,000, while in the same class Japan has but 78,540.

In naval strength the comparison is not nearly so one-sided, although the Russian navy is far ahead of that of Japan in both men and ships. The number of Russian ships is 3 1-2 times greater than that of Japan, Russia having 240 vessels of all classes, to seventy for Japan. But such figures express a greater advantage than Russia possesses, for her navy is not as modern as that of Japan, and, besides, she has a greater proportion of light boats of the torpedo class than Japan has. Of the boats now being built both nations have almost an equal number, Russia having 39 and Japan 36 now under construction.

In men Russia has a naval force of 41,915 enlisted men to man the guns of her fleet, while Japan has but about 15,000 in the same class. But Japan has a larger class of seafaring men to recruit her naval service from than has Russia. In case of war the little island empire could place a large force of seafaring men afloat, recruited from the multitude of fishing and coasting craft in Japanese waters.

But any comparison of men and ships between the two nations would be far from complete without some reference to the conditions under which they would probably fight, as well as the inability of Russia to utilize her entire army in a warfare with the Japs.

A war between these two nations would undoubtedly be fought in the east, to reach which Russia would have to transport her troops across the wide reaches of Siberia. At the present time that would not be an easy matter to accomplish, for as yet the Siberian railway, of which so much is expected, is far from complete, and even that part of it which is finished is not equipped for the transportation of large bodies of troops. Russia would also have to maintain garrisons along the line of this road to prevent its destruction by unfriendly natives of Siberia; it would also be necessary to maintain the Russian army in Poland and along the Turkish border, all of which would reduce the total of the Russian force to a great degree and bring it much nearer the maximum force which Japan could put in the field against the armies of the Czar.

The story of love is as old as the world, and as all embracing as the universe. It furnishes the sentiment for all romances—all novels—all plays.

The novelist considers it wholly from the sentimental, intellectual side, but there is another aspect even more important—the physical side. Sentimental love between men and women leads to close physical association—to marriage—to the rearing of children. And so health must be considered. A weak, sickly, head-achey, back-achey woman cannot be a good, helpful wife. She cannot bear healthy, happy children. She cannot give her children the proper care and training.

A sick woman has no right to marry. A sick woman has no right to attempt motherhood.

But no woman need be sick unless afflicted with cancer. There is a sure way for her to regain her health. She need not go to a local doctor and submit to the disagreeable questionings, "examinations" and "local treatments" so invariably insisted upon, and so justly abhorrent to every modest woman.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has cured more cases of female weakness than any hundred local practitioners. He has proved that diseases distinctly feminine can be cured right in the privacy of home.

Write to him stating your symptoms and an account of your trouble and he will give your case careful, confidential consideration and prescribe for you free of charge.

Mrs. O. N. Fisher, of 1861 Lexington Avenue, New York City, writes: "I had been a sufferer from nervousness with all its symptoms and complications. In the spring of 1897 I began to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Now I am not cross and irritable. I have a good color in my face and have gained ten pounds."

DYING IS NOT DIFFICULT.

life. If death is ever painful, it is rarely, I am convinced of that.

Brought Back to Life.

"Mr. Myers, the London essayist, tells of a clergyman whom he knew who died and came back to life again. This death was as real to the clergyman as anything in his life had been. He was climbing the Alps with a party of friends and guides, and feeling tired he laid down for a little rest. He fell asleep and was soon freezing. As he froze he felt himself leaving his body, pulling out from the feet first, and gradually drawing up into the head. Then he stepped out entirely, all but a thin thread. He could look down on his body and see distinctly the thread-like connection. He could also see what would have been impossible had he stayed in the body, that is his friends and the guides going on up the mountain. They were hidden from view from the place where his body lay. He liked being out and he watched his friends with interest. He chuckled to see his own guide stealing some of the lunch.

After a little he saw the party turn round looking for him. Three some of them came back and found his body stiff. They were alarmed, and began rubbing him and giving to him stimulants. He did not like it, for he did not wish to go back into his body. But there was no help for it. His friends were so persistent in their efforts that he had to return. When he found himself back he awoke and told what he had seen. They were astonished, for he had seen everything just as it happened. He believes he had been dead for over an hour, and says what he saw proves this to himself."

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest auvantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an' expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its characte ,the publishers have contracted fo: its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been a ofavorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

DEATH TO BE THEIR FATE

EXTRAORDINARY PLAN FOR TREATING INCORRIGIBLE CRIMINALS.

California Discussing the Propriety of Exterminating Them. Striking Instances of Depravity Prompt the Crusade.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

The authorities of the state of California are seriously considering the advisability of passing al aw making incorrigibility among criminals a capital offense. In other words, criminals upon being taken into custody will be put through a thorough test by criminologists and if in their judgement the prisoner is totally depraved he will be condemned to die.

This radical step on the part of the state of California is prompted by the rapidly increasing crime in spite of alll the laws to subdue and suppress it. Criminologists and penologists have studied crime and criminals from every point of view and every effort has been made to enact laws that should have a reformatory effect upon those inclined to commit offenses against their fellow citizens, and yet it is admitted that crime, instead of becoming less frequent, is constantly increasing.

Many theories have been advanced as to the cause of these conditions and several remedies have been suggested, but none of these suggestions has attracted as much attention as the proposal from California that all habitual offenders should be put to death. What makes this proposed remedy more striking is that it comes at a time when nearly half the world is considering the advisability of the entire abolishment of the death penalty. In several countries laws making life imprisonment the extreme penalty have already been enacted, and the hanging of the Ansell girl in England was the means of inaugurating a crusade against capital punishment that has extended from one end of the United Kingdom to the other.

An Extraordinary Proposition.

For years a similar sentiment has been noticeable in this country and the mishaps that have attended recent executions have not tended to overcome such objections to the death penalty. The slow strangling to death of both men and women in instances where the gallows failed to break the neck of the person to be executed has made hanging seem more brutal than ever, while the roasting to death of several condemned murderers has a tendency to make humane men and women look upon electrocution with equal disfavor.

The proposal of the California lawmakers to enact new laws in which death shall be the punishment for all incorrigibles is, therefore, of the utmost importance to others who are interested in the prevention of crime and the reformation of the criminal. The simple fact is that for years eminent criminologists have held this opinion, but never before has any legislative body shown any disposition to consider the matter from such a purely scientific standpoint.

There is probably no penal institution of importance in the civilized world where there are not one or more incorrigible criminals who might well be disposed of. They are men who, while they are in full possession of their ordinary faculties, are naturally so vicious that it is impossible to reform them. The most rigid of prison rules have no effect upon them and in such cases kind treatment is wasted. As soon as they are released from their confinement they commit some other and often greater crime, and it is not long before they are behind the bars again.

In such instances criminologists have often held that it is better that the criminal should be dead than be permitted to remain a living menace to society. Of course, there are arguments both for and against this drastic method of dealing with habitual offenders, and it is not my object at this time to explain what certain California lawmakers propose to do and how they might successfully accomplish their object.

The Prompting Cause.

The direct cause of this crusade against the habitual criminal is a prisoner named Oppenheimer, who is confined in San Quentin prison. He is, without doubt, one of the worst criminals with whom the state has ever had to deal. He is absolutely vicious. He is utterly without moral sense. Three times he has attempted to murder his keepers, and they must be constantly on their guard to protect their lives. Neither kindness nor prison discipline has any effect upon him. To turn him loose upon the community would simply be to give him another opportunity to commit crime. Confined in the same prison there are several men whose records for total depravity are almost as black, and the fact that the time is approaching when these human fiends must be released is the cause of dread to every law-abiding citizen of the state.

According to the plan that has been suggested, therefore, the legislature at its next session will have the opportunity to pass a law providing for the extermination of all incorrigibles. In case such a law should pass a commission would be appointed to which cases of this nature would be referred. This commission would consist of alienists, criminologists whose experience had fitted them for such delicate duty, and their decision would be final. In reaching this decision, however, they would have to be guided by something more than the ordinary methods of justice. Of course the condition of the prisoner's brain would play an important part in their judgement, for there are persons criminally insane whose removal in this manner would scarcely be justified by any civilized government.

To the alienist, however, this would not be a particularly difficult matter, for if there should be any doubt as to the prisoner's sanity he could be sent to an asylum where his freedom could be fully restricted. After this question had been settled and a careful examination of the criminal's career and antecedents had been made there are other tests that might be applied that would be of the greatest service to the science of criminology. For instance, the theories of Bertillion and Lombroso could be put to the test and there is no doubt that many traits of the prisoners' character could thus be brought to light.

To Demonstrate Perversity.

One advantage of the Bertillion measurement, a system that has already been adopted in San Francisco would be the possibility of identifying habitual criminals whose records in other parts of the country would entitle them to receive the extreme penalty as incorrigibles in California. The reliability of this system has so long been recognized that it has become the standard method of measurement and identification in all parts of the world.

It is based upon the fact that after a person has attained full growth certain measurements of the body do not change. The length and width of the head, the length of the middle finger, the foot, the forearm, the outstretched arm, the height of the figure standing or seated remain the same. When a man has been individualized by measurements of this kind he can easily be mathematically identified. In fact, M. Bertillon has proved that what we call science is simply common sense carried to its utmost technical limits and reduced to its practical application.

While the theories of Lombroso and other exponents of degeneracy have by no means been proved to be always correct, the careful student of the male and female might well be considered by such a board of examiners as that which would be established in California, and if habitual offenders and incorrigibles were found to be distinguished by cranial, facial or other characteristics a great step would have been taken in the proper treatment of criminals. Until such theories have been proved, however, they could not be depended upon, but would have to be used more in the nature of circumstantial evidence.

Modes of Execution.

Another question that would follow the adoption of such a novel innovation in California would be the proper method of disposing of persons to be removed from their sphere of crime. The increasing tendency of popular opinion is certainly against the present methods of capital punishment. This is seen in the adoption of electricity as a substitute for the gallows, but it is an open question whether the change has been for the better. Mishaps in the electrical chair have been, comparatively speaking as frequent as accidents in cases where the rope has been used, and in such instances the horror of the scene is more terribly emphasized. For this reason many of those who believe in the application of the death penalty are strong exponents of the lethal chamber, a cell to which death would come quickly and without pain.

It is the general opinion that the best means of accomplishing this purpose would be by the use of either chloroform or ether, but Dr. W. G. Johnson, one of the most energetic of the defenders of this method of punishment, favors the adoption of hydrocyanic gas. In Japan the government is already considering the adoption of a similar method of inflicting the death penalty, but it really matters little whether one drug or another should be adopted. In either case the result would be the same. The death-dealing fumes could be conducted to the cell through pipes and the condemned would pass away as painlessly as if he were simply falling asleep. In these modern times, when the principle of the death penalty is absolute justice and not revenge, the more humane the method inflicting this punishment the less brutalizing will be the effect upon the community.

That some such method would have to be adopted in California, there can be no doubt, and all who are interested in the treatment of crime and criminals will watch the progress of this western crusade against incorrigibles with the greatest interest.

F APPENDICITIS, HOW TO TREAT IT.

HE POPULAR BELIEF THAT SEEDS SOMETIMES CAUSE THE TROUBLE IS UNFOUNDED.

There Are Two Forms of It.

Appendicitis, like nervous exhaus-on, has been popularly looked upon a disease of modern life. But in ality it must have existed under me name as long as any part of the uman mechanism has been subject to sion. It is a fact, however, that ng ago people did not know it when hey had appendicitis, and there are ractitioners to-day who retain enough the old fogy in their composition to sert that the people's ignorance in his respect was a good thing. If the d time, hand made doctors had nown what a boon the exploitation appendicitis would have been to eir profession they certainly would ave carved their patients just as eir modern, machine made brethren n. It is even claimed by these same d fogies that the victims of the disased condition of the vermiform apendix used to get well long before e word appendicitis apeared in the edical vocabulary and that the records of private practice show many ecoveries now without the aid of the urgeon's instruments. It is also asserted in the same quarters that there a reaction against the use of the knife. There are medical men, too, ho object to the term old fogy, both America and in Europe, who take his view of the matter.

Without attempting to go ino the rofessional merits of the arguments dvanced by the knifers and the antiknifers, some of the main facts in regard to appendicitis which will tend o popularize accurate knowledge of he disease in the public mind may ere be stated.

If the disease itself is not modern, he name of it certainly is. In the ast issue (1898) of the index-catalogue of the surgeon general's office of the United States army the word appendicitis first appears. And so extensive has medical literature become nder this head within the last few years that references to articles and ssays and pamphlets on the subject, printed in the smallest type, now occupy twenty-five columns, or more han twenty pages, of the index. In he fist volume of the same catalogue, ssued in 1880, appendicitis does not ppear at all, but under the older ame appendix veriformis there are hree or four pages of titles referring o writings on the disease.

Dr. Senn's Experience.

Dr. Senn says:—"During the last few years so much literature on the surgical treatment of inflammatory affections of the appendicitis has accumulated on this subject has become somewhat threadbare and confusing. I have performed at least 150 operations for lesions of the appendix. The present knowledge concerning appendicitis and its complications is largely the result of the work of American surgeons. The surgeon must to-day bring more convincing proof of the correctness of his treatment than the simple recovery from the operation. He must give the reasons for the necessity for operative intervention in order to convince the members of the profession of the correctness of the ground taken by a number of surgeons, that the appendix should be inmoved when it is the seat of an innearly all rules, and the surgery of the appendix veriforms is not sufficiently advanced to enable us to lay down cast-iron rules as to when and when not to operate. fective lesion. There are exceptions to "Pelvic surgery has been degraded by the modern 'furor operativus,' and the same fate threatens the surgery of the appendix. The conscientious surgeon must bring his work in consonance with the pathologic conditions which he is expected to correct or remove. I have for a long time been convinced that appendicitis is an infective disease, caused by pathogenic microbes that reside in the normal intestinal canal and exercise their specific pathologic qualities in the appendix whenever the essencial locus minoris resistentiate is produced by other conditions. From a bacteriologic aspect the appendix may be regarded as an open test tube, and the retained secretions a culture medium."

Popular Fallacy on Seeds.

There is a popular and false notion that appendicitis is caused by a grape or orange seed or other foreign substance getting into the vermiform appendix. The true cause is the setting up of inflammation and consequent gangrene in the tissue of the appendix, usually due to the insufficient circulation of the blood in the part itself. In thousands of operations which have taken place, many in time to save the life of the patient and many too late—there is not one authenticated case of a foreign substance, such as a seed, being found in the appendix. This will be the more fully realized when one has in mind that the interior of the appendix is big enough to admit only a medium-sized darning needle, its great liability to disease is due entirely to its low order of vital resistance. It is an organ which appears to have no actual function in the present machinery of man. Some say that in the earlier stages of man's development it was a large pouch which played an important part in the digestive operations. Through ages of disuse it has gadually shrunk to its present dimensions, and is known to science as a vestrigal organ, one which is only a remnant of its former self, and possesses but a vestige of its original uses. The tonsils and the wisdom teeth are in the same class, and both are peculiarly subject to disease. They are atrophied from disease, and therefore unable to throw off their enemies, as do the stomach and lungs, the heart and the intestines, the blood vessels and the nerves, which are in constant working order.

Appendix Sometimes Displaced.

The tonsils are so situated that they can be treated or removed without serious difficulty. But the appendix is in one of the most delicate and vital parts of the body, in the peritoneal cavity, usually to the right of the centre of the abdomen. In rare instances, however, it has been found on the left side, and still more rarely otherwise misplaced. This discovery, made a few years ago, has caused the surgeons to be extremely careful to locate the trouble before using the knife.

When it was proved, within a comparatively recent period, that the poison which produced septic peritonitis came from the breaking down or decay of the appendix, the very root of one of man's worst physical enemies was laid bare. Further practice established beyond a doubt that, in a large majority of cases, the appendix could be removed by a simple surgical operation and the patient restored to vigorous health, if the disease was discovered in time and correctly diagnosed. The surgeons now regard the operation itself as one of the most simple, but to obtain the best results it should take place within a few hours after the patient begins to suffer from the disease. In fact, the sooner the operation is had, the better are the chances of recovery, while if the knife is not resorted to death is sure to ensue very promptly, or after lingering miseries from the deadly poison coursing through the system and coming to the surface in abscesses. What is known as catarrhal appendicitis, without signs of abscess formation, is said to be frequently cured without the intervention of surgery by active purgation or flushing of the system, combined with local massage. Dr. Murphy says, however, that every case, promising or unpromising, should be treated by surgical operation at the earliest possible moment.

How to Tell Appendicitis.

In appendicitis, whether catarrhal or ulcerative, the symptoms are so plain and unmistakable to the surgeon of to-day, that any sufferer may know them for himself. The attack is always sudden, and presents itself usually in a previously healthy person It begins with sudden, intense pain in the abdomen, whether the appendix be in its correct place on the right side or displaced to the left. A sore and very tender spot, very painful to the touch, is located exactly where the incision must be made to find the appendix. Nausea and vomiting are present in the majority of cases, but these do not furnish any information as to the seriousness of the case. The pulse is usually high, but the temperature chart shows little, if any, rise.

Why are statesmen and public men peculiarly subject to appendicitis? The simple catarrhal form is usually caused by constipation or indiscretion in diet. The ulcerative form, in which the inflammation is usually produced by faecal concretions of foreign bodies, gradually proceeds to ulceration. An opening is formed near the apex of the organ, and the concretion or foreign body escapes, with septic discharges, into the abdominal cavity. Varying complications follow.

Commoner in Men Than Women.

Thus it is that many sudden deaths occur to persons in robust health. They are thought to have a colic or a vertigo, when the truth is that miserable and useless little organ, the appendix, has met with some kind of an accident clogs the whole machine. It emits the poison of death into the most delicate part of the system. Appendicitis occurs much oftener in men than in women, the ratio being about four to one. No age is exempt from it; it has been seen in a child of 2 and in a man of 80. But it usually occurs between the ages of 10 and 30 years. It is extremely rare above or below those ages. Excluding deaths from certain zymotic diseases, deaths from appendicitis exceed in number those from any other acute abdominal lesion. It is by far the most common cause of peritonitis in men, and is not an uncommon cause in women. Taking 100 consecutive cases in which operations were performed as a basis, the Medical Record states that, while the surgical death rate was 2 per cent., it was shown in that particular series that at least 28 per cent. would have died eventually under medical treatment.

A Reconstructant for Women

Paine's Celery Compound

Rebuilds and Strengthens the Disease-Injured System.

It Bestows on Women What They Most Require.

Full Nervous Energy and Rich, Nourishing Blood.

The System is Perfectly and Permanently Built Up.

The healthy, vigorous and ruddy-cheeked woman with bright and sparkling eyes is a joy to all around her. At home and abroad she attracts the old and young, and her influence is all-powerful.

The half-sick and invalid woman is a sad sight, and her presence chills the very atmosphere that surrounds her.

Backache, sideaches, headaches, neuralgia, nervous prostration, irregularities, rheumatism and liver and kidney complaints seem to be the peculiar misfortunes of women of every class.

To the women who suffer from any of the ills mentioned, Paine's Celery Compound comes in as the great reconstructant, bringing to sick women the great essentials of health—full nervous energy and rich, nourishing blood.

Thousands of testimonials from women establish the fact that when Paine's Celery Compound is used the nerves are braced, tissue is built up, poisons are expelled, the blood is made pure, the brain is clear and active, and the cloudless face and beaming eyes proclaim a condition of perfect health.

See that you get the genuine Paine's Celery Compound; see that the name "Paine's" and the Stalk of Celery appear on the wrapper and bottle.

WOULDEN'T KNUCKLE DOWN.

And the Duke of Cumberland Remained Deprived of a Dukedom.

There is to be a Duke of Brunswick in future after a lapse of 14 years. When the old Duke of Brunswick died in 1884, the present Duke of Cumberland as the senior male member of the royal British line of Guelph should have succeeded to the throne. But the late Emperor William and Prince Bismarck would not permit this until the Duke of Cumberland solemnly abandoned his pretensions to the throne of Hanover, recognized the absorption of Hanover by Prussia and furnished guarantees that as one of the sovereign princes of the confederation known as the German Empire, he would submit to the King of Prussia's presidency of the confederation. This the Duke of Cumberland would not do and against his protest Prince Albert of Prussia was installed as regent. The latter no longer will act in this capacity and naturally a new Duke of Brunswick is looked for.

The new duke is found in the person of Prince George, son of the Duke of Cumberland. A few years ago an understanding took place, according to which the Duke of Cumberland agreed that his son might give the assurances demanded by Prussia which he himself is debarred by solemn promise to his late father from furnishing. And this it comes about that the present year will see a new Duke of Brunswick installed.

The present Duke of Cumberland is the grandson of that Duke of Cumberland who was the fifth and most infamous of all the sons of King George III. and who on the accesion of his niece, Queen Victoria, to the throne of England, succeeded to the crown of Hanover, from which she as a woman was debarred.

Innumberable crimes are laid at the door of this Duke of Cumberland and King of Hanover, including that of the appalling murder of his confidential valet, Senlis, in St. James Palace. The mother of Senlis, unable to get justice, owing to the rank of her boy's assassin cursed the duke in the most bloodcurdling manner.

Whatever was the result of these curses, the fact remains that the duke's only son, the late King of Hanover, was born blind, and that his grandson, the present Duke of Cumberland, was born without a nose, the present one being of an artifical character.

These men belonged to St. Catharines, Orillia, Niagara Falls, and Kingston. Twelve belonged to the first named place, two to Orillia, three to Niagara Falls and ten to Kingston. Lieut.-Col. Stone intends disbanding the 5th Kingston Field Battery and replacing it with a garrison company to be commanded by Lieut.-Col. W.M. Drennan. He claims the 5th Kingston Field Battery has not been up to the standard for the past few years.

Government has to Hustle.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 8.—"The blow that killed father," as Hon. A. G. Blair said when the address passed, seems to have fallen rather heavily upon the Ministers. Council sat until 11.45 last night and are again to-day holding solemn conclave with a view to formulating business to keep the House going. Fortunately for them yesterday and to-day belong to the private members, and so some breathing space is afforded the Government in the matter.

Hon. Dr. Borden this morning stated that it would be many days before he could make any announcement concerning the Lord Strathcona Horse.

A Conservative caucus was held this morning when committees were appointed for organization, to take up the question of campaign literature and to consider the necessary alterations in the election law.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 7, 1900

THE LESSON OF THE WAR.

Amid the mass of deductions, conclusions and lessons drawn from the present war in South Africa, one lesson stands out with black on white distinctness that the soldier of the future must know how to shoot. Drill sergeants may drill him in evolutions till corns grow on his feet, but though he may manoeuvre ever so beautifully, keep time never so accurately, and dress never so rigidly, the soldier of the future who can't shoot and shoot straight at that will be nothing more nor less than useless mouth for his own commissariat to fill and a useful target for the enemy to shoot at. The part that manoeuvering and drill tactics have played in the present war have been insignificant, while the part that has been played by the accurate Boer riflemen has been conspicuous and deadly.

Less time in drill shed and on parade ground and more time at the rifle butts is the stern lesson taught by the present war.

The officers of the 57th should see to it that the lesson, as far as Peterborough's home battalion is concerned, is well learned.

PETERBOROUGH IN 1876.

WHAT THE TOWN WAS DOING 24 YEARS AGO.

Many once Familiar Names Now Sound Strange—Interesting Items, Social and otherwise.

Having a file of the Times since its inception in 1872, I take the liberty of jotting down a few items that I think will interest your readers, especially the older residents of the town.

In January 1876, Wm. Toole and George Edmison were candidates for mayor, the former being elected by 130 majority.

In December of 1875 a public meeting was held to devise means of supplying work to the unemployed of the town. Mr. George E. Shaw, manager of the Ontario Bank, acted as secretary. After a good deal of discussion, in which Rev. V. Clementi, Messrs. W. Cluxton, Toker, T. Cahill, W. Helm, Dr. Kincaid, Geo. A. Cox, T. G. Hazlitt, James Stevenson and others took part, a resolution was passed appointing a committee to interview Mr. John Fowler in regard to having work on the Ontario & Quebec Railway begun.

Adam Dobbin had the contract for watering the streets for $75 per year in 1876.

In the Times of Jan. 8 the wedding notice of Mr. Frank Dobbin of the Review, to Miss Florence Jones, appears.

The late Mr. Wm. Cumming was appointed collector of taxes, constable, health inspector at a salary of $500 in 1876, Geo. Johnston, chief constable, got the job at $300, but had a lot of other little offices without salary.

Mr. [illegible] (father of our popular young townsman, Mr. C. N. Brown) has an advertisement in the Times in Feb. 1876, of his watchmaking business.

Mr. James Walsh (Uncle Jim) was Market Clerk in 1876. He paid $950 for the tolls.

A petition was presented to the Council on March 6, asking to have a proper audit of the corporation accounts. The petition was signed by Messrs. Wm. Lundy, W. Cluxton, John Garvey, John Erskine, Lasher & Lowry, Geo. A. Cox, A. W. Kempt, W. H. Taylor, M.D., D. Leyray, J. O. LeBrun, W. B. Mathias, Luke Fisher, F. & J. Mercer, Shortly & Hazlehurst, Robt. Brown, P. D. Doran, Robt. Kingan, Thos. Rountree, W. J. Mason, McDonald & Elder, John Clifford, Henderson & Cluxton, T. Menzies and others.

On March 25 Mr. Thomas Menzies showed The Times the plans for his new house which he subsequently erected and which is now known as the Menzie School.

On April 1 Mr. Dan Haggart was elected to the council to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Wm. Helm.

In the Times of April 8 appears the following item—"Mr. Chas. Perry, Ex-M.P., went to Ottawa on Tuesday, in consequence of the serious illness of his father, Hon. E. Perry."

In the same issue is a notice of Messrs. W. McIlain & Son having purchased during six months, 102,000 bushels of grain.

On April 15th the Times came out strongly in favor of a cattle market, such as is now in operation by Mr. H. P. Kennedy.

List of hotel licences in 1876 —Allan Huffman, Huffman House; Mrs. Morgan, Commercial House; Wm. Croft, Smith House; E. Phelan, Phelan House; R. Roddy, Stewart House; John Dunlop, Revere House; J. Brault, Montreal House; J. Wilson, Royal Oak; John Sullivan, Peterborough House; A. P. Morgan, Chambers' House; N. Preneveau, Railroad House; John Moloney, Cassie House; G. Berabell, Faucher's Hotel; T. Cavanagh, American Hotel; M. Halpin, Dublin House.

The Steamer Golden Eye was launched on April 29 by Mr. Calcutt.

The census of the town showed a population of nearly 7,000.

On June 2nd a child aged 3 years fell from the upper window of the store now occupied by Mr. Sutcliffe, striking the telegraph wires in its fall. Dr. O'Sullivan was sent for, and after a hard struggle pulled the little one through. That child is now mayor of Cleveland, Ohio.

In the Times of July 8 appears the marriage notice of Mr. John Carnegie to Miss Francis, eldest daughter of Mr. Wm. Snyder.

Mr. Allan Huffman began selling lager—the first in Peterborough—on August 7th. Now we have a lager beer brewery of our own.

The Times of August 26th contains a notice of the birth of a son to Mr. Edward Thompson. This baby is now Mr. W. J. Thompson, insurance agent, of Davis, Thompson & Co.

On Friday, September 8, Messrs. R. B. McKee, W. Davidson, Robt. Hall, and James Davidson started for the Continental exhibition at Philadelphia.

On Sept. 30th a man named Bluestone undertook to horsewhip the editor of the Times, with the result that he was in the hospital for three weeks. Better to tackle the hind leg of a mule than monkey with the editor of this g.f.j.

DYING IS NOT DIFFICULT.

DOCTORS AND NURSES AGREE THAT DEATH IS USUALLY PAINLESS.

When a Sick Man Fears to Die He's Not Yet in Serious Peril. Widow Decided to Live and Look After Her Own Property.

It is easy to die, the physicians say, dead easy, and it does not hurt. Nor is it a fearful thing for the man or the woman doing it. On the contrary, it is the most natural of all things except birth. Of the two episodes, birth and death, birth has all the pain, as those who are born declare by weeping. Those who die never weep. So the Persian proverb hath it, 'You wept while you came into the world, while those about you laughed; so live that when you die you smile and those about you weep." The Persians were a great people in the days of this proverb, and speaking generally the world has lived up to the ancient injunction. It could not live any other way.

Physicians, nurses in hospitals, and clergymen are by more often than other folk when persons die, and they testify to the painlessness of death and even to its restfulness. One physician of experience says that, excepting what newspapers call "casualties," death comes easily and without terror.

"I knew a man in a western town," he said, "who was haunted by the fear of death. He could not throw off the feeling of dread, do what he would. He became almost a monomaniac on the subject, and without apparent reason, for he was hearty and strong, had a good wife, a good appetite, and a prosperous business. I knew him for years, and until eighteen months ago he was all right except for this terror of death. Finally and most unexpectedly he was taken ill and died. When he was first down he was in a fearful state of mind, but as he grew worse the terror left, and when he knew there was practically no hope for him he was quiet enough, didn't worry, but put his affairs in order, said good-by and went to sleep far more peacefully than he had done when he was well.

Danger With the "Don't Care" Stage.

"A man is not exceedingly ill so long as he is afraid he is going to die. It is when he comes to the 'don't care' stage that the end is near. The sicker he is the less he cares. When his desire to live weakens there is not much for the physician to do unless he can stimulate him to mental effort. The dying man is tired and would rest; it is more difficult to stimulate him mentally than it is to keep a sleepy child awake. Sometimes the shock of surprise will do it.

"I remember the case of a widow who had left to her the charge of a farm out in Michigan. She was a good business woman and did wonders with the land until it was one of the best pieces of property in the county. Then, having worked long and hard, she fell ill, and her physician, giving up hope of her recovery, advised her to make her will. She was low and could only whisper when the lawyer came. He had great difficulty in catching her words, and had to keep his ear close to her lips to understand what she was talking about. She went over a list of trinkets and household belongings she wished relatives and friends to have for keepsakes, and then, after a long pause which made the lawyer and the doctor think the end had come, the articulated whisper began again. The widow was telling what she wished to have done with the farm. 'But you have only a life interest in the farm,' said the lawyer. 'It does not belong to you to bequeath.'

"'What!' said the woman on the edge of the graves, raising her head from the pillow. 'Do you mean to say this farm I've worked on for the last ten years and made the best one in all the county ain't my own to do just what I like with?'

"'Only yours to live on,' said the lawyer.

"'Then I ain't going to die.'

"And she didn't. She lived nearly twenty years longer and made enough money to buy two more farms, which she took much satisfaction in declaring were her own to will as she would.

Horror at a Hospital Death.

"When I say that death is painless I have some cases in mind which a layman might think proved just the contrary. For instance, at the hospital one day I saw a man suffering acute Bright's disease and told the nurse to give him a hot bath—that is, to wrap him in a blanket she had first put into boiling water and then wrung out. I stripped the man and laid him out, ready for the blanket. The nurse was in a hurry and did not wait for the water to get hot before she soaked the blanket, and when she brought it, as I found out a few moments later, it was cold.

"The instant it touched the patient he stiffened and his body lengthened, I should say, three inches, while his eyes literally burst from their sockets. A stroke with a stick would have knocked them off. If ever a face showed agony, his did. It was horrible, and, hardened as physicians become, I was faint. It all happened so suddenly and unexpectedly. In a short time the man was dead, but he had not suffered, at least not consciously, and without consciousness one does not know pain. The moment of the chill of that cold blanket was the last moment of the patient's conscious

FAMOUS BANK ROBBERIES

HOW ONE THIEF BOUGHT A TITLE WITH THE SWAG.

Big Scoop Made in New York when the Robbers Got Away With Nearly $3,000,000—Other Notable Operations.

Recent bank robberies, notably the robbery at Lima, O., where not even a clew was left as to how the safe, which was regarded as being absolutely secure, was opened, call to mind other famous operations of crooks of which banks were the victims.

A remarkable case was that of Baron Schoenbrun. Schoenbrun came to his baronetcy in Belgium, where, with part of the proceeds of his successful operations in the Ocean Bank, New York, he purchased the title.

Schoenbrun, now, by the way, doing a five-year term in prison for an attempt on a banking institution in Massachusetts, used his acute sense of hearing in deciphering combinations. So keen was the fellow's ear that he was able to detect the ticks in the combination as he turned the knob, and in this manner got away with $45,000 in the office of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company at Wilkesbarre.

The same means were used in the Ocean Bank case, and the sum netted ran into six figures. Schoenbrun fled to Belgium, and under the protection of a country which has no extradition treaty with the United Staes, squandered his fortune. He was caught there, however, after dissipating his ill-gotten wealth, in the basement of a bank in Brussels, was driven out of the country, and came back incog to the United States. The Pinkertons finally landed the "baron" for an attempt on a bank in Massachusetts.

Scooped in Nearly $3,000,000.

The biggest bank robbery of the century, still fresh in the minds of the police officials of the large cities, took place on the morning of October 27 1878, when the combination of the vaults of the Manhattan Bank in New York City were mastered and $2,747,700 in money and bonds carried away. Three years previously a syndicate of some of the foremost burglars in America was organized to plan this daring robbery. Chief among its members were George Leonidas Leslie, "Jimmy" Hope, "Jim" Brady, "Abe" Coakley, "Red" Leary, "Shang" Draper, "Johnnie" Dubos, "Worcester Sam" Perris, "Banjo Pete" Emerson, William Kelly Mother Mandelbaum, known as the "Queen of Fences," and John D Grady, who ran what is called the "Bank of the Burglars." Most of the expenses were borne by the last two.

The robbery was an "inside" job from the start and was managed chiefly by Draper. The thieves believed that the combination of the lock of the vault could be easily discovered, and the task of finding how it could best be accomplished was assigned to the mechanic of the clique, Leslie. He bought one of the same make of used on the Manhattan vaults and began experiments. He found that the combination could be thrown out of gear, and the noches of the tumblers, of which there were four, brought into line by boring a hole under the indicator, and working the tumblers around with a fine piece of steel inserted in the hole. When this was accomplished it was decided to introduce a confederate into the service of the bank.

First Attempt Failed.

After months of scheming this was successful and a few weeks later Leslie was admitted into the bank after night by the confederate. After attempting the same experiments with the vault locks that he had accomplished with his dummy he was delighted to find that he could throw two of the tumblers into line. The work was done under a black screen which shaded his light from the passers-by in the street. He did not succeed in moving all the tumblers, and, puttying up the hole he had drilled, he left the bank to complete his undertaking later. Owing to his nervousness, for the job was a daring one, Leslie forgot to place the dislodged tumblers in their original positions. The consequence was that in the morning the vault could not be opened, and the manufacturer had to be sent for. The plugged hole was discovered, but strangely enough, the bank officers took little notice of the circumstances.

A Nervy Act.

Later, after another confederate, a private watchman, was introduced into the employ of the bank, the attempt was repeated with success. The janitor and his family, who lived below the bank, were gagged and bound and the vault was opened. During the operation the officer on the beat passed the window and looked in as he usually did on his rounds. The only one of the robbers in sight was in his shirtsleeves. At sight of the officer he began to dust the furniture, nodding to the policeman as he did so. The sight was a familiar one, and the officer passed on without a suspicion that anything was wrong.

The discovery of the robbery created the greatest excitement and the police forces and detective agencies of the large cities began a systematic search for the robbers. In May the following year Patrick Shevin, the confederate watchman, was arrested, and a confession from him led to the arrest of Hope, Kelly, Coakley and Emerson, and a number of other noted criminals who were suspected. Hope and Kelly were convicted.

An Exciting Capture.

About three years ago the bank at Eldon, in West Iowa, was robbed. Nitroglycerine was used in blowing off the vault doors. Little booty was secured, but the daring manner in which the work was done and the desperate shooting affray that attended the capture of two of the burglars at Council Bluffs, Ia., the day after, attracted great attention at the time.

Deputy Sheriffs O'Brien and Hooker at Council Bluffs located the men in a hotel within a block of the jail and the sheriff's office. They were in bed, and surrendered when the officers covered them with their revolvers. They treated arrest as a joke, denied being the men wanted, and dressed leisurely. They went to the hotel barroom with the deputy sheriffs and had a drink, after which they started for the sheriff's office to talk the matter over.

As they reached the Court House steps one of the bank robbers jumped ahead, turned swiftly and fired, hitting O'Brien in the side. The officers returned the fire, bringing one of their prisoners down in his tracks. The man who opened the battle got away, but the third man was caught. O'Brien recovered, as did the wounded robber. The man who escaped was Pat Reilly, a famous cracksman. He was captured a year later in Pennsylvania.

Other famous robberies during the years of the notorious Leslie's career, and with which he and his band were believed to be connected, were those of the Kensington National Bank, in April, 1872, and the Lycoming Insurance Company of Muncy, Penn., In the same year $140,000 was netted from the robbery of the National Bank of Baltimore. The robbery of the Ocean National Bank, of New York, on June 27, 1869, netted the thieves $766,879

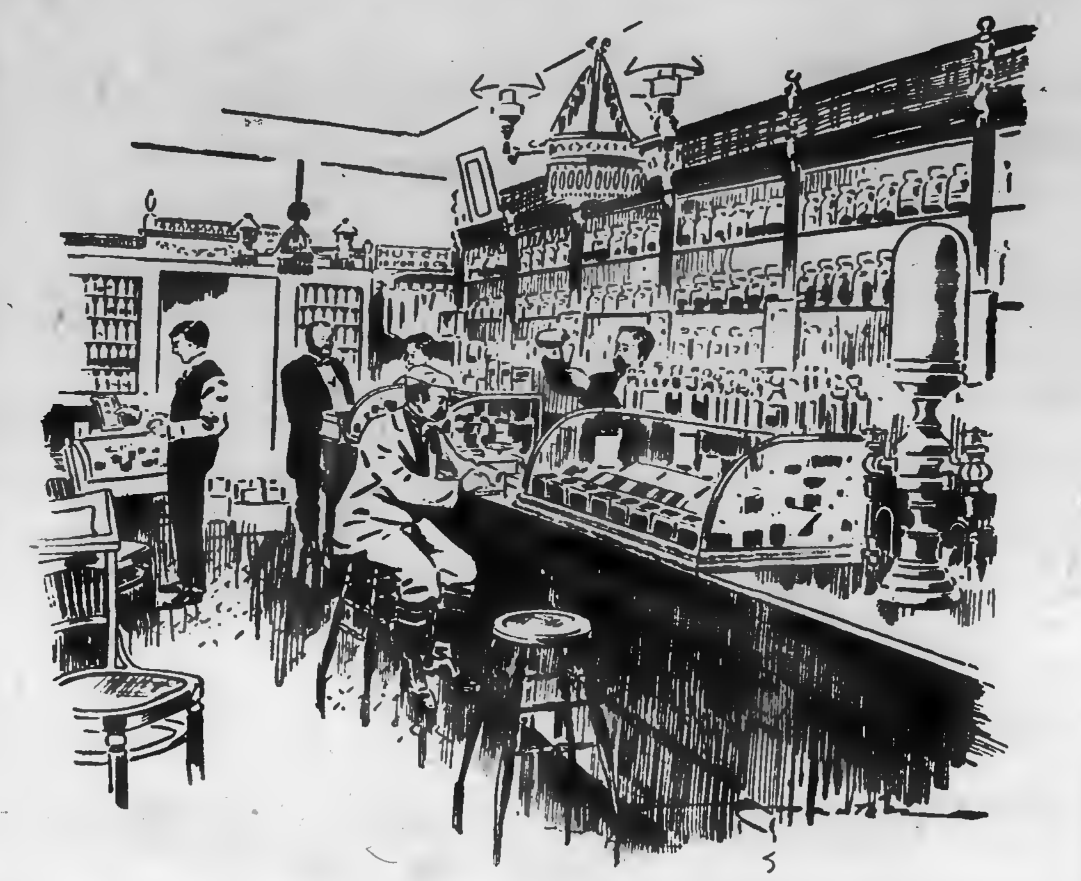
He Recommends Hutch.



George Marshall, Esq., Toronto, has an ideal dispensary at the corner of Queen and Berkeley Streets. Mr. Marshall is one of the foremost druggists in Canada and has the reputation of being a very skilful and careful drug preparer. Mr. Marshall stated that Hutch was being used most extensively in his locality and he had heard it endorsed on all sides. He recommended Hutch for dyspepsia and all stomach ailments and was satisfied that it was efficacious.

Never before has any dyspepsia treatment received the class of testimonials accorded Hutch. When business men—those noted for their keen progressiveness—are compelled to write its praises, it will be seen how marvelous must needs be Hutch's potency.

HELD UP FOR A BEER BILL.

Amusing Experience That Happened to Two Belgian Princes.

Members of royal families are continually getting into odd and embarrassing predicaments for want of money. Traveling with a suite a prince has no need to concern himself with the base details of dickering and paying for what he needs. Traveling incognito he is all too likely to forget all about the needful coin, and even if he be not incognito seperation from the royal suite involves utter helpness.

Last month, Prince Philip, count of Flanders, brother of the King of the Belgians, went with his son, Prince Albert, up to Couillet, near Ghent, for a few days' shooting. Father and son, in company, wandered to some little distance from their beaters, and, on catching sight of a little inn on the edge of the wood, became conscious of an unquenchable thirst. They stopped for a glass of beer, paid for it and lingered for another. The prince put his hand in his pocket and found there only a coin big enough to pay a quarter of the trifling bill. He turned to his father. He hadn't a sou. The fat Flemish hostess began to berate her royal guests for misberale blackguards "trying to swindle a poor struggling woman"—and set her back against the door to await payment.

"But I am the Count of Flanders!" protested the older prince.

"Count of rotten potatoes!" the woman rejoined. "And you," she said, crushingly, to the younger delinquent; "you are his majesty the King, doubtless!" Prince Albert protested that he was only a nephew to the King. "By the same token let me present you to her majesty," and the wrathful woman drew herself up and bowed with painful hauteur. The allusion to his aunt in connection with the greasy dame before him struck his royal highness as the funniest thing in a year, and he went offinto peal after peal of laughter, in which his father joined. The woman was now at the point of belaboring the men with a bottle, when a couple of gamekeepers arrived. Then came the usual profuse apologies, and the gamekeepers between them raised the price of the royal drink.

"THE WHITE MAN'S BURDEN!"

What more appropriate name could be applied to that most insidious and universal of diseases--Catarrh--which affects nine hundred of every thousand of our people.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder has proved itself a wonderful power in lifting the burden---a dove of peace in the battle for health.

It makes life worth living—it helps in a hurry and it cures permanently—relief in 10 to 60 minutes.

So-called cures come and go and hardly a week passes but some new claimant as a cure for catarrh presents itself only to fall in its mission, add another disappointment to the long list of disappointments in the line of permanent cures for this most universal and distressing disease.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder has been for many years before the public as the surest, safest, most harmless, quickest and most permanent treatment for Catarrh, Hay Fever, Cold in the Head, Sore Throat, Influenza, Catarrhal Deafness, Headache and Tonsilitis, That it has proved its work thousands of times, east, west, north and south, over the whole continent, is allowed by the thousands of unsolicited testimonials that have been received by those who have suffered from the Catarrh Malady in all its forms, and for periods of suffering, whether the limit of a few days of Influenza or Cold in the Head to the cure of stubborn and deep-seated Catarrh of the Head and Nose, covering the almost incredible period of fifty years.

Apart from the splendid evidence of the curative powers of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder received from people of all ranks and conditions of men, from the laborer in the street to the judge on the bench. The most eminent nose and throat specialists concede it the greatest cure, give it their unqualified endorsation and show their practical faith in it by using it in their daily practice.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder goes right to the seat of the trouble. It attacks the disease, removes the cause, cleanses and heals the parts quickly and permanently. The treatment is simple, the applications are easily made, perfectly painless, and in ten to sixty minutes after applying, relief follows. It's so wonderfully searching, and yet so soothing, comfort comes like magic.

Mrs. M. Greenwood, of 204 Adelaide street west, Toronto, says, in substantiation of the claims of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder — "I am so well pleased with Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder and the good results derived from it, that I hardly know how to express myself. For years I was a great sufferer from Catarrh in the Head and Throat. I tried many remedies without getting relief until I began using Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. A few applications gave me great comfort and relief. I continued using it, and now every vestige of the trouble has gone, and words fail me to express the gratitude I feel at being freed from this loathsome disease."

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart stops palpitation, smothering, shortness of breath, pains about the heart, gives relief in 30 minutes.

Dr. Agnew's Ointment.— When the skin seems fairly on fire from itching skin diseases, one application will give quick and permanent relief.

There is evidently a heap of trouble ahead for those who engaged in the cocking main which took place in the Orange Hall, Frazerville, on the night of Jan. 9th. A reward of $100 is offered for the conviction of the parties engaged in the fight. It is said that the authorities already have a list of those who were present, and which, we are told, will be given the Times for publication at an early date.

A Sad Death.

It is with sincere sorrow the Times is compelled to chronicle the death of Miss Carrie Austin, which sad event occurred yesterday morning. She was but 14 years of age, and enjoyed the best of health up to a few days ago, when she caught cold, which was followed by pneumonia. Everything that medical skill could do was done, but without avail. Mr and Mrs. Austin have the sympathy of the community in their great sorrow.

Leaving Town.

Mrs. Shields, who is about to take up her residence with her daughter in Orillia, was met by a number of her friends and church members in the Methodist church parlors. Mrs. Shields, during 25 years of active church membership, has won the love and respect of all who have the pleasure of her acquaintance. She carries with her to her new home the hearty good wishes, in which the Times cordially joins, of many Peterborough friends.

County Maps.

Only a few copies of the splendid new map of Peterborough County left. Mounted on canvas with wooden rollers $3.00; paper 50 cents. Times Bookstore.

A PROSPEROUS COMPANY.

Elsewhere will be found a report of the fifteenth annual meeting of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, which took place at the head office of that institution, Peterborough, on Thursday, Feb. 8th.

The financial statement shows gross earnings of $94,945.39, being an increase of several thousand dollars over previous years. After payment of interest on debentures and on deposits there remains a net profit of $43,622.45. From this was paid two half yearly dividends of 3 per cent each, and $5,000 transferred to Reserve Fund, there remained $2,622.45 to be carried to the Contingent Fund, increasing it to $9,219.29. The Reserve Fund now stands at $120,000, being 20 per cent on the paid up capital of $600,000.

The President and directors have just reason to feel proud of the results of the year's operations. The carefulness with which the affairs of the company have been managed in the past, is proof that prosperity will continue, and that other and greater successes is assured in the future.

Double Trading Stamps.

For the next few days double trading stamps will be given at the Times Bookstore. Our stock of fancy goods will be cleared out at cost to make room for fresh importations.

The Skating Carnival.

The first carnival of the season took place last night at the skating rink, and was a moderate success. The rink was tastefully decorated with flags and bunting by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons. The number in costume was not so great as on some former occasions, but there was, nevertheless, a fair turn out. The various prizes were competed for and awarded.

A Fabulous Fortune.

A few days ago our genial fellow-townsman, Mr. Dan Belleghem, received a letter from Madrid, Spain, purporting to come from a lady who claims to be a relative, stating that she has nearly half a million dollars in hiding, and that she has been arrested. She needs help, and appeals to her Peterborough relative, promising him 25 per cent. of the stake for his assistance. While it must be gratifying to Mr. Belleghem to realize that he is so well known on both sides of the Atlantic, it is not likely that he will respond with the necessary cash. There was a time in friend Dan's career that such an appeal would not have been in vain, especially when it came from some fair one, but that day has gone never to return. The lady is likely to remain in limbo so far as Mr. Belleghem is concerned.

Served Him Right.

At the police court yesterday morning, H. Thompson, a driver of a delivery rig, was before the magistrate on a charge of swearing on the street, aloud. The offence took place on George street yesterday at noon and was heard by the Chief who laid the information. The accused pleaded guilty and offered as an excuse that he had been struck by a snow ball. Nevertheless he was fined $1 and $3.75 costs. The magistrate expressed himself strongly on the matter and stated that the offence must be stopped.

Pleasantly Entertained.

The officers, teachers, orchestra and choir of the Charlotte street Sunday school were entertained Thursday evening at the residence of the superintendent, Mr. R. J. Kidd, 269 Rubidge street. During the evening a happy feature was introduced when the teachers and officers of the school paid their respects to Dr. M. A. Morrison, the assistant superintendent, and presented him with an address and a handsomely bound edition of Rev. C. H. Moulton's Modern Bible. The evening was delightfully spent, the host and hostess doing everything possible to add to the enjoyment of those present.

After a Dozen Years.

Mr. James A. Ellis, formerly with the C.P.R. here, accompanied by Mrs. Ellis, is spending a few days in town, the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. Wm. Buller. They were called here by the death of Mrs. M. Armstrong, but did not arrive in time for the funeral obsequies. Mr. Ellis left town about 12 years ago, to accept a responsible position on a railway at Marshalltown, Iowa, where he has remained ever since. "Jim" looks as young as ever, and is being greeted by many of his old friends. He thinks Peterborough has improved very much during his absence, and says he would rather live here than in the States if he had a chance. Mr. Ellis expects to return on Monday.

Harper punched the rebel's head, and did the job to perfection. He was congratulated by the passengers, and was a hero the rest of the trip down. It is a Common Mistake to Over-Eat GRAPE-NUTS

Letters are coming from all over the country saying that the writers have been lead to eat double or more than double the allowance of Grape-Nuts because of the fascinating flavor.

The result of overeating this food is the same as in overeating candy, or any other delicacy, the system gets more than it requires, and there follows a spleening against it for a time.

Confine your allowance of Grape-Nuts to three heaping teaspoons for the cereal part of your meal, and the food will be a daily delight to you.

If you have been overeating, try Grape-Nuts in the proper quantity, and our word for it, you will stick to them, and obtain day by day the valuable elements or particles which nature uses to rebuild and nourish the brain and nervous centers all over the body. A definite feeling of strength and reserve power comes with the use of this food. Have the cook dry in a pan in the oven if it has been exposed to, and gathered moisture from the air. Grape-Nuts should be crisp and brittle.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

There are over 40 hockey clubs in Greater New York.

W. M. Bradley and C. J. Burnup, who by their effective bowling helped Kent to defeat the Australians last summer, were last month presented with the two cricket balls used in that match. The balls had been mounted with broad bands of silver, which bore inscriptions recording the victory of Kent and the excellent bowling of the recipients. Bradley, by the way, is the fastest amateur bowler in England. He takes a long run and gets the largest proportion of his wickets by catches in the slips or by the wicket keeper standing well back.

He was injured so badly by hot bricks and other debris that he had to be taken to the hospital.

CAMP LIFE IN HALIFAX.

Corporal Percy Price Writes to a Friend in Peterborough.

The following letter was received a few days ago by Mr. H. Goldey, from Corporal Percy Price, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, now at Halifax—

Halifax, Feb. 3rd, 1900.

Dear Harley,—Your very welcome letter to hand to-day and am very glad to hear from you. I am as well as could be and have not missed a parade, which many of the boys cannot say. To-day has been a bad day in camp. One horse fell and rolled over its rider and he is not expected to live. Another horse fell and broke its leg and had to be shot. Luckily neither of them were in our troop. We have nearly all our kit complete, which is an awful pile of stuff and as we have no place to keep it and are very crowded, things are always getting lost.

We had our first mounted parade with our long rifles slung across our backs and sword bayonets and great coats and I tell you there was some fun. These puttiee for our legs are an awful nuisance. They are always coming undone and you can see a fellow going along with about eight feet of cloth flying behind him.

Hayward is a sergeant in the 3rd troop of A squadron. He is sorry that he is not with us. Among the non-commissioned officers whose rank has been confirmed are Terrill, Willoughby and myself. Spence is getting along well and is a good rider. I received the cash from the squadron and from the county all right.

The police and cowboys came and left us in a whirl. They were a fine lot of men. Some of them looking pretty wild and wooly, but did not do any harm here About forty of the police were left over for some reason I do not know, and and I suppose they will sail with us on the Milwaukee on the 18th. We have not yet got a trumpter, but I expect there will be one down from Toronto when the other troops come.

Our kit consists of two uniforms, a saddle complete, boots and shoes, holdalls, housewives, mess tins, underclothes, rifles, bayonet and many other things too numerous to mention.

About half of our horses are laid up with distemper.

There is a hockey match just starting an I must close now with love to all the boys.

Yours truly,
Percy R. Price.

After the payment of interest on Debentures and Deposits there remained a net profit of $43,622.45, which has been appropriated as follows—

3rd—Transfer to Contingent Fund, increasing same to $9,219.29	2,622 45

The Debentures show a good increase since the last report notwithstanding the reduced rate now paid by the Company. The rate of interest on Deposits was also reduced to 3 1/2 per cent. on the first of July last.

The interest payments which matured on the Real Estate Mortgages have been satisfactorily met, and the rentals from the Company's properties have also been promptly paid.

AUDITORS' CERTIFICATE

We hereby certify that we have carefully audited the books and accounts of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, for the year ending 31st December, 1899. All disbursements have been properly vouched for and the postings and balances of the Company's ledgers have been checked and found correct.

The above statement of Assets and Liabilities shows the position of the Company on 31st December, 1899, and the Profit and Loss account is a correct showing of the operations of the Company for the year ending on that day.

We have also examined the securities and find everything in order.

JAS. A. HALL,
E. R. WOOD,
Auditors.

Peterborough, 11 January, 1900.

The President in moving its adoption said;—

Gentlemen,—

I have now much pleasure in presenting for your approval the fifteenth annual statement of this Company, printed copies of which have been in the hands of the Shareholders for some days, and, from which you will be pleased to observe that the results of the year's operations have enabled your Directors to pay the usual half-yearly Dividends at the rate of six per cent., to transfer the substantial sum of $5000.00 to the Reserve Fund, making it $120,000.00, equal to 20 per cent. of the paid up Capital and to carry forward to the Contingent Account $2,622.45, increasing that Fund to $9,219.29.

The steady growth of the Company from the date of its organization up to the present time, must I am sure be very gratifying to the Shareholders, and indicates careful management as well as prosperity in the Country. Circumstances that have not been unobserved by the community enforce upon us ever increasing care and watchfulness in the investment of money. I am pleased to be enabled to assure you that the most rigid carefulness is exercised in respect to every transaction of the Company so that we do not anticipate that any change in the circumstances of our borrowers can in any way endanger the value of the Company's securities. This course will be persisted in and only prosperity for the Company is anticipated.

The confidence of the Community in the Company is manifested in the continually increasing number of depositors, and the greater sale of currency debentures, and though the rate of interest to borrowers is low, this is met by economy of management and the lower rate paid by the Company on deposits and debentures.

I now move, seconded by Mr. Hall the adoption of the Report and the statement herewith submitted, and that they be printed for circulation amongst the Shareholders, Depositors and Debenture Holders of the Company. Before asking your assent to this resolution, I shall be glad to answer any question or furnish any information that may be desired by any person present.

The report was unanimously adopted.

On motion of Mr. Hall, seconded by Mr. Cluxton, Messrs. Jas. A. Hall and F. W. Baillie were appointed auditors for the year 1900.

The usual votes of thanks were passed.

The following gentlemen were elected Directors for the ensuing year—Hon. Geo. A. Cox, Richard Hall, Peter Hamilton, Wm. Cluxton, A. L. Davis, H. J. LeFevre, D. W. Dumble, A. A. Cox and Jas. Stevenson.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors Hon. Geo. A. Cox was re-elected President, and Messrs. Richard Hall and A. A. Cox Vice-Presidents.

JOUBERT IS MARCHING TO OUTFLANK BULLER.

The Boer Commander is Taking the Initiative for for Cutting Communications Off.

THE BOERS SHELL BRITISH CAMP AT RENBSURG.

Boers Bring All Their Big Guns From Makefing to Shell Kimberley. Naval Guns Shell Magersfontein But the Boer Guns All Remain Silent.

London, Feb. 12, midnight.

The War Office has issued the following despatch dated to-day from the general commanding at Cape Town.

"Clements reports from Rensberg that on Friday, Feb. 9, the Boers tried to turn his right flank but were beaten off. Position maintained. Casualties small.

"Kimberley reports that the Boers' fighting force was apparently increased on Wednesday Feb. 7. Next day the Boers commenced the copstrution of trenches to the east, nearly parallel to the Glacio and 4000 yards from Premier Mine. A native reported that he accompanied some Boers who left Mafeking for Kimberley carrying with them a six inch gun and a quick firing field gun. The former opened fire on Kimberley.

"Otherwise the situation is unchanged."

Modder River, Feb. 10.

Apparently the Boers have brought all their big guns from Mafeking to shell Kimberley. Our naval guns shelled Magersfontein but the Boers guns were silenced. It is supposed that the enemy have withdrawn their artillery. They are blowign up the permanent way beyond Morton siding.

The Boers still remain in their trenches but their numbers are apparently reduced. The bulk of their force has gone toward Kimberley or toward our flank.

Rensburg, Feb. 10.

The Boers to-day shelled the British camp but with little effect.

Modder River, Feb. 10.

The Highlanders returned last night. Before returning they found the bodies of 12 Boers. They believe the losses of the enemy were heavier than those of the British because it is known that in addition to the dead ones, several had been buried.

Durban, Feb. 11.

It is rumored that Gen. Joubert is marching with a column of 6000 men to outflank Gen. Buller.

London, Feb. 12.—4.40 a.m.

The latest despatches from the front showing the real reasons for the retirement of General Buller, and his intention to try again, quite destroy the conflicting and ingenious theory that the movement was an elaborate feint to facilitate the main advance of Lord Roberts, a theory which acceptance largely because of Mr. Balfours misleading statement to Parliament.

No word has yet been issued from the War Office regarding Gen. Buller's latest attempt although he correspondents are allowed to telegraph with a fair amount of freedom, and,, thus far only estimates of casualties have been published. The dating of messages from Frere Camp may indicate that General Buller has withdrawn all his forces there.

The London newspapers having become accustomed to checks, maintain a hopeful tone; but the situation is much more threatening than it seemed to be a week ago. Proofs of the terrible strength and mobility of the Boer artillery, together with the rumor that General Joubert is taking the initiative with the object of cutting General Buller's communications are in no way reassuring. Even the most sanguine persons begin to see that it is quite hopeless to expect the relief of Ladysmith, while it is clear that if it is impossible for Buller to reach Ladysmith, it is equally impossible for the garrison, exhausted by sickness and privations, to cut its way out.

Reports of the Boer advance through Zululand are disquieting. If they should be able to strike at Greytown, General Buller would be compelled to turn his attention to the eastern side of Natal. The fact that Lord Roberts arrived at Modder River on Friday seems to show that he has been on a round of inspection of the chief commands and that the main advance is not so near as has been supposed.

Startling intelligence comes from Kimberley in the Cape newspapers just received by mail in London. It appears that since January 8 the rations at Kimberley have ben efor the most part horseflesh, so repugnant to women and children that many refuse to eat it. It also appears that the death rate has been heavy, and that the privations of the garrison have been increasing steadily.

Possibly such conditions explain the presence of Lord Roberts at Modder River and the apparent preparations for an advance from that point.

The mention in the despatch from Lord Roberts to the War Office yesterday of Gen. Clements as commanding at Rensberg is interpreted to show that General French with his cavalry has gone to join Lord Roberts, and that considerable changes in the distribution of troops in that district have occurred.

The unexpected strength and activity of the Boers at Rensburg, where they are rather pressing the British than being pressed by them. causes anxiety.

There is no confirmation of the report of a sortie from Ladysmith. The latest despatch from there, dated Wednesday last, reports that all was quiet then and that instructions had been issued to beware of the possible approach of Boers in the guise of a British relief force.

To-day sees the beginning of the fifth month of the war.

Although the British will soon have [illegible]00,000 men in South Africa the Daily Mail and other papers are still asking for more troops.

Cape Town, Feb. 11th

Lord Roberts has authorized the formation of a squadron of 1,000 picked Irish-picked Irishmen for special duties. Sir Henry De Villiers, Chief Justice of Cape Colony, will sail for England next Wednesday.

Every available truck on the western system of railways has been secured by the military authorities.

COMMUNICATIONS INSECURE.

London, Feb. 10.—A despatch to the London Times from Springfield Bridge, dated Friday, Feb. 9, says—

"Our force at Vaal Krantz entrenched itself as well as possible, but nevertheless we continued to lose men, and no advance was made. But the Boer artillery fired incessantly and as Wednesday proceeded it was increasingly apparent that, although the infantry might, by a very determined assault, force its way through the centre of the Boer position, it would become impossible during subsequent operations to maintain the security of the lines of communication, and the evacuation was decided upon. The retirement commenced at nine o'clock at night, the pontoon bridge being removed after Gen. Hildyard's force had crossed this morning. The whole fore retired beyond the range of the Boer guns, which continued shelling.

WHERE IS THE CONTINGENT?

The Canadian contingent has not gone to Modder River after all. A special cable from Belmont, under date of Feb. 9, says—"The Canadians who left here a few days ago under orders toproceed to the front, have been unexpectedly detained at Gras Pan."

TOO HARD TO MAINTAIN.

Headquarters Camp, Springfield Bridge, Feb. 9.—The position taken north of the Tugela River proved a difficult one to maintain. The regiments sent across as reinforcements went into the front line of trenches, but owing tothe great strength of the Boers in the Brakefontein hills to the left it was found impossible to advance without risking unnecessary loss.

Boer Artillery Practice.

The Boers continued shelling the British position. Several long tom shells fell among the transport train and four burst on Zwartz Kop, but the Boers could not get the range. The British guns posted there failed to silence the long tom or other masked guns. The Boers continued to work their Nordenfeldts on the British infantry entrenched on the hills. The fire was severe at times.

The Retirement.

Wednesday afternoon General Buller resolved not to press the advance by this route. The transport train moved back and the infantry retired from Vaal Krantz. On Wednesday night the guns on Zwartz Kop replied to the Boers' shelling. When they commenced to shell the transport train the Boers got a large number of cannon into position. Their heavy shell fire rendered the advance impossible.

ENSHROUDED IN MYSTERY.

London, Feb. 10.—Lord Roberts' plan of campaign remains an inscrutable mystery. He has gone to the front with Lord Kitchener, and the foreign military attaches have started from Cape Town to join him there, but nobody outside the innermost circles of the War Office knows where the front is. Extraordinary pains have been taken by the censor to conceal Lord Roberts' destination, and the only message given out from him for several omits to mention the place from which it was sent, for that would supply a clew to the direction of his main movement. The distribution of reinforcements amounting to over 20,000 men has been artfully concealed, so that the new concentrations are unknown.

Much Speculation.

The theories of military writers for the press respecting Lord Roberts' campaign are based upon the slenderest possible inference.

The censorship has been so scientific that Lord Roberts' planof campaign cannot be inferred from anything that has come over the wires.

CLERY IS GOING HOME.

London, Feb. 10.—The Daily Telegraph announces that Gen. Sir Francis Clery is on his way to England invalided.

General Clery had charge of the Ladysmith relief column until General Buller arrived on the scene, since when he has been in commadn of a division.

London, Feb. 10.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Pietermaritzburg, in a despatch dated February 9, says—"General Clery is here. He is indisposed, not wounded."

AN ADVANCE BY MONDAY.

London, Feb. 10.—Mr. Chas. Williams, a military writer of the Morning Leader, who is understood to be in confidential relations with Lord Wolseley, says that beyond doubt the most authoritive opinion in London regards it as probable that an endeavor will be made to force the line of the Orange River before Wednesday next, possibly by Monday.

Mr. Henry V. Lucy says that the health of Sir Alfred Milner, Governor of Cape Colony, is suffering from the prolonged strain, and his friends fear he will break down.

BOTH ALIVE AND WELL.

London, Feb. 10.—The Central News says, respecting the reported shooting of the Englishmen MacLachlan and Robbins in the market place at Harrismith on Christmas day because they would not fight against their countrymen, that the Colonial Office has received information that both men were seen alive and well on January 15 by a lady who is now in Pietermaritzburg.

RETIREMENT TEMPORARY.

London, Feb. 10.—A special despatch from Spearman's Camp, Friday, Febuary 9, says that General Buller's retirement was merely temporary, owing to a determination to change tactics. The force, it is added, will resume operations. The casualties were mostly slight wounds.

BOERS CAPTURE INKANDLA.

Durban, Feb. 10.—The Boers have taken Inkandala, a Zululand magistracy. The magistrate the night previous exploded the magazine, and with his staff and the police evacuated the place and proceeded to Eshowe.

WHAT IS BULLER'S PLAN.

London, Feb. 10.—General Buller is once more south of the Tugela river, and Gen. Macdonald is back at the Modder River. Yet to-day's news by no means cause the acute disappoinmtent attending on the failure to relieve Ladysmith. This can be attributed to three causes: First, there is a strong belief that General Buller's last attempt was only a demonstration on a large scale; the second, the wiser critics had warned the public not to expect the immediate relief of General White; third, the nation has settled down to the realization that the war will last al ong time, and they are not swayed as at first by minor reverses and victories. The second and third reasons are self-explaining. The first requires considerable elucidation. In favor of the opinion held by Mr. Spencer Wilkson, the military critic of the Morning Post, that General Buller did not intend immediately pushing on to Ladysmith, there is overwhelming evidence to show that Field Marshall Lord Roberts ordered systematic activity upon the part of all the forces. On this basis General Buller's may only be a repetition of General Macdonald's and General French's reconnaissances.

Balfour's Statement.

Mr. A. J. Balfour's statement about awaiting the completion of plans is another strong reason for believing General Buller never intended to make the main advance via Vaal Krantz, but was acting under the orders of Lord Roberts. It is also curious that the news of General Buller's retirement first came from the Boer Head Laager near Ladysmith, and that the British correspondents were freely allowed to send despatches before anything from General Buller was published. The unusual appeal of Mr. Bennett-Burleigh, war correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, asking the public to suspend judgment and rely on General Buller also has considerable significance. On the other hand, General Buller's recent speech to his troops, in which he said he hoped to be in Ladysmith within a week, tends, some people claim, to throw doubt on the belief that he has only been demonstrating in force.

In Complete Order.

The latest news from the Modder River shows that General Macdonald's retirement from Koodoosberg was effected in complete order. The most reasonable explanation of his movement is that it was undertaken more to restore the confidence of the Highland Brigade, still nervous from their terrible experience at Magersfontein, than to gain any important objective. With this important unit General Methuen's force is rehabilitated for a vigorous attack on General Cronje, and an attempt to relieve Kimberley may be looked for—more than likely superintended by Lord Roberts—while the seventh division and part of General French's cavalry are occupied in a turning movement east of Jacobsdal.

Only Held in Check.

A despatch from Rensberg, dated Friday, Feb. 9, reports much aggressive activity against all the British reconnoitering, and declares that the Boers are in no sence surrounded at Colesberg, but are simply held in check by a series of camps forming a semi-circle from east to west. The Boers, it is added, are still in full possession of their lines of communication with the Free State, and hold strong positions around Colesberg.

Bombardment at Colesberg.

During the morning of Feb. 9 a bombardment with lyddite occurred at Rensberg, and the Boers' Maxim-Vickers guns are believed to be silenced. A dozen dead Boers were found on the kopjes.

THE WAR SITUATION.

London, Feb. 10.—Lord Roberts is contemplating some great move upon which the destinies of the campaign may depend. The intense activity which has prevailed in all the campaign areas during the past week was undoubtedly premediated on his part to keep the Boers in play in every direction and thus prevent reinforcements being sent from any part of the Boer line to another. In other words Roberts has hit upon a plan to checkmate the mobility of the enemy, and will take advantage of the thin line which they have spread all round their borders. A strong British force is undoubtedly being concentrated on the border of the Free State, probably in the neighborhood of the Orange River Bridge, and when this force is ready the egg shell will be pierced.

General activity in all other war areas will effectually prevent any Boer concentration to oppose the advance. This is clearly the explanation of the activity of Buller, Macdonald, French and Gatacre. It places the Boers in the power of the British, and for the first time enables the latter to use their overwhelming superiority of numbers. The mobility of the enemy is of no value when attacked simultaneously at points hundreds of miles apart, and it is upon this great central idea that the strategy of Lord Roberts is based, and which is the cause of Buller's seemingly incomprehensible conduct of the past few days.

ATTACK ON BIRDS RIVER.

Sterkstroom, Feb. 10.—An attack was made by the Boers upon Birds River camp on Thursday, the shelling resulted in five casualties. When reinforcements arrived from here the Boers retired toward Dordrecht. Molteno was also threatened. A patrol of seven men of Brabant's Horse was captured near Penhoek, also one man of the Cape Rifles.

THE NATIONAL DEFENCE.

London, Feb. 9.—Three thousand more militia have been ordered to prepare for embarkation. The obsolete guns at various coast defences are being replaced with modern naval guns. The Government is preparing a plan to be submitted to Parliament for the conversion of the yeomanry, volunteers and militia into a well organised and properly equipped army for home defence.

GATACRE'S VICTORY CONFIRMED.

London, Feb. 10.—A War Office despatch from Lord Roberts, dated Thursday, Feb. 8, confirms the reports that Gen. Gatacre has repulsed the Boers an Pen Hoek and Bird's River, and that the security of both outposts is established.

BRITISH FORCE SUBDUES NATIVE PIRATES.

Natives in Nigeria, Who Intercepted Traders, Are Taught a Severe Lesson.

Liverpool, Feb. 10.—Particulars hav been received here of an engagement which the Niger Company's forces had up the Benue River, in which a large number of natives were killed. It appears that between the towns of Yolo and Ibi, on the Benue River, there are about seven villages and towns, the natives of which have for some time past intercepted the canoes trading between the two places named, seizing the contents of the canoes and taking the occupants prisoners. The marauders were warned, but, nevertheless, continued their acts of piracy. A force under Captain Crawley was consequently despatched to punish them. The Niger troops numbered about two hundred, and beside Captain Crawley there were two white officers. The expedition was taken to the place in one of the Niger Company's light draught steamers, and on arrival met with a determined show of opposition. The troops first of all fired from the steamer. The natives were armed chiefly with poisoned arrows, and consequently were practically powerless before the disciplined and well-armed troops. Captain Crawley afterwards landed his men, and marched on the first town, which was taken, the natives fleeing in every direction. Finally the whole district was subdued. There were no fatalities on the British side, but it is said that considerably over two hundred of the native pirates were killed. It was believed that after the salutary lesson the marauders would not again attempt to interfere with the native traders between Yolo and Ibi. Captain Crawley is reported to have manoeuvred his troops with great skill.

MACDONALD'S OPERATIONS SUCCESSFUL.

Boers Fled From Their Position in the Night to Avoid Certain Capture.

Modder River, Feb. 9.—Noon Gen. Macdonald scored a distinct success at Koodoosberg. His original orders were to hold the drift and construct a fort. The position, however, was extremely difficult, a long range of high hills running northwest and terminating close to the drift on the north bank of the river.

As it was impossible to hold the whole summit, General Macdonald constructed strong works across the centre, which was held by the Seaforth Highlanders and three companies of the Black Watch. While the Highland Light Infantry held a small kopje on the right, the Ninth Lancers patrolled the left towards the river General Macdonald's plan being to repel attacks.

Things went on quietly until Wednesday, when the Boers advanced along the ridge within 900 yards, mounting two mountain seven pounders, which were invisible from the plain. They also held a smaller drift three miles to the west. On receipt of this news, General Methuen despatched a large force of cavalry and two horse batteries under General Babington, with the purpose of surrounding the Boers. In order to further this plan, General Macdonald adopted merely defensive tactics. It was not attempted to force back the Boers' right, which move might have resulted in their general retirement too soon.

General Babington left Modder River at 11.30 in the morning, and arrived within two miles of Koodoosberg at 4.30 p.m., too late to attempt the turning movement.

The next morning it was found that the Boers had fled from the lower drift, but still remained on the hill—which they also left when they perceived Babington's movements. Early in the morning Babington vigorously shelled the retiring Boers.

The whole British force is now returning to camp. This little affair reflects great credit upon General Macdonald's tactics, and proves that the Highladers have thoroughly recovered their old go, dash and courage.

ASTOUNDED HIS ENEMIES AND FRIENDS.

Joseph Chamberlain Looms Large in the Public View, the Man of the Hour

London, Feb. 10.—This has been Chamberlain's week, and if, disregarding his past political manner and methods, he could live up to the high standard of his speech in the Commons on Tuesday, there is no limit to his possibilities. His frank non-partisan facing of the situation astounded his enemies and friends alike—and no English politician has more enemies—and his earnest words urging the British Empire forthon its first united struggle, have awakened an echo throughout the country such as Chamberlain never awakened before.

As the session proceeds it will show whether advancing years (he is over sixty) and the storm and stress of adversity have, as this speech suggests, combined to turn the creator of the Birmingham caucus and champion political bagman of English politics into a sober constructive statesman.

One exception that Chamberlain's friends do hold out is his triumphant exit on Tuesday week from the cloud of suspicion resting over him ever since the Jamieson raid. On that day the Commons will debate a Radical motion for the disclosure of telegrams and other documents which Chamberlain's accusers openly hint prove of Chamberlain and the Colonial Office in the raid. Chamberlain and his friends say no small surprise is in store for some of his opponents when he comes to open out the mysterious dossier.

DIPLOMATS SEE PERIL FOR BRITISH EMPIRE.

They Are Discussing Nothing But Clouds That Are Hanging Over Britain's Horizon.

AN EVIL OMEN IN RUSSIA'S MOVES IN THE EAST.

Suspicious Movements of Russia on Persian and Afghan Frontiers and Reinforcements of Men to China is Regarded as Menacing the World's Peace.

Special to The Times.

Paris, Feb. 10.—Paris, which is normally in the throes of party strife, is hardly recognizable this week, so devoid has it been of political excitement. This momentary absence of internal conflict has given the press and the political world a chance to concentrate attention upon the European situation evolved from the crisis which the British empire is now traversing. Diplomats are discussing nothing but the clouds which are hanging over Great Britain's horizon. Beneath the insubordination of Egyptian troops in Khartoum, as reported from Cairo, is dimly discerned the intriguing hand of an enemy of England.

Unusual activity among the embassies here is manifest and there are signs of a highly strung condition of the nerves of every European chancellerie.

Evil Omen in Russia's Moves.

The suspicious movements of Russia on the Persia and Afghan frontiers and the despatch over sea of important re-enforcements of men and material to the Chinese country, which continued this week, is interpreted as an evil omen to the world's peace.

It can be said almost certainly that no surprise would be occasioned in diplomatic circles if the near future saw some act of aggression on the part of Russia toward the fulfillment of her dream of reaching the open sea, probably through Persia. It is universally recognized that Russia never had a better moment than the present, when she has the sympathy of France and when the hands of her only redoubtable opponent—England—are tied in South Africa.

The Paris press sees this reputed Russian design and does not conceal its hearty approbation, not an inconsiderable portion of the press even urging the Government to join hands with Russia, despite the fact that it would mean ruin to the exposition.

Japan Opposes Trade Treaty.

According to information published here the Franco-American reciprocity treaty is arousing keen anxiety in Japanese commercial circles. The silk producers of Japan are especially alarmed, fearing that the treaty may hit them hard. It is said that the Japanese minister here has been instructed to make representations to the French government with a view of preventing the ratification of the treaty. He paid visits to both the foreign offices and the American embassy Friday.

The details of the government bill to lay purely French cables between the French colonies have been made public. The bill provides for four new lines. One is to run from Oran, Algeria, touching Tangier and Teneriffe, to St. Louis, Senegambia. The second cable is to run from Uahue, Tonquin, to a point north of Hong Kong. A third cable is to connect Tamatave, Madagascar, with Reunion island, one of the Mascarine group. The fourth line will be between Benin, in upper Guinea, and the French Congo possessions.

Suggestion for American Exhibit

As the time approaches for the opening of the exposition the work which devolves upon the American commission taxes the abilities of its officials and employes. The details are enormous and the mails exceedingly heavy Professor Benjamin B. Woodward, assistant United States Commissioner to the exposition, went to Rouen to-day to see if it is possible for the United States auxiliary cruiser Prairie to reach that port. If this can be done it will save much time and be an economy in freight charges.

For the first time the French commission has made a suggestion regarding the American exhibit, announcing its wish that the United States would take part in a retrospective exposition of army, navy and historical relics. The idea is on account of the presentation of the La Fayette monument and other events significant of the good feeling between the two countries, thus recalling the American revolution, when the bonds between France and the United States were so close. It is hoped that America will make an exhibit of army relics of that period.

Famous Adventurer is Expelled.

There was a sensational announcement this week of the arrest of a German officer as a spy. This proved incorrect, however, the man being arrested at a Paris hotel and escorted to the frontier under a previous decree of expulsion.

Inquiries have brought to light the fact that the man expelled was a remarkable adventurer, whose career is bound up in the history of France and Germany. He was formerly an officer in the German army. He comes from an Irish family and is a wonderful linguist and an accomplished scholar. He was at one time tutor to Emperor William of Germany, but was dismissed owing to his infliction of corporal punishment upon the future emperor for the slightest faults. He then became a lieutenant in the army fought in several actions and gained a captaincy in the Franco-German war. A financial scandal led to his retirement from the army and he entered the Germany espionage service and came to France. He was shortly afterward expelled. He led a checkered life, having been imprisoned in both France and Germany and was last heard of when he escaped from a madhouse in Loraine. He now springs to life again in Paris and has been again expelled.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 7, 1900

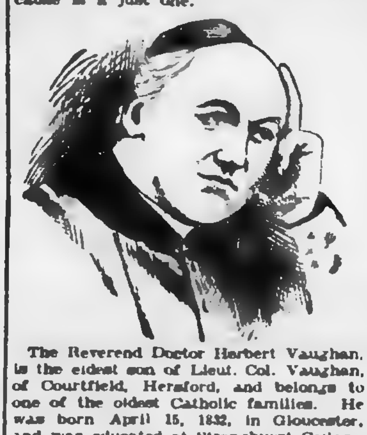
DEFENCE OF THE EMPIRE.

It has been remarked that while the British navy has been furnished with every up-to-date appliance, as the arm of the service on which the Empire mainly depended, the army has been suffered to fall behind. Its armament in South Africa, when the emergency arose, was found to be unequal to the Boer attack. Ladysmith has been saved thus far by the naval guns and the British bravery behind bayonets. If the army has been suffered to lag in modern equipment in comparison with the armies of other nations, it has been the result of the system of Government in free England, under which nothing can be done without open discussion in Parliament and constant reference to the state of the Exchequer over which the Opposition of the day watches with often too jealous an eye when Imperial concerns are in jeopardy. To provide efficiently on the scale commensurate with foreign armaments, there should be independent control under proper restrictions. While the Transvaal question was pending no adequate preparation could be made for the situation which was inevitable, because of the system of control which gave the Opposition power to block every movement and hinder the voting of supplies. It was necessary in order to prosecute such a war as was easily foreseen to have the nation united, and this could not be effected until the enemy was at the gate. Mr. Chamberlain in his speech in Parliament Monday referred to the "system and those administering it," and where between them the blame for mistakes should lie. And he bravely said—"Let the Government bear the brunt until the time comes, when, under happier auspices, we can see how far the blame is to be apportioned." He had reference to the system of party government in England, and the military system which has sprung from it, as being too much hampered with 'politics." The time may come when the party system may give way in great part at least before Imperial needs, in the way indicated by Professor Courthope, in a recent letter to the Times—"When the British people," he says, "with God's aid, 'have seen this business through,' shall we, who in the past 20 years have had to endure, as the fruits of the party system, the surrender of after Majuba, the death of Gordon, and the recent sacrifice of so many of our best and bravest, be content to confess pitifully that this system is the only one we can devise for the purpose of Imperial self-Government? I do not wish to disparage the pary system. For more than 200 years it has done admirable work in helping to develop our society internally on the safe lines of constitutional freedom; and in every British community, as far as local self-Government is concerned, it seems the best instrument available for solving the social and political problems that never cease to arise. But, as applied to Imperial affairs, we have been taught by a stern lesson that its effects are disastrous. When the war is over, instead of tinkering at the War Office or the Cabinet Committee of National Defense, I hope that we shall set ourselves to devise on statesmanlike lines some kind of representative machinery which shall provide for the defense of the Empire as a whole. Of course, we shall hear the thread-bare expostulation—the worst kind of argument from 'the inevitable'—'What can you have in a free country but party government? It was not by the party system that Cecil laid the foundations for the union between England and Scotland; nor was it is this way that Canada and Australia solved the problem of colonial federation. And, premature as it would be to offer any solution of the still wider problem of Imperial federation, every man in the British Empire must now feel that this is a question which has been 'brought within the range of practical politics.' When it is once realized that the representation of the British Empire for the purposes of Imperial defense means the union in one body of the best experts sent from different parts of the Empire, all that we have further to realize in grasping the situation as a whole is that the centre of Imperial representation does not lie necessarily in the British Parliament any more than in the Canadian Parliament, or the Australian Parliament, but in the British Crown. So to develop the British Constitution as to form a representative council of the Empire, with functions open to the criticism and control of the various Parliaments of the Empire, should surely not be a problem too great for solution by the wit of the British people."

CARDINAL VAUGHAN.

Who so Ably Upholds the British Cause Against the Boers.

Cardinal Vaughan recently gained much notoriety through his fearless and outspoken utterances concerning the British and Boer war. He has an utter contempt for the latter, and is not backward in saying so. He says that Britain's cause is a just one.



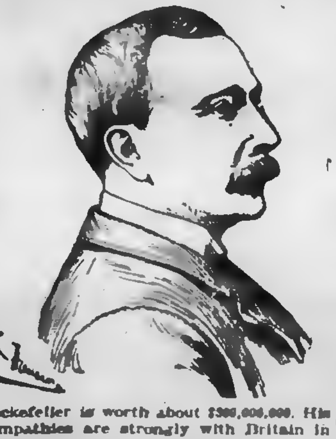
The Reverend Doctor Herbert Vaughan, is the eldest son of Lieut. Col. Vaughan, of Courtfield, Hereford, and belongs to one of the oldest Catholic families. He was born April 15, 1832, in Gloucester, and was educated at Stonyhurst College, Lancashire, and in Rome. He founded and was president of St. Joseph's College at Mill Hill, Middlesex. He was one of the band of priests who came to America in 1871 to work among the negroes in the South. In 1872 he was nominated Bishop of Salford by the Pope.

He is a thorough man of the world, of varied talents and brilliant intellect; proprietor of the London Tablet and Dublin Review, the former said to be the best catholic organ in the world.

As he is so entirely opposed to Home Rule in Ireland, it is probable that he will never be so entirely in touch with the Irish in London as was his predecessor, Cardinal Manning.

John D. Rockefeller.

who recently resigned the presidency of the Standard Oil Company, the greatest corporation the world has ever seen. Mr.



Rockefeller is worth about $300,000,000. His sympathies are strongly with Britain in her war with the Transvaal.

FATHER M'GLYNN.

Who Recently died in New York.

It will be remembered that Dr. McGlynn was removed from St. Stephen's Church, New York, in December 1886, on the grounds that he held doctrines as to the ownership of land that were contrary to the teaching of the Church, and that he had not obeyed the order to keep out of politics.

He was excommunicated in July 1887, and since then has been prominent as a public speaker, addressing the Anti-Poverty Society on Sunday evenings, and restored to his church a few years later.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain, but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

Soudanese Look Serious.

London, Feb. 9.—A special despatch from Cairo says the mutiny of the Soudanese troops at Khartoum has assumed serious proportions and is causing great anxiety.

UNDERGROUND EUROPE.

LONDON, PARIS AND ROME ARE HONEYCOMBED.

Nearly as Much Traffic Being Carried on in the Former City Below the Ground as Above It—The Danger Lurks in These Excavations.

Among the most remarkable features of the 19th century has been a revival after more than a thousand years of that disposition to burrow beneath the surface of the soil which seems as instinctive with man as it is with the mole. In England Parliament is about being called upon to institute measures for the purpose of putting a stop to the process of honeycombing the foundations and subsoils of the metropolis. The peril that threatens London and that is about to lead to statutory actions in Parliament is serious. But it is one by which Paris, Rome and a number of other great cities of the old world are menaced in the same way. One hundred years ago there was practically no underground London, save along the river's edge, where wine cellars centuries old extended for several miles. To-day there is almost as much life and traffic beneath the surface of the British metropolis as above it. Two and even three tiers of underground railroads, with their underground stations and shops, as well as other huge conduits, tunnels, sewers and subways of every description, honeycomb the subsoil of London to the depth of more than 100 feet, and unless some check is offered to this form of enterprise there is no knowing where it will end.

Grave Reasons for Alarm.

The results of this tampering with the foundations of London are beginning to be felt, and are giving rise to no end of alarm. A goodly portion of the metropolis appears threatened with subsidence, and the gravest fears are entertained for Westminister Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral and other historic edifices. In fact, no one would be surprised to learn that their safety had become affected by the imprudent interference with their foundations. It was only the other day that the London papers placed on record an alarming subsidence in Hyde Park, where the ground suddenly showed a rift several hundred feet in length, and a week later the sinking of about a hundred yards of the roadway on one side of Fleet street, while the police reports and the weekly returns of the building inspectors are said to furnish sensational reading with regard to the large number of big edifices in the city and mansions both great and small in the residential districts, that show cracked walls that are tottering, or that are actually wrecked by the subsidence of the ground.

A curious feature about the whole affair is that, in spite of all these burrowings, no one seems to possess any definite knowledge as to their extent, and it would appear that they are, so to speak, uncharted.

Underground Paris.

The same ignorance prevails in regard to the underground portion of Paris. It is asserted that more than a third, indeed nearly one-half, of Paris is underrun by the quaries out of which the stone that went to build the city in ancient times was extracted. These underground passages and tunnels bear the name of catacombs, but were not originally intended as such. Indeed, it was only at the close of the last century that the government conceived the idea of converting a portion of these tunnels in the stone to sepulchral use, and from 1786 until the end of the revolution all the bones of the dead were collected from the various churches and cemeteries of Paris, where they had been accumulating for centuries and were deposited in these vaults. It is calculated that the remains of over three million human beings were thus disposed of, the bones, as a rule being laid closely in order, with their ends outward, while at regular intervals skulls are interspersed in ranges so as to prevent alternative rows of the back and front part of the heads.

Protecting the Bank of France.

The real extent of underground Paris is unknown. Tunnels and subways, the presence of which has been unsuspected, are constantly being found, and it is no exaggeration to state that it is almost impossible to make any excavation along streets built before the present century without finding subterranean passages and vaults. Of the advantages which all the latter offer to the criminal classes it is hardly necessary to speak, and many a robbery has been perpetrated by burglars making their way into the cellars through tunnels the existence of which was unknown to the owner of the house.

It is with the object of protecting the Bank of France from burglaries of this kind that the institution has been provided with a most ingenious system of tanks, which would have the effect of discharging an enormous volume of water into any tunnel thieves might endeavor to bore from the secret subways beneath the city into the vaults of the bank. The disappearance of the water from the tanks has the effect of starting off a burglar alarm.

At the close of the Commune a number of the insurgents are known to have sought refuge in this underground portion of Paris, and, owing to the absence of any charts or plans, the authorities were soon obliged to give up the search. It is understood that the majority of the fugitives got lost below ground and starved to death, although some are known to have escaped. But even to this day, the so-called catacombs, or carriers, afford a hiding place for the criminal classes, where they are relatively safe from intrusion on the part of the police, who venture into the outer galleries, and do not attempt to invole themselves in the maze of passages and subways, which remain to them terra incognita.

Rome is another city honeycombed like Paris with subterranean passages, which, according to St. Jerome, were in existence already in the earliest period of the Christian era, but which were closed up and forgotten for hundreds of years, until, in the 17th century, their existence was unexpectedly brought to light by excavation. There, too, they are uncharted, and no one knows their extent, the official figures of the mileage of these underground passages varying from 300 to 900 miles.

Napoleon Burrowed.

There are two sovereigns in the present century who displayed taste for subterranean passages, namely, Napoleon III and the present Kaiser of Germany. Napoleon III had a secret underground passage constructed at Paris leading from the Elysee Palace, beneath the Rue 'Elysee, to a private house on the other side of the street. This house belonged to his chamberlain, Count Bacchiochi, and whenever the Emperor wished to undertake some secret excursion without the knowledge of his jealous consort he would proceed from the Tuilleries to his former residence at the Elysee for the alleged purpose of working quietly there with his ministers, and then, while his wife's spies remained watching at the gates of the palace, he would quickly pass from his private room through the subterranean passage to Count Bacchiochi's house, enter the latter's carriage and drive off.

Kaiser Uses a Secret Passage.

Emperor William has in the same way spent a considerable sum of money recently in the construction of his subterranean passage extending from the opra to the "Zeughaus," where a strong military detachment is always on duty. Thanks to this, the Kaiser is able to reach his box in the opera and to leave it without being observed. The subway in question affords a significant demonstration of the little confidence which the Emperor reposes in the loyalty of his Berliners. Possibly he recalls the fact that his granduncle, King Frederick William IV, was forced by the people of Berlin to stand bareheaded on the balcony of his palace while the corpses of all those who had been shot down by his soldiers in 1848 were carried past him to the cemetery; while his grandfather, old Emperor William, then Prince of Prussia, was compelled by these same Berliners to flee for his life to England.

Tried a Lone Hand.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—A lone robber, well dressed, with money in his pockets and with a ribbed silk mask to cover up his features was shot and killed in C. H. Woerner's Park Pavilion, West Madison street, late last night by Frank Barum, an Oak Park lawyer, and Edward Sommerfeldt, the barkeeper.

The dead robber was 38 years old, five feet eleven inches tall, weigh 170 pounds, dark complexion, grey eyes, brown hair, and moustache streaked with grey. His hair was cut in football fashion. The letters "R.S." were marked on the dead man's linen.

Besides Sommerfeldt and Barum there was only one other person in the saloon when the robber entered. The robber commanded them to throw up their hands. Resistance was offered, and in the struggle the robber fired twice at his victims, one of the bullets taking effect in Sommerfeldt's arm. Sommerfeldt and Barum fired several shots at the robber, who fell dead at their feet. In the pockets of the dead man was found $165. Barum and Sommerfeldt was arrested.

BILLS OVER A CENTURY OLD

They Show Tea to Have Been a Cambridge Student's Favorite Drink.

There is a bill for groceries, etc., furnished for an undergraduate at Cambridge in the year 1788. The bill contains one or two items of furniture. Apparently the undergraduate took over rooms already furnished at a valuation, and certain articles had to be bought new, such as a hearth brush, a pail, a mop and a "Holland gotch." One knows not what this means, but it cost 2 shillings 9 pence (43 cents).

The undergraduate would seem at first sight to have consumed tea in a most reckless manner. On Oct. 24 he is charged 2 shillings for Hyson and 1 shilling 6 pence for Congo. On Nov. 1 he is charged 2 shillings for tea and on the same day, which looks odd, 6 shillings 6 pence for tea. On the 9th of the month he buys a new teapot, the old one, one supposes, worn out with hard service. However, this tea lasts him till the end of the term, so that his tea costs him for the two months no more than 11 shillings, or $2.75, and as the price of tea at this time varied from 8 shillings to about 25 shillings we may conclude that he got through no more than a pound during the term.

In other words, this young man took for breakfast a slight repast of weak tea and bread and butter. Dinner was then served at 12, so that breakfast was only what the Indians call a "chota hasri." On sugar he spent 4 shillings, which means six pounds at 8 pence a pound. On candles he spent 24 shillings 8½ pence, or about 3 shillings a week. He burned wax candles, mold candles and "wax twist." Salt was a shilling a packet. On two occasions he bought sand. Was, then, the floor of his room sanded? It would seem so.

LAYING UP A COMPETENCE.

Something That Practically Any Man Can Do Through Self Denial.

"There are some men of genius," said Mr. Nippingly, "who accumulate great fortunes by great strokes, but by far the greater number of fortunes, including those of moderate dimensions, and these form the great majority of all, are made by the very simple process of living within one's income and investing the surplus with more or less wisdom, but always where it will be safe.

"The older I grow the more amazed I am that more people don't lay up a competence for themselves, as most anybody can do, by beginning early in life to live within their income and sticking to that course faithfully. Did I do this myself? No. Am I, however, having learned the wisdom of this course, now making a beginning? I am obliged to say 'No.' I am still spending all I get and laying by nothing.

"There are some lessons that we all easily acquire, but never turn to our own advantage. One of these is of the benefits that arise from the exercise of self denial. We get from this at once the direct benefit of what we save, and self denial nourishes, strengthens and broadens the will and enables a man constantly to do and to earn more and more.

"There's simply nothing like self denial. It is the key to every one of life's treasures, and everybody has one of these golden keys in his possession, eager to help him and waiting only for him to bring it in use."—New York Sun.

An Amazed Woman.

A woman who had an Arabic glass cup of the fourteenth century and did not know its value took it to the British museum. After due consideration the expert, to her surprise, said that, though the museum did not want it, it might be worth $2,000. The woman shuddered, because she had been carrying it in a crowded London omnibus a bit of glass worth so much money and it had miraculously escaped smashing.

Finally, wanting money more than Arabian glass, she sent the object to an auctioneer's. Fancy her amazement when, starting at $2,500, the Arabic cup went by leaps and bounds and was finally knocked down for the nice sum of $6,500.

Actually the Arabic cup was worth very much less, but it so happened that there were two rivals at the auction, who bid against each other.—China, Glass and Lamps.

In using the town teams to pull away the rubbish on the streets left by the contractors shows how necessary some kind of a pull is to the Town Engineer.

Gen. Lawton Buried.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Major-General Henry W. Lawton was buried to-day in the National cemetery at Arlington. The services at the grave were preceded by those at the Church of the Covenant, in this city, where President M. W. Stryker, of Hamilton College, New York, delivered a funeral oration.

Never in the history of the capital has there been a more representative gathering of the nation's official life to pay a last tribute to the nation's honored dead. Flags hung at half mast. The President and his Cabinet representatives of the Supreme Court, of the House, and Senate, and of the army and navy all combined to fill the darkened church to its utmost. Great crowds surrounded the church and lined the streets along which the procession passed. Lawton was to the people the ideal American soldier.

Postal Note a Success.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—There is no doubt as to the success of the postal note introduced a little over a year ago.

The revenue therefrom which started at five or six thousand dollars, has now almost touched the eighty thousand mark. By the end of the year it is expected that the revenue will reach $125,000.

The heart of Hon. Wm. Mulock is also gladdened by the almost phenomenal growth of the general postal receipts. When the rate was cut to two cents it was thought that the deficit a year hence would be between seven and eight hundred thousand dollars. As a matter of fact, the deficit is only about $400,000, and while it was expected that it would be four years before the receipts would attain their normal size, it now seems probable that the revenue will have entirely recovered within two years.

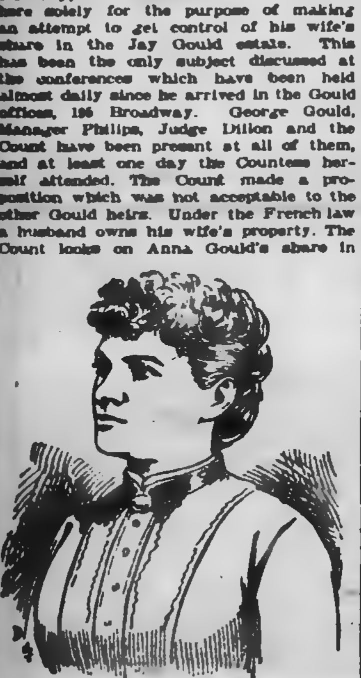
RESTRAINED BY "DEAD HAND."

A Codicil in the Gould Will Prevents the Alienation of Countess Castellane's Property by Her Husband.

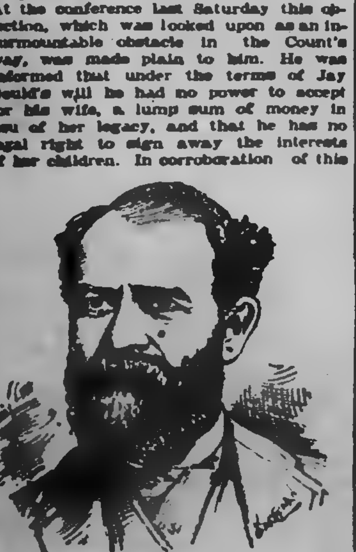
New York, Feb. 9.—Rumors that Count Boni de Castellane has come over here, for money continue, despite all denials, and the New York World has found a person who is in close touch with the situation and able to speak with authority, who says—

"No matter what may be said to the contrary, it is a fact that the Count is here solely for the purpose of making an attempt to get control of his wife's share in the Jay Gould estate. This has been the only subject discussed at the conferences which have been held almost daily since he arrived in the Gould offices, 195 Broadway. George Gould, Manager Philips, Judge Dillon and the Count have been present at all of them, and at least one day the Countess herself attended. The Count made a proposition which was not acceptable to the other Gould heirs. Under the French law a husband owns his wife's property. The Count looks on Anna Gould's share in the estate as his own. He wants to get it in his own control, and to convert at least a portion of it into cash. The Gould estate, which was valued at seventy millions when Jay Gould died, has been so wisely invested that it is now worth nearly one hundred millions. The heirs are loath to disturb investments which are bringing in such good returns.



Countess Castellane

"Anna's share in the estate is something like $15,000,000. Apart from the natural objections of the other heirs, George, Edwin, Howard, Frank and Helen Gould, to the Count's proposals, a legal obstacle of great moment has been encountered. At the conference last Saturday this objection, which was looked upon as an insurmountable obstacle in the Count's way, was made plain to him. He was informed that under the terms of Jay Gould's will he had no power to accept for his wife, a lump sum of money in lieu of her legacy, and that he has no legal right to sign away the interests of her children. In corroboration of this claim section V. of the first codicil to Jay Gould's will was read to the assembled conferrees. It is as follows—



The Late Jay Gould.

"Fifth. The beneficial interest of each of my daughters in the trust property and in the trust hereby created is hereby declared to be for her sole and separate use, entirely free from any right, estate or control of her husband, and her separate receipt and acquaintances shall be sufficient without the assent or joinder of her husband.

"No beneficiary under my said will and this codicil shall have any power to dispose of or in any way encumber or charge by way of anticipation or otherwise the rents, interest and income from the part or share set apart for his or her benefit, or to dispose of, charge or encumber the part or share itself, or of his or her interest therein or in any part thereof, or any beneficial interest therein or right thereto, be liable or changeable prior to the actual receipt thereof by such beneficiary from the executors and trustees under and pursuant to the terms and provisions of the trusts created and declared in that behalf in my said will and this codicil thereto."

"Further conferences are to be held this week, and the Count still hopes to make some arrangement which will enable him to return to France with at least a portion of the money he came for. This is the truth about the Castellanes' visit to New York."

FALSE MESSIAHS.

Large Numbers of Them Have Appeared Since the Christian Era.

The number of alleged Messiahs who at one time or another have found deluded followers in astonishingly large bers. One of the first of these and apparently the greatest was a man named Simeon. He appeared in the middle of the second century, and claimed to fulfill in his person the prophecy of Balaam as given in Numbers—"God brought him forth out of Egypt; he hath, as it were, the strength of a unicorn; he shall eat up the nations of his enemies, he shall break their bones, and shal ipierce them through with his arrows."

Simeon was a bit fond of spectacular effects. In reality, he was one of a band of bandits who at that time infested Judea and wrought violence against Roman persons and property. He assumed the name of Bar Cocheba, the son of a star. His enemies instantly showed that they had a pretty wit, and promptly dubbed him Bar Cozeba, which in the plain language of the land meant the son of a lie. In order to fulfill the prophecy of one who shold "go before," Bar Cocheba chose a forerunner, a sort of second John the Baptist. Then he raised an army. Hundreds of thousands of the Jewish people flocked about him, and hundreds of thousands more believed implicitly in his divine origin. The son of a star went to Bither and there set up his standard. Hadrian was Emperor of Rome. He sent an army and beseiged Bar Cocheba and his followers. Finally, a successful assault was made, and the Jewish leader and more than half a million of his followers were put to the sword. It was one of the most terrible disasters which ever befell the Jewish people.

The next leader to arise came centuries later and claimed to be a sort of reincarnation of Moses, whose duty it was to deliver the Jews of Crete. To a few of those who were especially under his influence he stated that he was the long-expected one, and that in him all prophecy should be fulfilled. As a Moses, the Jewish Cretans fully believed in this man, whom they soon found to be the most cruel of imposters. The name given him in history is Moses Cretenis. He told his followers that as his namesake of old divided the Red sea, so would he separate the waters which lay between them and the mainland, and through the walls of waves he would lead them dry shod to the Holy Land. So thoroughly did his dupes believe in his promises that they sold their lands, houses and other property, and prepared to follow him. On the day set for the going out he had them to the top of a high rock overlooking the "Great Sea." There he told them to have faith in him and to jump in the waters below. The waves, he promised, would roll back, and they would alight as softly as down upon the dry bed of the sea. With a mighty rush hundreds threw themselves headlong from the cliff. Not one in a score escaped drowning. The multitude saw the fate of their relatives, and with their eyes opened at last, would have torn the prophet to pieces, but he escaped from their midst, and from that moment disappeared from history.

In the reign of the Emperor Justin another self-styled Messiah, named Dunaan, arose. He made things interesting for a time in Arabia Felix, where he operated, but his forces were defeated finally by an Ethiopian general, named Elesban, and he was captured and put to death.

In 1137 in France another Messiah appeared and collected quite a following. He was finally defeated and he and a horde of adherents were put to the sword.

The next year a Persian Jew who made Messianic pretensions succeeded in collecting a vast army with which to uphold the cause of his people and to reinstate them firmly in the land of their fathers. His army was defeated and the leader was put to death with the most shocking cruelties.

The Jewish people were almost completely exterminated in Spain in the year 1157. In that year, at Cordova, a man claiming miraculous powers appeared, and promised the deliverance of Jerusalem. Many believed in him and followed him about. The cruel people of the peninsula, however, claimed to see a danger to the state and to religion in the actions of the minority of the Jews, and, taking the supposed menace as an excuse, they killed all the Jews in the land.

Sing While Marching.

A German army doctor has discovered that singing possesses health giving properties. He claims that it intensifies the respiratory movements, thus rendering the lungs capable of dealing with more air. This increases and strengthens the action of all the organs of the body. Appetite and thirst increase, and the more frequent movements of the diaphragm materially aid digestion. German foot soldiers are therefore encouraged to sing on the march.

Electric Bell Substitute.

A substitute for an electric bell has been devised by a deaf couple. Not being able to hear the bell themselves, and having no servant, they have fixed up an arrangement by means of which when the button at the front door is pressed, the electric lights all over the place light up, and remain so until the button is released. By a reversal of the arrangement, all the lights are switched off when the button is operated after dark.

A Scotch Scheme.

The following appears in a Glasgow paper. It would be interesting to know whether it has led to business. If so, the supply of grand pianos in Scotland must be considerably in excess of the demand.

"Lady having large drawin room would gladly store grand pian in return for use; references given."—London Truth.

The fir tree is the commonest of all trees, being found in every part of the world.

We all covet strength and admire it. We look at the marvelous muscular development of a Sandow with envy and straightway resolve to buy a pair of dumb bells and get strong, as if the secret of strength lay in muscles.

Strength begins in the stomach. It begins there because there the strength elements are manufactured, and from there they are distributed to blood, bone, brain, muscle and nerve. If you want to begin to be strong, start with the stomach. Put the digestive and nutritive organs and blood making glands in perfect working order. That is the foundation of strength. Exercise puts on the superstructure of development.

To establish the stomach and the digestive and nutritive functions in perfect health, there is no medicine so sure and so satisfactory as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, enriches the blood, nourishes the nerves, and regulates the functions of every vital organ of the body.

"About twelve years ago I was suddenly taken with a pain in the pit of the stomach which was so violent I could not walk straight," writes O. S. Copenhaver, Esq., of Mount Union, Huntingdon Co., Pa., (Box 228). "It would grow more severe until it caused waterbrash and vomiting of a slimy yellow water. I consulted a physician and he told me I had a form of dyspepsia and treated me for about six months with but little benefit. I still kept getting so weak I could scarcely walk. I then tried another physician and he told me my liver was out of order and that I had indigestion. He gave me a treatment and I got some better but only for a short time. I then took to using several widely advertised patent medicines, but received no more than temporary relief while using. I then tried Dr. Pierce's medicines, using his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and in two months' time I was feeling better than I had for years before. I can truthfully say Dr. Pierce's medicines did me more good than any I had ever taken."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages illustrated, is sent free for 31 one-cent stamps (cost of customs and mailing only) for paper edition, or 50 stamps for edition bound in cloth. Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ARCTIC MOSQUITO.

It Is About the Most Terrible Insect Pest in the World.

"Nothing that has ever been written about the arctic mosquito begins to come up to the real thing," said a guest in the St. Charles corridor the other evening. "I went up the Yukon river in the summer of 1898, representing the Alaska and Dominion Trading company, and we struck mosquitoes as soon as we got into the hills. They are twice as large as our familiar bayou species, and their sting is like the prod of a hot needle. They sweep along the valleys in dense clouds, and if they catch a man unprepared they are liable to blind him before he can escape. I heard stories of children being stung to death and can readily believe them.

"Whenever we went ashore we wore heavy hat nets and took the utmost precaution, but were certain to suffer more or less. One of our party cut the tongues out of his shoes, and a narrow line of sock was exposed under the lacing. Next day he was bitten there at least a hundred times, and his feet were so terribly inflamed that the shoes had to be cut off.

"Another man, a fireman in the boat crew, got drunk on Alaska whisky one afternoon and lay down to take a nap in a corner of the engine room. I noticed him a little later and was horrified at the solid brown mass of mosquitoes that had settled on a small exposed section of his cheek and throat. In an hour his face was swollen out of all resemblance to anything human, he was unable to swallow and was burning with fever. It was a week before he was able to be about. I saw a number of cattle near Fort Hamilton that had been made stone blind by stings near the eye.

"The arctic foothill mosquito is without doubt the most terrible insect pest in the world."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Jimmy and the Baby.

Jimmy's mother kept cows and sold milk. Jimmy himself had nothing to do with the cows, though sometimes he used to carry the milk pail to his mother's customers. The customers all liked Jimmy, with his round, freckled face and bashful grin, and they used to ask him how business was, for, although Jimmy was only 13 years old, he had a business. He made coffins—baby coffins—and sold them to the undertaker. They were nice pine coffins, with all the edges carefully joined. Jimmy received 50 cents for each one.

One day Jimmy stopped at the house of one of his mother's customers to leave some milk. A little boy met him at the door.

"We've got a new baby!" said the little boy. "Would you like to see it?"

Jimmy nodded. The little boy's aunt laughingly led Jimmy to the cradle where the new baby was. Jimmy gazed at the infant for some time, speechless with admiration or some such emotion.

"What do you think of it, Jimmy?" asked the aunt.

Jimmy grinned.

"I guess I'll have to make a nice little coffin when I go home," he said.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Boers Great Pioneers.

The Boer is the ideal pioneer. From the days of the great trek, in 1837, and even before that he opened up countries hitherto unexplored by a white man. A great deal of fuss has been made of mighty travelers, English and foreign, who have traversed Africa, to the vast pecuniary benefit of their publishers and with no small meed of fame to themselves, but there was scarcely one of the old voortrekkers and hunters of the forties and fifties who did not accomplish feats of endurance, pluck and lengthy travel which were ten times as trying.—London Mail.

Spanish Are Charitable.

The Spanish are among the most charitable people on earth. Without a poor tax, Spanish communities of 50,000 self supporters feed a pauper population of 5,000 or more.

Modern Equipment.

Mr. Tate has put in machinery for the grinding of lenses, in the rear end of his premises. The enterprise of Mr. Tate deserves recognition in the way of increased patronage. The facilities for surface work are very complete, and there are only two such establishments in Canada, in Montreal and in Toronto.

New Readers

We have just received a neat little book of new readings in Scotch and English for social gatherings. The selections are from the works of Mr. John Imrie, Toronto, and are up to date. For sale at the Times Bookstore.

New C. P. R. Locomotives.

In speaking of the relative hauling capacity of the locomotives now in use on the different Canadian railways, a railway engineer said the other day that the new compound locomotives being turned out of the Canadian Pacific Railway shops at Hochelaga, near Montreal, where the nearest approach to perfection that has yet been seen in this country. These engines are capable of hauling from fifty to sixty loaded cars, each car having a capacity of sixty thousand pounds with ease, there being no difficulty whatever experienced in getting over the road with this load.

How about the Sherbrooke street bridge, Mr. Mayor? Do you (of course we also mean the Council) intend to pay $2700 or $3,000 for a bridge that the Town Engineer said would only cost $1700? The people are watching you, and we warn you that you will be held accountable hereafter for any direlection of duty in this matter.

The Military Concert.

Arrangements are progressing favorably for the concert that will be held on or about the 27th of the month in the opera house under the auspices of the Veterans' Association and the 57th Battalion. The affair will consist of tableaux, bayonet and physical drill and a military farce. The musical part of the programme will consist of selections by one of Toronto's most talented lady soloists, and quartettes of a patriotic nature. The 57th Battalion band will also be in attendance. Altogether the affair will be high class in every particular.

Merchants to Meet.

An important meeting of the retail merchants of the town will be held this evening at eight o'clock at the Y.M.C.A hall. It is for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to the welfare of the mercantile community, chiefly regarding legislation which will come before the legislature at the session shortly to ensue in regard to trading stamps and departmental stores. The rapid and radical changes in the industrial and mercantile world during the past few years have resulted in conditions which are unsatisfactory in many ways and ever merchant should be interested in possible reforms. A representative of the "Retail Merchants Association of Canada," will be present from Toronto and will deliver an address. A full attendance of the merchants is expected. Mr. R. S. Davidson will occupy the chair.

All are eloquent speakers familiar with every detail of missionary work and the conference is sure to be of great interest and benefit. The public are invited to both meetings.

Yesterday about two o'clock, at the Methodist Parsonage, Mrs. Shorey, mother of Rev. S. J. Shorey, passed away, at the age of 68 years. The deceased lady was in her usual good health up to a week ago, when she caught a heavy cold, from which erysiplis developed. The deceased lady had come from her home near Picton on a visit to her step-son, and her untimely death is therefore particularly sad. The interment will take plac ein Napanee to-morrow.

The fourth Bay of Quinte Conference Epworth League Convention will be held in the Methodist church, Port Hope, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 20th, 21st and 22nd, 1900. The programme promises a very interesting convention.

It was in the worst of mudtime. A tall, gawky youth from Lindsay came into Ed. Brown's store and asked the clerk to put him up a quarter of a pound of the best black tea. "I'd take half a pound," said the fellow, "only the goin's so bad I don't want ter load down my horse."

Ward Colby, who was sentenced to a term in the Industrial School, by Police Magistrate Dumble, was formerly a resident of Norwood, and Norwood will have to foot the bill instead of Peterborough. To Chief Rozzel is due the credit of relieving Peterborough of this burden.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The Hardware hockey team would like to secure a game for to-night with some local team. They have secured the ice, and had a game arranged with the Business College, but the latter have backed down, so the rink is left on their hands. Any club wanting a game, inquire at the Peterborough Hardware Co., and they will get the best of attention .

Well Pleased With the Times.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am one who for years felt that three papers was too many for Peterborough. I took the evening papers, and felt that this was all I could afford or all I needed. A few weeks ago I was indured to subscribe for the Times and I cannot refrain from writing you a line to say that I would not be without the paper for double the money. It gives a better summary of the war news than even the Toronto papers.

I cannot conclude without telling you how amused I am to see the way the evening papers are "hunting their holes."

While "everybody" may not be now reading the Times, if you keep the paper up to its present standard as regards news, I am sure it will not be long until "EVERYBODY reads the Times." From a FRIEND OF THE TIMES.

Peterborough, Feb. 9.

[Reply—Thanks for your kind letter. That the little evening fellows are rattled is evident. But this g.f.j. is not disposed to lose its head because it had added a thousand or so to its list of subscribers. We expect to place four or five thousand more on our list, during the present year, when we will be in a position to issue a paper in every way equal to the best in the land.—Ed. Times.]

The Dominion Elections.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—When does the present parliament die? I mean, when will the govern ment be forced to bring on th eelection? I see some of the papers predict an early dissolution—either June or early in Autumn of the present year. Who will likely be the candidates in East and West Peterborough?

By giving me an early reply you will oblige.

A CONSTANT READER.

Reply.—Parliament has a life of five years. Only in one instance did a Parliament live its full term. As regards dissolution, the Times is of opinion that this will take place this year—probably in the fall. The candidates in West Peterborough will probably be Mr. J. McWilliams, Liberal; and James Kendry, Conservative. In the East Mr. John Lang will doubtless again be the Liberal candidate. The Times would not be surprised if Mr. E. A. Peck, of Ashburnham, was chosen as the Conservatice standard bearer—Ed Times.

The Chalk Gave Out.

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir,—I heard a very good story the other day, which is worthy of a place in the Times. It appears that the city editor of one of your local contemporaries had a dream in which he thought he was in Heaven. When inside the pearly gates, St. Peter handed him a piece of chalk, and pointed to a blackboard and told him to write out his sins. On the way to it he met the editor of the Times, who asked him why he was going out. "I am not going out," he replied, "I am going after more chalk."

This is a true story; if you don't believe it, ask Dan. Burritt.

JOB.

Peterborough, Feb. 9.

A Fraternal Visit.

A special train containing the visiting Lindsay Oddfellows will arrive this evening at eight o'clock. They will be met at the station by members of Otonabee Lodge and escourted to the lodge rooms. After an exemplification of degree work a social evening will follow, consisting of supper, music, songs, speeches, &c. Visiting brethre will be cordially welcomed.

MATRON AND MAID.

Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain is not the typical American girl which some people represent her to be.

Mrs. Mary Lease has renounced her residence in Kansas and will hereafter make her home in New York.

The Duchess of Sutherland frequently attends meetings of socialistic women in company with Miss Margaret MacMillan, a socialistic lecturer.

Miss Mayme Jester, a niece of Buffalo Bill, is said to be the only female press agent on the road. She left the newspaper business to go into this new field.

Miss Emma Thursby has returned to New York and will resume work with her pupils at once. A recent report of her illness was unfounded, as she is quite well.

Dr. Cornelia de Bay of Chicago, a successful woman physician among the Dutch of that city and herself of Dutch descent, is about to give up her practice and go to the Transvaal as an army nurse.

Mrs. Julia Grant, widow of General Grant, will complete her personal memoirs before Christmas. She has been engaged on the work for nearly ten years. Society is interested in the appearance of Mrs. Grant's book.

Miss Anne M. de Beck, who heads the movement among Chicago women for the presentation of $5,000 swords to Generals Wheeler and Lee, has already had the designs for the swords worked out and announces that over half the necessary funds have been promised.

A young girl, Miss Emma M. Hery, is the superintendent of the Denver public schools. She was a newspaper woman and an active member of the Denver Woman's Press club. She is a Democrat and was elected on the straight ticket. Her opponent was also a woman.

It is rumored in Paris that Amelie Rives, now the Princess Troubetskoy, will settle there permanently and establish a literary salon for the purpose, primarily, of securing a French translation of her literary works and such other recognition as she thinks they deserve.

Mrs. John M. Thurston, the bride of the Nebraska senator, is described as of medium height, graceful, with changeful dark gray eyes, occasionally flashed with blue, perfect figure and mobile features. She was born in Tallahassee, Fla., 27 years ago and is a graduate of Wellesley.

Under the stimulating influence of Miss Grace King, the historian of New Orleans, the Louisiana Historical society is to establish in the Crescent City a historical museum. The society hopes to obtain by and by the Cabildo building, an old and historic pile now occupied by the state supreme court.

CHICAGO AND GRAND OPERA.

Chicago, having tired of grand opera, now proposes to become the world's art center, regardless of expense.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

One explanation of the failure of the grand opera season in Chicago is that the people are saving their money to buy automobiles.—Kansas City Star.

Mr. Grau says Chicago is a poor town for grand opera. The people out there will probably strike back by declaring that Grau is an all fired poor judge of packed meat.—Washington Post.

After losing a great deal of money Manager Grau has discovered that Chicago does not care for grand opera, her people being busy listening to the grunt of dying hogs and having no time to hark to the trills of a Sembrich.—Louisville Post.

Chicago is feeling rather mortified over the cold reception it gave to Mr. Grau. It would seem that Chicago is about on a par with Rochester as a "musical center" in the matter of giving welcome and support to great artists.—Rochester Democrat.

THE FRENCH PRESS.

Sober minded Frenchmen think that undue attention has been paid in England to the obscure draftsmen whose vulgarities have adorned the pages of the Parisian gutter press.—Philadelphia Record.

Considering all the abuse the English papers heaped upon France in the matter of Dreyfus, it is not surprising that the French papers should retaliate with unfavorable comments upon English policy.—Philadelphia Times.

The sort of cartooning to which Queen Victoria is being subjected in the comic papers of Paris is a reminder of the fact that there is no country in the world where that sort of journalism descends to such depths as in France. Its cleverness and keenness are impaired by coarseness and indelicacy.—Boston Herald.

Dew.

Teacher—How do you account for the phenomenon of dew?

Boy—Well, you see, the earth revolves on its axis every 24 hours, and in consequence of this tremendous pace it perspires freely.—London Tit-Bits.

Worthy of Imitation

For many years previous to his death Mr. Tobias Fitzgerald adopted the practice of each winter giving the old people of the Peterborough Protestant Home a sleigh ride and much to the delight of the inmates, Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald, who now owns the business, thoughtfully remembered them in the same manner on Wednesday afternoon last. Such acts as these go a long way to brighten the declining years of those who are in a position to thoroughly appreciate the attention.

Peterborough Machinery.

The Rossland Miner in an article on the Nelson mines, states that the Granite mill site has been a busy scene during the summer, while the new mill was being built. The mill, which consists of 20-stamps and eight grating vanners, a new patent, was supplied by the William Hamilton Co., of Peterborough, Ont., and installed by Mr. D. J. McNally. The mill is considered a very fine one by competent experts, and thoroughly up-to-date in every particular."

GEN. LORD ROBERTS WITH A LARGF ARMY

Purposes Turning Leif Flank of the Magersfontein Lines Near Jacobsdale.

A PRO-BOER MEETING IN LONDON ENDS IN RIOT.

A Hostile Crowd Invaded the Hall Shouting "Down With the Boers" and Singing National Anthem—Terrible Death-rate Reported from Kimberley.

London, Feb. 13.

The Pietermaritzburg correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing yesterday says: "A despatch from Eshowe reports that a large commando of Boers is encamped near Ngula with eighty wagons and nine guns. It is rumored that this force intends to besiege Eshowe, the intention probably being to fortify the Tusuzi hills in order to prevent the British traversing Zululand to relieve Ladysmith."

London, Feb. 13.

The socialists tried to hold a pro-Boer or peace meeting at Mile End, London last evening. A hostile crowd invaded the hall, shouting "Down with the Boers," and singing the national anthem. Mr. Henry Hindman, the Socialist leader and others attempted to speak and they were roughly handled and scattered. The utmost violence prevailed and the police were compelled to intervene and clear the streets in the neighborhood of the hall.

Kimberley, Feb. 9.

There was a heavy bombardment yesterday and to-day the fire of the Boer big guns at Kampers Dam has been very trying.

London, Feb. 13.—4.15 a.m.

Lord Roberts has gathered 35,000 men with whom, according to the best military opinion in London, he purposes turning the left of the Magersfontein lives near Jacobsdale, entering the Free State, compelling General Cronje to raise the siege of Kimberley and thus making his first step toward Bloemfontein.

Yesterday Lord Roberts' announced the appointment of General Sir Henry Colville, hitherto commander of the Guards brigade to the command of the ninth division, which is being formed and will consist, probably to a great extent, of colonial troops. General Colville will be succeeded by Gen. Reginald Pole-Carew.

London, Feb. 13.

Lord Roberts tells the correspondents when he gets down to business they shall have ample opportunity to send news. His chief press censor yesterday issued new rules, and in future all written communications are to go unchecked. Only telegrams will be censored. For the next few days little news is likely to get through, but later there will be more freedom. Thus, says the censor, and the last clause may be interpreted to mean that something is about to happen.

Kimberley, twenty miles away from the Modder River position, is in sore straits. Details of the December death rate show that in a population of 14,000 whites and 18 blacks, the mortality was sixty whites and 136 blacks per thousand. The infantile death rate was 617 per thousand among the white and 912 per thousand among the blacks. Enteric fever was prevalent.

The frightful state of things in December cannot have improved much if at all since; and the fighting power of the garrison must have been been greatly diminished.

Meanwhile the bombardment by the Boers has increased and there is imminent danger of the town falling. It is believed in circles close to the War Office that Lord Roberts will move at once.

Scouts have approached within a thousand yards of the Boer entrenchments at Magersfontein. They have found these strong and ascertained that they are used as dwelling places. Naval gunners are constantly watching the enemy's lines with strong glasses, and they declare that there is an appreciable diminution of the Boer forces.

In Natal, the Boer commandos south of the Tugela occupy Bold's Farm and several mines west of Chieveley. Two thousand Boers, with three guns, are advancing through Zululand towards Natal.

The War Office is making preparations to continue the stream of troops for South Africa. Four large steamers have been chartered. Japan agrees to let the Armstrongs transfer to England four naval quick firers that were built for her, consenting to wait for the execution of her own order until the hostilities in South Africa are over. Several European powers by similar consents as to guns being constructed by Vickers Sons and Maxim enable England to secure 100 Maxims.

Two thousand men are constantly engaged at Woolwich arsenal, and four gun and ammunition factories are working night and day to execute Government orders. The weekly output of four firms is four million rounds.

Outside of the requirements for South Africa, Great Britain is accumulating immense stores of war material. Considerable divergence of opinion exists as to the adequacy of the Government's military proposals even now.

SOME LIVELY SKIRMISHING.

Rensberg, Feb. 12.—The Boers attempted to outflank the British here on Friday. A considerable force of the enemy was threatening the British communication between Rensberg and Slingersfontein, 12 miles away, and during a reconnaissance by some Inniskillings and twenty Australians from Slingersfontein the Boers were discovered attempting to get a gun in position to shel lthe British camp. The Australians, having come into very close contact with the enemy, took cover under a hill about 900 yards from the camp Thereupon the Boers took up a position with a view to preventing their retirement, Some burghers got within 200 yards of the Australians and called upon them to surrender. They replied by fixing bayonets and shouting defiance.

Sergeant Edwards and two men made a dash, and galloping under a hot fire passed a number of hills held by the enemy, took word that the Australians were safe and confident of holding the enemy at bay and getting out after dark, which eventually they did.

The Inniskillings prevented the enemy getting their gunin position. The Australians lost one man killed and three wounded. The convoys have been successfully gotten to Slingersfontein to-day, the British escourt having had several brushes with parties of from twenty to thirty Boers infesting the region. Lt. Col. Page, with a section of artillery and 150 horses, got one large convoy through by shelling the enemy out of the road. The Boers also tried to outflank us on the west, placed a gun in position at Bastar's Nek, and fired on one of our outposts, driving off 1,000 sheep.

In Wednesday's brush two correspondents, Mr. Hales, of the London Daily News, and Mr. Lambie, of the Melbourne Age, fell behind. Mr. Hales, who was slightly wounded, was captured by the Boers, and Mr. Lambie was killed. The British took two prisoners.

MAY ARM THE NATIVES.

Durban, Feb. 10, 6 p.m.—A despatch is published here stating that 6,000 Boers are marching to outflank General Buller. It does not state where they crossed the Tugela River.

The movements of the enemy in Zululand are creating uneasiness here. It is expected that Eshowe will be attacked, and Greytown is apprehensive.

It is reported that the Natal Government is seriously considering the movement of arming a section of the Zulus to repel the invasion, and forming a native reserve.

STRATHCONA'S HORSE.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 12.—The first contingent of Strathcona's Horse is expected to arrive here from Winnipeg on Thursday or Friday next.

AN AMBIGUOUS ANSWER.

London, Feb. 12.—In the House of Lords to-day, replying to a question as to whether Major-General Sir Frederick Carrington was destined for a command in South Africa and whether Geral Methuen was still in command at the Modder River, Lord Lansdowne, the Secretary of State for War, answered that portion of the query referring to Genral Carrington in the affirmative, and added—

"General Roberts is now at Modder River and in command of the whole forces there."

A PRO-BOERP UNISHED.

Port Huron, Feb. 12.—Dan Conway, United States customs officer stationed at Sarnia, Ont., against whom charges were preferred of having too publicly expressed his pro-Boer sympathies, and who was also alleged to have spoken disrespectfully of the Queen, has been found guilty of the indiscretion upon investigation by the authorities at Washington and suspended without pay for thirty days. The penalty amounts virtually to to a fine of $90.

HEROISM OF VILJOEN.

London, Feb. 12.—A despatch from Buller's camp, dated yesterday noon, describes a daring feat on the part of Boer General Viljoen. A Maxim-Vickers gun abandoned by the Boers in a Donga was about to fall into British hands when the fearless Viljoen himself brought back a team of horses and escaped with the guns, threading his way between the red flashes and black clouds of Lyddite shells which the British artillery concentrated on him. During the night Gen. Hildyard fortified himself continually with much skill, building traverses and head cover Consequently though exposed to a terrific shell fire all of the seventh, he only lost 41. In twelve minutes sixty-three shells exploded on the hill and 240 were counted in two hours besides smaller shells from Maxim-Vickers guns, which were innumerable.

Prince Christian Victor, aide-de-camp to Gen. Hildyard, was knocked down by the concussion of a 100-pound shell bursting on a rock by which he was sitting. The Prince behaved throughout with extreme composure.

FOR DEFENCE OF THE EMPIRE.

Land Forces of Great Britain to be Re-organized and Total Half a Million.

London, Feb. 12.—The House of Commons was crowded to-day in anticipation of the statement of Mr. Geo. Wyndham, Parliamentary Secretary of the War Office, in regard to army measures. Mr. Wyndham said the country would soon have over half a million men. Mr. Wyndham rose, amidst cheers, when the House went into committee on supply, and said that he di dnot propose to deal with the question of the prosecution of the war, but would proceed immediately to outline military measures necessary for placing home defence on a satisfactory footing, The Government had not even considered the question of compulsory service, which was entirely un necessary in view of the activity of recruiting for the auxiliary forces. Since the war 10,000 recruits had joined under the existing conditions, and if improved facilities were offered he anticipated that the voluntary auxiliary forces if their efficiency were increased would easily suffice for passive defence and to garrison the sea ports and other positions.

Embody Militia.

They might even be qualified for undertaking more onerous duties. The Government proposed to put the pay of the militia on the same scale as the regulars and embody the whole militia.

During the spring and summer the volunteer artillery would be re-armed and a higher capitation grant would be given the volunteers, coupled with the demand for higher efficiency.

A mounted infantry volunteer corps would be formed and the Yeomanry would be treated on the same broad principles.

The artillery, army service corps, and engineers necessary fo rtwo additional army corps would be raised forthwith, namely thirty-six field batteries and seven horse batteries. The speaker also sai dit had been decided to raise twelve additional infantry battalions.

Commissions to be Offered.

Mr. Wyndham said the existing cavalry forces also would be extended, and that commissions would be offered to militia officers, to the colonies, great cheering, and to the universities. At present there were 109,000 regulars in the country, and the increase was anticipated to be 30,000. There were now 328,000 men in the auxiliary forces, and it was estimated that the increase would be 50,000 men. So altogether the country would soon have at least 517,000, and Mr. Wyndham anticipated that the number would be nearer 600,000 than half a million.

The Secretary of State for War, Lord Lansdowne, furnished the House of Lords with a statement similar to that of Mr. Wyndham.

The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Cambridge were interested listeners in the House of Lords.

ROBERTS AT MODDER RIVER.

Modder River, Feb. 10.—Lord Roberts is here. Upon appearing before th etroops on Friday he was enthusiastically cheered. He visited the camp of the Highland Brigade this morning and complimented General Macdonald and his men on their steady conduct at Koodoosberg Drift.

DECEIVED ON THE VELDT.

London, Jan. 30.—A correspondent with Gen. Gatacre's force writes on December 21:

"To give an idea of how deceptive is this veldt on a mist day I need only to mention that a flock of sheep which thet hunderstorm has caused to close up in a block was actually mistaken for a Boer laager. This misconception was not dispelled until after our scouts advancing with the utmost caution, had approached within 400 yards. At double that distance all of us were prepared to certify that we could see wagons, oxen and mounted men."

CANADIANS IN GOOD COMPANY.

First Contingent Brigaded With Gordon Highlanders and Other Fighting Corps.

Belmont, Cape Colony, Feb. 10.—The Canadians have been brigaded with the 2nd Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, 2nd Shropshires, and the 1st Gordon Highlanders, to form the 19th brigade and with a 2nd brigade to constitute the 9th division. The other brigade of this division will be formed of the third—militia—battalions of the Highland regiments. It is understood that Major-General Smith-Dorrien will command the brigade to which the Canadians are attached.

Major-General Smith-Dorrien saw service in the Zulu war of 1879, Egyptian war 1882, Nile campaign 1885, Soudan 1885-86, N.W. fronteir, India, 1897, Khartoum 1898. He holds the distinguished service order and many medals and clasps. The brigading of the Canadians undoubtedly means that the Canadians will take an important part in the active operations pending on the western border. The Cornwalls and Schropshires have been on the line of communication between Belmont and Modder River for several weeks. The Gordons have been in action at Enslin and Magersfontein. The militia battalions of the Highland regiments are now arriving in South Africa.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

London, Feb. 12.—The Times says: The statement which will be made in Parliament this afternoon will deal with a matter of great national importance. The lesson has been taught that our land forces are inadequate to the wants of the empire. Campaigns between regular armies are decided in these days with a rapidity which leaves no opportunity to redeem its initial errors. Only because of the special character of the Boer war is such an opportunity offered us. In this case the defects of our military system have cost reverses and, under other conditions might have brought upon us disaster. We have in our navy, it is true, an invulnerable defensive force, but in an empire like ours offensive operations may become indispensable. Realizing, as we do, that our military system has proved seriously deficient, we have made up our minds to amend it with the least possible delay, but that does not mean that a reform so vital and extensive should be attempted without a thorough investigation and mature deliberation.

TALK OF INTERVENTION.

New York, Feb. 12.—The World's Rome correspondent says:

"I am most reliably informed that a special representative of the Czar arrived to-day, incognito. His is a secret mission from the Czar to secure Italy's support for a Russo-Germany intervention in the British Boer war.

"The Marquis Visconte Venosta, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, favors European intervention in the war, but fears to wound British susceptibilities."

LIEUTENANT TAIT DEAD.

London, Feb. 12.—A despatch from Modder River, announces that Lieutenant F. O. Tait, the amateur golf champion, died of the wounds he received during General Macdonald's reconnaissance at Koodoosberg.

Met a Terrible Death.

Ashton, Feb. 12.—At 10 o'clock Friday morning Mr. Thomas Simpson, aged 27, son of the late James Simpson, was killed while attending a wood sawing machine on the premises of Mr. Robert Drummond who lives near the home of the unfortunate victim, about two and a half miles from Ashton. While the machine was being operated, the balance wheel burst, and a piece of the flying iron struck Mr. Simpson in the body with terrific force, tearing its way with the speed of an exploding shrapnel through his vitals, and almost disembowelling the man.

Trouble in Martinique.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, Feb. 12.—Elections were held yesterday in Fort de France and Fort Graindiers, and in the evening there was some disorder. Early to-day incendiary fires were started.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, Feb. 12, via Haytian, Cal.—The white inhabitants of Le Francois, being threatened with death by the rioting strikers, have sought refuge here, the Governor having declared it impossible to guarantee their lives.

A band of rioters marched yesterday through Fort de Frace without molestation, shouting, "Vive la Race Negre" (long live the negro race), "A bas les assassins" (down with the murderers), "Vengeance." Placards provoking pillage and murder and incendiarism were posted at Saint Pierre.

He Once Lived in Toronto.

New York, Feb. 12.—Frederick Thorpe died yesterday at Flushing, Long Island, after a lingering illness. He was in his 81st year. Death resulted from a complication of diseases. He was born at Hastings, England, and came to America in his youth. He settled in Toronto when a young man, and later went to Flushing, where he resided more than 50 years. He was an Oddfellow. He had a successful business career, but for the last ten years lived in retirement.

Lincoln on a High Pinnacle.

New York, Feb. 12.—Rev. Dr. Minot J. Savage, in a sermon on Abraham Lincoln yesterday, fixed the attention of his large audience by saying—"Leaving on one side the central character, the Nazarene, there is no man mentioned in the Bible, from the first verse of Genesis to the last of Revelations, who for one moment can be compared with Lincoln, either for greatness or for goodness."

Liberal Whips.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 12.—It is understood that Mr. Wm. Gibson will succeed Hon. Jas. Sutherland as chief Liberal whip. Mr. Frank T. Frost, M. P., for Leeds and Grenville, is mentioned as successor to Mr. Gibson.

WHY BULLER RETIRED ACROSS THE TUGELA.

He Spent Two Days Trying to Entrench the Position, but Without Success.

BULLER ADMITS IT IS AN IMPORTANT POSITION.

Without the Hill Being Securely Held, It Was Impossible to Advance to the Relief of Ladysmith—Gen. Buller Reports Directly to Lord Roberts.

London, Feb. 12.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Field Marshall Lord Roberts, dated from the Modder River, Sunday Feb. 11:—

"I have received a despatch from Buller as follows, dated Feb. 9:—

"It was necessary after seizing Vaalkrantz to entrench it as the pivot of further operations. But I found after trying two days that, owing to the nature of the ground, that this was impracticable. It was also exposed to the fire of heavy guns in positions from which our artillery was dominated. It is essential to troops advancing on Ladysmith by Harding or Mongersdrift to hold Vaalkrantz securely, and accordingly we are not pressing the advance by these roads, as I find we cannot make it secure."

THE SITUATION REVIEWED.

London, Feb. 12.—The arrival of Lord Roberts at Modder River has at last explained the meaning of the ambiguous "to the front," contained in the announcement of his departure from Cape Town. Where Lord Kitchener is has not been announced, and it must be assumed that he parted with his Commander-in-Chief at some point between Cape Town and the Modder. This may explain a good many things. It is evident that the blow which is about to fall upon the Boers will be directed by the heroes of Sherpur and Omdurman, and is inalterably connected with their movements. It is evident that the first care of Lord Roberts is to be the relief of Kimberley, the dispersion of the Boers at Magersfontein, and the consequent freeing of Methuen's army for operations elsewhere. It is evident that these objects can best be accomplished either by a turning movement or by an attack upon the enemy's base at Bloemfontein. A reasonable theory is that Lord Roberts intends to direct operations against the entrenchments at Magersfontein, while Kitchener, who has remained in the rear, will execute one of the movements referred to, probably from Belmont or Gras Pan, or some other place in the neighborhood of the Orange River station. There is an easy route by which the Boer kopjes at Magersfontein can be turned and their lines of communication severed. A British force might march from Belmont, cross the Riet River at Koffyfontein, twenty miles east of Modder River, march northeast across the veldt to Paarde Berg, whence a road leads to Kimberley by way of Kordoes Rand. The distance to be covered is only about 100 miles. A march direct across the veldt to Bloemfontein would be slightly longer. Both movements would accomplish the raising of the seige at Kimberley. In the one case the Boers could not hope to hold their ground with a British army at Kimberley and another at Modder River. In the second place they could not maintain their position with their base of supplies in the hands of the British. One of these moves is assuredly about to be made, and Lord Kitchener will probably take a prominent part in it. The concentration of troops in the neighborhood of Modder River clearly indicates an important move in this direction. The long expected invasion of the Orange Free State is about to be made and Lord Kitchener may head the invading column. In the meantime Buller, French, Gatacre and Kelly-Kenny will keep the Boers in play and await the time when, the enemy's base having been occupied, he is compelled to fall back. In such case the capture of many Boers and the collapse of their campaign in more than one locality may be looked for.

A new departure has evidently been made in the capaign in Natal. Not long ago it was announced that Gen. Buller had assumed sole direction of this part of the war and his despatches were sent direct to the War Office. The latest despatch received from his camp, has passed through the hands of Lord Roberts, which indicates that the Commander-in-Chief is having a voice in the operations tending to the relief of Ladysmith, and that all the generals are co-operating in some strategic combination of importance.

HOPEFULNESS IN ENGLAND.

London, Feb. 12.—Not a line of war news having been received since yesterday Great Britain remains waiting anxiously to learn which side will succeed in striking first. But the feeling is much more confident that at the opening last week in consequence of the widespread belief that the hands of Field Marshall Lord Roberts and General Kitchener are firmly gripped at th ehelm, and that whatever happens the campaign will now be waged under careful, comprehensive plans, in which all the forces will co-operate. Both sides seem to be collecting themselves for attack.

If reports are to be believed the left horn of the Boer army is creeping through Zululand, and threatening the British right and at Chieveley, Gen. Joubert, with 6,000 men is reported to be endeavoring to attack Gen. Buller. Boer aggressiveness has already developed and has been repulsed at Rensburg, while from what now becomes the most important point of the campaign, the Modder River, comes the news of ceaseless activity and redoubled vigilance.

These reports crete hopefulness in Great Britain, rather than anxiety for the impression exists that the Boer aggressiveness will give the British troops their long yearned for opportunity, and tend greatly to assis the broad plan of campaign which Lord Roberts may shortly be expected to set in motion at the Modder River. In the meanwhile Ladysmith must await the exigencies attendant upon the more important military movements now on foot. It is said positively that General Macdonald's withdrawal from Koodoosberg was ordered by General Methuen, under Lord Roberts instructions.

Molineux Found Guilty.

New York, Feb. 12.—Roland B. Molineux, after a trial of extraordinary length, was on Saturday found guilty of murder in the first degree, the victim being Mrs. Katharine J. Adams, who died from poison sent in a bromo seltzer bottle through the mails by Molineux. The woman died on December 28, 1898, and Molineux was arrested on Feb. 24, 1899. He was indicted in March, 1899, and re-indicted in June.

Molineux was brought in from the prison, walking jauntily and smilingly, as if without a care. The usual questions were asked and the verdict given, the prisoner scarcely flinching. General Molineux pressed his son's shoulder hard, and the convicted murderer put his own hand on his father's shoulder. The jury was polled and the great case ended, except for the sentence, which will be delivered on Friday.

For a Canadian Commander

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—The first detachment of Strathcona's Horse passed Medicine Hat this morning and are expected here on Thursday evening or Friday morning It consists of 216 men. The department has not yet been advised of the number of horses.

It is understood that the Government will introduce a bill to amend the Militia Act so as to allow a Canadian officer to allow a Canadian officer to hold the position of General Officer Commanding. This will require the endorsation of the Imperial Parliament under the terms of the British North American Act.

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—The secretary of the Patriotic Fund announces that he is now ready to receive applications for assistance which can be forwarded to him at Ottawa postage free. The applications can be made either by the intended recipient or friends.

A Heroic Woman.

Sydney, N. S., Feb. 21,—Miss Steele, aged 16, neice of Mrs. Farrell, of this place, was burnt to death while attempting to save her aunt's little son from the flames which destroyed two homes. Miss Steele had rescued three children, dropping them out of a window to their mother below. She had gone back to save the little boy, but both were burned to death.

Lively Scene at Victoria.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 10.—Joseph Martin created a scene in the Legislature yesterday by charging Finance Minister Cotton with being a defaulter from Colorado, and upon Cotton giving him the lie, Martin declared he would move a resolution for a committee to investigate the criminal record of the Finance Minister, stating that he was prepared to substantiate his charges.

Mr. Martin had been speaking on Chinese immigration, and was making a point in an argument that persistency would force the Dominion to recognise a province's right, as in the case of Manitoba and the railway question when he was Attorney-General. Then Mr. Cotton made a remark derogatory to his former colleague, and the charges then flew thick and fast.

Four Hundred for a Secret

Woodstock, Feb. 12. — Magistrate Field will resume on Wednesday, the hearing of evidence on the charge of counterfeiting against Anthony Decker, Hans Kuntz and Paul Decker. Two witness have already been examined—Julius Steiner, of Baltimore, and Mr. Turquand, former clerk at the Oxford Hotel. Steiner knew Decker as Dietjon, boarding with him at the same house. For $400 Decker said he would let him into a secret by which he—Steiner—could make a great deal of money. The secret was a plant in Canada for manufacturing bank notes. He showed Steiner a counterfeit Molsons Bank note which he had made. It was just as easy to make American money. Mr. Turquand testified to finding a telegraphic code in the room occupied by Paul Decker, son of Anthony Decker.

Mrs. Decker Re-arrested.

Hamilton, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Decker, wife of Paul Decker, was acquitted here on Saturday of the charge of having in her possession material for engraving counterfeit bank notes. She was, however, shortly afterwards re-arrested on a charge of conspiracy, and taken to Woodstock for trial.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 7, 1900

SIGNIFICANT.

Comment on the following incidents would seem to be wholly superfluous, says the Ottawa Citizen.

Louis Gabriel, a local pro-Boer speaker, engaged the Trades hall, Winnipeg, to deliver a lecture there on Tuesday night, but when the labor men learned the nature of his speech they refused to let the hall for such a purpose. Upon his arrival the speaker was notified of this decision. He then attempted to retire from the hall but was rotten-egged and followed by a crowd of upwards of a thousand indignant citizens, shouting maledictions on Kruger and the Boers and singing Rule Britannia, Scots Wae Hae, and other patriotic songs. The police succeeded in rescuing the hapless lecturer from his pursuers. A Union Jack was then hoisted and an immense procession formed, which paraded the streets for some time, singing the Maple Leaf Forever and God Save the Queen, with an intense enthusiasm. Gabriel had been lecturing at several points throughout the country.

Wednesday Mr. Henry Labouchere, Liberal M.P. for Northampton, proposed to address a peace meeting in the hall of that town. The announcement of the meeting drew together a large audience which packed the hall before the opening of the proceedings, and passed the interim in singing patriotic songs. When the speakers arrived they abandoned this peaceful method of enjoying themselves and devoted their entire attention to a successful attempt to prevent the meeting being held. They stormed the platform on which the intending speakers were assembled, smashed the furniture, and otherwise acted in a most riotous manner. Several fight occurred and a number of persons were injured. Mr. Labouchere was hit several times on the head, but was not seriously injured. He managed to make his exit escorted by the police. Ultimately the opponents of the peace meeting gained the platform and declared that Northampton had joined York city in repudiating the critics of the government. The significance of the York election lies in the fact that a Unionist majority of eleven for Lord Charles Beresford, one of the strongest candidates possible, was increased to 1,430 for Mr. Fabre, the new member.

The lion is roused, and the cubs, too, and it will be just as well that speakers and writers lay to heart the lesson contained in the foregoing.

KRUGER'S QUESTION.

"I will admit that until Mr. Kruger issued his proclamation offering war to the British empire unless his terms were complied with on the very briefest notice, there was room for doubt. I will admit that if we had been called on to contribute a contingent toward the invasion of the South African Republic, to an attack upon them, there might have been room for doubt. But an attack on the South African Republic is one thing, and the invasion of the British Empire is another and a very different thing. Sir, in the proclamation to which I refer, Mr. Kruger put a question, and the question rightly understood was neither less nor more than this—shall the British flag continue to float in South Africa at all? Shall South Africa and the huge domains which have fallen under the control of the British sovereign in that great continent, shall they be British or shall they be Boer for evermore? I say to such questions so put there could be but one answer. From the Yukon to New Zealand, from Vancouver to Halifax, from Hudson Bay to Sydney Head, wherever the British flag floats, wherever the British tongue is spoken, wherever British subjects dwell and British institutions prevail, to such a question there can be but one answer, and that answer is, 'Never, or over our dead bodies first.'" — Sir Richard Cartwright.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

If General Macdonald succeeds in getting within striking distance of those two isolated commandoes, his Highlanders will take a terrible revenge for the slaughter of their comrades at Magersfontein.

Baby's Pretty Curls.

Yesterday a traveller who happened to be on the Lindsay train, told the Times of a funny incident. A well-dressed woman with a beautiful baby in her arms attracted the attention of the passengers Everyone was fasinated by the baby's pretty and smiling face, and particularly by two golden curls which hung down her cheeks. After a while the child became nervous and began to tug at one of the curls which protruded from her hood. The woman—presumably her mother—quickly stopped her, but a few minutes later she looked out of the window. No sooner was her face turned than the child seized her bonnet with both hands and pulled it off. It offered little resistance, but to the astonishment of everyone on the car the curls came with it, and the supposed golden-haired baby showed that in reality its head was without the semblance of a hair. The child swung the bonnet to and fro and laughingly held it up for the inspection of the other passengers. It was almost a minute before the woman turned around. When she saw what the baby had done her face flushed, and without a word she picked up the child and walked sedately out of the car into the next one, with the baby tucked under her arm like a sack of oats, but still holding tightly to the bonnet and cooing — "see my poorty hair ?"

CHURCH AND CHURCHMEN

The old "Second church" in Boston celebrated its two hundred and fiftieth anniversary recently.

The Universalist church reports 1,003 parishes and 47,471 families, an increase of about 1,200 families over last year.

The Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale will not occupy the pulpit of his church in Boston again until spring. Dr. Lyman Abbott will be the supply for the month of January.

KITCHEN HELPS.

Glassware should be washed in warm water with a dash of soap powder, rinsed off in clear, warm water and polished with soft linen towels.

Hot or cold water cans or jugs should be turned upside down when not in use, so that they can drain and dry thoroughly. If left damp, they will rust inside and be spoiled, because rust eats holes in the metal.

For dishwashing kerosene oil has been found to form an emulsion with the grease, so that a few drops of kerosene dropped into cold or tepid water will keep knife handles from being injured, as in the case where soap and hot water are used.

Too Small.

Uncle 'Zek'el Watson was accustomed to seeing good sized squares of cup cake, 'lection cake or gingerbread on the supper table, and when he had his first plate of ice cream in a city restaurant he looked with some disfavor upon the macaroons and small sponge drops which accompanied it.

"How do you like it?" asked his niece, who was doing the honors of the city for her uncle.

"The ice cream is first rate," said Uncle 'Zek'el. "I call it extry good. But when you come to these things," he added, lifting one of the sponge "lady fingers" and surveying it doubtfully, "I presume to say they're all right enough, what there is of 'em, but there isn't enough of 'em; just nothing but gape and swallow!"—Youth's Companion.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War. A Splendid Set of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having traveled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been a ofavorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

Soudanese Look Serious.

London, Feb. 9.—A special despatch from Cairo says the mutiny of the Soudanese troops at Khartoum has assumed serious proportions and is causing great anxiety.

HUMAN BRAIN CELLS.

THEY REFUSE TO WORK UNDER TOO HIGH A PRESSURE.

Put on Too Much Steam and These Minute Organisms Go on Strike. Why Men Go Crazy or Become Absentminded.

Keeping pace with scientific thought and progress certain problems which in the past have been shelved for want of light being thrown upon them have been taken up again one by one to undergo further examination by the aid of improved science.

The newest revelation in this direction tends to the science of the mind and includes the following problems:

Why does a man act queerly when he is intoxicated?

Why is a man absentminded on occasions?

Why does a man sometimes become violently insane, often a dangerous, raving lunatic?

Such questions as these have puzzled our immediate fathers, who have hardly ever satisfactorily explained them away or indeed thrown much reliable light upon them. The human brain is composed of cells, and each cell is a simple bit of nerve substance, from one end of which, like an octopus, spring a number of tentacles, while from another part arises an arm different from them and of great length. The long arm is intended for transmitting impressions from one portion of the brain system to another, it being made to touch the tentacles or short arms of the next one to it, the latter in its turn effecting contact with a third cell, and so on.

Thus a message is conveyed and the mind gets its news. The entire brain is made up of these cells, whose number is legion and whose full strength is grouped in systems, these systems in turn being arranged in communities, the communities in clusters and finally the clusters in constellations, by which divisions they are known to physiologists.

So long as the mind is in a healthy condition each little cell, or brain octopus, attends to its business faithfully and gives no trouble, but as man generally is an animal who usually refuses to live the life spanned out by nature and adopts instead the life laid down by the modern artificial process of living, instituted forsooth by civilization, mental disturbances frequently arise through the brain becoming abused in various ways, from overwork and alcohol principally.

Your octopuslike brain cell is a living little thing, and it can endure a great deal of abuse from you, but if you should go a little too far it rebels and refuses to work any longer by breaking contact with its companion cells, which it can do by withdrawing its long arm and getting itself out of circuit. But this rebellion is conducted by whole groups of cells acting together in full harmony.

Now, the object of this "strike" is simply to avoid overwork, for each tiny cell has stored within its minute space only a certain amount of energy, but if you put on the high pressure this is easily consumed by the operation of the brain, and the organism breaks down from exhaustion. Now, take the first of the problems just stated. When a person takes too much to drink, the cells in those patches of the brain that are responsible for the conduct of muscular movement became affected and the man staggers.

When the dose is very large, the cells, which, although stupefied, have tried to keep their master on his legs, now cease working, and the man sleeps like one dead. Finally, if more than enough of alcoholic drink be taken, the effect on the cells is to paralyze them, and the unfortunate man dies.

There is some relation between extraordinary activity of the mind and insanity. Geniuses are apt to exhibit symptoms of mental alienation, and, singular to relate, their children are usually inferior to those of average men.

For instance, not to go out of England for example, Cromwell was a hypochondriac and had visions. Dean Swift inherited insanity and was himself not a little mad. Shelley was called by his friends "Mad Shelley." Charles Lamb went crazy, Johnson was another hypochondriac, Coleridge was a morbid maniac, Milton was of a morbid turn of mind, nearly approaching insanity (modern ideas of hades are largely formed on the description evolved by his diseased imagination), and Byron said he was visited by ghosts.

This mental alienation occurring in the foregoing cases shows that certain specific groups of brain cells have come under the baneful influence of the guiding spirit called talent or genius, which has used up all the energy stored in each cell and each group of cells, to the detriment of the whole, with the result that their ceasing work has brought about various types of insanity as depicted or, to phrase it more softly, induced disturbance of the mental equilibrium.

The remaining problem is absentmindedness. This is produced by a temporary disjunction of certain groups of cells. A man becomes so absorbed in his study of some particular subject and tends his whole mind to thought, that the hard thinking disorganizes the groups of cells employed in the process of reflection, their tentacles being turned all one way, to the detriment of mental action generally, and so the man with the tentacles of his brain cells turned in the one direction passes along the streets lost to all observation or mental perception and does all manner of queer things because he is not conscious of what he is doing.—Pearson's Magazine.

"LITTLE BOBS"-AND HIS BIG LIEUTENANT, GEN. KITCHENER.

How Lord Roberts Won the V.C.—The Men on Whose Shoulders Now Rests the Responsibility of the Campaign Against the Boers in South Africa.

England has called Lord Frederick Sleigh Roberts and Sir Horatio Kitchener to her aid in the Transvaal. Each in his own fashion is a remarkable man. Each has seen more fighting, more bloodshed, more facings of death in combat than ever the most warlike of Englishmen have dared to dream of. It is something more than opportunity which makes a man. The mother's milk which sustained him in infancy must have had certain potential qualities for him to be genuinely great in after life. Kitchener and Roberts both come from old English stock with a fair mixture of Irish Kitchener was born in Ireland, while Roberts was born in India of English parents. They call the sirdar "the man of certainties." In India Roberts is called "Bobs Bahadur," that is, "Bobs," the hero or champion. Kitchener is more than six feet in height, a strapping big fellow, with phenomenal endurance and a will power that knows no mastery. Roberts is small, wiry, nervously energetic, more of a diplomat than the other, but none the less a fighter. This is the second time he has been supreme in command in South Africa. When General George Colley was killed at Majuba Hill in 1882 Roberts was ordered out to succeed him, but he saw no fighting as peace came quickly. He will now be commander in chief of all the English forces in South Africa, and Kitchener will be his chief of staff.

General Roberts, in the event of the death of Sir Garnet Wolseley, is in direct line to become the head of the English army. He is popular with the rank and file of the Empire, the people who pay the taxes and furnish the fighting private. There was a time in 1878 when the Afghan uprising appeared to threaten as seriously the integrity of the British Empire as the Transvaal war does now. Roberts was in India, and in the campaign against the Afghanistan he performed a series of feats which showed him to be one of the ablest commanders and most brilliant soldiers in the service of the country. He commanded the column sent to operate through the Kuram Valley, and surmounting the dangers and difficulties of the Peiwar Pass, gained a decisive victory as Charasiah and entered Cabul.

At the end of July, 1880, another British column under General Burrows, which was attacking Ayoob Kahn, was defeated and literally cut to pieces at Maiwand. Burrows barely managed to save a small remnant of his force, who fought their way to Candahar, where they joined the garrison under command of General Primrose. Ayoob Kahn prepared to attack the city.

General Roberts, who was several hundred miles away, was apprised of the danger at Candahar and gathered a force of 9,000 picked men. These he marched with almost incredible rapidity across the trackless region between Cabul and Candahar and descended upon Ayoob Kahn before the latter was aware of his presence. The Afghans received a defeat from which they have not recovered to this day and England a respite from rebellions for many a month. Roberts fought his Afghan battles with weakened forces. In order to strengthen a column sent through the Khyber Pass many companies were detached from his command, and what he accomplished was with less men than any other commander in Afghanistan had at that time. It is indicative of the courage of the man that before he moved his forces he represented to the authorities that he considered the number of troops at his disposal inadequate to the task they were expected to perform. He did not receive the re-inforcements desired.

Roberts is the man who lived for twenty-one years in India as an English soldier, rising from the position of subaltern to that of commander in chief of all the English forces there. He was 20 when he landed at Madras. His father for years was commander of the Lahore division. In the Indian mutiny of 1857 he was conspicuous by being found wherever there was heavy fighting. His gallantry was always conspicuous. He has seemed to lead a charmed life. Friends and comrades have been killed by his side, but he has always escaped. He won the Victoria Cross by recapturing from several Sepoys a British flag. In 1892 he was elevated to the peerage, and in the following year resigned his Indian command and returned to England. He was then placed in charge of the forces in Ireland. The privates of the English army call him "Little Bobs."

Kitchener made England supreme in the Soudan. In the deserts of the Soudan the loser of a battle is looked upon with the utmost contempt. Kitchener is looked upon by those who survived his attack as God-given. When future generations come to read the history of modern Egypt, and the story of the Soudan no name will figure in it more prominently than that of Kitchener, the third sirdar of the Egyptian army. His father was a colonel in the British army and his son chose soldiering for his profession. He was educated at Woolwich, and entered the Royal Engineers as a lieutenant in 1871. Love of adventure caused him to leave the army in 1874 to join in the survey of western Palestine, under Major Condor, but after the attack on the party at Safed, he returned to London. The roving life of surveying and exploring suited Kitchener's nature admirably and he went out to the Holy Land on surveying expeditions three times, on the last occasion as sole commander of the expedition for the survey of Galilee.

In 1878 Cyprus was taken by Great Britain, and a strong man was needed to organise the land laws there. Kitchener was chosen for the work, and did it well.

Egypt was in a state of anarchy, and its army was ruined. Kitchener learned that this army was to be reorganized by English officers, and he volunteered for the service. His past valor was not forgotten and he was accepted. He became governor general of the Red Sea Littoral and commandant at Suakim.

In 1888 he defeated Osman Digna at the seige of Suakim. He commanded only native Soudanese battalions, but his faith in them was unbounded. He led them within 200 yards of formidable breastworks without firing a shot, but when he did give the word to go they poured a withering hail of lead into the Arab's position and then carried the trenches with a rush that would have done credit to the guards, completing with their bayonets the destruction of the enemy.

Kitchener fought again at Gamaizah, at the battle of Toski and at Dongola. He has been twice shot at by bedouins, nearly murdered in Palestine, narrowly escaped being hanged as a spy, besides the ordinary risks in a dozen different battles.

At Omdurman, in his eagerness to get where he could see the progress of the fight he came a trifle too near the lines of fire of his own men, and a bullet cut through the sleeve of his coat. The scene after the battle, which he won, is described by eye-witnesses as frightful.

This victory of Kitchener left him the controlling power of the region that comprises the bases of the Niger, Lake Tchad and the branch of the Nile that is called Bahr-el-Ghazal. His sphere of influence covered an area of 950,000 square miles, with a population of over 10,000,000.

DIED ON HIS WEDDING DAY.

They Kept Company 25 Years But Were Disappointed at Last.

The death of Daniel H. Muphy at his hotel in Lynn, Mass., Wednesday afternoon of last week, was a surprise to every one who knew him, but few realized at the time that his demise was the culminating point in a romance that finds its beginning about a quarter of a century ago. Mr. Murphy was one of the largest and most successful real estate operators in New England, having extensive interests in all parts of the state. He began life as a shoemaker and gradually rose to the position of foreman and then became a manufacturer of shoes. Later he gave up the shoe business and devoted himself to real estate. He was neve marrried but for 25 years he had kept the company of Miss Mary A. Herrick, of Lynn. Everybody who knew them expected they would get married sometime. Murphy was a Catholic and Miss Herrick was a niversalist, and this was said to be the cause of the delay in their marriage. A week ago last Sunday Murphy was taken ill with pneumonia at Miss Herrick's house. He got to his hotel and gradually grew worse. He saw that he was in a dangerous condition and sent for attorneys to make his will. They came and he gave them instructions. They came next morning to get his signature, but he had changed his mind during the night and wanted some alterations. The lawyers went to their offices to make the changes and about the same time a gentleman called on the city clerk for a mariage license for Mr. Murphy and Miss Herrick. But both came too late. His hand was cold when it should have signed his will, and he was dead when he expected to marry the woman who had been his choice for 25 years.

HUTTON LEAVES CANADA.

The General Commanding Selected for Service in Africa.

Ottawa, Feb. 10.—The Minister of Militia denies that any announcement was made from his department that Major-General Hutton had been selected by the War Office for special service in South Africa. Other members of the Cabinet are equally uncommunicative, but there is a well-held rumor here that the matter is all settled, and that General Hutton will not remain long in Canada.

People say that the General is being let down easily. The Colonel Hughes episode is said to be not the greatest of the differences between the commander of the forces and the Minister of Militia. It is understood that General Hutton will first proceed to England and thence to South Africa.

Mr. Sorsoleil addressed the men's meeting yesterday, the subject being "The Man in Society."

LAZY MAN'S PARADISE.

FAIR SUNNY ISLES WHERE LABOR IS UNNECESSARY.

And Where the People Grow Fat on the Fruits That Nature Has Plentifully Provided—No Poverty and No Crime.

There are places on the earth where a man may live comfortably all his life without doing any work, says Lemuel Cooper, who was born on the island of Ruatan, one of the Bay group, a little chain or key lying some 30 miles off the coast of Spanish Honduras. To starve there would be simply impossible; it would be like trying to drown a fish. We have no beggars and no pauper class to maintain. There has never been a murder, theft is unknown and locks are unnecessary. Last year our mortality was one-fourth of one per cent.

Ruatan, continued Mr. Cooper, is 40 miles long and three miles wide. It has a population of about 3,000 people, mostly Carib Indians, and I doubt whether there is in all the world a more beautiful and prolific spot. The people are lazy simply because they don't have to work. Cocoanuts form their mainstay and there is nothing easier to grow. To start a grove one merely burns off a piece of land and plant the nuts in rows 20 feet apart In from four or five years' time the trees are a dozen feet high and beginning to bear and after that the planter is fixed for life. He may bid adieu to care. The nuts are never picked, but as they mature they drop off, and this shower of fruit goes on steadily month after month all the year round. How long a tree will bear nobody can say, but there are some on the island that are known to be over half a century old and are still dropping their harvest of nuts.

Labor Is Unnecessary.

When the native needs something at the store all he has to do is to gather together some nuts and trade them for what he wishes. He hulls them by striking them on a stake driven into the ground and a man can easily hull 3,000 a day in that manner. My two brothers and myself shipped 1,100,000 nuts last year, and the total shipment fromm the islands would average about 8,000,000. Elsewhere the hull is a valuable by-product and is manufactured into mats and brushes and all sorts of fibre ware, but no attempt has ever been made to utilise it on the Bay islands. Thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of material has thus been allowed to rot on the ground. Everybody admits that a fibre works would be a profitable industry, "but what is the use?" the people say. "Havn't we everything we want already?" It is the indolence that gets in the blood. The longer you live at Ruatan the less you approve of toil.

Other fruits grow just as easily as the cocoanut and the only reason why that especially is grown is because it furnishes an easy crop, for which there is always a ready maket. We have plenty of bananas, oranges, mangoes, plums and pineapples, and they are all delicious. They grow wild, without the slightest cultivation, and all one has to do is to pick them. Vegetables are equally prolific, and our native yams easily average 40 or 50 pounds in weight. A piece of cane stuck in the ground takes root and renews itself perennially for years. A stranger who comes to the island is invariably amazed at the prodigality of nature and the apathy of the natives—that is before the lazy feeling gets into his blood. "Why don't you grow this?" and "Why don't you cultivate that?" he asks. The natives simply smile. "Why not take things easy and be happy?"

Valuable Islands.

The next island to Ruatan is Utilla, which has a population of about 600, and is touched by several steamship lines. There is a good deal of trading from the island along the Honduranian coast and the owners of the larger sloops and schooners make considerable money that way, but the main business is in cocoanuts. The first island of the chain is Bonacca and has about the same population as Utilla. Then there are two very small islands—Babarat and Morat.

Attractive to Strangers.

The strangers who occasionally drift to the Bay islands, through one chance and another, rarely leave. They are like the lotus eaters in Tennyson's poem. The American consul at present is Mr. Johnson, who comes from Wisconsin. He was delighted with the spot and sent at once for his wife and daughter. They are all there together now and insist that they will never leave. The climate, by the way, is singularly equable. The thermometer has never been known to fall below 66 or to rise above 85. Being part of Spanish Honduras, we are, of course, under the government of that republic, but we are too far away to ever be disturbed by the storms of revolution, and at present things are peculiarly serene.

The Bay islands have the distinction of having the largest sharks in the world in their waters. They are found three or four miles from the coast and frequently grow to a length of fifty feet.

HIGH EXPLOSIVES.

Making Them Is a Very Dangerous Trade—Perils That Beset the Manufacture of Nitroglycerine.

Nitroglycerin and its peculiarities are little known, even in localities where it is made. People generally give it a wide berth, and even a less number know how it is manufactured. Probably in no place in the United States is there such a great amount of the explosive used as in the Indiana oilfields, says The Philadelphia Press. Indiana has four nitroglycerin factories, and they are seldom visited by curious people.

The explosive is made from a composition of acids and glycerin. It is generally pale yellow in color, and quite colorless when pure. It is odorless, and has a sweet, pungent, aromatic flavor. If touched by one's tongue, or even brought into contact with the skin, it will produce a severe headache. A large tank, called an agitator, is where the fluid is mixed, and the mixture is composed of equal parts of nitric and sulphuric acids. Inside the tank are several paddles, like those of a churn, and it is here that the real danger exists. The paddles are put in operation and a steady stream of sweet glycerin is turned into a vat until 250 pounds are thoroughly mixed with the 1,500 pounds of acid. The chemicals coming in contact produce an intense heat, and in order to obviate the danger cold water is run through pipes encircling and running through the vat. At 85 degrees F. a red vapor, almost like fire, arises. If cutting off the supply of glycerin in the agitator does not lower the temperature, it is time to say farewell. Before 90 degrees are reached nothing but atoms of the structure and its contents are left.

Colonel William A. Meyers, of Bolivar, N.Y., was the man who made and exploded the first round of nitroglycerin in an oil well. He built the first factory in the United States, near Titusville, Pa., in 1868. Up to that time powder had been used to torpedo oil wells. It was then that an explosive that could be discharged under water was found in nitroglycerin. Colonel Myers' father was a Philadelphia chemist and taught his son how to make it.

The first well torpedoed was on Colonel Mills' lease, near Titusville, and the charge consisted of only two and the charge consisted of only two pounds. Oil was worth $9 a barrel then, and a torpedo that would double the production of a well was worth almost what the maker chose to ask for it. Colonel Myers built 12 different factories in different parts of the oil regions from 1868 to 1886, when he retired from the business. Only one of the original factories stands intact to-day. Myers made several fortunes and spent his money like a prince, but, fortunately for him, he still has a snug sum laid by.

DISAGREEABLE TRAITS.

Sometimes They Impair the Usefulness of Otherwise Good Men.

Squire Granby was dead. The village people had gathered in the church to hear his funeral sermon, says The Youth's Companion. The old doctor, with his nephew, John, who was down from the city, sat in a back pew.

The minister told what everyone there knew to be the traith of the dead man. A faithful believer in Christ, a man of high integrity, in whose justice and honesty the whole community trusted, liberal to the poor, walking blameless under every moral law.

"Was all that true?" said John, as he and the doctor walked home.

"Every word of it."

"And yet," said the young man, "I got the impression the other day at the funeral that neither his neighbors nor his family felt his death very deeply. Indeed, I fancied I saw a look of relief on their faces."

The doctor was silent for a moment. "You are too shrewd an observer, Jack," he said. "The squire loved to manage. He was a busy, energetic man, and he thought it his duty to lash every man and woman who was not as busy and energetic as himself. His tongue was like a goad. He was a man, too, who never praised or encouraged anybody. His wife and children probably never heard a word of commendation from him in their lives, strive as they might.

"Then he complained incessantly of the weather, of his food, of the state of the church and the country; of all that his family did or did not do. When he came into the room you felt that a chilly fog had closed in upon you.

"And yet, in spite of these faults, the squire was faithful in his heart to his friends and to God. He probably never was conscious of these disagreeable traits, but they were so noticeable that his neighbors, and even his children and his wife, could not help a certain feeling of relief when he was gone."

"I wonder," said Jack, "if he knew, when he wakened in that other life, how depressing and unpleasant a Christian he had been in this?"

"And I wonder," said the doctor, "if there is no way for you and me to find out our petty faults—our disagreeable personal traits—in time to mend them here in this life?"

Clean earth is a first class disinfectant and purifier. As long as it is dry it can surely be used to [illegible].

Until your experience and accommodations [illegible] yourself to one [illegible]

"I have long thought it my duty to write you a few lines to let you know what Dr.

Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for me," writes Mrs. Euphemia Falconer, of Trent, Muskegon Co., Mich. "I am twenty-seven years old; have been married ten years. I am the mother of four children. My first two babies were still born, and I suffered everything but death. My friends all thought I could never recover. I was reduced to 100 pounds. When I was three months along for my third child, I was taken with hemorrhage or flooding and came near having a miscarriage from female weakness. For two months I was under the care of our doctor, but was getting weaker all the time until one day I sent and got three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of 'Pellets.' I improved so fast, I continued to take your medicine until baby was born, and he is healthy and all right. He is four years old. My baby girl is two years old. My health has been good ever since. I now weigh 165 pounds and when I begin to feel badly I take 'Favorite Prescription' which always helps me. I always tell my neighbors what helps me and a good many have taken your 'Favorite Prescription' with good results."

The "Favorite Prescription" has cured more women than all other medicines for women combined. It is the only preparation of its sort devised by a regularly graduated physician—a skilled and experienced specialist in the diseases of women.

Other medicines are sometimes sold on the plea that they are "just as good as the 'Favorite Prescription.'" Don't believe it. Don't be imposed upon. Counterfeits are never as good as the genuine.

Over 250,000 women have endorsed "Favorite Prescription." They say there is nothing "just as good" and they know. Would you rather have the say-so of one dealer who makes an extra profit on the substitute, than the provable words of 250,000 women whose only object in recommending the "Favorite Prescription" is their desire to help their suffering sisters?

RETRIBUTION

He saved a little day by day,
  Withheld from something that he craved.
"The dollars grow," he used to say,
  "From extra pennies that are saved."

His pile of savings grew and grew.
  Each day he hoarded more and more;
Each night he ran his fingers through
  And gloated o'er his golden store.

And as his wealth increased his heart
  Shrank, hardened, shriveled and decayed.
He cheated, gouged and played the part
  That many another fool has played.

He rose to power through his wealth;
  He crushed those who were in the way;
He gained a fortune, lost his health
  And miserably died one day.

Then came his drunken cousin, who
  Had thrashed him when the two were boys.
His savings and his stealings, too,
  One whom he hated now enjoys.

—S. E. Kiser in Chicago Times-Herald.

He Set at Eight.

He was only a little boy, and this was his first diary. It had been given him as a birthday present and was bound in a red cover, with a highly colored picture adorning the front.

He meant to begin well and early, so he carefully wrote, "Got up at 7." Then, according to instructions, he took it to his governess for approval.

That highly proper lady frowned. "Got up!" she said; "got up!. You careless boy! Does the sun get up? No, it rises."

Very neatly she scratched out the barbarous words and made him write, "Rose at 7." This settled Master Tom; no more mistakes of this kind for him again!

So on retiring for the night he wrote, with the air of a man who knew his business well, "Set at 8."

Art Treasures in Japan.

The Japanese idea in regard to art treasures is quite different from the American idea, as seen in the home. The American method is to keep all the good pictures or beautiful bronzes or unique vases in evidence all the time. The Japanese way is to store the artistic belongings, bringing different ones to light for a time, and thereby avoiding the too abundant appearance that is often the rule here.—New York Sun.

A Race With the Sun.

The London Daily Mail says if an aerial machine were capable of traveling at any rate up to 1,000 miles an hour a traveler in it, starting westward from London at a speed of 660 miles an hour, would arrest the progress of time. If he started at 10 a. m., it would always be to him 10 a. m. Should he find his unending day monotonous, he could reverse his direction and get a quick succession of short days and nights of some six hours' duration, but he could regulate the length by the speed of his machine. Suppose he traveled from London one night at 10 o'clock westward at a speed of 1,000 miles per hour. He would soon experience the sensation of seeing the sun rising in the west where it had set a short time before.

LOST HER BABIES.

HEARTLESS CONDUCT OF THE CHILDREN'S AID AGENT.

A Stormy and Indignant Meeting of the Children's Society Managers - Mr. Miller Likely to Resign.

A meeting of the Managing Committee of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Council Chamber to consider the action of the agent, Mr. F. W. Miller, in reference to the McConnell children. It appears that Mrs. McConnell has been living in town for some months with her twin daughters, three or four years of age, having been obliged to separate from her husband on account of brutal treatment. She has been living with her married sister, and has been working to support herself and children.

On Tuesday last in her absence her husband appeared upon the scene, accompanied by Mr. Miller. The husband seized one of the little ones and ran out; the other was lying asleep on a lounge, ill and under the care of a doctor. Mr. Miller asked for the other child. The aunt refused to let her go, telling him that the child was very ill. Mr. Miller then told her that he was the agent of the Children's Aid Society, and had authority to take the child. Fearing the law the aunt offered no further resistance. Mr. Miller then took the sick child, bareheaded and with no wraps, and the two children were placed in the Shelter. They were kept there until about six o'clock, when they were given to the father and are supposed to have been taken to his home in Hamilton township, about 16 miles from Peterborough.

Mrs. McConnell belongs to a most respectable family, and is broken-hearted at the loss of her babies. We understand it can be shown that the children were well housed, well clad and well fed. A brother of Mrs. McConnell was for several years a teacher in our Collegiate Institute.

We understand that great indignation was expressed by the large number of members of the committe ewho were present, among whom were many of the leading men of the town. Another meeting is to be held in a few days in regard to the matter.

WILL YOU HELP ?

Will you help to swell the army of patrons who favor us when in want of pure and fresh drugs and medicines? We cater specially for family dispensing trade to which we dedicate our best energies and talents.

"Chil" will spend the day in making preparations and in leave-taking. To-night he will be escourted to the train by his friends and those who will turn out to do honor to the lad who is going to fight his country's battles. We hope the band and battalion will be on hand. Let everybody turn out and give a brave lad a royal send-off.

Merchants' Associations.

THE BRIDEGROOM CAME NOT

AND THE WEDDING DID NOT TAKE PLACE.

Disgraceful Conduct of an Emily Man—He Leaves for Parts Unknown Just Before His Wedding.

Special to the Times.

Omemee, Feb. 12.—A young man named Lowes, son of a well-to-do farmer residing in the township of Emily, was engaged to be married to one of Emily's fairest and most respectable young ladies. The wedding was to have been solemnized on Wednesday last, the guests being invited and every preparation having been made. The day arrived without indication that anything was wrong, and the guests arrived. The hour for the ceremony was at hand but the bridegroom failed to put in an appearance. The guests began to feel uneasy as time wore on, and when an hour or so had passed it was decided to declare the wedding off.

Investigation followed, when it was discovered that Lowes had disappeared with a horse and buggy belonging to his parents. Although he left on Monday no word was sent to his affiancied that he had done so. The young lady bore the disappointment with bravery, and much sympathy is felt for her. She has the consolation of knowing that a man who would commit such an act is not likely to make a desirable husband, and is therefore better off without him.

LIEUT.-COL. BELL.

The Popular Commander of the 57th Leaving Town.

Lieut. Col. R. W. Bell, M.D., has been appointed to the responsible position of assistant physican at the Asylum for the Insane, Toronto, and will leave town about March 1st. He succeeds Dr. Stafford, and will have his residence in the building.

For upwards of 23 years Col. Bell has been a resident of Peterborough, during which time he has been identified with the local battalion, as well as with many other local institutions. In the Independent Order of Oddfellows he has been more than of local prominence as he has occupied the Grand Master's chair in Grand Lodge. In the local lodges he has also been a valued member. He is a charter member of Otonabee lodge and has been one of its most faithful and energetic members and his services have been a factor in the lodge's success. In St. Andrew's church he has been a leading member and has been chairman of the Board of Managers for years. He was also President of the West Peterborough Reform Association and a member of the Hall Poor Trust. Thus it will be seen that his departure will be felt in many circles of a more or less public character, as well as socially and among th emedical fraternity Mrs. Bell's departure will also be felt a loss in many good works in town. Their Peterborough friends, however, will wish them health and happiness in Toronto. We understand that steps will be taken to give the Colonel a send off, worthy of the occasion. Just what the nature of it will be we do not yet know. The citizens, without regard to politics or creed, will, we know, join in honoring a citizen who is so worthy as Col. Bell.

Last night in the Calidonia rink, Toronto, saw the beginning of the end of the O. H. A. games for this season. The semi-finals in all three series will be started this week, the senior game being between Wellingtons and Stratford. To-night the intermediate representatives—St. George's, of Toronto, and London, will play and on Wednesday night our own Colts will battle with U. C. C. in the junior series. The Toronto scribes think that the boys will be lost on a large rink—perhaps they will. We shall all know by ten o'clock Wednesday, but they must not be too sure up there in Toronto.

•• • ••

Cornwalls and Capitals play the deciding match in the eastern district to-night—the winners to play Queens in the semi-finals.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

There was no police court yesterday morning.

A diptheria card was placed on a Simcoe street house yesterday.

Large quantities of ice are being cut at the Little Lake and stored away for summeruse.

Lindsay Oddfellows paid a fraternal visit to Otonabee lodge last night, coming in on a special train.

It is proposed to turn the old Victoria College buildings at Cobourg into an asylum for the insane.

Mr. Robert Stewart, our enterprising local drover, purchased 800 hogs on Saturday for the Geo. Matthew's Company.

The little child of Mr. W. H. Anthony, which was taken to the hospital a week ago with diptheria, is doing nicely.

A meeting of the non-commissioned officers and men of No. 6 company will be held in the battalion rooms this evening.

There is no concern in this part of Canada that circulates the amount of money that is put into circulation by the Matthews Company.

The anniversary of Frazerville Methodist church was celebrated last night. The Charlotte street choir drove out and gave a concert.

The 57th battalion band has been strengthened by the addition of two new players, H. Clarke, of Stratford, slide trombone, and E. H. Wilson, of Sunderland, clarionet.

The granolithic walks are becoming more and more unpopular. They are dirty in summer and slippery in winter. Besides they are mostly covered with water in wet weather.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Son have bought out the tent and awning business of Mr. James Stone of Port Hope which they will run in connection with their Peterborough business.

On Tuesday last ,while chopping in the woods near his residence at Maple Lake, Stanhope, a falling tree caught Mr Jacob Clancy beneath it, and having only a boy with him, he had to remain in that position until help could be secured. BRITISH RETIRE FROM COLESBERG Outposts Around Colesberg District Are Attacked by Strong Bodies of Boers and After Hours of Severe Fighting Compelled to Withdraw to Rensberg. Zulus Anxious to Fight the Boers. Gen. Buller Remains Silent.

London, Feb. 14

A despatch to the Daily Mail from Rensberg, dated yesterday, says—"There has been hard fighting for two days near Colesburg, the Boers making strenuous efforts to outflank the British left. The enemy occupys strong positions from Achertang through Potfontein to a point five miles south of Jasfontein.

"The fighting at the outpost camps has been very severe during the last few days. Yesterday the Boers attacked the position of the Worcesters to the southeast of Colesburg. Fighting continued all day, and after dark it was considered necessary to withdraw to Rensburg. Our losses are not yet known.

"On the left the West Australians, the Wiltshires and Berkshires had hot fighting, but held their positions against long odds. The Boer losses were considerable.

"Owing to the growing difficulty experienced by convoys in reaching the camps all of the latter were vacated last night and the troops withdrawn to Rensburg. The Boers are burning the farms of the loyalists, but the latter have contrived to get away with their stock."

London, Feb.. 14, 4.30 a.m

The news of the day is the retirement of the British from the Colesburg district under heavy Boer pressure and probably after brisk fighting. Thus at a time when Lord Roberts is apparently about to push an army into the Free State the Boers make a counter stroke in an unknown but seemingly great force not far from the vital line or railway connecting De Aar and Orange River.

Military observers do not regard this as more than a menace. Nevertheless the news produces an unpleasant impression here. Gen. French manoeuvred the Boers out of Rensberg in December. On Jan. 1st it was reported that he could take Colesburg in two days with reinforcements. These were sent but the Boers were also reinforced. Since then the British lines have been extended east and west so at the opening of the week they constituted a great horseshoe 25 miles in length. The lies were not continuous but all the strong positions were held.

Gen. French, when he joined Lord Roberts, presumably took most of his cavalry. Gen. Clements was left with the infantry to hold the Boers in check but commandant Delarrey with a double turning movement has compelled the British to concentrate at Rensburg besides threatening Lord Roberts communications.

London, Feb. 14.—4.20 a.m.

The indications as to General Buller's immediate intentions are contradictory. One informant who has intimate relations with the War Office predicts a movement within the next two days. A number of correspondents who have been with Gen Buller, however, have gone to Durban for a few days rest under the impression that nothing is to be done immediately. The War Office has directed the eight division of 10,000 men to prepare to go out.

TO REPLACE THE LEINSTERS.

London, Feb. 12.—Instead of sailing for Halifax, Nova Scotia, on the 10th instant, as arranged, to relieve the 1st Battalion Leinster Regiment, the 6th Militia Battalion Lancashire Fusiliers will embark for South Africa today.

NEWFOUNDLAND IS PATRIOTIC.

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 12.—At the special session of the Legislature, called for February 19, the Government will propose a vote of $20,000 toward the Imperial Patriotic fund, as the colony is unable to send any volunteers to South Africa.

All political parties have signified their approval of the measure extending the modus vivendi with respect to the French treaty shore.

BRITISH OCCUPY ZOUTPAN'S DRIFT

London, Feb. 12.—A telegram received here says that the "force commanded by by General Wood has moved up from the southward and seized Zoutpan's Drift, which it now holds."

Zoutpan's Drift is ten miles from the Orange River Station and about a mile over the border of the Orange Free State. It has been the scene of one or two skirmishes between the British and parties of Boers menacing the line of communication.

It is possible that the occupation by General Wood, if an actual fact, is to prevent the Boers crossing from the south of the river and interfering with such communications. There is also a possibility that the movement may be to protect the flank of a British advance over the Orange River upon the rear of the Boers operating at Colesberg and Stormberg.

FOUGHT FOR THREE DAYS.

Rensberg, Feb. 11.—On Saturday the Boers drove in the pickets at Hobkirk's Farm and Bastard's Nek, fourteen miles northwest of Rensberg. The enemy still hold the farm and Bastard's Nek, but the kopje overlooking the former was retaken by the Australian Mounted Infantry and Inniskilling Dragoons. The British loss was two Australians and one Dragoon killed. To-day the 4th Field Battery, supported by the Australians and Inniskillings and a company of Wiltshires, fought the enemy for two hours. Our loss was nil

POSITIONS REOCCUPIED.

Rensberg, Feb. 12.—Hobkirk's Farm and Bastard's Nek, which the Boers took possession of Saturday, have been reoccupied by the British. The Boers were shelled out.

BRITISH AGAIN DRIVEN IN.

Rensberg, Feb. 12.—Evening.—The Boers have again driven in the British outposts at Bastard's Nek, Hobkirk's, Windmill and other points, retiring to Meader's Farm. There were several casualties, but details have not yet been received.

PAGE COMPELLED TO RETREAT.

Rensberg, Cape Colony, Feb. 12.—The Boers are actively pressing around Rensberg. The British force under Lieutenant-Col. Page, consisting of a section of artillery and 150 horse, which reached Slingersfontein Feb. 10, has been compelled to fall back on Rensberg owing to its eastern flank being threatened.

BOER RAID ALARMING.

London, Feb. 12.—All England is waiting eagerly for news from Modder River, and the fact that Lord Roberts is there in person adds to the great interest in the events which it is believed will soon be reported from that point.

A despatch received in London late last night from Durban says that the Boer raid in Zululand is assuming alarming proportions. Natal colonists in London declare that the natives will break away and fight the Boers on their own account, as the country where the Boers are is the best grazing land in South Africa, and the Transvaalers will be able to seize vast quantities of cattle.

Modern Methods Changed.

The London Daily Mail has received a letter from Julian Ralph, who is at Modder River. He tells in clear language of the new problems in warfare which the English are nowforced to solve. He says—

"British defeats at the hands of the Boers are due to the feact that the methods of modern warfare have been brought to a pause by the demonstrated power of the weapons of to-day. The essential qualities of the army of twenty years ago are no longer the supreme necessities for success. The man behind the gun stands more supreme than ever. Dig a trench and line it with good shots supported by modern artillery and no enemy can advance in the face of them. They may be outflanked or starved, but while their ammunition holds out none can oust them, for they can fill the whole plain over a radius of at least 4,000 yards with such a withering blast of shrapnel and rifle bullets that no troops can stand in the open before it."

THE SITUATION AT KIMBERLEY.

London, Feb. 13.—The War Office has posted a despatch from Colonel Kekewich, dated Sunday, Feb. 11, to the effect that Kimberley was bombarded throughout February 8. During the morning of Feb. 9 a small infantry engagement lasting two hours occurred at Alexandersfontein. The situation otherwise is unchanged.

FRESH MEAT PLENTIFUL.

London, Feb. 13.—Latest advices from Ladysmith are that fresh meat is plentiful, theirty oxen being slaughtered daily. It is also said that the Boers have over one hundred guns between the Tigela river and Ladysmith, the guns being mounted in almost impossible places.

SHELL STRUCK JOUBERT.

Cape Town, Feb. 13.—Reay, war correspondent of the Melbourne Herald, under a flag of truce and blindfolded, was allowed to enter the Boer lines yesterday to make enquiries regarding two correspondents, Lambie and Hales, who have been missing since the recent fight near Rensberg. Commandant Delarey informed him that Lambie had been killed during the action and that Hales was a prisoner. Reay states that Delarey gave him the impression that the Boers were very confident as to the ultimate result of the war.

The Cape Town Gazette prints the official list of Boer prisoners captured since the commencement of the war. The list contains 428 names. A despatch from the Hague says official news has been received from Pretoria that General Joubert was wounded at Colenso on December 15. A fragment of a bomb shell struck him in the right thigh, and it was not extricated until December 18.

IS THE TRANSPORT COMPLETE?

London, Feb. 13.—Mr. Spenser Wilkinson, discussing th emilitary situation in the Morning Post to-day, refers to a Cape Town letter dated Jan. 23, which asserts that Lord Roberts will allow no movement until the transport organization is complete, and says:—"It is probable, therefore, that the transport is now ready, and that the arrival of Lord Roberts at Modder River is the signal for action. It is possible that before the beginning of his movement he wishes to ascertain from Lord Methuen how matters stand in his part of the theatre of war, and this would account for a pause of a few days.

Mr. Wilkinson then discusses the question of tents or no tents, basing his observations upon a letter from Mr. Winston Churchill, in th ecourse of which the writer explains that the immobility of the British army in Natal to the fact that i drags a huge train after it, mainly of tents.

"The question," says Mr. Wilkinson, "is mainly on eof climate, and the choice lay, perhaps, between slow movements and entric fever. But a protest against too much comfort coming from an experienced campaigner like Mr. Winston Churchill deserves consideration."

ORGANIZING AN ARMY CORPS.

London, Feb. 13.—Apparently Lord Roberts is organizing at Modder River a complete army corps. A telegram from the Chronicle correspondent states that Major-General Colville, who has till now commanded the Guards Brigade, has been given the rank of Lieutenant-General and the command of the ninth division. There are already seven divisions in South Africa, and the eight is mobilized at Aldershot.

ROBERTS TO THE HIGHLANDERS.

Modder River, Feb. 10.— General Lord Roberts visited the camp of the Highlanders this morning, and made a brief speech to each battalion. He recalled their association with him in India, and declared that they had helped to make him what he is. He added that he had never made a campaigy without Highlanders and would not be without them. He was glad that General Macdonald reported well of them. He referred to an arduous march the Seaforth Highlanders had made with him, and added that the brigade would have a shorter march now. Though it would not be a walkover, he did not have the slightest doubt of its success.

A DISAPPOINTING SCHEME.

London, Feb. 13.—The only point in the War Office plans that meets with universal approval is the announcement of the creation of forty-three batteries which Lord Lansdowne has explained are to consist of 15-pounders of th enewest and most modern type, and the further announcement that the reserves of stores and ammunition, which Lord Lansdowne has admitted have been kept far too low, are to be rushed to th elevel required by modern improvements an dmaintained there.

The Times, which thinks the scheme not very satisfactory, says: "No amount of searching through its intricacies and conjectures can lead to the discovery of any guiding principle or definite object. This is scarcely the way to meet a great emergency. Lack of principle and a fine display of imagination are the leading characteristics of this disappointing scheme."

BOERS NEED MONEY.

Berlin Feb. 12.—The report that Dr. W. J. Leyds, the Transvaal's Minister at Brussels, had for his object in coming to Berlin th eraising of a loan to carry on the war, received confirmation in a responsible quarter here to day. The loan desired was a big one, and, although Dr. Leyds held long conferences wioth th edirectors of the leading banks, he was unsuccessful.

It is also learned that the probable reason why Dr. Leyds' projected visit to St. Petersburg was abandoned likewise was financial. He had asked M. de Witte, Russian Minister of Finance, to grant the sam eloan which he endeavored to place in Berlin, but the Russian declined to do so.

BOERS NOT PROSPERING.

London, Feb. 12.—Writing from Frere on January 4, the Times' correspondent says:—"Despite their activity, the condition of the Boers does not seem to be very prosperous. The week after the battle 120 Kaffirs, men, women and children, who had been working for the Boers, deserted and came over to us, many of them being in a starving condition. They complained of getting neither food nor money, and, above all, of the loud lamentations of th eBoer women in camp for their husbands and relations who had been killed in the battle. All Kaffirs have a superstitious horror of illness or mourning in any form. They said the Boer loss had been heavy, almost entirely owing to the effect of the lyddite in the trenches. The power of these shells, they said, was terrific, several of them having been knocked down by the force of the explosion 200 yards away. The following week some more Kaffirs came in telling the sam estory On January 3, twelve Boer deserters came in. They, too, complained of lack of food and ill usuage, and said that the Boers were both short of food and forage. All these point to the fact that the long waiting here is telling heavily on the Boers.

"Many of them are withou ttents, a seriou shardship now that the heavy rains are beginning, and the supply of rations to a constantly moving force must be exceedingly difficult."

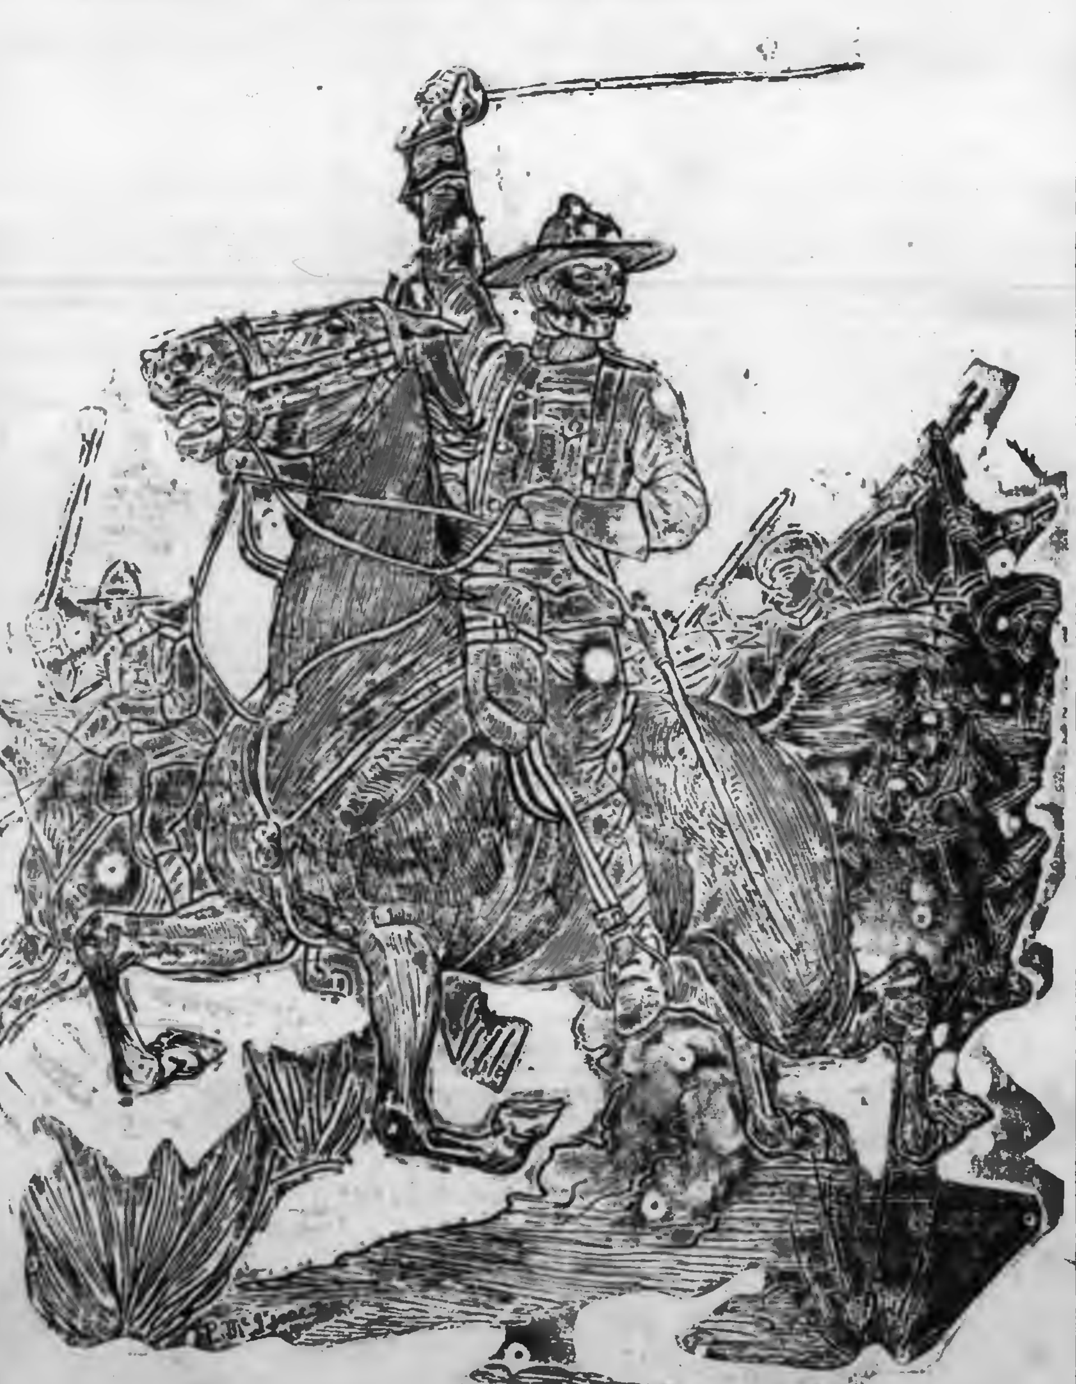
WILL DEPART THURSDAY.

Toronto, Feb. 13.—The second contingent will parade to-morrow morning, leaving Stanley Barracks at 11 o'clock. The biograph pictures which were to have been taken to-day will be taken to-morrow at the corner of Strachan avenue and the lake shore road leading to the barracks. The route of th eprocession will be: Strachan avenue to Wellington to Church, along King to Bathurst, thence through the Old Fort to the Barracks. The men will be fully accoutred, bearing rifles and all the pomp and paraphernal of war, and will—if the weather is fine—dispense with the large cloaks so that the citizens may see them in their new uniforms.

The departure will likely take place on Thursday afternoon; definite instructions are momentarily expected from the D.O.C. at Ottawa. The men will walk to the Union Station accompanied by the Queen's Own bugle band and the Governor-General's Bodygaurd band.

Orders may com efor the shipment of the horses to-morrow, in which case it is quite possible that the parade may be rendered impossible. The chances are, however, that nothing will interfere with th elast opportunity the citizens will have of seeing the men before their departure.

COLONEL BADEN-POWELL.



The defender of Mafeking as he urged his men to capture of Boer fort at Game Tree

Trooper Abbot, who came from the Yukon and was unfortunate enough to contract the measles, has fully recovered and will take th eplace left vacant by Morris' retirement.

Trooper Pudifin had his collar bone fractured by a fall on Sunday last and will not likely be able to go. There are men held in readiness, however, to fill his place.

Both Went to Shoot Ducks.

Yarmouth, N. S., Feb. 12.—Clayton Sullivan, son of Augustus Sullivan, of Yarmouth, was on a short visit to his uncle, George Beveride, at Little River. This morning before dawn young Sullivan and his uncle, each unknown to the other, started for the pond to get a shot at some ducks. They got on different sides of the pond. The uncle, seeing a black mass among the rushes on the opposite side to him fired, and young Sullivan received the entire charge through the head, killing him instantly.

Over the Ice Bridge.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Feb. 12.—The Countess of Minto, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, and a party from the Government House, are here stopping at the Prospect House. This morning the Countess made a trip over the ice bridge in a downpour of rain. This afternoon the party took a ride in a private car over the Canadian Scenic Line. To-morrow the Countess will probably go to Buffalo, where she will lunch with President Caryl Ely, of the International Traction Company.

Destructive Flood.

Montreal, Feb. 12.—Damage to the extent of many thousand of dollars was done this morning by floods, as the result of the great rain storm which set in last evening at eight o'clock.

Horton Law in Peril.

Albany, Feb. 12.—In the Assembly this morning the bill of Mr. Lewis to repeal the so-called "Horton Law," which permits prize fighting in the State, was advanced to the third reading without objection or debate.

His one Chance for Life.

New York, Feb. 13.—A morning paper prints the following anent the Molineux case—

"There is a chance, an added one, which Roland B. Molineux has for his life. The Legislature is to be asked to pass a bill doing away with capital punishment in this state, and there is a probability it may pass both branches and become a law. The bill has been introduced, and there are many up-state legislators who are strongly in favor of it, and it is said to be aided by the influence which will result from the Molineux trial."

Election in Armagh.

London, Feb. 13.—In the elections held to-day for the Middle Armagh District for representative in Parliament to succeed Mr. Dunbar Plunket the vote resulted:

Mr. J. B. Lonsdale, 3,213; Mr. John Gordon, 1,811. Both candidates are Unionists, and the election was fought on local issues. Mr. Barton was recently appointed to a judgeship.

An Effusive Welcome.

Berlin, Feb. 13.—Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of Emperor William of Germany, arrived here this morning. He was welcomed at the railroad station by His Majesty and a large suite. Immediately after the train stopped Prince Henry jumped out and hurried to the Emperor, who met him half way. The two brothers embraced and kissed each other affectionately the bands played and the guard of honour presented arms. In honour of the event all the schools were closed and the city was decorated with flags.

Seven members of "C" Field Battery, through their own indiscretion have been refused transport to South Africa. Five have been dismissed from the ranks, and two, Sergt. Aldcroft and Corp. Eaton, have been sent back to "A" Field Battery. The men were warned by Lieut.-Col. Stone to conduct themselves with circumspection else they would be left at home. "C" Field Battery will leave here for Halifax on Thursday morning at nine o'clock.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 14, 1900

FRANCE AND ENGLAND.

Among various national antipathies there is none more persistent than that between the French and English. They were intermittently at war for centuries and the last war between them was one of the longest and most eventual in history. Neither nation has ever quite forgotten Bonaparte and Waterloo. Even the temporary alliance against Russia was not a hearty alliance on either side, and with all the amelioration of international manners in recent years the French and the English have wholly ceased from saying disagreeable things about one another.

Occasional diplomatic rivalry and the clash of colonial interests have been really of less importance in maintaining this international jealousy than the unfriendly comments of the newspapers. Perhaps no one thing did more, in this generation, to excite the French against the English than the censorious attitude of the latter in the Dreyfus case. Their neighbors across the channel were still boiling under this assumption of moral superiority when the South African imbroglio developed, and they would have had to change their nature if they had not improved the opportunity to retaliate in kind and to call the English all the hard names they could think of. And if they could take advantage of England's present embarrassment, nothing would delight them more.

That this antagonistic attitude of the French is giving the English some uneasiness just now is a good moral lesson upon the advantage to a nation of keeping a civil tongue in its head. But serious results are not likely to come of it. Those charged with official responsibility, in any country, are much less apt to rush into controversy than those whose responsibility ends with the utterance of their opinions. The French Government probably has no present wish to provoke England, and it would not be allowed to do so if it did. While this may be an uncomfortable season for British diplomatists on the continent, the common interests of Europe will not permit a disturbance of the general peace—just at present.

A NATIONAL DISGRACE.

The course of the Hon. Edward Blake in voting for Redmond's amendment in the English House of Commons the other day has brought the blush of shame to loyal and patriotic Canadians, and, thank God, there are very few Canadians these days who are not both loyal and patriotic. Of course, Mr. Blake is entitled to his opinions, and as he has already declared that the war is on Britain's part "an unjust, greedy and oppressive war," it is not extraordinary to find him joining by his vote that band of English traitors and miscalculated Irish patriots, who openly rejoice in any and every British disaster or reverse, and who have in their spokesman Timothy Healey, a man who reviles not only the living English generals, but the memory of the dead Gen. Symons. Mr. Blake, as we say, is entitled to these opinions, but we in Canada on our part are entitled to repudiate his utterances as distasteful and loathesome to his former fellow countrymen, Conservative and Liberal alike, and to express our sense of shame that one who still speaks of Canada as "home" should so malign by word and vote the land that gave him birth and bread. It is, we conceive, a public duty that we owe to ourselves and to the mother land to let it be known far and wide in every part of the Empire that the name of the one time prominent Canadian statesman has become, by this action, a stench in the nostrils of the people of his native land, and the premier colony of that Empire.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

The Veteran Statesman Passes Through o Saturday.

Sir Charles Tupper, the Conservative chieftan, passed through Peterborough on his way to Toronto on Friday evening, returning Saturday.

To a Times representative Sir Charles said he had been west on private business. When spoken to in regard to the war, the veteran statesman said that Canada would do its duty as regards both men and money. He felt that the tide would soon turn in favor of Britain.

In regard to the political outlook at Ottawa, Sir Charles said it could hardly be better for the Conservative party.

Sir Charles looked well, and was exceedingly cheerful.

The Price of Bread.

Orillia bakers are delivering the "staff of life" at 8c. a large loaf, and it is selling over the counters at 7c. One dealer is selling at 6c., giving customers a choice of brands. The price of bread in Peterborough still remains at ten cents per loaf, notwithstanding that flour is said to be cheap in Canada.

Conflict of Authority.

Toronto, Feb. 13.—There is every probability of a lively tilt between the Attorney-General of Ontario and Hon. David Mills, Minister of Justice, as to the jurisdiction of the Province of Ontario to deal with the punishment of debtors who refuse to answer questions regarding the disposition of their property. In the case of C. E. Tanner, of Lucas, Tanner & Co., private bankers, Blyth, Ont., who is appealing against an order for his committal to jail for two months. Chief Justice Meredith pointed out that the Ontario Assignment Act, under which Tanner was committed, was in conflict with section 368 of the Criminal Code, and ordered counsel to cause the Dominion and Provincial authorities to be notified that the question of jurisdiction will be decided when the case comes up again for argument. This is being done, and the notices have already been prepared. Should the provincial legislation be set aside the present proceedings against Mr. Tanner will be useless.

A YONGE STREET BARBER.

A barber of Toronto, whose chair in a fashionable hair-cutting studio on Yonge street is in constant demand, told an interesting story of the manner of his illness and subsequent recovery from it by means of Hutch. In effect, he said that he had been indulging—overly much—and his entire system, stimulated by the potency of "John Barleycorn," recked not of the morrow. But, alas, time is inexorable, and the after-effects follow surely, and when he awakened from a sound, if not refreshing, slumber, his sickness was—frightful. "I had such a headache that I was fairly blinded," he said. "My stomach seemed full of a sour, bitter, fermenting mass, that filled my mouth with its nastiness. My tongue clicked against the roof of my mouth as though it were metal, and my nausea was rendered more nauseating by not being able to get relief. I had to work, so came down looking like a corpse. When I entered the 'boss' said 'Hutch!' I thought I was discharged and turned to go, when he said 'Hutch' again and held out something towards me. I took a small tablet and he told me to swallow it. I did so. It was only about six minutes before I became relieved—the headache stopped, the saliva in my mouth produced a clean, sweet taste, and my whole stomach seemed to be relieving itself of the rotten stuff which caused my distress. When I went to my lunch at noon I was good and ready for it, and I don't do a thing now but carry a vial of Hutch Tablets with me."

The Woodward Medicine Co., Limited, do not publish the name of the barber herein described. His name and address will be furnished at their office, 11 Colborne street, on application.

Ten Hutch ten cents. All druggists, or by mail from the Woodward Medicine Co., Limited, 11 Colborne Street, Toronto.

PROFESSIONAL LEG BREAKER.

Man Who Made Money by Bringing Suits for Personal Injuries

"One of the strangest characters I ever met in my life died last week in a little health resort in West Virginia, says a lawyer. "He was a professional leg breaker ,and to, the best of my knowledge and belief ,earned a living for nearly 20 years by following that vocation. His scheme, briefly told, was to go to a strange city, break his leg or pretend to break his leg by falling on some bad pavement, and then sue the municipality for damages. He usually gets compromises ranging all the way from $1,200 to $5,000. The way I became acquainted with the man and his methods was rather peculiar. He came to me in the winter of 1898 and engaged me to bring suit against one of the most prominent merchants of this city on two notes aggregating $6,300. which, he claimed, had been given him in connection with a patent for refining raw sugar by a new process.

"The merchant admitted the genuineness of the signature, but said the paper had been procured by fraud and intimated that he would spring a big sensation on trial. Ihad confidence in my client, who, let me say right here, was one of the most plausible and fascinating men that ever lived, and I was prepared for a red-hot legal battle when one day I received a letter from his divorced wife, living in Sioux City, Ia. She gave me in detail the history of the man's life, cited 11 of 15 leg-breaking exploits giving names and dates and full particulars in each case, and wound up by saying that she had mailed similar information to the lawyer on the other side. I was thunderstruck and sent for my client, and as soon as he saw the letter I knew by his face it was all true. He made a blustering denial, promising to return next day with proof and left town that night. I know positively that he swindled different cities of this country out of over $35,000. His wife claimed that he never really broke a limb in any instance."

BATTLE COURAGE.

THE INHERENT BRAVERY OF EVERY MAN.

Individuals who at Home Are the Most Peaceful of Men Become Demons in the Face of an Enemy.

Among the millions of citizens whose lives have run along in peaceful channels and who have never been urged by duty or inclination to forsake the ordinary routine of life for the camp and battlefield there is a sentiment of warm admiration and love for the soldier who performs daring deeds in time of war. It matters not the nationality of the warrior, or on which side our sympathy may be placed, the announcement of some daredevil act of heroism calls forth our hearty applause. Any why should it be otherwise? It is natural. It is the strong heart that wins. The slashing blade or free lance who with his life in his hands faces death calmly is to be respected, for in most instances really brave men are always true men.

The great majority of people who have casually noted and dissected this universal applause for feats of military prowess have completely misunderstood the real meaning. The performance of a great tragedian may thrill us and bring forth our unstinted admiration, an admiration perhaps increased by the knowledge that we ourselves have none of the qualities he possesses, and that a century of training would not bring us an inch closer to rivaling his wonderful genius. And not one man in a hundred who has read the

that have come from Cuba and the Philippines, or later from South Africa, but places the possibility of his ever performing similar deeds just as far above him. He is in error. The inborn genius of dramatic fire is the property of the favored few, but the recklessness and courage of the soldier on the battlefield is simply an outcropping of the common heritage of mankind.

At home, in a progressive community, a man may be a merchant or a bank clerk, but whatever his station, the environment of civilizing influence is strong upon him, and most of his chances for the display of courage come to the moral side of his nature. But out in the open, with most of the trammels cut off and the enemy in front, with the ripple of the colors about him, and, more than all, the feeling that comes from companionship in a common danger with many of his fellows, it is the Animal that Gains Supremacy.

And man, being by nature a brave and fearless animal—the most fearless of all the animal species—simply remains true to his birthright and goes through the ordeal in the natural way.

What can be the deduction? There is only one. It is that battle gallantry and battle brutality, springing as they both do from the same source, must necessarily be allied. You cannot slip the leash of a bloodhound and stop him half way to his scent. If any proof were needed to make the fact of inherent bravery and—the other thing—certain, it is to be found in the marvelous change in face, such conditions will have no difficulty nearly every man when engaged in battle. Those who have seen their fellows under manner and even speech that comes to in calling to mind what this change means. Refined men, and rough, uncultured men, too, for that matter, with the tenderest and most humane feelings, men who would at the sight of a slight accident on their home streets, have been frequently known to stand and deliberately watch the writhings and death agonies of their comrades who have been hit and torn to pieces by bursting shells, as if it were the commonest sight in the world.

It may be urged that the excitement of being under fire would be sufficient reason for this callousness, but such an explanation will not account for the entire subversion of a man's whole life training. The real reason is that at such times it is the animal nature that takes full and complete possession of the human body.

THE MODERN BULLET.

One Man Got Shot Through the Leg and Didn't Know It

"The modern rifle, while it greatly exceeds in range, accuracy of fire and general effectiveness its immediate predecessor," says a soldier, "is not so likely to kill at certain ranges as was the old Springfield. A Mauser or a Krag drills an exceedingly small and perfectly clean hole, and there have been many instances of men being wounded and remaining unaware of the fact until long afterward. One major in the battle that preceded the capture of Manila was knocked heels over head in a trench, but immediately got upon his feet, and, after making a minute examination of his person, could find no evidence of a wound. There wasn't much time to speculate just then on the cause of his tumble, but he was certain he had not been knocked over by a shot. That night, however, when undressing, he discovered a hole in his trousers, between the knee and hip, and close examination revealed a corresponding one in the rear. He then for the first time became conscious of a slight stiffness in his leg. A surgeon was called in, and his practiced eye discovered that a Mauser bullet had gone clean through the major's leg., but he never suffered in the slightest degree from that wound. I only give you that as an instance of a Mauser wound that came under my personal observation, but the medical records of the war abound in cases of wounds received more curious than that."

How a Run on a Bank Was Stopped.

A Tonawanda bank employed ingenious means to stop a recent run on the institution. While several hundred depositors were in line to withdraw their money, three barrels of silver dollars were unloaded in front of the building and carried in by the bank [illegible]. The sight of $75,000 being dumped into the bank in this wholesale manner had a reassuring effect on the depositors and the run ceased.

AN INTERVIEW WITH KRUGER

Almost Had a Fit When Rhodes name Was Mentioned.

I have recently had an opportunity of a chat with an American gentleman who met "Oom Paul" before the war began in a semi-official capacity, and being of an enterprising turn of mind, like most of his countrymen, he interviewed the president, and told me exactly what Kruger said to him.

"We will fight," said he, with earnestness of manner, "until not one Boer remains to defend our flag and country. Our women and children will also fight for their liberties; and I, even old as I am, will take the gun which I have used against the English before, and I will use it again to defend the country I love. But I hope, even now, that war may be averted. I prefer peace, and do not care to end my days in conflict, though we are all ready for it."

The American gentleman, who is also an amateur journalist, protested that he did not believe there was an inland country on the face of the earth better prepared for war than the Transvaal. He said; 'Four years ago, when the Boer government learned that the outlanders of Johannesburg were planning a revolution, it commenced the military preparations which have ever since continued with increasing vigor. A staff of German experts were employed to formulate plans for the defence of the country, and European artilleries of various nationalities were secured to teach the arts of modern warfare to the men at the head of the Boer army.

"Kruger sent for several of my countrymen (West Pointers) of military training to become instructors in the National Military School at Pretoria, and even the women and children were taught the use of arms. Several million pounds were annually spent in Europe in the purchase of the armament required by the plans formulated by the experts, and the whole country has been placed on a war-footing.

"Every important strategic position is made as impregnable as modern skill and arms can make it, and every farmers' cottage is supplied with arms and ammunition, so that a volunteer army can be mobilized at any moment."

I remarked that it was strange that the English war minister or the cabinet had not been made aware of these extensive preparations. I asked the American about the position of Pretoria. He said—"The city lies in the centre of a square, and at each corner of a hill surmounted by a strong fort, which commands the valleys and the surrounding country. Each of the four forts has four heavy cannon, four French guns of 15 miles' range, and 10 heavy Gatling guns. Besides this extraordinary protection, the city has 50 light Gatling-guns, which can be drawn by mules to any points on the hills where an attack may be made. Three large warehouses are filled with ammunition, and the large armory is packed to the eaves with Mauser, Martini-Henry, and Wesley-Richards rifles. Two extensive refrigerators, with a capacity of 2,000 oxen each, are ample provision against a siege of many months. Kruger made no secret of his belief that the city would withstand a siege of two years. In fact, he desired I would say as much in the American journals."

In addition to the fact that the approaches to the mountain passes on the border have been fortified with ordnance, a further element of difficulty in the way of an attacking force lies in the uncertainty as to the attitude of the native races.

Before we parted I asked the American, whose sympathies are with England, what he thought would be the ultimate outcome of the war. He said—"I am of the opinion that the Boers will be able to resist and prolong the campaign to perhaps a year, but they will be finally conquered and humiliated. It will cost the British empire much treasure and many lives; but it will satisfy those who caused it—the politicians and speculators."

I asked a personal description of Kruger and my informant said he is about six stature, measuring about five feet four inches. His head and body are bulky, but his legs are thin and short. The small eyes are surmounted by bushy eyebrows, which extend half an inch on to his temples. "When he is not sitting for a photograph," pursued the speaker, "his hair is not so smartly arranged as it appears in the published pictures, but hangs limply down over his forehead. When he smiles the fat circles above his cheeks are pushed upward and shut his small gray eyes from view. When much pleased he laughs hilariously and then his eyes close for a few seconds. His nose and mouth are the marked features of his face. Both are on a more extensive scale than even his ample face demands."

"Did you ever mention Cecil Rhodes to him?" I inquired.

"I did, and I thought the old fellow would have a fit. His hatred of that man is too deep for words. It is Kruger's firm conviction that he is at the bottom of all the trouble."—London Sketch.

FOUR LIVES FOR ONE.

TRAGIC END OF A MISSISSIPPI GAMBLING ROW.

Son Sets Out to Avenge the Murder of His Father and After a Long Chase Exacts the Bloody Penalty.

Back in the 50's, says an old southern planter, gambling was general in the south and there was hardly a passenger steamer on the lower Mississippi, Red, Ouichita or white rivers that did not carry a bar and upon which gambling was not permitted. Cheating then was a dangerous business and I well remember the fate that overtook a quartette of gamblers who had added murder to their victimising of players. They were Leon Parado, Jack Hellerig, Hans Smart and Jose Severn.

These four were traveling on the cotton boat Rebecca in '56, when Henry Travis, a planter on the Ouichita, and an old friend of my father, got aboard at Memphis on his return from that city, where he had sold his cotton. The men apparently were strangers to each other, and all said they were planters in different parts of the south. In the evening the four men seemed accidentally to meet at the same table, and during the game for some trifling amount Travis stood looking on. One of the men politely invited Travis to come in, saying that they were merely playing as a pastime. Travis was entirely unsuspicious, and when he sat down the rascals knew they had a victim.

The play was raised in the course of an hour or two from a two-bit limit to a dollar, and from that to five, then to ten, and finally, at the suggestion of one of the four, and under protest of one or two, the limit was withdrawn. Travis had been permitted to win right along, and was several hundred ahead. At last the unsuspicious planter held a hand of four kings and an ace, and the betting ran up to $500. Three of the others threw down their hands and the fourth stayed and raised Travis another $500. Each man had contributed his money, and Travis was about to raise his opponent when his eye caught something suspicious. He immediately arose and exclaimed, "You are a —— scoundrel, sir!"

The planter's words were scarcely out of his mouth before a pistol was fired, and Travis fell, shot through the heart. In an instant all was confusion. The four gamblers declared that the dead man had drawn on his opponent first, and as a pistol was found by his body, they were permitted to leave the boat at the next landing. Unfortunately, the only man on the boat who knew the gamblers was asleep at the time, and when he was awakened and before he was informed of the situation all the men had left the boat. When he did hear the story the man wrote a note containing the information of the identity of the murderers and had it forwarded with the body of the dead planter.

Travis had only one son, a young fellow about 18, who was at home when the body arrived. When young Henry Travis heard the story and read the stranger's note, he changed in almost an instant from a boyish, jolly, careless lad to a determined man. For a year after his father's murder young Travis stayed on his plantation, and never was seen half a dozen miles away. He was my nearest neighbor, and in that year I often visited him, but all our boyish pranks were laid aside.

I always found Henry in a little glade near the home building, practicing with his pistols or knife. I often, at his request, stood several paces from him and threw silver quarters into the air for him to shoot at, and he hit them every time. Before the end of the year Travis became so expert with his Derringer's that he could jerk one pistol from his vest pocket and hit a quarter flying through the air, and before it struck the ground pull another pistol and hit the second. He was fully as expert with the bowie knife, some of his feats bordering on the marvelous.

One day, about a year after the death of his father, Henry sent his body servant, Jack, with a note, asking me to come over. When I arrived Travis invited me into his office.

"LeClerc," he said, "I have sent for you first to ask you to take charge of my place in my absence and to explain to you the meaning and intent of what I have called my hobby. I determined to avenge my father's murder the minute I read that stranger's note. I didn't start then because I thought I was too young, and because I wasn't expert enough with weapons, but now I am ready."

Of course I consented, and the next day Henry Travis started out with boy Jack in search of the four men who had murdered his father.

Travis traveled up and down the Mississippi, the Red, Ouichita, and the White rivers over three months before he came across any of the men for whom he was looking. At last one day he found his first man, Jack Hellerig, on a steamboat at Napoleon. That evening, while Hellerig, Travis, and two other men were playing cards, Travis, who had been watching the gambler keenly, caught him cheating. A second later the gambler was lying on his back, knocked out of his chair by the young planter. The gambler would have been thrown overboard but for young Travis, who protected him from violence at the hands of the indignant passengers, but only on the agreement of the gambler to fight it out with pistols at the next landing.

The next landing was at a wood a few miles below Napoleon, and when Travis and Hellerig were placed 15 paces apart, and before the signal to fire was given, young Travis held up his hand and said: "Gentlemen, this man," pointing toward his opponent, "is Jack Hellerig, an infamous scoundrel and murderer. He and three others, thieves and scoundrels like himself, deliberately murdered my father a year ago, and now I am going to kill him. Ready!"

Only one pistol cracked, and that one was Travis's. Hellerig fell, shot squarely between the eyes. A week after the killing of Hellerig young Travis learned that Leon Parado, another of the quartette of gamblers, had been seen at Shreveport, La. Two weeks later Travis and his man Jack found Parado on the Osceola at Baton Rouge. A dozen or more men were sitting on the forward deck of the boat, smoking and talking, when young Travis stepped in front of the Spaniard and with the heel of his boot trod on the Spaniard's foot. Parado sprang to his feet and instantly drew his knife, but was prevented from using it by the passengers.

"Let the Dago go," said Travis, quietly. "He's a thief, a liar and a murderer. I suppose he wants to fight and although he is too low a dog to notice I will accommodate him. We land a few miles below, gentlemen, and Capt. Barron will arrange with the Dago's second, whoever he may be." When the seconds met it was found that Parado insisted on the battle being decided with knives. Capt. Barron refused to concede until he saw his principal, but a few minutes later, after talking to Travis, knives were agreed upon.

Men who saw the fight told me that they never saw anything equal to Travis's expertness and rapidity. From the time the blades were crossed to the finish Travis's movements were so rapid that only flash after flash of his blade was seen until the Spaniard fell, cut to pieces. The young planter escaped without a scratch. As before, Travis told the spectators the story of his father's murder, and everybody was glad when the young fellow escaped without injury.

After the death of Parado the two remaining partners in the murder of old man Travis learned of the death of their comrade, and of young Travis's pursuit. They became terrified at the fate of the other two men, and fled. Smart went to Texas and worked along to Galveston. Travis had paid a detective at each one of the principle towns to keep a lookout for the men and in less than a month after the arrival of Smart in the town a young man calling himself Strange, but who was really Travis, arrived in Galveston. On the next night Strange and Smart sat opposite each other at a table in a gambling den. No one knew exactly how the trouble began, but only one shot found its billet and that one lodged in Smart's brain.

"Jose Severn was now the only one of the original quarter alive. He was somewhere in Texas at the time of Smart's death, and, of course heard of it. Severn fled the county, and it was nearly a year before Travis got a clew to his whereabouts. When he did hear of him it was to learn that Severn had gone to Mexico, where he had enlisted in the navy. Travis got to the city of Mexico as quickly as possible, and learned that Lieutenant Jose Severn was at Matanzas. They met at a pulquera, but Severn and the Mexicans with him did not dream that the stranger was other than what he assumed to be—an Englishman. Severn deliberately insulted the supposed Englishman, and was challenged, of course.

The men met a mile out of town, and an American was Travis's second. Before the signal to fire was given, Severn's opponent said to the enemy:

"Jose Severn, your time has come. Your three partners in the murder of the old planter Travis, have fallen at my hands, and you are the last. I am Henry Travis, and I've been looking for you for over a year. Say your prayers you devil."

Severn was so terrified that he would have fled had he got a chance, but he could not. Like Hellerig, he was shot between the eyes.

After the duel the American second of Travis hastily led him from the scene and hid him in his own private quarters, for, had the young fellow been arrested at that time, he doubtless would have been shot for killing a Mexican officer. As it turned out, young Travis got safely out of the country, and two months later he turned up at the old plantation, having accomplished all he started out to do.

RUSSIA'S HOARD OF GOLD.

When a Gold Coin Enters That Realm It Never Comes Out Again.

In the vaults of the Russian treasury is said to be something like $676,000,000 in gold, the accumulation of many years. A considerable part of it is bullion from the government mines in Siberia. More has been obtained by the natural laws of trade, and a considerable part of it by the sale of bonds. The Russian government always buys gold when it can do so to advantage, and during the drain upon the United tates treasury two or three years ago many millions went into the war chest of the Czar. The Russian government had a financial attache, Mr. Routkowsky, connected with the embassy at Washington, and he was very busy at that time securing for his national treasury the coin that the Americans lost. When a gold dollar goes into Russia it never comes out. Sooner or later it reaches the place of deposit, and is kept as a safeguard for the future.

The reason for this accumulation is that the money markets of the world are controlled chiefly by Germany and Great Britain, the enemies of Russia, and the persecution of the Jews by the Russian government would be very likely to prevent its obtaining any financial aid from that race of money lenders, who practically control the banking business of Europe. Some years ago the Czar sought the intercession of the Prince of Wales to obtain financial favors from the house of Rothschilds, but they were granted only upon the condition that the restriction placed against the Jews should be relaxed. While it would be doubtless possible for the Russian government to obtain credit somewhere in the world in case of a foreign war, the financiers of that empire have made it unnecessary, believing that it would be better for them to have the cash.

One hundred pounds of dynamite is said to be used sometimes in a single blast, a the lift lock.

DROPPED DEAD.

The man with heart trouble never knows when his time may come. When he leaves home for work he may never return alive. He may drop dead on the street, in his pulpit, in his office, over his work bench. Heart disease is no respecter of persons. The Christian minister is liable the same as anyone else. Rev. C. L. Mundell writes:

"I suffered from that dreadful tired feeling and weakness, and in 1893 I lost my health altogether. I went to one of the best doctors in the state and he said I had heart, stomach, liver and kidney trouble. His treatment did me no good. I tried different kinds of patent medicines but got worse all the time. If I walked up hill or a little fast it seemed as though my heart would jump out. I had almost given up all hope, and my money was all gone; was scarcely able to make a living. Finally I wrote Dr. Pierce and following his advice I purchased at my nearest drug store a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and a bottle of his 'Pleasant Pellets.' This was a year ago and now I am happy to say that I am in the enjoyment of perfect health. I am so glad of my health that I cannot say too much. I first return my sincere thanks to Almighty God and then to Dr. Pierce.

"I would not do without your 'Pellets' for one hundred dollars ($100.00) per month

"Do not think I am exaggerating. My statement is true and if any doubt it they can write to Pinegrove, Ohio, where I live, and if any should think this an assumed name and that such a man as C. L. Mundell does not exist, they may look in the minutes of Providence Association, or in the Baptist Year Book, in the list of Elders, and they will find my name."

Constipation and biliousness are radically cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets.

The bride was attired in a pretty suit of grey broadcloth, with hat to match. She was assisted by her sister Miss Fanny, who wore a costume of cadet blue, while Mr. Ed. Hickie performed like service for the groom. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the residence of the bride's brother, the Carew House, Hunter St., where a very sumptuous wedding dinner was partaken of. OFF TO THE WAR.

Chil Turner Leaves Last Night for Toronto To Report.

Mr. Achilles Turner left last night for Toronto, where he will report to Colonel Evans for duty on the second contingent to South Africa. "Chil" expected to have taken the C. P. R. east, but a despatch received yesterday morning directed him to go to Toronto instead. He left on the 9 o'clock train via Port Hope, being escorted to the station by a large number of his friends, headed by the bugle band of the 57th Battalion. "Chil" was carried in a chair draped with a Union Jack borne on the shoulders of seven young militiamen and was given a royal send-off at the depot.

Ald. Denne, chairman of the Town Finance Committee, waited on the young volunteer yesterday morning and handed him a cheque for $25, being the sum voted by the Council to each of the town boys who went with the contingent.

Before leaving Grafton & Co. presented Mr. Turner with a purse of twenty-five dollars accompanied with their best wishes for good luck and the promise of his position with the firm at any time on his return, which they trusted would not be any lengthy time. The hope was also expressed that he will return none the worse of a few months rough life in South Africa.

The employees of Grafton & Co. also made a suitable presentation to "Chil—accompanied by the following address—

Peterborough, Jan. 5, 1900.

Mr. A. W. H. Turner,

Dear Sir,—Your faithful services since you have come among us have been fully appreciated, and now you are about to leave for scenes which are better imagined than described, we feel we are losing one whose place it will be hard to fill.

We are honored to think one of our number has volunteered to leave his home for the love of his country, and we admire the spirit of patriotism which prompts you in this matter.

On behalf of your fellow-employees who cannot allow this opportunity to pass without in some manner showing our esteem for the manly spirit which you have always shown, allow us to present this small memento, not for its value, but when you are in far Africa and look upon it, remember those at home, who are wishing you God-speed and a safe return.

Signed, W. E. Conway, F. Allison, T. Rush, Miss M. Johnston, J. Mahar, H. Hook, Miss E. Thornton, H. Conway, S. Rush, Miss Fitzpatrick, W. Staples, H. Walkey.

The presentation was a gold locket, suitably engraved and studded with diamonds and rubies.

The Times will be glad if Mr. Miller can throw light on this unhappy matter that will clear him from blame. We understand that affidavits are being prepared intending to prove that he demanded the children in the name of the Children's Aid Society. If this is true, his denial will not avail him anything, although the Times would be glad to know that he is not at fault. The public are now thoroughly interested in this case, and will await the action of the Society with impatience.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

St. Valentine's day.

The C.M.B.A. held an important meeting last night.

Belleville is talking of purchasing its street railway.

Here's to you Mr. Shaughnessy: You did well last year.

The Times yesterday added fourteen new subscribers to the lists.

The Board of Works met last night and transacted some routine business.

A chiminey blaze on Water street yesterday afternoon gave the brigade a run.

For bargains in nick-nacks and bound books, by best authors, go to the Times Bookstore.

The rain has made the walks almost impassable. On Water street they are covered with water in many places.

The Anderson Theatre Co., appeared again last night to a fair audience. Their entertainment is highly spoken of.

The Times received a letter dealing with the state of our streets. As it bears no signature it cannot appear.

See the north window in the Times Bookstore—just a wonder—articles only 15 cents each. It is worth taking a walk to see.

A number of trainmen, who were boarders at the house infected by small-pox at Toronto Junction, have been quarantined at Havelock.

The high wind last night disturbed the water on the granolithic pavements on Water street that it was really dangerous to venture out in a boat.

Messrs. Wm. and James Greer, of South Monaghan were presented with a fine Astrican overcoat and a purse, by their friends, on the eve of their departure for the northwest.

The choir of St. Paul's Church drove out to the residence of Mrs. Hugh Davidson, Smith, last night, when they were most hospitably entertained. Mr. Charlie Brown acted as chaperon.

At the police court yesterday morning John Murray came up for sentence, pursuant to remand a few days ago. He was found guilty of being a vagrant and ordered to leave town forthwith.

At a well attended and enthusiastic meeting held in the Riverdale Hall, North Monaghan, on Monday evening it was decided to hold a grand entertainment in the hall on Feb. 20th, the concert to be of a patriotic character, and the proceeds to be applied to the Governor-General's Patriotic Fund. Fuller particulars will be given later.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The Pill Drivers and the Screw Drivers will play hockey to-morrow night.

•• • ••

Eustace Miles, the amateur racquet champion of England, won the amateur championship of America on Saturday in Boston.

•• • ••

The Victorias, of Winnipeg, won the first game for the Stanley Cup, beating the Shamrocks 4 to 3. It was a fast game and was witnessed by over 8,000 people. This cup is emblematic of the championship of Canada.

•• • ••

Stratford seniors made a poor showing against the Wellingtons in Toronto on Monday night and were beaten by a score of 8 to 0. The team that puts Peterborough out generally gets into the finals.

•• • ••

Lionel King had his hands full in Cornwall on Monday. He was referee in the deciding game of the eastern division between the Caps and Cornwall. The latter won, an extra half hour being required to decide the game, as the score was a tie, 1 to 1, at the end of the regular time.

•• • ••

The Rugby Football Union of Ontario has embodied the "residence rule" in their rules. This affects Peterborough as one of their best men lives in Norwood now.

•• • ••

J, D.—"In a two-handed game of crib, A to play first, the cards fall in the following order—3, 1, 2, 1, 4, 2, 5, 2. What is the proper pegging for each side?"

B plays 4 holes. When he plays the first deuce then A pegs 5 holes for another run, and B takes the last card.

•• • ••

R.—No. Sequence made in play must always be single. When B reached the duplicate 4, played by himself in the first place, his run stopped. This shuts out the 7 and the run is 4, 5, 6 only.

•• • ••

R.—A has no remedy, because he is equally at fault himself. The rules of the game require all hands in the call to be shown to the board and the best poker hand wins. When A called B he should have laid down his hand face up, and not thrown it in the discards until he was sure he was beaten.

COST PER HEAD.

What it Costs to run our Municipal Government.

From the annual report of the Bureau of Industries we have been able to compile some figures that will be of interest to our readers. It will be seen that the cost per head for all municipal purposes is very high in Peterborough. The Times has all along contended that the rate of assessment does not fairly represent the condition of the finances of the corporation. Peterborough's is fully 25 more than it should be. Many properties are assessed for more than they would bring if offered for sale. It is the duty, therefore, of the assessors in making the assessment this year, to reduce the amount.

The following shows the total amount required per head of population in the municipalities in this county.

Peterborough, town	$ 6 87
Chandos	2 81
Douro	2 96
Ennismore	3 90
N. Monaghan	4 22
Smith	4 03
Ashburnham	3 74
Lakefield	3 65
Norwood	4 34

Other Places.

The cost per head for municipal government in other municipalities is as follows—

Wallaceburg, town	$ 4 34
Wingham, town	5 67
Wiarton, town	4 43
Durham, town	5 04
Oarngeville, town	5 40
Oshawa, town	5 50

THE TIMES LETTER BOX

Letters from the People on Interesting Topics.

(NOTE.—The Times does not hold itself in any way responsible for the opinions expressed by its correspondents.—Ed. Times.)

What Britain is Doing.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am pleased with the way our leaders in Ottawa are treating the war matter. England needs the help of her sons, and we should be willing to drain our last drop of blood for that dear old land across the sea.

A friend of mine the other day got into an argument in which I took the opposite side. He said that England was wrong in South Africa, and that she would not be so mindful of her other children as she was of the African possessions, on account of the gold and diamond mines of that country. What do you think of it, Mr. Editor?

AN ENGLISHMAN.

Peterborough, Feb. 9.

[Reply—What Britain is doing in behalf of her colonies in South Africa today, she would tomorrow do for us in Canada, if necessary.—Ed. Times.]

Under Water.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It is really too bad that our new sidewalks are so low. In many places they are covered with water, to the great annoyance of pedestrians.

The grades are all decidedly bad—some being too high and others too low. The Council should either stop putting down any more walks or hire a man that knows his business.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, etc.,

WET FEET

Another Object Lesson.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—For the past few days pedestrians enjoyed the privilege of skating around town on sheets of glare ice that covered the sidewalks. Dignified citizens who sat down suddenly, pretty girls who sprained their slender ankles and stout ladies who disarranged their internal economy by falls on the slippery walks all had it brought forcibly home to them that there is something the matter with the present system of snow cleaning. The snow ploughs can't do satisfactory work, unless supplemented by the labors of the snow shovel brigade, and history demonstrates that the snow shovel brigade won't work unless compelled by law to do so. Moral—Pass the necessary by-law.

PEDESTRIAN.

The Cock Fight.

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—I see that steps are to be taken to punish those engaged in the cocking main at Fraserville on the night of January 9. This is right, and I for one will be pleased to know that the guilty ones will be punished. It is inhuman sport, and unworthy of the age in which we live.

But how is the gang to be found out? Who will claim the $100 reward offered? I conceived it to be the duty of the police to see that the parties are brought to justice without delay, and I am much mistaken if the chief is not already in possession of the names of all who were present.

In a late issue of the Examiner I notice the City Editor appears to know who was not there. He may also know who was there, as he is quite a sport, is Alf. Yours truly,

BULL DOG.

A February Excursion.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As you are always ready to advocate anything in the interest of the public, I would suggest that you advertise a steamboat excursion down the granolithic sidewalks on Water street, under the management of the world-renowned engineering experts, viz. — Messrs. Langford, Hay and Davis. A steamboat excursion in February should be a good drawing card, and the proceeds might go to the Children's Aid Society or some equally worthy object.

I have no doubt, Mr. J. Hamden Burnham could be induced to deliver a lecture on the war, from a Boer standpoint. This would be a good drawing card, as it would give him quite a "pull" with the boys. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am &c.,

DUSTY RHODES.

Feb. 13, 1900.

A Sad Wail.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I, live on your street, and when day after day I saw ladies walking in the middle of the street, I looked in your paper to see what you had to say about it. It's just awful! The other night I was going to the party at the Oddfellows' Hall, and after dressing with care I set out, and was so taken up with my finery that I forgot about the walk. Well it was just about your door (on Water street) I found myself in water to my ancle—then my right foot went out to the west and my left foot to the east, and, Oh Lord! (There I'm a Methodist, too, but its enough to make a saint swear.) Well, I was nearly spificated, and as I screamed I came down hard. My skirts were not under me and the sudden splash into the ice water took my breath so that there was no scream in me. My sister helped me up and I managed to get home and into bed. Mr. Editor, they say this is an age of progress, but tell me, is it so that our sidewalks built by the modern engineers and important Boards of Works are to be built lower than the road so as to be canals?

If Judge Weller holds a commission next summer, as no doubt he will, I will be there—and don't you forget it!

Losses in Previous Wars.

Editor Morning Times

Dear Sir,—The official records in the War Department at Washington, as published in the people's Cyclopedia, show that twelve battles were fought in the Civil War in which the losses of the Union army in each battle exceeded the total losses of the British army in South Africa. The list is as follows—Shiloh 13,582, retreat from Richmond, 15249, second Bull Run 7,800, Antietam 11,469, Fredericksburg 12,583, Muffresboro 11,578, Chancelorsville 16,020, Gettysburg 23,186, Chicamauga 15,851 Wilderness 37,437, Spotsylvania 36,441, Cold Harbor 14,981. Redpath, the historianm says that ten thousand Union soldiers fell in front of the Confederate entrenchments at Cold Harbor in the short space of thirty minutes. The number of deaths in the Union army during the war was 359,528, and the number of prisoners captured by the Confederates 212,608.

The German records of the Franco-Prussian war, published by Milner & Sowerby, London, show that 11,860 officers and 363,326 French soldiers were detained as prisoners of war in ermany, 84,000 in Switzerlad, 6000 in Belgium, and 170,000 officers and men surrendered at Paris who were not sent to Germany. The other German trophies of the war were 120 eagles, flags and standards, 2,400 field guns and nearly a million Chassepot rifles. The losses in killed and wounded were proportionately large.

In spite of these truly appalling losses the North was victorious, and France, although vanquished, retains her position as one of the world's great powers, and I predict that, in spite of the reverses sustained in South Africa, the enemies of justice, liberty and progress, as well as weak-kneed Britons, will find that the British colossus is made of sterner stuff than clay. Yours truly,

S. SMYTHE.

BRITISH INVADE THE FREE STATE.

BRITISH INVADE FREE STATE AT TWO POINTS!

Gen. French Forced a Passage at Clip Drift and Gen. Gordon Another 4 Miles West.

THE GENERALS CAPTURE FIVE BOER LAAGERS.

Owing to the Rapidity of His Movements, Gen. French Met With But Slight Opposition and His Losses Were Small.

Battle May Occur at Any Time.

London, Feb. 14.—11.35 p.m.

The War Office has issued the following from Lord Roberts received this evening.

Dekel's Drift, Feb. 14, 8.10 a.m.

General French left this point at 11.30 yesterday morning with three brigades of cavalry, horse artillery and mounted infantry, including mounted infantry, including several colonial contingents, in order to seize a crossing of the Modder about 25 miles distant.

He reports by despatch dated 5.35 p.m., that he has forced a passage at Clip Drift and occupied the hills north of the river, capturing three of the enemy's laagers with their supplies, while General Gordon of the 15th Hussars with his brigade who had made a feint at Roundyaal Drift four miles west has seized it and a second drift between that and Clip Drift, together with two more laagers.

General French's performance is brilliant, considering the excessive heat and a blinding dust storm which raged during the latter part of the day. Owing to the rapidity of his movements, General French met with but slight opposition and his losses were small. Lieut. Johnston of the Inniskilling dragoons is the only officer reported seriously wounded. The sixth division was last night on the north bank of the Riet at Watervaal Drift and is moving to support the cavalry. The 7th division is here and will go on this afternoon.

"Four officers and 53 men had to be sent last evening in the returning ox wagons to the railway line, prostrated by heat and exhaustion."

Rensburg, Tuesday, Feb. 13

Before dawn yesterday the enemy opened an attack upon Slingersfontein, assaulting with musketry the hills on the northeast held by three companies of the Worcesters under Captain Hovel.

The artillery attack began at sunrise, the Boers approached in great numbers, estimated at 7 to 1. The British under good cover sustained the attack throughout the day. Meanwhile two big guns on the west opened up on the British at daylight and fired for half an hour, when a British Howitzer silenced them with lyddite, the British artillery firing with precision.

Then another gun to the north opened on the Royal Irish Rifles, but rather ineffectually, as the rifles had good cover. The shelling continued all day, and last evening the Boers brought up a forty pounder in order to bombard the camp from a hill to the north. The attempt was plainly visible, as the gun could be seen being drawn up by 18 oxen. With the Boers surrounding the British in overwhelming numbers and having artillery, it then became evident that it would be impossible to retain Slingersfontein, which the British evacuated under cover of the darkness, falling back upon Rensburg. The British casualties were lighter than might have been expected under the circumstances.

London, Feb. 15

The Daily Chronicle publishes the following despatch from Mafeking, dated Jan. 29—

The Boers shelled the women's laager for two hours on Saturday, January 27, Boer women, warned by spies evidently, went into the trenches, clapped their hands and hurrahed when the shells fell near the English women. Lady Sarah Wilson was slightly wounded. Major Gould Adams and Captain Wilson received contusions from shell fragments."

London, Feb. 15, 3.30 a.m.

Mr. Spencer Wilkinson in the Morning Post to-day says—"There is good news to-day, for a new campaign has begun. The movements of Lord Roberts are a practical illustration of the principle of concentration of action in tmei and space. The unexpected presence of the sixth division makes Lord Roberts stronger by 10,000 men than anyone had ventured to hope. Evidently he ordered General MacDonald's reconnaissance to Koodoosberg in order to draw the enemy's attention westward away from the contemplated movement through the Free State. The Boer army is now barred from the direct route to Bloemfontein and even on the road by Bosbof, it would be exposed to a flank attack during the march.

"General Cronje on hearing of Lord Roberts' dispositions on Tuesday and yesterday must have had an interesting problem. He had to consider whether to hold on to his positions at Jacobsdale and Magersfontein and to seize Kimberley, or to raise the siege and move off, and if so in what direction, whether to Bloemfontein or northward across the Vaal.

"These events form the brilliant opening of a new campaign, which is being marked by concentration of purpose and by an energy and rapidity that augur well for the furure. The public must wait patiently for the result of these operations, remembering that the distance to be covered is considerable and the heat great. Possibly enough there may be no general action until Friday."

London, Feb. 15

The Daily Telegraph has received the following, dated Tuesday, from its special correspondent at Frere—

"On Sunday the Boers advanced down the Ladysmith road towards Potgieters. Three hundred men on horseback proceeded to a point where they began to construct new rows of trenches at right angles to the road. This was about two miles north of the Drift. A party of Boers also crossed the Tugela, about six miles below Potgieters, where they sniped the South African Light Horse, who repulsed them."

London, Feb. 15

A despatch received from Chieveley to the Morning Post confirms the report that parties of Boers have occupied the old British camp on Spearman's Farm.

Ladysmith, Feb. 8

Mr. H. C. Foss, a resident of Ladysmith has been court martialed and sentenced to a year's imprisonment at hard labor for circulating false reports calumating the troops and for advising soldiers to desert. Mr. Foss who is a native from Natal resided for some years in the free state He had been twice warned for asserting that the garrison was on the eve of starvation and capture.

London, Feb. 15.—4.20 a.m.

The British army for the first time since the war began is inside the Boer frontier. Lord Roberts with at least 40,000 infantry, 7000 cavalry and 150 guns has turned the Magersfontein lines, before which the British forces have been encamped for ten weeks; and with half of his corps he is already operating on Free State territory.

A battle has not yet been fought but large tactical advantages have been gained. The relief of Kimberley is within measureable reach; and the way to Bloemfontein is appreciably easier.

The despatches of Lord Roberts sketch three days work. The forward movement began on Sunday when Col. Hannay set out with a brigade of mounted infantry for Ramah on the Riet, eight miles from Jacobsdal, one of the Boer supply bases.

On Monday General French with the cavalry divisions seized the crossing of the Riet river at Dekels Drift, south of Jacobsdal and 18 miles east of Honeynest Kloof. He skirmished with the Boers and cleared the way for 20,000 infantry who followed across.

On Tuesday with his three cavalry brigades and the horse artillery General French roade to the Modder River, a distance of 25 miles and took three fords with high ground beyond the river and five Boer camps. He had a few casualties in brushes with the Boer horse. Gen. French has now fixed himself on Gen. Cronjes main line of communications with Bloemfontein and 20,000 infantry with 72 guns are being pushed up to support him there.

PAID PENALTY OF HIS TREASON.

British Bullets Pierce the Base Heart That Was Sold for Transvaal Gold.

Paris, Feb. 14.—The Times correspondent in Durban sends an account of the execution of an English lighthouse keeper, who was a spy in the service of the Boers. One day while a troopship was passing the high promontory on which the lighthouse was situated, an officer's attention was attracted by a singular heliograph which was being made on the other side ofthe lighthouse.

The keeper was watched, and it was found that by the use of the heliograph code he signalled each new arrival of troops, each movement in port, and the number of men, cannon and horses embarked, to accompolices situated on the mountain, some distance away. These messages were repeated from post to post and reached Boer headquarters on the Tugela River in two or three days, and this had been going on for some time, since the outbreak of the war.

The keeper eventually confessed thate he was paid £60 for each telegram, and before beginning his operations had received £900 on account. His guilt was proved by an examination of his account at the Transvaal National Bank, which has a branch at Durban, and which paid him the money.

He was a full-bred Englishman sixty years old and had been employed in the lighthouse for al ong time. His wife and five children would not believe in his guilt, and a painful scene took place when he was transferred on board a man-of-war and was shot.

COLONEL HANNEY IN ACTION.

London, Feb. 14.—The following despatch has been received at the War Office from General Roberts:

"Riet River, Feb. 13.—Colonel Hanney, in command of a brigade of mounted infantry, marching from Orange River to Ramah, had a slight engagement Feb. 11, with the Boers holding the hills and threatening his right flank. With a detached part of his force Colonel Hanney contained the enemy while be pushed his baggage and main body through to Ramah. The object of the march was successfully carried out. Four men were killed, 22 wounded and 13 are missing."

AUSTRALIANS MOUNTED NOW.

Cape Town, Feb. 14.—The entireAust ralian infantry has been mounted. This was done because most oft he men were fine horsemen. Only 15 per cent of the command needed coaching. The remaining 85 per cent werethoroughly at home on horses.

A brother of the wife of Commissioner of Public Works Sauer of Cape Town was among the Free Staters killed at Colesburg.

BOERS LOST TREMENDOUSLY.

Modder River, Feb. 12.—Refugeesfr om near Kimberley have entered the camp to the number of 1,400. They report that they were driven awayb y the Boers owing to their failure to enlist in the republican army or to take contributions. They left all property behind and travelled by Brown's Farm near Koodoogsberg, where the Boer wounded and dead lay in great numbers. Their cusualties altogether are reported to be 300. The Boers tried to persuade them that the dead bodies behind the house were British. The estimate is in all likelihood correct. The Boers are reported to have abandoned the drift altogether and to be concentrating at Camel's Hook.

MAFEKING CAN HOLD OUT.

London, Feb. 14.—A despatch from Mafeking says the Garrison could hold out until June.

SKIRMISHING AT MAFEKING.

London, Feb. 14.—News from Mafeking is to the effect thatt he Boers on the 27th deliberately shelled the women's laager, throwing eight shells fromth eir big gun. Considerable shelling and sniping has been going on for the lastfo rtnight, and the Boers have of late been working hard on the western trenches. The fire of the big guns has caused many casualties, mostly natives. Shells were dropped into into the town in a desultory way, more trying because unexpected than a regular bombardment would have been. Of late the casualties have been less. The Boers tried to force Kaffirs into the town under a flag of truce on Jan. 17. Colonel Baden-Powell refused to receive them. The Boers fired heavily on the flag while retiring. This caused tremendous indignation, and Commandant Snynas subsequently sent an apology after a protest had been made. Protest has also been made against the Boers arming natives for offence. The Boer commandant answered that the armed natives were only used as cattle guards. He also said that the British forts had been made on Sunday, and if this were repeated he would open fire. Colonel Baden-Powell answered that the wire lines had been relaid, and that he had been vastly interested on Sunday in observing the Boers at work, completing a new work on the western front.

FROM BULLER.

London, Feb. 14.—The War Office has received a despatch from General Buller at Chieveley dated Monday, Feb. 12, which says:

The commanding officer at Springfield reports this morning that a squadron of the First Dragoons moving to the outpost line, covering the right flank of the camp met a party of Boers near Fustenberg. The Boers, reaching the crest of the hill first, opened a heavy fire on the squadron which retired. He sent out supports and the Boers retired. The affair resulted in the wounding of Capt. Hamilton Russell, Lieut. G. Churchill and ten men. In addition Lieut. Pilkington and six men were captured.

Dundonald with 700 mounted men, a field battery and the first Royal Fusiliers on February 12 reconnoitred the high ground which the enemy has been in the habit of visiting. The enemy evacuated it with the loss of two men after slight resistance. When the force retired on the completion of the reconnaissance the enemy returned in considerable number and kept up a heavy rifle fire resulting in the above casualties.

ROBERTS PAYING THE PRICE

London, Feb, 14.—Mr. Spenser Wilkinson, in the Morning Post, discussing the news from Rensburg says "This intelligence is the natural price paid for a blow elsewhere. The concentration at Modder River is apparently accompanied by a weakening of the force at Colesberg, and of this the Boers have taken advantage to assume the offensive.

"Meanwhile it looks as though the enemy had about withdrawn their forces from Magersfontein to reinforce those at Colesburg, where a Boer victory would threaten British communication between Cape Town and Modder River. Reviewing the whole campaign Mr. Wilkinson says that the type of the coming operations recalls that of the American civil war. Developing this thought, he remarks: "British strategy must be to crush, in succession, each of the principle Boer forces near Kimberley, Colesberg and Stormberg by bringing against them greatly superior numbers.

"Much depends on what happens in Natal. Gen. Joubert is not likely to abandon his present enterprise against Ladysmith, until disaster to the other Boer armies compels him."

BOERS WERE FIVE TO ONE.

London, Feb. 14.—The retirement from the Upper Tugela has been the natural sequence to Buller's sham attack, delivered for the purpose of covering Lord Roberts' movements elsewhere. The same tactics are employed by Major-General Clements at Rensburg. Major-General French with cavalry has disappeared from the scene, after drawing large Boer forces across the Orange River. Cole's Kop and the other British positions around Colesberg have been abandoned, owing to the pressure of this superior force, and the infantry battalions have fallen back upon Rensberg, and it is doubtful if Major-General Clements will make a strong stand there. Skirmishing is constant, an dthere has been sharp fighting, but the British retirement is orderly, and the forces are well kept together, serving the purpose of protecting the De Aar and Modder River lines of communications from a flank attack.

The Boers placed a forty-pounder at Bastard's Nek, commanding the surrounding country, and successfully shelled the Boer positions. The Boers numbered some thousands, and were five to one everywhere where fighting occurred. The British now have no camp west of Rensberg. They safely brought off the guns from Cole's Kop.

SILLY STORY FOR BELGIANS.

Brussels, Feb. 14.—Le Petit Bleu in correspondence from Pretoria publishes an extraordinary account of 3,000 British soldiers who, it is said, by the writer, arrived towards the end of December last, during the retreat from Dundee, at the river Maputa, the boundary between Swaziland and Portuguese territory.

BOERS LOSE A LARGE ARSENAL.

Their Mauser Cartridge Factory at Modder Blown Up and Workmen Killed.

Pietermaritzburg, Feb. 13.—Major Brasier Breagh, surgeon in charge of the ambulance train from Frere to Mooi River, brought ninety-five wounded British soldiers here to-day. Six of this number were officers. He also brought in three wounded Boers, all of whom were shot in the thigh.

On the way down the Boers talked freely to the surgeon. They told him the Boers were fighting for their independence, and hoped they would win. They would make a good try, anyhow.

The wounded men stated that there were only a few German, Irish or other foreigners fighting with the Boers in Natal. The Irish Transvaal Brigade, they said, was on the western border, probably with Cronje at Modder River. The men said they had been in three British hospitals, and had been treated with the greatest kindness and consideration by the officers and men. They were especially grateful to the British surgeons.

One of the Boers said he had offered a guard £50 to allow him to escape, but the guard refused.

The Boer Mauser cartridge manufactory at Modderfontein has been blown up. Between sixty and seventy workmen were killed by the explosion.

STILL A CRY FOR MORE MEN.

A London Critic Advocates the Sending of Additional Troops to the Cape.

London, Feb. 14.—The Morning Leader's war expert to-day says—

"The South African military opinion calls for 50,000 or 75,000 more men as soon as possible, and this on the ground of mercifulness and ultimate economy. This would bring our strength there up, to nearly a quarter of a million men, and this force to put down two small republics whose unied white population is supposed not to exceed 450,000 men, children and Uitlanders. Nothing but this fact was needed to demonstrate the futility of the Ministerial scheme of army organization laid before Parliament on Monday.

"The precise nature of Roberts' movements on the Modder River and Orange River are wrapped in mystery. Certain it is that the cuntry which General French manoeuvered the Boers out of in inner North Cape Colony has been reoccupied by the Boers. Buller is keeping his own secrets, but we may look for another movement on his part in a day or two, probably to the east of Colenso."

The Morning Post's war expert says—'The announcement of new appointments confirms the supposition that al arge force has now been assembled at Modder River. The offensive cannot be carried on along the whole line, and the Commander-in-Chief must determine the point at which he will act.

"Itl ooks as though the Boers had taken their forces away from Magersfontein to reinforce the commanders at Colesburg, where a victory wouldth reaten British communications between Cape Town and Modder River."

The expert compares the situation to the American Civil war at the time when the army of the Potomac held all the Confederate forces in Virginia while the western armies moved down the Mississippi and through the heart of the Confederacy to Atlanta and Savannah, and thence north to Lee's rear."

SEIZURE OF CHILDREN A TERRIBLE OUTRAGE!

Taking of the McConnell Children to the Shelter Arouses Strong Public Indignation.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY MUST ACT AT ONCE

If It Proposes to Retain the Confidence of the People—Affidavits of Mr. and Mrs. Cuffe Which Show That the Babes Were Being Well Cared For.

The action of the Children's Aid Society in forcibly taking possession of the two little children of Mrs. McConnell has aroused intense feeling in town. As will be seen by the affidavits appearing below, Mr. F. W. Miller, the agent, acted in the matter in the name of the society. The society has taken no action to undo the terrible wrong which has been committed in its name. An effort is being made to have Mr. Miller resign his position as agent of the society, but even if this is accomplished, it will be far from satisfactory. The society must restore the children. Nothing short of this will be acceptable.

The local evening papers, for some reason best known to themselves have said nothing about the outrage, simply publishing a letter from Mr. Miller which is intended to shield the society. But the shallowness of the excuse is seen when the affidavits below are read. If the society will enter a peaceful, happy home and take Mrs. McConnell's babies, who are well fed, well clothed and well cared for, what is to prevent it going into your home and doing the same thing? Is it not therefore a dangerous institution, and a menace to the community? We all know of course that the officers of the society are men who really mean to do what is right. They are actuated only by philanthropic motives, and have the best possible intentions. Still they should know that they occupy a position of trust and grave responsibility. In a crisis of this kind no half-hearted action will do. They must restore the children.

It is all the more incumbent upon the society to take action upon this matter from the fact that he children have been taken from the arms of a pious and devoted mother and placed in a home where, in which, from all accounts, the influences are of the worst possible nature. This man McConnell not only brutally illtreated his wife, knocking her down, kicking her and using the most vulgar and profane language in the presence of his children, but according to the accounts of his neighbors he beat and abused his poor old father, finally driving him from home to travel through the country begging his bread.

The following is Mr. Miller's letter:

I wish to say that I am solely responsible for my connection with the McConnell case. The officers and members of the Children's Aid Society knew nothing of it till the children were out of town. I considered the case as one in which I could act as a private citizen.

F. W. MILLER.

Below we publish the affidavits of Mr. and Mrs. Cuffe, the uncle and aunt of the children:

Dominion of Canada, Province of Ontario,

To Wit:

IN THE MATTER OF THE SEIZURE OF THE M'CONNELL CHILDREN

I, Harriett Cuffe, of the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, do solemnly declare that I was in my home on the 6th day of February, when Mr. McConnell and Mr. Miller came to the house. When I opened the door McConnell rushed in past me, and Miller said he had come for the children. I forbade either of them taking the children, as they were in my care when the mother was away. Miller said—"I am the agent of the Children's Aid Society, and I have authority to do this." I then allowed them to go through the house to where the children were, and McConnell picked up one child and carried it out of the house. Miller went to take the other child, but I objected that she was very sick and not fit to be taken out of the house; and also wanted him to speak to my husband before taking them. He said it was of no use and that he would take the children and keep them until this matter was settled. I then allowed him to take the children, but only because I thought and he had said, that he was an officer of the law.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act, 1893."

IN THE MATTER OF THE SEIZURE OF THE M'CONNELL CHILDREN

I, Tarleton Cuffe, of the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, do solemnly declare that I was at my home on the 6th day of February, being sick in bed with pneumonia, when I heard a knock at the door and called my wife. When she opened the door I heard a man say, "I have come for those children." I heard my wife forbid them to take the children, and then the same man said—"You must know who I am. You must have seen my name in the papers. I am agent of the Children's Aid Society, and have authority to take the children," and then they went through the house. Hearing a noise I got out of bed and tried to go down stairs, but could only go as far as the head of the stairs. I then called to my wife to ring the police up and have those men arrested. Then the same man said, "There is no use making all this fuss. I will take the children in my charge and keep them till the matter is settled." I heard my wife tell him that one child was too sick to be taken out, but he said they had lots of warm clothing in the cab.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of "The Canada Evidence Act, 1893."

Mr. Miller denies that he used the name of the society in obtaining possession of the children. Mr. and Mrs. Cuffe, two most respectable people, belonging to good families, swear that he did make use of the society's name. Let the public judge for themselves.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 15, 1900

THE FUTURE ARMY HORSE.

The offer of ten thousand horsemen from Canada is a timely note from the North-west and British Columbia. At last the War Office is open for such suggestions, and looking to the Canadian North-west for remounts. The "caycuses" of the ranch lands are spoken of as the "upper ten" of the horses of the prairie—picked animals which have been trained by the ranchers, and know a good deal that is taught the cavalry horses, have generally been broken-in to rifle fire, and can do their forty miles a day for days in succession, while, at a pinch, they will carry North-west mounted police scouts eighty or ninety miles in a day. Commissioner White is purchasing 1,500 of them for the British army at an average price of $80. It is well known, says the Canadian Gazette, in London that the War Office is at last becoming alive to the uses of such horses for that mounted infantry work, the lack of which has cost us so many valiant lives in South Africa. It was to Canadian horses, even less well fitted than these, that the United States turned in the conflict of 1861—65 to meet the waste in actual fighting. The Field reminds us that "the Dominion of Canada was not only able to contribute a never failing supply of horses to its gigantic Southern neighbor during the last two years of the civil war, but it was found, by practical experience in the field, that the Canadian horses were more hardy than those which came from the Northern States." That was thirty-five years ago, when the ranch lands of the North-west were tenanted by the wild buffalo. To-day they are the home of the ideal army horse. Will the War Office persist in neglecting so promising a field of supply? Those who should know say that with 100,000 men in the field General Rogerts should have 50,000 horses. It is doubtful whether he has 12,000, and at this moment the War Office is at great expense sending its agents in hot haste into every corner of the world to pick up what it can to supply the deficiency. How much simpler and more economical it would seem to found and maintain Imperial stud farms in suitable parts of Canada and Australasia. The cost would, as the Field points out, be greatly smaller than in England, and the results infinitely more satisfactory. The pony which has given the Boer his startling mobility and enabled him to puzzle and baffle every British general is the army horse of the future; the belligerent with the largest and best trained force of infantry so mounted will in future wars ride rough-shod over its adversary and win the day. So predicts the field, and it warns the War Office that "the day is close at hand when all over the world there will be such a demand for stout, short-legged horses that England can no longer trust to chance to supply her needs as occasion arises."

A CANADIAN HOSPITAL SHIP.

The proposal to procure and equip a Canadian hospital ship for service in South Africa, to be called "The Maple Leaf," finds widespread approval. It was made some time ago in a letter to the mail from Major Keefer, late of the Bengal army, who offered to subscribe $1,000 toward the fund required. In this letter he says "It is a well known fact that in a campaign deaths from disease equal, if they do not exceed, those from battle wounds; this is particularly true when campaigns are of long duration; in fact, the longer the campaign the greater the mortality from disease." Major Keefer further says:—"I am rather diffident about making the suggestion (that Canada should subscribe to a hospital ship) because Canada has already come forward very nobly with men and money to help the other land, and her citizens have subscribed very liberally to a number of different funds in connection with this war. But this would be a distinct and complete affair, a unique gift, as it were, and its utility cannot possibly be doubted." It would cost the people of Canada but five cents per head to charter and equip a hospital ship. If one of the great steamship lines of this Dominion were to lend a ship for this service it would be an enduring claim to public gratitude, but why not the different lines unite in furnishing a ship which could be equipped by popular contributions or Provincial grants of money and materials. Such a vessel, as has been well suggested, would be an Empire ship, "a home of rest and help for any wounded soldier of the Queen, a transport to convey troops outward bound, a transport to bring back our men to us, and intermediately be a place where under the hands of skilful doctors and careful nurses, the wounded may find most necessary remedies, rest and help." Already two hospital ships have been sent to South Africa, the Princess of Wales and the Maine, and one hospital ship lying under the lee of Table Mountain can do more to aid and recuperate wounded men than three land hospitals in a country like South Africa.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE.

The employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway have gained enviable notoriety by the movement now practically completed whereby each one of them subscribe one half day's pay to the Canadian Patriotic fund. There are some thirty thousand employees and the sum will, it is said, reach twenty thousand dollars, a truly regal gift in common parlance—in reality much more so. The originality of this action is only surpassed by its nobility, for such rank and file patriotism, where every man donates his mite, is more inspiring than the individual generosity of the chieftains, though this also is highly praiseworthy. The Patriotic Fund has, since its inauguration, been swelled by subscriptions from all over the Dominion, the sums ranging from units to thousands, until at the present time it totals about one hundred thousand dollars, exclusive of the C.P.R. employees' donation. And it is not closed yet. The result is of a nature to arouse pride. Canada has sent two thousand of her sons to the front, and she has established the noble precedent of guaranteeing their families from want. Can any other country show a better record than this?

The Children of Ladysmith

One of the war correspondents shut up in Ladysmith sends interesting particulars of the cheery manner in which the people in the besieged town spent Christmas day.

The children had an especially good time. Two hundred of the little folk were entertained at a feast at which they had abundance of the customary dainties and even luxuries. The feast was under the chief control of Colonel Dartnell and Major Karri-Davies, who gleefully distributed the good things with their own hands.

There were four Christmas trees, named respectively Britain, Natal, Canada and Australia. Sir George White and General Hunter were among the numerous company that witnessed the festive proceedings.

ENGLAND'S INDIAN ARMY.

Her Entire Force of All Kinds Number Over Half a Million.

The ever-increasing prodigality with which England is drafting upon her military resources, both at home and abroad, makes it pertinent to recall to mind that British India and her vast population of nearly 400,000,000 are practically kept in check by only 70,000 British troops. These troops usually serve ten years in India and are transferred from one military station to another every two years. "Tommy Atkins," at least when in India is very precious in the sight of the British government. As he stands in his uniform, a disciplined soldier in the prime of health and strength, he is said to have cost a paternal government the sum of $2,000 American money, and he is valued accordingly. His daily rations are carefully examined by medical experts, and his one quart of ale and one ounce of rum are served out to him with the greatest regularity. When the exigencies of the service permit he is sent in the "hot season" to the mountains, where he works on the roads and gets a laborer's allowance besides his pay. When on the plains everything is done that possibly can be accomplished by his officers to make his life pleasant, and if he behaves himself a good-conduct stripe is added to his coat sleeve and a penny a day (two cents of our money) to his income. When he gets drunk he goes to the cells for a week or he is given a five days' drill. In due time he returns to England and enjoys a pension—that is, if he does not fall victim to the climate. The biggest outdoor attractions at the Indian military stations are the cemeteries, the one at Peshawar alone containing the graves of 3,500 British soldiers.

The full strength of Great Britain's Indian army, in round numbers, approximates 300,000 men, of whom 230,000 are native and 70,000 British soldiers. In addition to this military force there are about 20,000 enrolled European volunteers, and a native police, officered by white men, nearly 200,000 strong.

Every regiment is divided into 10 companies, each of which is usually made up of a different nationality, such as Goorkhas, Sikhs, Dogras, Pathans, Punjaubis, &c. It is owing to this precaution that a combination of forces for the purpose of mutiny becomes almost impossible. The Gorrkhas and Sikhs, whose loyalty is rated the highest, are in some localities permitted to constitute entire regiments by themselves.

The pay of the Sepoy or native soldier is $3.50 per month, with a gradual increase after three years' good conduct service. The pension system is particularly liberal and is really the magnet which draws the native recruit. When a Sepoy soldier falls in action his wives—and there are four of them—are all pensioned, as well as their young children. As regards the artillery branch of the Indian army, white men only are employed, both as commissioned officers and in the ranks, and the guns of all forts are entirely manned by Britons.

Of the native soldiers the Goorkha is the best and many English experts believe that he is the best soldier in the world.

THEY DO NOT SHAVE.

Water Scarce at Camp Belmont and Toronto Boys Do Not Wash Often

Private Cecil Mackenzie of "C" company, Royal Canadian regiment, writing from Belmont, says—"We are three miles from water, so washing is out of the question and shaving is not allowed, so we cut a very funny figure. The station here at Belmont is as full of holes as a cushion is full of pins. The lead in the woodwork would sink the bed, so some one said. In the store room a shell was found, and if it had exploded there would have been no building to pile sacks of corn and fodder in. We find all sorts of things on the battlefield, but too big to send by post.

"We are attached to the Royal Horse artillery and have a jolly time riding the horses to water. As soon as we are ordered up country farther we will join our regiment. We are the only company that has been away from the main body since leaving Cape Town."

SHOT BY THEIR OWN MEN

HOW MANY ARMY OFFICERS MEET AN INGLORIOUS DEATH.

Soldiers They Have Humiliated Taken a Terrible Revenge—French, Spanish and German Officers Were Thus Slain.

The recent cruel and utterly unfounded rumors to the effect that Maj. Logan was killed in the Philippines by a bullet from the rifle of one of his own men recalls cases of this kind which really did happen. It seems a very unlikely thing that in the heat of a hard-fought conflict the origin of a man's death can be determined—that is to say, whether he died by the hands of one of his comrades or by those of the enemy; consequently men with a grievance against their officers have often made use of such opportunities to wipe off old scores and have gone undiscovered.

A notable instance of this occurred just before the battle of Woerth, in the Franco-Prussian war. A certain officer of considerable repute had got himself generally disliked by his perseverance in bullying those under him. A few days before this, the first great battle of the war, when the French were nearing the border in their hopeless endeavor to reach Berlin, a rumor ran through the camp late at night that the Prussians were advancing and would shortly be up. Instantly pandemonium reigned and scouting parties were sent out in all directions. One of these was under the officer in question, and when some way from camp was fired upon, the bullet bringing him down.

The Frenchmen, thinking they had got into an ambush, retired, firing at an invisible foe as they did so, but as no counter shots were received they grew courageous again and, after being reinforced, advanced to the fatal spot. The body of the officer was found, but not so that of his assailant, who had evidently escaped unscathed.

One of Many Tragedies.

On returning to the camp it was found that no trace of the enemy had been discovered; in fact, at that time the Prussians were far away from the spot on either side of the Boerth. Accordingly a post mortem examination was held on the officer's body and a French service bullet extracted therefrom, but the murderer was never detected, although he was doubtless in the camp and had slipped out unawared to commit the crime.

But this is only one of many tragedies which took place during the war, and it is said that at least two per cent of the French officers killed fell by hands of their own men, and a little over half that number in the Prussian army. In the former instance the crimes were due for the most part to the national failing of never forgetting a grievance and in the latter to the rigidity of discipline which sometimes amounts to bullying.

Even Marshal Bazaine was nearly murdered before he capitulated at Metz. He was by no means a popular man, and on account of this always stood in dread of the assassin, and his fears were not lessened when a plot was discovered to put poinson in his food, the scheme being hatched by his own men. The offenders, or some of them, were promptly tried and shot before many hours were over.

A rather sad case is recorded in connection with the Italion disaster at Adowa a few years ago. During the melee a man was seen to shoot in the direction of his captain, who at the same time fell mortally wounded. When the battle was over the man was charged with the crime and, after a scant trial, shot by his comrades, despite his protests of innocence, one of the chief reasons for his condemnation being that he was known to have a grievance against the officer. Neveertheless, the affair was soon forgotten till some nine months afterward, when a soldier came forward from the same régiment, self-charged with the crime.

He related the facts in detail, giving his motive as petty tyranny on the part of the officer some years previously, when he, the murderer, was a recruit, and stated that he would never have given himself up had not another man died in his stead. Needless to say, this did not excuse him, and he perished in the prison yard at Naples.

Frequent in the Spanish Army.

Not many months ago three Spanish soldiers were executed at Madrid for the alleged murder of an officer during the hostilities in Cuba, although the evidence against them was very meagre. Sufficient was it that subsequent to the battle of San Juan the officer was found dead some way from the battlefield with a Mauser bullet in his brain, and the three men referred to were seen in the vicinity at about the time the affair must have taken place. Of course, they may have been justly condemned, as tragedies of this kind were especially frequent in the Spanish army throughout the war, but at the same time he authorities failed to take into account that there were many so-called "loyal" Cubans attached to the Spanish forces and also present at San Juan, who had been given Mauser rifles and ammunition by their oppressors, but whose dislike to Spanish officers was proverbial.

Although such crimes are more common in continental armies than in the British, we must not imagine that similar cases have never taken place in which Tommy Atkins has participated. In the ulu Zwar, just prior to the battle of Ulundi, a young lieutenant in one of the line regiments was found shot some way from the camp, and after the campaign a soldier on his death bead at Devonport confessed to having been his murderer.

Similarly, too, during the hostilities in the Soudan in 1885, an officer of some repute was found to have been mysteriously killed by an English bullet, but the affair was hushed up and put down as the work of the dervishes.

A CONSIDERATE EMPRESS.

A Faithful Servant's Illness Prompts Her to Send Him a Gift.

The Empress Dowager of China is a very considerate woman and among the recent edicts published in the official gazette of Pekin is the following—"I, the Empress Dowager Tsi-Hsi-Tuan-Yu, etc., hereby acknowledge the receipt of a memorial from Tan Chun-Lin, viceroy of the two Kuang provinces, stating his prolonged illness and praying to be allowed to resign his post. I have always had a great respect for the said viceroy's energy and diligence in attending to his duties as chief of a great province, and therefore feel reluctant to deprive myself of the services of such a faithful officer. Instead of retiring, therefore, the said viceroy is given an extra period of leave from his duties, and I hereby send him as a mark of special grace four ounces of ginseng to help him in regaining his health and strength."

Ginseng is one of the largest articles of export from the United States to China. Last year $840,686 worth was sent. Although the Chinese consider it one of the most valuable of drugs, it is seldom used in this country. It is a root that is found growing wild in the forests of the central States, and costs only the labor of digging it. The finest ginseng used in China comes from the province of Manchuria, and forms part of the regular annual tribute paid by the inhabitants to the throne. The Manchurian ginseng is a monopoly of the crown. Persons found selling it in the markets are severely punished. The price is therefore purely nominal, but the tribute is credited at the rate of 100 taels an ounce.

A Blessing to the Homes of Canada

No invention of the century now coming to a close has done so much for the homes of Canada as the Diamond Dyes. These reliable and never-failing dyes have saved more money for our Canadian families than all other combined agencies.

Diamond Dyes, with their magical recreating powers, give to faded and dingy looking dresses, skirts, waists, blouses, shawls, capes, jackets, coats, vests, pants, and all fabrics, light or heavy, a second life—a condition of richness and beauty, in the majority of cases far ahead of the original colors and shades. It simply means that a new dress, coat, jacket or other article of wearing apparel is obtained at a cost of from ten to twenty cents. This work is now successfully carried on in tens of thousands of happy and prosperous homes in our Dominion.

If you have not yet tested the re-creating and economizing powers of Diamond Dyes in your home, you are losing money every month. To achieve the victories that come to others in money-saving, you should try what Diamond Dyes can do on your faded and cast-off clothing.

As there are imitation package dyes sold in some stores for the sake of extra profit, avoid these colors, as they are ruinous to any material; see that you get the Diamond Dyes that make old things look as good as new.

His one Chance for Life.

New York, Feb. 13.—A morning paper prints the following anent the Molineux case—

"There is a chance, an added one, which Roland B. Molineux has for his life. The Legislature is to be asked to pass a bill doing away with capital punishment in this state, and there is a probability it may pass both branches and become a law. The bill has been introduced, and there are many up-State legislators who are strongly in favor of it, and it is said to be aided by the influence which will result from the Molineux trial."

Grand Old Army.

Ottawa, Ont. Feb. 13.—A deputation of the Grand Army of the Republic will wait on Dr. Borden to-morrow and offer to supply a corps of two hundred men for service in the Transvaal.

Cigar Maker's Request.

Ottawa, Feb. 13.—The cigar maker's deputation will meet Sir Henri Joly tomorrow morning and Hon. W. Paterson in the afternoon. It is understood that from th eformer they will ask legislation to prevent tobacco growers selling to any person outside manufacturers, and from the latter an increase on th eduty on imported cigars.

A deputation from Port Hope will shortly meet Hon. J. I. Tarte to ask terminal facilities, so as to bring that town into lin ein th egrain carrying trade.

RETRIBUTION

He saved a little day by day,
Withheld from something that he craved.
"The dollars grow," he used to say,
"From extra pennies that are saved."

His pile of savings grew and grew.
Each day he hoarded more and more;
Each night he ran his fingers through
And gloated o'er his golden store.

And as his wealth increased his heart
Shrank, hardened, shriveled and decayed.
He cheated, gouged and played the part
That many another fool has played.

He rose to power through his wealth;
He crushed those who were in the way;
He gained a fortune, lost his health
And miserably died one day.

Then came his drunken cousin, who
Had thrashed him when the two were boys.
His savings and his stealings, too,
One whom he hated now enjoys.

—S. E. Kiser in Chicago Times-Herald.

LOVE ON THE FARM.

A potato went on a mash
And sought an onion bed.
"That's pie for me," observed the squash,
And all the beets turned red.
"Go away," the onion, weeping, cried;
"Your love I cannot be;
The pumpkin be your lawful bride,
You cantaloupe with me."

But onward still the tuber came
And laid down at her feet;
"You cauliflower by any name,
And it will smell as wheat;
And I, too, am an early rose,
And you I've come to see,
So don't turn up your lovely nose,
But spinachat with me!"

"I do not carrot all to wed,
So go, sir, if you please,"
The modest onion meekly said,
"And lettuce, pray, have peas!
Go think that you have never seen
Myself or smelled my sigh,
Too long a maiden I have been
For favors in your eye!"

"Ah, spare a cuss!" the tuber prayed,
"My cherryshed bride you'll be;
You are the only weeping maid
That's currant now with me!"
And as the wily tuber spoke
He caught her by surprise
And, giving her an artichoke,
Devoured her with his eyes.

HE WASHED DISHES.

The Hard Job One Boy Had All the Way to Europe.

The girls who have complained in various keys because they had dishes to wash may be glad to hear of a young man who can look at the matter through their eyes, perhaps more so. He had shipped as "boy" on a cattle steamer for Europe because he wanted to save as much as possible on his transportation, and—but the rest of the story sounds better in his own words:

"About 4:30 in the morning I was awakened and told to go to work. I hastily dressed, for the first and last time on board, for during the rest of the voyage I took care not to undress. It seemed scarcely worth while. I arrived on deck and found the steward waiting for me. He showed me into the pantry, introduced me to 'Pants,' as the pantryman was called, and told me that my chief duty during the voyage would be to wash dishes.

"There was already a large pile of dirty dishes waiting to be washed, and I rolled up my sleeves, fixed the hot water and began to work. I had these almost done when another and larger lot was brought in from the dining room. This proved to be the daily programme. I no sooner had one pile washed than others were brought in, and I was never done. I don't think I ever saw so many dishes before in my life, and I hope I never shall again. There were 60 passengers aboard besides the cattlemen, and six meals were served each day. From the dishes that came out to be washed, I think that each passenger must have used at least six plates at a meal."—Detroit Free Press.

Destroying the Point.

Every one knows the man who is notorious for so telling a story as to destroy its point. An English nobleman, Lord P., was noted for his success in thus ruining the prosperity of a story. The author of "Collections and Recollections" exhibits a specimen of his lordship's peculiar art.

Thirty years ago two large houses were built at Albert Gate, London, the size and cost of which seemed likely to prohibit tenants from hiring them. A wag christened them "Malta and Gibraltar because they can never be taken."

Lord P. thought this an excellent joke and ran round the town, saying to every friend he met:

"I say, do you know what they call those houses at Albert Gate? They call them Malta and Gibraltar because they can never let them. Isn't it awfully good?"

Some one told Lord P. the old riddle, "Why was the elephant the last animal to get into the ark?" to which the answer is, "Because he had to pack his trunk."

Lord P. asked the riddle of the next friend he met and gave as the answer, "Because he had to pack his portmanteau."

His "Dear Old Jim."

"Corbett is my friend and benefactor," says Mr. Jeffries. "I was once his sparring partner, and he treated me as a gentleman. Hence I have gladly agreed to fight him as a return for favors. I am bound by all the ties of friendship and gratitude to give him a chance to fight me." Was there ever such a touching instance of devotion? Mr. Jeffries will reward his old patron and benefactor by beating him into pulp and knocking his head off. One can fancy him saying, as he puts his terrible right into his friend's ribs, "Dear old Jim!"—Kansas City Star.

The Billing and Cooing.

Uncle George—You do not appear to think it necessary to spend so much time at home as you did when you were first married. I suppose the billing and cooing are all over now.

Harry—There doesn't seem to be much of a let up in the billing, and, as for the cooing, I am dreadfully afraid of it. It is sure to mean a new hat or a new gown or a new something.—Boston Transcript.

India Rubber Industry.

The bulletin of the Royal gardens, Kew, states that the falling off in the production of India rubber at Lagos is due to the reckless way in which the trees are being exhausted. There is a want of control over the collectors, who tap young trees and destroy whole rubber forests by overworking, so that this industry, which is an important source of wealth to the colony, is in danger of extinction. A similar disaster occurred in Madagascar, and now active steps are being taken to preserve the industry by the establishment of plantations of rubber producing plants.

DIED BY THE HUNDREDS.

GREAT HARDSHIPS ENDURED BY BRITISH IN THE CRIMEA.

Eight Thousand Wounded Cared for in an Improvised Hospital.

Perhaps one of the most terrible examples of privation and hardship in the history of modern warfare arose directly from Lord Rednor's decision, immediately after the memorable battle of Inkerman, that the entire army then on the scene of battle should winter in the Crimea. At that time, however, the troops had not been compelled to undergo any special inconveniences, as October had been mild and sunny, and the tents were able to be pitched on comparatively dry ground, rations at the same time being regular for both men and horses. The cheerfulness and field ability of the men were also good, notwithstanding the fact of the work being terribly heavy in proportion to the numerical strength of the army, and taking into consideration the still lingering cholera pest. In the midst of these favorable conditions there suddenly arose a terrific hurricane, accompanied with blinding rain, which, lodging in the billows of the tents, together with he pressure of the wind, prostrated the tents of whole camps, or else hurled them bodily in the distance. The effect of this was terrible, as all the hospital tents were also carried away, leaving the sick and wounded completely at the mercy of the storm, dripping with wet and perishing with cold, and causing at the same time the loss of enormous quantities of food and forage.

The devastation of the storm was not alone confined to the forces on shore, for in the harbor of Balaclava 21 vessels laden with stores most urgently needed by the army were totally lost, and eight others disabled. The morning after the whole harbor was strewn with wreckage and dead bodies. The storm was immediately followed by snow. The sick and weary and wounded were compelled to lie down, without floor or covering, in the half-frozen slush and mud. The treenches still held by the troops were deep in water and when the firing ceased at night they could only huddle together on the cold, wet earth until dawn, when began once more the ceaseless firing. The men seldom pulled off their boots, fearing lest they should be unable to get them on again; consequently their feet swelled in them, the circulation was impeded, and resulted on cold nights in innumerable cases of frost bite, ending at best with amputation. Add to this want of fuel wherewith to cook their salted meat, and the absence of vegetable food or lime juice to mitigate the ravages of scurvy and other diseases, and the extent of the sufferings will readily be seen. As men became incapacitated so much the more fell to those that remained well.

Gradually communication with Balaclava became partially cut off, and on account of sufferings among the horses, whose backs never quit of a saddle and half starving, died daily in scores, the men had to do their work, and the journey backwards and forwards through the quagmire which separated Balaclava from the camp. Rations were now fast getting short, and actually for one day the whole force underwent their usual routine of suffering and toil without an ounce of food. At other times the troops subsisted on half rations, and under these conditions, coupled with intense cold, it is not surprising that at one time nearly eveery man was suffering from scurvy in a greater or less degree. The suffering of the animals was indeed frightful, the animals falling in scores from cold, neglect and fatigue. The carcases, for there was no time or facility to bury them, formed a revolting and terrible additional feature to the desolate scenery. At the sound of the feeding trumpet the poor creatures, maddened with hunger, stampeded in the direction of the forage stores, undeterred by whips or stones, snatching the hay in their desperation even from each other's mouths. The pathos of the sight of their frenay in the first pangs of hunger was only exceeded by the patient misery of the subsequent exhaustion which followed. Many died while fetching their own forage from Balaclava. Daily their rank became thinner, and daily the roadways presented a more terrible spectacle.

Removing the Wounded.

Another very saddening feature was the removal of the wounded from the camp to the great hospital at Scutari —in all nearly eight thousand. To many suffering as they already were the journey proved fatal. Wrapped in wet blankets and covered with mud from the floor of the tents they were placed on horses, all the time moaning dismally with half-closed eyes and tired faces, and clinging desperately to their saddles, lest they should fall off in the mire on the road. Some, mad with fever, conversed with imaginary friends and sweethearts, quite unconscious of the desolate surroundings. Others in their quick and absent glances betrayed an absolute unconsciousness to everything. The horses scrambled and stumbled over their poor dying fellows which strewed the road. The eyes of the wounded riders met with the sight of carcases and skeletons half buried in the snow or perhaps with the wagons piled with dead Turks wending their way towards the huge pits by the wayside which constituted their grave. Their embarcation in the vessels which were to carry them to Scrutari presented fresh horrors as bad or worse than previous hardships. Through the fact of the ships laden with clothing never arriving, their covering in the crowded deck was of the scantiest and most meagre description, and huddled as they were on the bare planks, every lunge of the vessel meant agony and inexpressible torture to the wounded and fever-stricken. Closely packed, without rest, cleanliness, proper food, victuals, medicine or adequate attendance, the sounds that rent the air, the shrieks, groans, entreaties, prayers and curses, together with the straining of the timbers, and the tramping of the crew, the scene must have presented a veritable hell on earth Scrutari at last reached was found to be already crammed. The huge rooms and passages presented a mass of human beings closely packed feet to feet, cold, miserable, yet bravely suffering, there only comfort and consolation being in the sympathy and companionship to be derived from another at their side in a similar condition. Every day saw one hundred or more of these noble and brave heroes end their lives in such a way and in such surroundings, yet ready and willing so to do. Silently and patiently suffering, each surviving victim of the horrors of war saw ever fresh relays of wounded flocing in even faster than the dead were carried out—crowding, always crowding, until even this place overflowed. The news of this state of affairs naturally shook the nation with one mighty tremor, which expressed itself in two forms—one to furnish immediate relief in the shape of appropriate nourishment, medicine, shelter and clothing, and the other to find out, if possible, on whom the responsibility rested. Soon thousands throughout the country who could find time, set to work making warm clothing of every description. Presents, even as to-day, of little comforts as well as necessaries came pouring in, and last, but not least, Florence Nightingale, with the staff of 92 trained nurses arrived at Soutari on their errand of mercy, bringing joy and comfort and peace where before had reigned only misery, combining military precision with tender warmth of heart and impulsive kindness, and winning all hearts with whom she came in contact. Kinglake says: "Whilst she thus had great weight with the men in authority, her ascendant held good with the orderlies and other soldiers whose energies, whose patience, whose loyal devotion she often had to task hard. During all of that dreadful period, no one of them failed in obedience, in ready attention, in thoughtful, considerate delicacy. For her sake they toiled and endured beyond the measure of all that official words of command could well have sought to exact; yet "never," she gratefully wrote, "came one word or one look which a gentleman would not have used; and while paying this humble tribute to humble courtesy the tears came into my eyes as I think how, amidst scenes of loathsome disease and death, there arose above it all the innate dignity, gentleness and chivalry of these men, preventing instinctively the use of one expression which could not be uttered in the presence of a gentlewoman."

Both Went to Shoot Ducks.

Yarmouth, N. S., Feb. 13.—Clayton Sullivan, son of Augustus Sullivan, of Yarmouth, was on a short visit to his uncle, George Beveride, at Little River. The morning before dawn young Sullivan and his uncle, each unknown to the other, started for the pond to get a shot at some ducks. They got on different sides of the pond. The uncle, seeing a black mass among the rushes on the opposite side to him fired, and young Sullivan received the entire charge through the head, killing him instantly.

Over the Ice Bridge.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Feb. 13.—The Countess of Minto, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, and a party from the Government House, are here stopping at the Prospect House. This morning the Countess made a trip over the ice bridge in a downpour of rain. This afternoon the party took a ride in a private car over the Canadian Scenic Line. To-morrow the Countess will probably go to Buffalo, where she will lunch with President Caryl Ely, of the International Traction Company.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an air of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been s ofavorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

An Effusive Welcome.

Berlin, Feb. 13.—Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of Emperor William of Germany, arrived here this morning. He was welcomed at the railroad station by His Majesty and a large suite. Immediately after the train stopped Prince Henry jumped out and hurried to the Emperor, who met him half way. The two brothers embraced and kissed each other affectionately the bands played and the guard of honour presented arms. In honour of the event all the schools were closed and the city was decorated with flags.

"C" Field Battery will leave here for Halifax on Thursday morning at nine o'clock.

NOT VERY ELEGANT.

Worked Like a Cow's Cud.

A gentleman in Northampton, Mass., who requests that his name be kept from print, had a curious experience with coffee drinking. He states that when he was accustomed to the use of coffee he would, after every meal, belch up gas and more or less coffee would come with it. A part of it would run back down his throat, and as he says, imitating in a way the manner of a cow chewing a cud. He deprecates the inelegant illustration, but knows of no other way to explain the condition.

He says further that he was puzzled for a very long time, to account for a sallow complexion and bilious condition, with a heavy, dull, miserable feeling after the meals, and no medicines or treatment would remove the difficulty. "A friend warned me that coffee was the cause of my trouble, but I could not bring myself to believe this, until after a time I [illegible] the experiment of leaving off coffee altogether and took up Postum Food Coffee.

"To my surprise, the ills all quickly stole away and I am now healthy and in bright condition. I know what I am talking about when I say that with some people coffee causes belching of gas and most disgusting and disagreeable features. It also caused headaches, constipation, blotches and jaundice, with a general upsetting and breaking down of the nervous system, if persisted in. I know also that these troubles will disappear when coffee is given up and Postum Cereal Food Coffee used in its place."

The name of this gentleman will be furnished by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., upon application.

THE OCEAN GRAVEYARD.

Just What Sable Island Is—Where It Lies—Its Fight Against the Sea.

"Sable Island belongs to Nova Scotia, is 145 miles from Halifax and 85 miles east of Cape Canso, writes Gustav Kobbe in Ainslee's for February. "It is a treeless, shrubless waste, seamed by wind and wave and of ever changing aspect. A cone-shaped hill near the east end, once a mere undulation of sand, is now over a hundred feet high and is still growing. Other hillocks are gradually being mowed away by storms. The hillocks are liable to be undermined so swiftly and swept out of existence that they are carefully watched from the various stations on the island, and, there being no certainty how far an inroad of the sea will extend after each successful attack. Even the coarse grass of the island grows in a different manner from that of the mainland. It does not bear seed, but shoots up from roots which run along under the sand. During the winter the sand is blown over the grass, and buries it sometimes three or four feet deep. But the hardy blades grow up next season, as if the island sands had protected them from the cold of winter in order to make them all the stronger.

"The island itself is fighting for self-preservation. It seems as if it drew ships into its fatal embrace as rallying points for its loose and shifting sand, thus to protect itself by a bulwark of wrecks against annihilation by the sea. Tradition says that when Sable Island was discovered by Cabot in 1447, it was eighty miles long and ten miles wide. In 1802, when a rescue station was established there, it was only forty miles long. Since then it has shrunk to but little more than twenty miles in length, and in width it is only a mile at its widest. Within twenty-eight years the western end lost seven miles. Shoals over which the ocean now surges are pointed out as former sites of lighthouses. One of these was so swiftly undermined by the sea that it had to be abandoned with the greatest precipitation. The spot where once stood the superintendent's house is now under two fathoms of water.

"The island, rapidly diminishing at its western end, is slightly gaining at its eastern. Slowly, like a ship dragging its anchor, it is moving eastward. Will it ever reach the edge of the shoals, stand tottering on the brink of the abyss till it receives its coup-de-grace and plunge over the submarine bank forever into the depths? Unfortunately, its end will probably be less dramatic. There is good ground for believing that this gray sand bar will slowly wear away until it becomes another submerged shoal added to an ambuscade already some sixty miles in length—for a line of breakers extends sixteen miles from one end of the island and twenty-eight miles from the other."

THE BOER SLAVE TRADE.

Children Burned Alive and Other Atrocities Committed.

The extent to which the Boer dealt in slaves, right up to the time of our annexation, may be estimated by the evidence of Rev. Dr. Nachtigal of the Berlin Missionary society, who procured a copy of the register kept in the local magistrate's office. In this register was found a transaction by which one Boer sold to another no fewer than 480 men, women and children! The price of each was a goat, or a blanket, or an ox, according to their value.

As the Boers increased in number they naturally wanted more land; and so it became necessary, from their point of view, to pick a quarrel with the natives of the north of the Transvaal and then exterminate them. Men and women were impartially slain, and the children carried back to be brought up as slaves. With grim irony, they were officially described as "destitute." Rev. F. Ludorf, a missionary, stated publicly, and his statement was endorsed by the state attorney that "on a particular occasion a number of native children who were too young to be removed had been collected in a heap, covered with long grass and burned alive. Other atrocities had been committed, but these were too horrible to relate." And in 1876, the very year before we annexed the Transvaal, a Boer leader, after being helped by some Kaffirs in a raid on another tribe, secretly returned at night to their kraal, and of the very people who had shown him hospitality and rendered him aid, he slew the old men, wounded others, and carried off the women and children as slaves, together with all the cattle of the tribe. I ask, Was the Arab slave trader worse than this?—London Mail.

Early Use of Coal.

It is believed by some historians that coal was used by the Romans on the continent and by the Britons on the island before the arrival of Caesar. As early as 1234 Henry III granted a license to dig coal near Newcastle, but a few years later the use of coal was forbidden in London, the smoke being deemed prejudicial to public health.

In 1306 the London gentry petitioned the King against its use, declaring that, in spite of the royal order, certain malicious persons persisted in burning it. Coals began to be brought from Newcastle to London in 1381, during the reign of Richard II. By the year 1400 coal was commonly burned in London as fuel, though 200 years later, in the reign of Charles I, its use was far from general throughout England.

Anthracite coal, which, except the diamond, is the purest form of carbon known, was first used by a Connecticut blacksmith named Gore in 1768, and as a domestic fuel by Judge Jesse Fell of Wilkesbarre, Pa., in 1808.

C.P.R.'s Generous Act.

An order has been issued by General Superintendent Leonard, of the Ontario and Quebec division of the C.P.R., notifying the engineers and firemen who are called upon to run the large Mogul engines of an advance of wages, dating from February 1st, 1900. The increase to engineers is 15 per cent., and to firemen 20 per cent. The action of the C.P. R. is purely voluntary, as the wage scale is fixed by an agreement, which does not expire until May 1st, 1901.

When witnesses are examined the Court insists that they shall tell only what they know, not what they think or believe. Time and again the wandering witness is brought back to the point by the stern voice of the judge: "Madam we are not interested in what you think, we want to hear what you actually know." There's no such trouble experienced with the worthy women witnesses to the cures wrought by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. They know what they are talking about. Women who suffered from painful irregularities, from inflammation, ulceration, displaced organs, bearing-down pains, or any other form of female disorder, which undermines the health and shatters the nerves,—such women know when they are well and why they are well. They do not hesitate to say: "I know 'Favorite Prescription' cured me." There are half a million women witnesses like these:

"I am enjoying good health, thanks to your kind advice and valuable remedies," writes Mrs. Anne Willy, of Northville, Spink Co., S. Dak., (Michigan House). "I suffered very much with female weakness and other ailments for more than two years, when I wrote to you for advice. After carefully following your advice and taking six bottles each of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' I am now a well and happy woman."

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness" writes Mrs. M. B. Wallace, of Muenster, Cook Co., Texas. "I tried four doctors and none did me any good. I suffered six years, but at last I found relief. I followed your advice, and took four bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and eight of the 'Favorite Prescription.' I now feel like a new woman. I have gained eighteen pounds."

Sick women can consult Dr. Pierce without charge, and thus get the benefits of his long experience in diseases peculiar to women. Write freely. Write fully. Your letter will be treated as a sacred confidence, and its answer will be written with fatherly friendliness, as well as medical knowledge. Write without fear as without fee.

Hospitality Entertained

Mr. Harry Corby, M.P., Belleville, entertained a number of M.P's. on Monday in Belleville, amongst whom was Mr. James Kendry. Mr. Corby is a royal entertainer, and it goes without saying that his guests had a good time. During the day the party were driven around the city, visiting the points of interest. In the evening they attended a banquet at the Quinte Hotel.

Sleep on Your Back.

"To grow younger you have only to sleep upon your back and avoid pillows," says a physical culturist. Her theory is that since during the day the muscles of the face are inclined to drop, we should counteract the drooping with the head on a level with the body or even lower than the body. This practice is warranted to do away with that arch enemy of women, the wrinkle.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

In Ladysmith.

Mr. Harry Grassett, of the Ontario Bank, has a cousin in Ladysmith—Col. Park. The gallant Colonel's friends did not know where he was until a despatch arrived from Col. White mentioning his name as worthy of reward for gallant conduct. Col. Park evidently is of the right sort.

Word was received early this morning that Chris Graham had knocked out Donagan in the third round, in the featherweight class at the amateur Boxing Tournament held in New York last night.

The Band.

The band has been making very satisfactory progress during the winter months. There has been lately added to the band five members, all good musicians, viz., three clarionette players, one trombone and one flute player. Mr. Gliddon has just reason to feel proud of his musical organization, which will now compare favorably with any similar institution in the country. The band will give another concert in the market hall on Friday of next week.

New Cars on C. P. R.

The six hundred series, as it is called is the last thing out in new rolling stock which the Canadian Pacific Rail way has placed on its main line between Montreal, Toronto and Detroit. They are new passenger cars, and several of them are now in use, while the company is turning out others as fast as possible from the Hochelaga shops, the idea being to use nothing but the new series on the Montreal-Detroit line. The cars that have been turned out are certainly magnificent in appearance. The woodwork is all mahogany, bright polished and inlaid. The passenger compartment of the car contains twenty-eight double seats, upholstered in terra-cotta plush, with extra high backs. The feature of the car is a new style of dome roof, with eight ventilators. All the furnishings are of the most modern style.

A Startling Report.

The genial proprietor of the Snowden House is ever read to supply his guests with the latest war news, and in his anxiety in this regard he frequently is imposed upon. A few days ago some unhung villain, who has no regard for truth or justice, brought in what purported to be a despatch from South Africa, and which was probably only a telegram from the Yellow Press Association of the United States, which furnishes the daily reports to our local contemporaries. The despatch read—

"Buller dead—Roberts."

It was short and to the point, but lacked that fullness which truth and accuracy would suggest. The despatch was written on a telegraph form, and was at once posted in a conspicuous place, where it was read by hundreds during the day. The despatch was probably intended for our boiler place contemporaries, and was so regarded, especially when it was not confirmed in next day's Times.

The Trent Valley Canal

A strong deputation from Port Hope, headed by Dr. L. B. Powers, president of the Liberal association of East Durham, Dr. Corbett, and Mr. G. M. Furby, waited on the Government Tuesday and laid before it the claims that Port Hope has for being the southern outlet of the Trent valley canal. It is claimed by the members of the deputation that by constructing the canal from Rice Lake to Port Hope instead of having it follow the Trent river around to Trenton, the cost would be greatly lessened as the engineering difficulties are comparatively few on the route advocated by the Port Hopers, whereas the difficulties are considerable if the plan now proposed is followed. Again, the deputation claims that by the canal running to Port Hope, the lake traffic would be sensibly benefitted as that town is on the lake front and centrally located. Therefore it would be more convenient of access from American and Canadian lake ports.

A Close Call.

One of the young ladies of the Anderson Dramatic Co., now at the Opera House, was unable to appear Tuesday night owing to the effects of an experience she had. She retired the night before with a small leak of gas from the jet in her room, and when found about eleven o'clock the following morning she was only roused by a doctor after much trouble.

TORONTO AND THE WAR.

A Public Meeting Called to Discuss Sending more troops.

Special to the Times.

Toronto, Feb. 15.—The Mayor has issued the following announcement: To all whom it may concern:

Whereas, at a meeting of the City Council, held on the 5th day of February, 1900, it was:

"Resolved, that the Mayor be instructed to call a meeting of the citizens at an early date to discuss the matter of passing resolutions urging the Dominion Government to offer to the Imperial authorities an additional number of infantry, mounted or otherwise, as a further Canadian Contingent for service in South Africa."

These are therefore to make known that in compliance with the foregoing resolution, I do hereby convene a public meeting of citizens to be held in the Pavilion in the Horticultural Gardens on Friday the 16th inst., at the hour of 8 o'clock p.m., for the purpose of considering such resolutions as may be offered in relation to the sending of Canadian troops to South Africa for service in the Transvaal war.

This means that Toronto is going to take strong action in regard to sending more troops to South Africa.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The Epworth Leaguers will gather in Port Hope next week.

The weather yesterday was not conductive to going out and the result was a small market.

The Times wants a correspondent in Havelock, Campbellford, Keene and Omemee. Write to the managing editor.

See the north window in the Times Bookstore—just a wonder—articles only 15 cents each. It is worth taking a walk to see.

Nineteen candidates were initiated into the membership of the Woodmen of the World on Tuesday night. A purse of money and an address was presented to Deputy Commander Graves.

The Times is adding a thoroughly equipped engraving department to the paper, which will enable it to give illustrations of local as well as foreign subjects as perfectly as the larger city papers.

Keep Well with Good Food

Proper Selection of Food
The Sure Way to Get Well
And Keep Well. Use
GRAPE-NUTS

"While getting over the grip, and while my stomach was so irritable I could not eat anything without distress, I found I could take a dish of Grape-Nuts with rich milk, and feel built up like I had eaten a full meal, and yet have none of the unpleasant effects of indigestion. I wish people knew its worth.

"It seems to me trained nurses and physicians could use it to such good advantage. It is really the most nourishing and easily digested food I ever tried." Mrs. Myra J. Tuller, 1823 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Grape-Nuts Food is now recommended by physicians all over the United States. They know it contains the delicate particles of phosphate of potash obtained from the natural grains. This is the element Nature uses with albumen of the food to build the soft gray substance in the nerve centres, brain and solar plexus, in the human body. The effect is in some ways like a stimulant, but does not wear off, for it is a natural rebuilding.

Grape-Nuts can be made into a great many different and palatable dishes. The Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., the pure food manufacturers, offer to pay a reasonable sum for new and desirable recipes which may meet with their approval. Ladies are requested to experiment and send in their recipes. As an illustration—A most delicious mock pumpkin pie can be made from Grape-Nuts after the following recipe—Pour boiling water over 1-2 cup Grape-Nuts, let stand 10 minutes; add 2 eggs, 4 tablespoonful of sugar, 2 cups sweet milk, 1-2 teaspoon of ginger, 1 teaspoon mixed spices. Stir over slow fire until thoroughly boiled. Bake pie dough in deep pan. When done, put in prepared Grape-Nuts, return to oven and brown.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The long looked for game between U.C.C. and the Peterborough Colts was played last night in Toronto. A few minutes before time was called Lynch was sent to the fence and U.C.C. scored two goals in four minutes. Up to that time Peterborough was ahead but owing to the unfortunate lay-off of Lynch, U.C.C. won the game by the odd goal, 4 to 3. This necessites another game on neutral ice to decide the tie. The Colts showed that the larger ice was not such an advantage to Toronto as their papers tried to make out.

The London Free Press emits a great growl because the O.H.A. executive ordered London to play St. George home and home games. The executive is doing the work as well as could be done; but the Globe, in defending the executive, says that home and home games were provided for when the schedule was issued at the beginning of the season. The Globe insinuates that the Free Press is ill-informed and ignorant. The schedule reads that the executive "may order home and home games if time will permit." The kick of our London contem. was more on account of the short notice than anything else, and didn't deserve the Globe's strictures.

The Caps are a disappointed lot—they counted on having a look-in for the finals in the O.H.A. seniors, but Cornwall's victory put them out of it.

Was the Lindsay team which was so badly beaten by Fenelon alls on Monday night, the same team which was so anxious to play Peterborough seniors? They need not have looked for such high game.

The new baseball association seems to be a go after all. Pop. Anson was elected president and a lot of the old players have deserted the National League.

The Keene hockey club defeated Campbellford in the final game at Keene, but as they were 13 goals behind in the first match the margin of four was not enough, and Campbellford is the first champion of the Trent Valley Hockey Association.

Serious Fire at Lindsay.

About 8.45 last evening fire was discovered in the chop mill of the Sadler, Dundas and Flavelle Milling Co., of Lindsay. The brigade turned out promptly and in a few minutes had the fire apparently under control when the flames burst out afresh and the fire again made headway, and in spite of all efforts, completely destroyed the chop mill, pea mill, engine room and part of the oatmeal mill over the engine room. This part of the building has lately been remodeled. The main building was untouched by the fire. The loss will be considerable. Mr. Flavelle was in Peterborough when the fire occured and returned home at once.

BOERS DAMMING RIVER TO DROWN LADYSMITH.

Two Thousand Kaffirs Are Employed With the Work of Depositing Sand Bags.

REPORTED EVACUATION OF RENSBURG BY BRITISH

General Botha With a Small Force Encountered Fifty Lancers in a Deserted British Camp, of Whom Thirteen Were Killed and Five Wounded.

Boer Laager, near Ladysmith, Tuesday, Feb. 13.

Yesterday General Botha with a small force crossed the Tugela to a deserted British camp, where he encountered fifty lancers, of whom 13 were killed, five wounded and nine taken prisoners. One of the prisoners was sent to tell the British to fetch back their wounded.

London, Feb. 16.

The Daily Mail has the following from Lorenso Marques dated Wednesday:

"A prominent Pretoria citisen just from Ladysmith informs me that the Boers are rapidly damming Klip river. Two thousand Kaffirs are employed with the work and they have deposited 10,000 sand bags already. They are only able to work at night as they would be under British fire. This citisen however believes that the operation will be futile."

London, Feb. 16.

The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Chronicle telegraphing under date of Wednesday says:

"It is rumored here that the British evacuated Rensburg falling back to Arundel."

INVASION OF THE FREE STATE.

London, Feb. 15.—The invasion of the Orange Free State by Generals French, Tucker and Kelly-enny, which took place on Monday last, marks the turning point in the South African war. The steps which led up to the movement were strategically skilful and indicate adroit manipulation of the censorship by General Kitchener, acting under the orders of Gen. Roberts. Up to yesterday everybody had been led to believe that a concentration of British forces was taking place on the southern border of the Orange Free State. It was distinctly stated that General Kelly-Kenny, with the sixth division, had been sent to Thebus to connect the forces of French and Gatacre and the impression was carefully conveyed that the former was preparing a coup which placed the Boer position south of the Orange the Boer position south of the Orange River in peril. Simultaneously Buller and Macdonald assumed activity clearly without any other object than to bewilder the enemy, prevent his throwing men in the line of the contemplated advance and induce him to send reinforcements to the Colesberg district, where they might be isloated and cut off in due course. The plan worked admirably. The Boers fell into the snare. They hurried men to Koodoosberg to oppose Macdonald, and to Colesberg to oppose the threatened advance, while Buller's feint kept them busy in that quarter of Natal to strengthen the weakened lines at Magersfontein.

The next thing heard of is that French and Kelly-Kenny are in the enemy's country, the former leading ten thousand horsemen and the latter commanding one-half of an army of twenty thousand footmen. This was on Monday last, when French suddenly crossed the border of the Free State from some point midway between Modder River and the Orange River bridge, made a dash of forty odd miles to the crossing of the Riet, south of Jacobsdall, surprised the small Boer guard and held the passage until the infantry arrived to relieve him on the following morning. French and his division again took the saddle, and veering to the north-east, made rapid movement to Clip Drift, on the Modder River, twenty-five miles away. Before dark h ehad forced the drift and seized the enemy's positions on th ehills to the north, taking the Boers by surprise and capturing three depots of supplies intended for the army besieging Kimberley. At the same time General Gordon, who commands on eof the three cavalry brigades with French, and had been detached, occupied Rondeval, and an unnamed drift to the west, capturing two more Boer laagers. The enemy were surprised in every quarter, and the British cavalry held the three drifts until the arrival of General Kelly-Kenny's division, probably about last evening.

The effect of this brilliant piect of work, which confirms the reputation of French as the best cavalry leader in the British service, is to turn the left flank of the Boer army, now besieging Kimberley, to cut the several lines of communication of that army, and to threaten its base at Blomfontein, a three-fold strategical momement. With his large forc eof cavalry French is within easy striking distance of the lines from Boshoff to Kimberley, from Blomfontein to Kimberley, and from Fauresmith to Kimberley via Jacobsdal.

The Boers must either fall back from Kimberley to the north or attack the British upon groun dof their own choosing, for they can no longer maintain the siege with their lines of communication cut, their retreat threatened, and the prospect of famine staring them in the face. The drifts which have been seized are about twenty miles from Magersfontein and the same distance from Kimberley, which is easily approachable from there, so that it may be that General French in another dash may enter the beseiged town by skirting around the Boer lines whole the supporting infantry holds the enemy in check.

Simultaneously with the movement of General French Col. Hanney, with three thousand mounted infantry, advanced over the Orange River bridge, and after engaging a small body of the enemy on his right took up a position at Ramah, on the north side of the Orange River, and only a few miles from the station. This move is evidently to protect the right flank of the invading column from Boers who may return from the Colesberg district and assemble at Fauresmith. Moreover, the position at Ramah is only thirty miles from the railway line leading from Fauresmith over the Norval's Pont and Bethulie bridges to both Colesberg and Stormberg, and it may be th eintention of the British to cut this line of communication also effectually isolate the Boers south of the Orange River and prevent their advancing northward to interfere with the movement toward Kimberley. Be this as it may, th etwo advances are indissolubly connected, and one is to cover the other.

The faint show of resistance being made by the British around Colesberg, their gradual withdrawal before the Boers and the consequent withdrawal of the altter from the real scen eof operations around Kimberley cannot last much longer, for the enemy is bound to find out that he has been duped, and endeavor to return. By that time, however, it is to be hoped that the battle of Magersfontein will have been fought over again and Kimberley relieved The nature of the operations is such that a decisive battle or a hurried Boer retreat from Kimberley may be expected. This is an essential part of Lord Roberts' plan, for if the Boers are given time to effect a further concentration the advantages of General French's mobile tactics would be lost.

KILLED 11, WOUNDED 20.

London, Feb. 15.—The official list of the British casualties at Rensberg from February 10 to February 12 shows killed, four officers and seven men; wounded, six officers and fourteen men; missing, two officers and eight men.

The officers killed were Colonel Coningham, of the Worcester Regiment, and Major G. R. Eddy, and Lieutenants J. Powell and J. C. Roberts, all Australians.

TOTAL BRITISH LOSSES.

London, Feb. 14.—The total British casualty returns up to to-night are—

Officers killed, 152; wounded, 380; missing, 112.

Men killed, 1,447; wounded, 5,050; missing, 2,781.

Other fatalities from disease and accidents, 593.

Total killed.....	2,192
Total wounded.....	5,430
Total missing.....	2,893
Total losses.....	10,515

It must be borne in mind that out of the number of wounded reported a large percentage wer eonly slightly wounded and are probably back in the ranks, so that a considerable deduction may be made from the abov etotal, probably bringing it down to about 8,000.

LITTLETON SUCCEEDS CLERY.

London, Feb. 15.—A special to the Times from Chieveley, atal, dated Tuesday, Feb. 13, says—"General Littleton has succeeded to the command of the second division during the illness of General Clery, who is suffering from blood poisonong. Col. Northcoot, of the Rifle Brigade, tempurarily commands the fourth division."

CAMP ABANDONED.

London, Feb. 15.—4 a.m.—General Buller, in atal, seems to be inactive, except in making cavalry reconnaissance. Parties of Boers hav ecrossed the Tugela river, and occupied the abandoned British camping ground at Spearman's. They are constructing defensive works from Trichard's drift eastward to Hlangwane and Monteorult.

In a skirmish to the eastward of Chieveley, Tuesday, the South African Light Horse sustained a few casualties, among the number wounded being Lieut. John Churchill, a son of Lady Randolph Churchill, who was shot in the leg.

PLUMER STILL AT GABERONES.

Buluwayo, Feb. 15.—Mafeking was safe on the 4th of February. There is no danger of the garrison running short of either food or ammunition. Another 12-pounder gun has been sent from Tuli to Col. Plumer. There are now frequent exchanges of artillery fire between his force and the Boers, who occupy an extended position near Crockodile pools 600 strong. Col. Plumer's advanced camp is five miles south of Gaberones.

GREAT SLAUGHTER OF BOERS.

London, Feb. 15.—A Durban despatch says that two hundred Basutos and Zulus reached there Feb. 13th from the Boer lines. They said they had been commandered from the mines for camp work and the building of trenches. They witnessed the attack on Caesar's Camp and Waggon Hill, near Ladysmith, on Jan. 6th, and also the fighting on Spion Kop. They tell the usual story of great slaughter in the Boer trencues caused by the British shells. These Basutos and Zulus offered their services to the British but they were not accepted.

IT STRAINED HIS FINE SENSE OF SFLF-RESPECT.

The United States Government Left Mr. Macrum in the Position of British Consul and Not American Consul.

Washington, Feb. 15.—A signed statement was given out last night by Charles E. Macrum, formerly United States Consul at Pretoria, in which he says in part::

"The situation in Pretoria was such that, first, as an official, I could not remain there while my Government at home was apparently in the dark as to the exact conditions in South Africa. Secondly, as a man and a citizen of the United States, I could not remain in Pretoria, sacrificing my own self-respect and that of the people of Pretoria, while the Government at home continued to leave me in the position of British consul and not American consul."

"I want to say right here that there was not a single request made of me through the Department of State looking to the care of British interests in Pretoria which I did not fulfil and report upon, according to my orders. On the other hand, American interests in South Africa were in that condition which demanded that the Department of State should be cognizant of them.

"I issued the statement received from the State Department that Americans must remain neutral. In the face of this, Americans were continually going to the front and taking up arms in the cause of the Boers. When affairs had reached that state my vice-Consul, Mr. Van Ameringen, closed up his business, took the oath of allegiance to the Republic, and went to the front as a burgher. I thought the time had come when I should make a report of these conditions.

"It was over four weeks from the time the war opened before I received a single mail despatch from my Government or a personal letter. The mail for the Transvaal had been all stopped at Cape Town by the order of the High Commissioner. When this mail was finally forwarded to me, the envelopes bearing the official seal of the American Government was opened and officially sealed with a sticker, notifying me that the contents had been read by the censor at Durban."

Mr. Macrum then relates his experience in delayed cable correspondenec with the Washington authorities relating to his desire for leave of absence from his post.

CHEERS FOR KRUGER.

Cork, Feb. 15.—The Irish populace once more showed its temper yesterday as troops were embarking on the transport Norseman for service in South Africa. Not a few cheers for President Kruger, mingled with groans for the Queen, were heard as the men trampled down the gang plank The detachments that took ship for the Cape were the following::

Drafts from the second and eighth Dragoons, the Fifth and Ninth Lancers and the second Battalion of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry; 14 officers and 405 men of the Eighth Hussars, with 336 horses; 114 men, with their horses of the Fourteenth Hussars and the Clare Artillery Militia.

BOERS IN A TIGHT PLACE.

New York, Feb. 15.—The specials from London to the New York papers printed this morning all tend to the idea that the English military critics believe Lord Roberts to have General Cronje's Boer forces in a tight place, and they look for a decisive battle before the end of the week.

The exact situation is seen in London and put by the Herald correspondent in these words—"Lord Roberts has begun his operations against the Boer army between Modder River and Kimberley by initiating a flanking movement which up to the present time has proved successful. The Drifts referred to in Lord Roberts' official messages are all to the east of Methuen's camp, on the Modder River, and within Free State territory. With this large British force threatening his left wing on a position stretching from Spyfontein by Magersfontein by Jacobsdal. Cronje is forced to decide whether he will remain or retire. If he elects to go Kimberley will be relieved at once. If he chooses to stay he will have to entrench in his rear or his works will be caryied. If his rear is entrenched he will probably be held in check in his present position while Kimberley is relieved.

"The news of Lord Roberts' move was not given out until 11 o'clock last night, but even at that hour the telegraph boards at the clubs and hotels were quickly surrounded by crowds of men who discussed the new advance which was felt to be marked by a concentration of purpose energy and rapidity that augur well for the events that are to follow."

The Standard's Opinion.

The London Standard's military expert says—.

"Clip Drift appears to be just above David's Graaf. The British commander can develop his flank attack against the Boers' left and has a further point in his favor that the line of retreat of the Boers to Blomfontein is intercepted. Through the drifts which French holds with some eight thousand men the sixth and seventh divisions will advance and move against the Boer flank."

Scientific Strategy.

The London correspondent of the Tribune says of the operations—

"This entire movement, with its concentration of nearly all the British battalions outside Natal and slender columns left under Gatacre and Clements, has been brought about by scientific strategy under a rigorous operation of the censorship, the utility of which has been demonstrated at last. An army corps and strong auxiliary forces have been massed where the enemy are the weakest and the weakest and the previous balance of forces in the military problem has been suddenly upset. This column on the Riet has a promise of potency for the relief of Kimberley and a subsequent advance upon Bloemfontein, and it is so great a diversion of military resources that Ladysmith may yet be rescued."

AMPLE FOOD AT KIMBERLEY.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—The Record publishes the following despatch from Cape Town—Three hundred native convicts have arrived at Umtata from the diamond mines. They declare that there is ampl efood at Kimberley and that Cecil Rhodes is incessantly active in aiding in th edefence of the city.

The convicts say that the Boers were in good humor and treated them with kindness, even donatin gfour oxen for their use.

RUSSIAN BEAR WOULD SQUEEZE THE BRITISH LION.

Correspondent of the London Times Says That the Russians Intend to Take Herat and are Massing Troops.

London, Feb. 15.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times, remarking that "it will not do to place overmuch reliance upon Russia's official assurance that nothing will be done to embarras England in the present situation of affairs" gives additional details, showing that the delays in the ordinary traffic on the Central Asian railway are not caused, as has been officially stated, by snowfalls, but are due to the passage of Russian troops, estimated at 20,000, who are being concentrated in the vicinity of Kushk. The correspondent adds that:

"Most Russians are convinced that Russia intends, sooner or later, to take Herat."

The Times, in an editoral upon the despatch, says:

"This may not portend any immediate action, but it can hardly be doubted that Russia has come to the conclusion that the psychological moment has arrived when pressure can be brought to bear on Great Britain.

"There is no reason to suppose that the estimate of the 20,000 troops is above the mark. It does not follow however, that this implies an advance on Herat. Probably the demonstration is intended to cover movements of a more practical kind in other quarters."

THE BLACK PERIL MAY BREAK LOOSE NOW.

Invasion of Zululand by Boers a Violation of an Agreement and Britain May Arm the Natives for Their Own Defence.

London, Feb. 15.—In the House of Commons to-day, during the course of a reply to a question relative to the probable Boer invasion of Zululand, the Secretary of State for the Colonies Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, said that the Government had decided, if the native territories were invaded by the Boers, the natives "will be encouraged and assisted in every way in defending themselves."

Mr. Chamberlain's reply confirmed the report of the invasion of ululaZnd, and showed the consequences could not fail to be serious throughout South Africa, as the alarm and unrest of the Zulu was bound to spread to the Natal natives.

The Colonial Secretary also said that the Natal Ministry had notified the Home Government that it could not any longer be responsible for the peaceful attitude of the Zulus, as the invasion of their country was contrary to a tacit compact that none of the natives would be dragged into the war.

The fears regarding a Boer attack on Zululand are somewhat allayed by a special despatch from Durban which says that a column of colonial scouts, after a forced march, has arrived at Eshowe. It is reported that they are in splendid fighting form. They were pursied several times by Boers during the march, but succeeded in repulsing them.

GENERAL HUTTON SAYS GOOD-BYE AT .OTTAWA.

The Late Commander Leaves Canada With Some Despondency and Much Regret.

HIS VIEWS DO NOT AGREE WITH GOVERNMENT'S.

Vast Strides Have Been Made in His Term and He Hopes the Progress Will Continue—General Hutton Was Well Liked in New South Wales.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 15.—It now transpires that the retirement of Major-General Hutton was entirely due to conflict with the Government. Gen. Hutton first antagonized the Government by offering a Canadian Contingent for service in South Africa without consulting Hon. Dr. Borden or any member of the Cabinet. This offence the Government looked upon as a most unpardonable assumption of authority. When, subsequently, Gen. Hutton refused to sanction two or three appointments, the breach widened beyond repair. The Laurier Government asked the Imperial authorities to recall Major-General Hutton, a request which resulted in the Major-General sending in his resignation. The real cause of General Hutton's abrupt abandonment of his office is as above stated, and will be made plainly apparent when the papers brought down.

A FAREWELL SPEECH.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—At the farewell banquet tendered him by the local militia officers last night, General Hutton said, in part:

"I have been selected by the War Office for special service in South Africa, and I go with feelings of professional pride at the honor done me.

"I should not be a soldier, however, if I did not assure you that I am not abandoning my command from any selfish motives of ambition.

"I have very deep regrets atl eaving the various efforts at reform in the Canadian army unfinished.

"There may possibly be some among you who may think, in leaving Canada I do so with feelings of some despondency an dof much disappointment.

"If there are any such let me at once disabuse them.

"I feel that, thanks to the cordial co-operation of my staff and my comrades of all ranks of the Canadian militia, we have, during the last 18 months, mace vast strides. No efforts have been spared, whether by military church parades or by musical tattoos, to give the military service that elevating and refined form which is so essential.

"I have made no secret of the direction of my efforts while in command. The Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in one of his stirring speeches in England during the Jubilee year of 1897, especially emphasized the idea of 'Canada as a nation,' and as you are all awere I have used my utmost endeavor to create a national militia army worthy of the responsibilities which are peculiarly its own, and which, to ensure success, must be placed upon a plane above all possibility of party political interference as regards its discipline, its personnel and its military machinery.

"No one is better aware than all of you the measure of success which may have attended your efforts and my own in that direction.

"It is my earnest hope that, after my departure from Canada, the progress may be sustained.

"I should, however, feel more hopeful of the future of Canada if the Government had ever shown active interest in our recent efforts for a higher efficiency or indicated their approval of the principles upon which our efforts are based.

"I would ask you, however, in all due seriousness, not to suppose that the severance of my ties with you is due to petty misunderstandings with the Minister of Militia upon minor issues of appointments or disciplinary matters, but that is due to broader wider and vastly more important issues.

"It is not in accordance with my duty as a soldier to discuss such matters. This I may perhaps be permitted to do, however, and that is to give emphatic denial to La Patrie, which accused me in October last of having instigated the demonstration of popular feeling which led to th efirst contingent of Canadian troops being sent and of having endeavored to force a policy upon the Government."

THEY LIKED GEN. HUTTON.

London, Feb. 15.—The Daily Mail publishes a cable from Sidney, New South Wales, which states that great satisfaction is expressed throughout the colony at Major-General Hutton's appointment to special service with the British army in South Africa. It was hoped, when the news of his retirement from the command of the Canadian militia came to hand, that the would be given command of the Australians now engaged in fighting for the mother country in Cape Colony.

Major-General Hutton was a great success as commandant of the New South Wales forces some years ago, and despite strong political opposition, though he was a strict disciplinarian, he succeeded in gaining the confidence, and even the affection of his men.

Forbids Trading With Boers.

The Imperial authorities' re-issue of the proclamation forbidding Britons from trafficking with the enemy, it is reported, is due to the attempt of capitalists ed. is due to the attempt of capitalists to approach Pretoria by way of Delagoa Bay to renew mining leases.

Native Outbreaks Suppressed.

A slight disturbanc ehas been reported in Pondoland and in Fingoland, but it was quickly suppressed by the authorities, and the natives in these territories are now quiet.

TO AID THE BOERS.

New York, Feb. 15.—P. Louter Wessells, an uncle of President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, has arrived here to aid the cause of the Boers in any way he can.

A Renegade Canadian.

Detroit, Feb. 15.—At a pro-Boer meeting held in the Turkish room of the Hotel Cadillac last night to arrange for a counter-demonstration to that recently made by the Canadian-American Club in the Chamber of Commerce building about thirty citisens were present.

The most notable utterance was that of Dr. Kenneth Gunsolus, who explained that he was born and reared in Canada, received a military education in the Canadian military school, and fought on the side of the Canadians at the time of the Fenian Raid. Continuing, Dr. Gunsolus said: — "I was a loyal Canadian, and now, after living in this country for several years, I am just as loyal an American."—Applause.

"To-day if I were called upon to select sides in the British-Boer war I would select the side of the Boers. If Buller ever goes to Pretoria I hope he will walk between Boer guards. If he ever eats a Christmas dinner or any other dinner in Pretoria I hope it will be in the stockade or in the jail."—Applause.

Off to the War.

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 15.—An enthusiastic farewell was tendered th emen of "C" Battery this morning, from 12,000 to 15,000 people gathering at the barracks, along the line of march and at the depot. The men were bid farewell on the barrack square by Mrs. (Colonel) Drury and Mrs. (Major) Huddon, after which Lieut.-Col. Montizambert, D.O.C., addressed them, saying he hoped to see them return covered with glory and medals. A telegram breathing patriotic sentiments was read from B. M. Britton, Q.C., M.P.

Headed by 400 men of the locomotive works, 500 students and about 2,000 citizens, the soldiers marched to the Grand Trunk station, the 14th Battalion band playing appropriate marches. At the station again there was another enthusiastic ovation as the train pulled out.

Strathcona's Cavalry.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—The first section of Strathcona's Horse arrived here at 9 o'clock this morning, and consisted of 206 men. As they passed to their temporary barracks at the Exhibition grounds, they appeared to be as good a body of men as the former Northwest contingent. They will be uniformed here, and before they leave it is probable that the whole body will parade and be inspected on Parliament Hill.

Many Wrecks Reported.

Paris, Feb. 15.—Advices from all the ports record wrecks and injuries to vessels. During yesterday's gale an unknown sailing vessel stranded on the reefs outside Brest, and four bodies have come ashore. A number of fishing boats were lost or seriously damaged along the north coast. The French battleship Admiral Duperre broke from her moorings in the Brest Roads and drifted shorewards, but was held up in the nick of time by her anchors.

Her Spring Trip.

London, Feb. 15.—It is stated that if the war news is favorable, as is expected, the Queen will take a trip to France this spring as usual.

Was Andree Murdered ?

New York, Feb. 15.—The following is printed here to-day under a London date:

"Letter received in London from Bishop Newnham, of Mossinee, dated October 1, Fort Churchill, Hudson Bay, says:

"The Eskimos came here this summer, travelling from the far north to tell that two white men had come down from the sky in a balloon, the remains of which they had seen, and had been murdered by some Eskimos there.

"I believe this is authentic, but have not had time to enquire. Sad, if this be the last of poor Andree and his companion."

Back to Coal Oil.

Brampton, Ont., Feb. 15.—Brampton's electric light plant, situated at Huttonville, four miles west of the town, was completely destroyed by fire this morning. The workmen did not leave until almost 2 o'clock, and one hour afterwards the building was in flames. The structure was of brick, and how the fire started is a mystery. The insurance carried was $3,000.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 16, 1900

THE WAR AND BRITISH PRESTIGE

There is danger of accepting too readily seriously the statement, now frequently made, that British military prestige has been destroyed by recent events in South Africa. In the case of those who ignorantly imagined that, statistics to the contrary notwithstanding, Britain was a great military power, this may in a measure be true. Possibly also in the darker portions of the world, where very little is known with certainty of the strength of the various powers of Europe, news of the British checks in South Africa, distorted in the telling, may do us some harm. But it is difficult to see any reasons why Governments, with the ordinary sources of information open to them, should be amazed at what has happened to the British forces in this war, when they take into account the strength and preparedness of the Boers. With this later, they may have been amazed; but it is again possible that they know more about this latter feature of the case than did the British authorities themselves with their slender secret service provision.

The strength of the British army never has been a secret; and it cannot hurt our prestige to have it known now that it is really no stronger than reported. The transportation of the army to South Africa was a splendid success in its way, marred only by a few neglected details. It is not pretended, however, that any nation could have done as well. The colonial help may have contained some surprises for European Governments, who would never dream of looking to their colonies for enthusiastic volunteering in the event of war; but these surprises were of a kind to augment and not diminish prestige. There is nothing left, then, to criticize, but the conduct of the men in the field, and the extent of the failure, there may be written in a clause—an inability to take except at an enormous cost, well entrenched and admirable defended positions.

Now, there is not an authoritative military writer for the last decade who has not made it av ery foundation of this theorizing that hereafter the rifle to be put in the hands of all modern soldiers will make it practically impossible for men to cross a wide open space and carry an entrenched position by frontal attack. Here again then the expected has happened. The Boers have been able, when they insisted upon it, to hold their entrenchments, though British experts with the troops tell us that these positions could be forced if they deemed it worth while to pay the price. How this "destroys" the prestige of the British soldier, it is not easy to see. There have been some blunders through laxity in scouting; but again we have been long warned by military experts that against a foe of fair riflemen, scouting would soon become a hazardous if not a lost art. In South Africa, we are asked to spy upon irregular fighters, as mobile in many respects as guerillas, splendidly mounted, knowing the country weell, and fighting in the midst of a population generally favorable to them.

On the other hand, the British have shown themselves to be invincible behind entrenchments. The defence of Mafeking alone is a marvel of military prowess. Does this mean nothing for British military prestige? Whatever we may be called upon to fight on the defensive, it endows us with impregnability. The old bogy of an attack on India a bogy considerable faded since the powers became chiefly interested in China—implied an advance through the Afghan hills, which South Africa has shown us a small British force could hold against the greatest army Russia, or any one else, could put in the field. At what other point are British possessions open to land attack? The Canadian border lies open to the United States, but our neighbors are much less a military power than is the United Kingdom. Australia is girt by sea; even Egypt could not well be reached except by the Mediterranean; at the Cape there is no one but the Boer to reckon with. The great German army is locked up in Europe. A war with France would be a naval war. A close look at the situation gives very little reason for anything approaching a panic, and Lord Salisbury was, no doubt, perfectly right when he scoffed at the mention of "conscription." We have reason chiefly to be proud of our army in South Africa; and we may be very sure that none of those whose opinion is valuable has been tempted to consider Britain an easy prey through the developments of this campaign. During the continuance of the present war, there is, of course, always the possibility that some hostile power may act on the theory that Britain's fighting force is locked up in South Africa, or is badly smashed by the campaign. There is great need now that Britain's colonies show no lack of prompt and abounding loyalty. But when peace comes, it is doubtful whether we shall find Britain's military prestige at all the worse for the testing.

THE FALL OF EDWARD BLAKE.

"Evil communications corrupt good manners" is an adage that has seldom been more strikingly exemplified than in the case of Hon. Edward Blake, says the News.

When the honorable gentleman withdrew from Canadian politics he gave as a reason that his party was promoting a policy, which, if successful, could have no other result than the separation of Canada from the Mother Country. His famous Durham letter, in which he condemned the unrestricted reciprocity policy of the Dominion Liberals, was received as the expression of the views of a loyal Canadian citizen of the empire. Less than ten years has passed since that time, and we find him last week voting for a resolution presented by Mr. Redmond of the Home Rule party condemning the Imperial Government for prosecuting a war in Africa upon the success of which the very existence of the Empire depends.

In 1891 Hon. Edward Blake was so ardent an Imperialist that he refused to remain in the ranks of a party whose cardinal doctrine was closer trade relations with the United States. In 1900 he is found side by side with men who preach rebellion, whose one aim is secession from the British Empire, and who hate everything that is British. This remarkable change may be attributed to different causes, but in our opinion is more largely due to his "evil communication" with a body of men who are proud of their disloyalty and who glory in their hatred of the Saxons. It is strange company for Mr. Blake to be in, and it is even stronger to see a man of his strength of intellect following leaders of this kind so blindly.

It is now said that Buller's advances were only feints. The old general must be somewhat of a flirt.

Buller's advances are hardly sufficiently advanced to win the heart of Ladysmith.

HAS RUN 2,500,000 MILES.

The World's Record Held by Engineer Preston of the Chicago & Northwestern.

After 46 years' service Augustus H. Preston, of Chicago, has deserted the engineer's cab and will hereafter be a pensioner of the Chicago & Northwestern road. Mr. Preston holds the world's record for length of miles traversed by any engineer, his runs during the 46 years summing up a total of 2,500,000 miles. Until very recently he was proud of the fact that he held a record for making the fastest run ever made in Illinois, 140 miles in 2 hours and 35 minutes over the road between Chicago and Clinton, Ia. This was on the occasion of the famous fast run of the Jarrett & Palmer train, which made the distance from Chicago to New York in 21 hours.

The record of Johnny Jackson, the engineer who took the fast mail train over the Chicago & Northwestern road a few days ago, so completely eclipses the fast feat of Mr. Preston that the old engineer might be pardoned if he felt chagrined over it. But he does not in the least, for the engineer who made a record of 90 miles in an hour was one of Mr. Preston's firemen, as indeed more than half of the engineers on the road have been before acquiring their present positions. In the parlance of the fraternity, to have fired for Engineer Preston is equal to a diploma.

A STRANGE ROMANCE.

A Pretty Story Affecting an Irish Family and a German Noble.

A strange romance has just come to a conclusion in County Antrim. Some quarter of a century ago a German Count, of high position and great wealth, was sailing about the northern coast, and came to grief upon the rocky shores of a certain island, owned by a family who bore the title of "Kings of —— Island"—not altogether in a figurative sense, though they were, and are, the quietest of country gentlemen, says the St. James Budget. The shipwrecked Count was hospitably entertained by the owner of the island in the one good house which it contained. During his stay he fell in love with the pretty daughter of the house, and ultimately carried her back to Germany with him as his Countess.

Years went on, the count and countess were dead, and their only daughter was maid of honor at a certain continental court, enjoying a high position, for, in addition to her father's own rank, she was a cousin of the young queen of Holland. Then came misfortune, loss of money, and it is rumored an affair of the heart that caused touble. The young countess fled from the court (where all were anxious to retain her) and came to stay with her Irish relations, whom she had never seen. Now the end of the story (according to the novelistic view) has come, for she is engaged to a gentleman living in Randalstown, County Antrim, and intends to give up courts, Queens and Counts for good, and settle down to a quiet country town life with her Irish lover.

The C.P.R. shows what Canada can do. The greatest railroad on earth is none too good for this glorious country.

THE MILL RUNS ITSELF.

Economical Way of Doing Business on a Connecticut Farm.

Joe McCormick of the International Pulp company tells a delicious story of paper making in Connecticut, which shows that operating a mill is not such a serious matter as these big proprietors would have us believe. Strolling along the countryside in haymaking time, Mr. McCormick happened on a little paper mill which buzzed merrily in a shady dell, with everything clean and sweet around it. A look in the office showed no one there, and the visitor then wandered over the mill, hoping to find some one to whom he could talk business. The machine was humming along, and it seemed impossible that there should be no one in attendance. But even shouting failed to bring forth signs of life, and Mr. McCormick was about to leave when he spied some men in a hayfield some distance away.

"I say," he called out to the nearest one when he got within hearing, "who runs this mill?"

"I do," was the reply.

"Well, who's the owner?"

"Why, I am, to be sure."

"Do you mean to say that the mill runs itself?"

"Cert. We start her up at 6 in the morning, and she runs till 6 in the evening. This mill's been weaned, stranger; she don't need a nurse. While I'm getting in hay she puts half a ton of paper on the roll. Gee up, Bess!"—Paper Trade Journal.

Table Talk.

Rather curiously Roxane in "Cyrano de Bergerac" belongs to the modern type which dates from the days of the Hotel de Rambouillet and has always had its votaries in France. To these precieuses mere conversation was une betise. They liked declamations; discussion, not on the right of woman to the ballot, but whether she should be held a little higher than the angels or consent to be beloved. This phase of preciosity led up to the French salon, where that hothouse fashion of preparing an intellectual bill of fare for guests found its most acceptable phase.

Mme. Campan, whose advice may be said to have formed a whole generation of charming women, used to prescribe the subject of talk for dinner tables, just as certain coteries of women prescribe it today. This was her system: "With 12 at table, talk voyages and literature; with eight, the fine arts, science, invention; with six, politics or philosophy; with four, sentiment, romantic adventure; with two, talk of yourself; egoism belongs to the tete-a-tete." — Ellen Olney Kirk in Lippincott's.

Jimmy and the Baby.

Jimmy's mother kept cows and sold milk. Jimmy himself had nothing to do with the cows, though sometimes he used to carry the milk pail to his mother's customers. The customers all liked Jimmy, with his round, freckled face and bashful grin, and they used to ask him how business was, for, although Jimmy was only 12 years old, he had a business. He made coffins—baby coffins—and sold them to the undertaker. They were nice pine coffins, with all the edges carefully joined. Jimmy received 50 cents for each one.

One day Jimmy stopped at the house of one of his mother's customers to leave some milk. A little boy met him at the door.

"We've got a new baby!" said the little boy. "Would you like to see it?"

Jimmy nodded. The little boy's aunt laughingly led Jimmy to the cradle where the new baby was. Jimmy gazed at the infant for some time, speechless with admiration or some such emotion.

"What do you think of it, Jimmy?" asked the aunt.

Jimmy grinned.

"I guess I'll have to make a nice little coffin when I go home," he said.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Boers Great Pioneers.

The Boer is the ideal pioneer. From the days of the great trek, in 1837, and even before that he opened up countries hitherto unexplored by a white man. A great deal of fuss has been made of mighty travelers, English and foreign, who have traversed Africa, to the vast pecuniary benefit of their publishers and with no small meed of fame to themselves, but there was scarcely one of the old voortrekkers and hunters of the forties and fifties who did not accomplish feats of endurance, pluck and lengthy travel which were ten times as trying.—London Mail.

A QUEER SENSATION.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE HELD UP AT THE POINT OF A REVOLVER.

Curious Phenomenon That Causes Each Man in a Roomful to Believe That a Weapon Is Pointed Straight at His Own Head.

"If you will take my word for a little experience I had recently, perhaps I can make clear to you how it is possible for three bad men to hold up a roomful of fairly brave men and get away safely with their money," said a merchant from the state of Washington who was a guest at the Lotos club one night recently. "I was in such a hold up not long ago, and I have ceased jeering at fellows who have been through similar experiences. I was one of 70 men who were held up in a big gambling hall, and as I am not a regular patron of such places I kept quiet about it at home. The gambling house is one of the best known in the west, and on the night of the hold up it was filled with a representative crowd. A search would have disclosed the fact undoubtedly that many of the men present were armed. No trouble in recent years has occurred in this place, and there was no reason to anticipate any. It was nearly midnight when the door opened and three men, masked and each holding two revolvers, entered the room.

"'Hands up, quick!' shouted the foremost man.

"I was sitting at a faro table when I heard this command, and as I looked up I found a revolver pointing straight at my head. When I compared notes with the other seventy odd men later, I found that each one had the same experience. There were only six revolvers, and yet each man in the room was willing to swear that one of them was pointed at his head all the time. The crowd was simply paralyzed with fright. For two or three seconds not a man moved. Then over in one corner a Leadville sport brought his hand around to reach his hip pocket.

"'Stop that or I'll shoot,' said one of the masked men, covering him with his revolver. 'Hands up, now; quick! We mean business.'

"Every man in that room did hold his hands up. There was no hesitation then. It was my first experience in that kind of game, but it was not until I was able to take my hands down that I realized how tiresome the operation was. There we stood, each man with his hands stretched high above his head, held up in a room on a busy street when an outcry would bring help at once. It was a pretty sure thing, however, that no one would make the outcry. The three masked men had eyes for every move, and their revolvers pointed all ways at once. It is easy for a man who has not been through such an experience to suggest that if several men had only made a break these fellows would have run. I can honestly say that the barrel of the revolver into which I looked seemed to me to be as large as a sewer pipe. I even thought that I could see the end of the bullet, and I was awfully afraid that the man who held the revolver might get nervous and shoot me by accident. I tried to look pleasant to appease him. All this had taken perhaps a minute and a half when the spokesman shouted to us:

"'Line up against that wall with your backs to me, and the man who takes his hands down will get shot. Quick now, gentlemen, if you please. Obey orders, and you won't get hurt.'

"We lined up as directed like a lot of schoolboys.

"'Now then, my friend here will relieve you of your valuables without your assistance,' said the spokesman. 'Don't move, because there are two dead shots behind you. Keep quiet, and it will soon be over.'

"It was a very cool piece of work, I can assure you. One of the three went straight down the row, taking each man's watch and money. He didn't get as much as he expected, and as near as we could estimate later the total haul was under $5,000. There was over $100,000 in the safe which the robbers overlooked. When we had been cleaned out, the spokesman said:

"'Now, gentlemen, we are sorry to inconvenience your further, but we shall have to request you to stand just as you are for five minutes more. Don't cut the time short, or you will get hurt.'

"The side door opened at this instant, and we heard the order 'Hands up, Chink, or you are a dead man!' It was one of our Chinese servants who was returning with a tray filled with drinks. He promptly dropped his tray, smashing all the glasses and threw up his hands. We heard no other sound for five minutes. Each man counted the seconds to make sure that he shouldn't take down his hands ahead of time. The proprietor was the first man to move. As soon as he felt that it was safe he turned and found the robbers gone. He picked up a heavy chair and threw it through the window. It carried the sash with it, and the crash that followed attracted general attention in the street below. The proprietor stuck his head out of the window and profanely shouted such details of the hold up as might put the people in the street on the track of the robbers. It was useless, however. The fellows walked out quietly, took off their masks and disappeared without leaving any clew. We all piled out of the place to aid the search. When we found out that a chase was hopeless, most of us came back to the gambling room to talk it over. When we entered the place, we found the Chink standing in the ruins of his glasses with his hands still above his head. The proprietor told him to take his hands down. The Chink wouldn't do it, and two men who pulled his arms to his side had all they could do to hold him. He had looked in the big barrel of one of those small revolvers, and he hadn't forgotten it.

"Now this was an actual experience, and some of your New York papers had accounts of it. If I were mixed up in an affair of that sort again, I would raise my arms just as quickly. It was expediency and not a yellow streak that made that crowd act as it did."

Never Caught Alive.

In Lake Derwentwater, in England, there is a species of fish called vendace, which are never caught alive. They are said to frequent the deeper parts of the lake and are never met with in the rivers. One or two dead specimens of the breed which have been found in the lake are treasured as curiosities.

A THRONE FOR A STAKE.

A MARVELOUS TALE OF AMBITION AND ADVENTURE.

How a Russian Refugee, Now an American Citizen, Came Near Placing Himself and Sweetheart on the Throne of Bulgaria.

There is living in New York city a man whose career has been so astounding that were it printed in a romance it would be rejected as preposterous and beyond belief. For years his wit was pitted against the almost omnipotent power of the Russian Czar and the great Alexander dreaded him more than he did the combined deviltry of all the Nihilists in his empire. He played for gigantic stakes—nothing less than a royal throne, with all the power and splendor which that implies—and he lost by a hair. The same cool effrontery and undaunted nerve put in nerve in the Orient or in any of the Spanish American States of the American continent would have made him the ruling potentate or the military dictator over the people, according to the location of the field of his operations. Men have gambled for high stakes before have won or lost immense fortunes by the turn of a card, but few have played a pure game of bluff with a crown for the stakes.

Thus unequaled adventurer's name is Nicholas Erasmus Savine, and he claims to be the hereditary Count of Toulouse Lautres, through his mother, the last of a noble line. Russia, however, has always laughed at his claim.

His father was a general in the imperial Russian army and Nicholas was himself trained for a soldier. He graduated from a military school and obtained a commission in the Imperial Guards.

But the young man was not one to accept blindly the authority one whose right to rule rested on his birth only. He had no sympathy with the unlimited power of his imperial master. He looked about him and the sufferings of millions appealed to him. He took an interest in the Nihilists of his country. He studied their aims, their theories. He became acquainted with some of their leading spirits and—then came the wrath of the Czar. For 10 years he was a fugitive, ever hounded, ever persecuted, ever followed by the wrath of the Russian government. Of the details of these years of wandering, of hiding, of persecution he tells little. In a book which he proposes to publish he will give the thrilling details of this interesting decade of his life.

A Throne for a Stake.

According to Savine's own story he was in Venice in 1886, a fugitive nursing his hatred for the Russian despot. Without money, without influential friends, dogged by the emissaries of the Russian ruler, who had learned to fear and hate him, his one friend and companion, the light of his life and spur of his ambition, was a beautiful girl whom he refers to as Madelaine. She was a gifted woman, ambitious and beautiful, the most glorious creature he had met in all his travels. They loved. And loving, they planned for the future. What dreams of wealth and power came to them! And with these dreams what thoughts of vengeance against the Muscovite tyrant!

In beautiful Venice Nicholas met Don Carlos, pretender to the throne of Spain. They had met before. Their families were not unacquainted. They had many things in common. But there was this difference, that, while both were ambitious to reach great heights, Don Carlos had wealth and a more-or-less rightful claim to an imperial throne while Nicholas was almost penniless and could make no such royal plea for recognition. Not all the advantage was on the side of the Spaniard, however. The other was swayed by an unquenchable ambition, though its purposes were as yet undefined, and he possessed a nerve, and audacity, a wit which, had he had Don Carlos' claim, would have placed him on the throne of his ancestors despite all opposition.

Prince of Bulgaria!

The two compared notes. Don Carlos was grieved that Nicholas was suffering for want of money. He had not the nerve to force his own claims, but he was fertile in suggestions for his friend.

"Bulgaria is the place for you, my dear friend," he said.

Bulgaria? Ah! The suggestion came like a thunderclap. Nicholas was no fool and he grasped the stupendous possibilities of the idea instantly. Bulgaria was at that time without a ruling prince. Prince Alexander of Batenberg, tired of being baited like a dehorned bull in an arena, had abdicated. The throne was vacant. The Bulgarians, with the great minister Stambuloff at their head, were looking for a prince—such a one as would in time bring forth their country from the inferior place to which its powerful enemies had forced it and make it a nation among the nations.

Why should he not aspire to the throne? Here was a grand opportunity for a cool head, a stout heart, a scheming brain. True, there was danger in the adventure, but what great thing had been snatched from unwilling fate without danger!

With what arguments could he approach Stambyloff? First, Bulgaria was poor. He would work out a plan whereby with himself on the throne, money could be borrowed from the great leaders of Europe—yes, even from those governments who hoped to see on Bulgaria's throne a prince inimical to Russia. Again, Stambuloff hated Russia. On this point Nicholas would not be found wanting.

The bold plan was canvassed from beginning to end, from end to beginning, the shrewd wit of the beautiful Madelaine aiding much in overcoming many of the difficulties in the way.

To shorten the story:

Nicholas obtained from Don Carlos a loan of 25,000 francs, and with this he fitted out a retinue of servants and purchased for himself and Madelaine a wardrobe almost royal in its splendor. Then the ambitious pair started for Sofia, armed with a French passport.

Reaching the Bulgarian capital, Nicholas was amazed to find Stambuloff awaiting him. Don Carlos had communicated with the Bulgarian king-maker in advance.

The whole plan was gone over with and Stambuloff fell in with the scheme. He was ripe and ready for anything which would place on the throne a prince unfriendly to Russia. Ambiguous reports were allowed to leak through the newspapers and to permeate through the people, and within a week Nicholas was hailed by the Bulgarians as the saviour of their country. He was the most popular man in Sofia and he and his beautiful sweetheart were dined and feted as though they were already of the ranks of royalty.

Help From Turkey.

But the harvest was not yet ripe. Russia would never consent to the elevation to the throne of Bulgaria of a man who was her avowed enemy. It was necessary to secure the support of some other nation. Which? Turkey? None better; none more likely to consent to any plan which would tend to lessen Russian influence in Europe.

To Constantinople then hurried the two schemers, their hearts beating high with hope. Prince and Princess of Bulgaria! their royal highnesses, Nicholas and Madelaine of Bulgaria! And then? Why not afterwards, with strong hands and brilliant minds, something greater? Bulgaria prosperous! Bulgaria with every male subject a soldier! Then, Bulgaria a kingdom! King Nicholas I of Bulgaria! Queen Madelaine!

Truly it was a dream of such stupendous possibilities as to have staggered any couple with less audacity.

Once more to shorten the story:

There was no trouble in meeting the grand vizier. Stambuloff's messenger had preceded them to Constantinople. A meeting was arranged with the Sultan. That monarch listened and was pleased. Another meeting was arranged for at which the details were to be discussed in full, and then—the fall! Russia had not been asleep all this time. The great white Czar never sleeps. His servants are everywhere—in every county of Europe. The time for him to strike had come.

To Nicholas' room in his Constantinople hotel in the dead of night came messengers ordering him to appear at the Russian embassy. He refused. He was taken by force. As a fugitive from Russian justice he was taken to St. Petersburg.

Then came the quick trial, the condemnation, the sentence to Siberia.

Then followed the long journey over frozen steppes, the cruelty and suffering which have made the very word Siberia hated the world over, and finally after two years, escape.

But meantime Bulgaria had found a ruler and Madelaine was dead.

Farewell, to princely ambitions! There remained America, and to America came the adventurer, to plot no more for thrones and crowns, but to settle down as an American citizen and devote his energies to the tamer but more profitable pursuits of trade.

But even in America it seems that Savine has not allowed his love for adventure to die out completely. A few days ago he was placed under arrest charged with an attempt to swindle an express company—truly a commonplace and unromantic incident in a life of daring and adventure.

Family Peacemakers.

More family troubles are adjusted by the magistrates in this city than the average person would willingly believe. There is hardly a day passes that every member of the minor judiciary is not called upon by a determined husband or wife, usually the latter, to issue a warrant. Nine cases out of ten the applicant is considerably excited and is eager to invoke the aid of the law in settling some trifling controversy. By calm argument and assurances the visitor can usually be persuaded to give the offender of her or his peace and happiness another chance, and a home is perhaps saved from being broken up.—Philadelphia Call.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an ear of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been a ofavorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

He Set at Night.

He was only a little boy, and this was his first diary. It had been given him as a birthday present and was bound in a red cover, with a highly colored picture adorning the front.

He meant to begin well and early, so he carefully wrote, "Get up at 7." Then, according to instructions, he took it to his governess for approval.

That highly proper lady frowned. "Get up!" she said; "got up! You careless boy! Does the sun get up? No, it rises."

Very neatly she scratched out the barbarous words and made him write, "Rose at 7." This settled Master Tom; no more mistakes of this kind for him again!

So on retiring for the night he wrote, with the air of a man who knew his business well, "Set at 8."

Art Treasures in Japan.

The Japanese idea in regard to art treasures is quite different from the American idea, as seen in the home. The American method is to keep all the good pictures or beautiful bronzes or unique vases in evidence all the time. The Japanese way is to store the artistic belongings, bringing different ones to light for a time, and thereby avoiding the too abundant appearance that is often the rule here.—New York Sun.

RETRIBUTION

He saved a little day by day,
Withheld from something that he craved.
"The dollars grow," he used to say,
"From extra pennies that are saved."

His pile of savings grew and grew.
Each day he hoarded more and more;
Each night he ran his fingers through
And gloated o'er his golden store.

And as his wealth increased his heart
Shrank, hardened, shriveled and decayed.
He cheated, gouged and played the part
That many another fool has played.

He rose to power through his wealth;
He crushed those who were in the way;
He gained a fortune, lost his health
And miserably died one day.

Then came his drunken cousin, who
Had thrashed him when the two were boys.
His savings and his stealings, too,
One whom he hated now enjoys.

THE CZAR.

CHARACTER SKETCH OF THE MIGHTY RUSSIAN RULER.

whose Peace Proposal Has Given to Him a Character That History Will Preserve Immortal—He is Steadfast, Frank and Fearless.

An admirable character sketch of Czar Nicholas II of Russia is drawn by the English journalist, W. T. Stead, in a recent number of the American monthly.

Nicholas II, says the writer, in stature does not resemble his father, who was a son of Anak. It is a mistake, however, to speak of him as if he were exceptionally slight. He is about the same height as Gen. Gordon, whom he resembles in other things besides the number of his inches. When he rides or sits the Emperor seems as tall as most men. When he stands he is a little taller than Lord Nelson or Napoleon Bonaparte. Good stuff, says the old adage, is often put up in little bundles, and the giant in popular legend is usually as dull as he is huge. In physique the Emperor is wiry and vigorous. One who sees him every day told me that physically Nicholas is a much healthier man than his father.

Frank, Fearless and Simple.

The first and most conspicuous characteristic of Alexander III. was the solidity of his mental temperament. He was by no means dull. But he was slow. He put his foot down like an elephant, and when he put it down he was not quick to take it up again. The characteristic of his son and successor is quite different. Alertness, exactness, lucidity, and definiteness are four excellent qualities in a man, and the Emperor has them all. With all this there is an absolute absence of anything even distinctly approaching priggishness. Many years ago Mr. Gladstone described the present Emperor as a charming type of the best of our public school boys. He was frank, fearless, perfectly natural, and simplicity itself. Nicholas II is no longer a boy. He has borne for several trying years the burden of one of the greatest empires in the world. But he is still as absolutely simple and unaffected as he was when Mr. Gladstone met him in Copenhagen 15 years ago. There is still in him all the delightful school-boy abandon of manner, a keen sense of humor, and a hearty, outspoken frankness in expressing his opinions which makes you feel that you were dealing with a man whose character is as transparent as crystal. Add to all this is a modesty as admirable as it is rare, and it must be admitted that even if the net human product should fall short of being a great ruler, he has at least all the qualities which make men beloved by their fellows. The bright, clear blue eye, the quick, sympathetic change of feature, the merry laugh, succeeded in a moment by an expression of noble gravity and of high resolve, the rapidity and grace of his movements, and even the curious little expressive shrug of the shoulders, are all glimpses of a character not often found unspoiled by power.

Those who know him best appear to love him most and naturally enough each one thinks his only fault is that he is too ready to sacrifice his own convenience and his own wishes to oblige others. A more dutiful son never sat on a throne. He is singularly happy in his marriage and the Emperor of Russia will never lack one of the most intelligent and loyal of chancellors while his wife lives. As his parents before him set Europe an example of domestic unity and felicity, so Nicholas II maintains the honorable and happy tradition. He is loyal in his friendships and slow to part with any of those who are in his own or were in his father's service.

Distinctions of His Reign.

So far his reign has been distinguished by three things. First his frank recognition of the fact that until he found his feet and had acquired some experience in the business of governing it became him to serve his apprenticeship modestly and silently.

The second salient feature in his reign was marked by a significant blend of the two conflicting tendencies—the intuitive instinct which enabled him to divine the right thing to be done and the modest reluctance to impose his will upon the more experienced administrators who thwarted and crippled his policy. I refer to the generous initiative taken by the Czar in the direction of an amelioration of the harshness of the Polish regime as he inherited it from his father. In that he showed true insight and a keen sympathy with subjects who were suffering from undoubted grievances. But the forces of reaction and the jealousy of a dominant bureaucracy, aided perhaps by the somewhat unreasonable expectations of some of the Poles, checked the full realization of his designs. To some this may seem an admission that he is lacking in strength. It would be more just to recognize that he felt he was lacking in experience. He was young to the responsibilities of government. It was better to bide his time. Safely and slow—they tumble who run fast.

The Peace Rescript.

There is one thing about the peace rescript which no one can deny. It was splendidly audacious as well as magnificently ambitious. Wise it may be or foolish, but mean, petty or unworthy it was not. The response which he has elicited and will yet more elicit throughout the civilized earth is sufficient to show with what master hand the young Czar had struck a note that vibrated in every heart.

Will he have the nerve to stick to it? The resolution to put it through? The strength to overpower the immense forces which will be banked together to defeat his generous and most sensible design? That is the crux of the whole question. It is, of course, impossible to predict with any certainty what any human being may do under a test so severe as that to which Nicholas II is now being exposed. But in forming our estimate of the chances, let us look frankly at the position, against which it is easy to see the forces that are arrayed. The immense strength of the most formidable vested interest intrenched in every country, the cloistered mass of international jealousies and rival ambitions—in short the devil and all his agents everywhere are in the field against him. But on the other hand there are no inconsiderable forces to be counted on. First and foremost there is the inherent force and strength which lies in the autocracy itself. The solemn vows of consecration at the coronation are no mere idle form to a mind as highly attuned in the sentiment of duty as that of the present Czar. Nothing but the continued goading of the duty which every Czar owes to the unnumbered millions who look up to him as their terrestrial providence could sustain him in his daily task, and the same upward thrust will tend to stiffen his resolve and strengthen his will to put this thing through.

Queer Cards of Shrewd Lawyers.

Not all men of the legal profession are content with the severe inscription on their cards to which etiquette and custom usually confine them. An Ohio lawyer who makes a specialty of collections calls attention to this fact by a novel device printed on his cards and letter heads. On a great red splotch intended to represent a drop of blood are the words, "Claims collected in cold blood," the capital "C" for the three first letters of those words being of sufficient size to encircle the other words.

In Maryville, Mo., a lawyer presents his portrait on his card, with the suggestive motto: "He that is not with you is against you. See me early."

GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

What they are depends mostly on the condition of the eater.

Most anything is good to eat if a man is properly, healthily hungry.

Every man is properly hungry at more or less distinct intervals if he is healthy.

Corned beef and cabbage taste better to a healthy, hungry man than terrapin and pate de foi gras to the jaded appetite of a dyspeptic. The enjoyment of eating depends on the condition of the stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. If these do not do their work properly there accumulates in them undigested, fermenting, putrid, blood poisoning matter. The appetite cannot be healthy till this is removed. A machine will not run if it is all clogged up with dirt. The stomach cannot appropriate food unless it is clean, and so healthy hunger cannot come. The stomach cannot be clean if the liver and bowels do not dispose of the food passed along to them. If poisonous, effete matter is allowed to accumulate and congest the liver and bowels more or less of it gets into the blood, and is carried all over the body. Is it any wonder that it makes you sick?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is designed to correct all disorders of the digestive and blood-making system and to drive all impurities out of the blood itself.

It restores lost appetite and vitality, builds healthy flesh and muscle, changes sickness to health, misery to happiness.

John A Calloway, Esq., of No. 218 26th Street, Columbus, Ga., writes: "I had catarrh for four years and also liver and kidney trouble. In 1894 I was working at night and I broke out in lumps all over and when these left, the skin peeled off. My eyes were sunken and I had pimples and brown spots on my face. Now these are all gone, and I believe I am entirely well. I have a good appetite, but before I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I had no appetite at all. Now I am like a child—ready to eat at any time of the day or night."

A PLACE FOR ALL.

The brewers should to Malta go, the boobies all to Scilly;
The Quakers to the Friendly Isles, the furriers to Chili;
The little, crying, caroling babes, that break our nightly rest,
Should be packed off to Babylon, to Lapland or to Brest.
To Spithead cooks go or to Greece, and while the miser waits
His passage to the Guinea coast, spendthrifts are in the Straits.

Spinsters should to the Needles go, winebibbers to Burgundy,
Gourmands to lunch at Sandwich Isles, wags to the Bay of Fundy,
Bachelors to the United States, maids to the Isle of Man;
Let gardeners go to Botany Bay and shoeblacks to Japan.
Thus emigrate and misplaced men would then no longer vex us,
And all who are not provided for had better go to Texas.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Preparing to Excurt.

The joint committees of the Farmers' Institutes of East and West Peterborough was held yesterday morning for the purpose of arranging an excursion to the Agricultural College, Guelph, in June next. It was decided to make the trip, and the secretary was instructed to get terms from the railways and report at the next meeting. Our farmer friends are certainly taking time by the forelock.

Double Trading Stamps.

For the next few days double trading stamps will be given at the Times Bookstore. Our stock of fancy goods will be cleared out at cost to make room for fresh importations.

Death of Mr. George Barry.

One of the oldest residents of Peterborough passed away yesterday in the person of Mr. George Barry, at the great age of 96 years. Mr. Barry came to Peterborough from Scotland 53 years ago, where he has lived ever since. He was for years an employee of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company. He was a remarkable man, physically, being a daily visitor to the post office up to a few days before his death. The funeral will leave the family residence, 310 Edinburgh St., on Sunday at 2 p.m. for the Little Lake cemetery.

A Sad Case.

Yesterday County Constable Cochrane arrested a woman named Sarah Munchan, who lives in Ashburnham. The unfortunate woman is said to be demented owing to the desertion of her husband and the loss of her children. She appeared before County Magistrate Edmison and was remanded for a week.

New Readers

We have just received a neat little book of new readings in Scotch and English for social gatherings. The selections are from the works of Mr. John Imrie, Toronto, and are up to date. For sale at the Times Bookstore.

A Gas Explosion.

Just as if Water street was not already sufficiently disfigured with the low sidewalks, which are veritable canals in wet weather, the gas had to get its work in yesterday, and explode. It appears that the gas main opposite St. Paul's church sprung a leak, and men were put to work to dig. The gas had worked up through the frozen ground, and burned when lit with a match. The fire was kept going in order to loosen the ground, when suddenly—piff! bang! and away she went. The manhole leading to the sewer was blown to smithereens, but nobody was hurt. It was a risky way of excavating, but it saved a lot of hard digging.

The Deer Hunting Season.

The following letter by Mr. G. E. Whitea, of town, appeared in the World of the 14th:

"Some deer hunters are having a petition signed to present to the Ontario Government to have the hunting season to commence two weeks later, that is from the 15th to the last of November. If that becomes law it means the hunters from the cities and towns will not be able to have their annual outing, as the northern lakes usually freeze up about Nov. 20th. After that the hunters could not cross the lakes to get home. It is to be hoped that no such law will ever be passed. I believe it would be a good law for all hunters if the open season were made from the first to the last of November; in every way leave the law as it is. In that case the still hunter living near the haunts of the deer could wait for the snow. Those that like hunting with hounds could go earlier. Then all would be satisfied, and it would lessen the danger, as there would not be so many hunters in the woods at one time.

County Maps.

Only a few copies of the splendid new map of Peterborough County left. Mounted on canvas with wooden rollers $2.00; paper 50 cents. Times Bookstore.

The custom of sending valentines is rapidly dying out. Very few people in Peterborough indulged in the fool practice.

THE McCONNELL CHILDREN.

The readers of the Times will be delighted to learn that the McConnell children have been brought back to town and are now in the Shelter. The Secretary, Mr. J. H. Burnham, telephoned the facts to the Attorney General, who instructed the Society to bring back the children at all costs. The management of the Society accordingly instructed Mr. George Cochrane, County Constable, and Mr. F. W. Miller, to proceed to McConnell's residence and bring the children back to town. They took a conveyance and started early yesterday morning, and the children were placed in the Shelter about one o'clock, where they will remain until Tuesday, when they will almost certainly be handed over to their mother. In the meantime the mother is permitted to see them as often as she chooses.

We cannot too highly commend the promptness with which the Society has acted in this matter, and special praise is due to Mr. J. J. McBain, the President, and Mr. J. H. Burnham, the active and untiring Secretary. The Times felt its duty to take strong ground in this matter, and regrets exceedingly if anything which appeared in its columns has given offence to any member of the Society. The public need not fear that anything of this kind will occur in the future. We are satisfied that Mr. Miller deeply regrets the part he took in the matter, and that it is a gratification to him to be an instrument in restoring the children to their mother.

OUR WAR NEWS.

The excellence of the Times' war news service is demonstrated almost every day. Yesterday for instance it gave even later news than the Toronto morning papers contained. This is accounted for by the fact that the Toronto papers go to press at 2 in the morning, whereas the Times is not printed until 4, thus enabling us to publish reports nearly two hours later than the city papers.

It is abundantly evident that the public are beginning to appreciate and value the services of this journal.

USED A KNIFE.

An Indian Said to Have Tried to do Some Scalping.

An Indian named Robert Taylor, belonging to the Chemong Reserve, attacked another Indian with a knife, and attempted to scalp him.

Mr. George Cochrane, County Constable, went out and brought the dangerous man in and he is now confined in the county gaol awaiting a hearing, which will take place next week. It is doubtful, however, if the injured man will have sufficiently recovered by that time to give evidence as he was cut quite badly around the forehead.

It is said that Robert Taylor is possessed of a mild form of insanity, and if the statement is true concerning his attempt to scalp Benjamin he should certainly be put under some kind of restraint.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The patriotic concert took place in Millbrook last night.

The C. P. R. is not getting any ice from the vicinity of Havelock this winter.

The Anderson Dramatic Company continues to draw large numbers to the opera house.

The Town has agreed to pay Mrs. Patterson $35 in final settlement of the paving matter.

Messrs. T. Brightman & Co. on Tuesday made a shipment of 200 beautiful fox skins to the States.

The various companies of the 57th Battalion are surveying the situation for the coming season's drill.

Messrs. T. Brightman & Co. intend to construct a suitable building to replace the one recently destroyed by fire.

Mr. Sheehy has asked the Town to pay his lawyer's fees in connection with the investigation. The amount is $217.

Messrs. H. P. Kennedy & Co. intend shipping seven car loads of cattle to the western States this week. They will make a further and larger shipment the following week.

General Manager Hays, being shown the report in Toronto papers to the effect that he was to retire from the Grand Trunk, characterized the story as one of the most stupid flukes he had ever seen.

The amount of the collection taken up in St. Mary's church in Lindsay a week ago by the sisters of St. Joseph's hospital, Peterborough, was $124.45. The collection is an annual one, and the total is considerably in excess of last year's contribution.

The band of the 57th Battalion, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, will hold a concert in the market hall on Friday, Feb. 23rd, when the music loving public will have a chance to hear some very fine new selections which have been under practice for some time.

Lindsay Post—Mr. G. H. M. Baker, local manager for the Rathbun Company, has received a small consignment of peat fuel for experimental purposes, and many of our citizens are evincing a deep interest in the trials. The curing processes are not yet perfect, but will be in the course of a few weeks, and it is confidently expected that the new fuel will come into widespread use.

THE TRENT CANAL.

Arguments Used by the Port Hope Deputation at Ottawa.

The Port Hope deputation which waited on the Hon. Mr. Blair, in order to endeavor to induce the Government to survey a new outlet for the Trent Canal at Port Hope, told the Minister that as far back as 1834 a survey was made of a canal route between Rice Lake and Port Hope. The proposed route would be but twelve or fifteen miles in length, while the continuation of the canal from Rice Lake to Trenton would be 46 miles in length. On the latter route, Dr. Powers, who was the chief spokesman said there would be extensive rock cuttings, while on the Port Hope route there would be nothing but clay and earth to be removed. The speaker estimated that about two million dollars would be saved by the adoption of the Port Hope route. He askes that the Government make a survey of the country between Port Hope and Rice Lake. Dr. Powers stated that the town of Port Hope could give adequate transhipment facilities for grain, there being already three elevators at that point. Messrs. Huyck, McColl and Quinlan also spoke endorsing the merits of the scheme. Hon. A. G. Blair promised to give the question his best consideration.

A Bad Accident.

Yesterday shortly before noon, Mr. Geo. Heap, foreman of the press department of the Times, met with a very serious accident. He was working at one of the presses, and the ink distributor not working satisfactorily, he put his left hand in to fix it while the machine was in motion. The result was that his hand got caught between two bars of the machine, and was badly crushed at the wrist.

Drs. Caldwell and McClelland were telephoned for and arrived soon after the accident occurred. He was taken home and subsequently removed to the hospital, when the wound was dressed. Dr. Halliday being called in to assist. The wrist is crushed to a pulp, the hand hanging only by the small cords or tendons. Notwithstanding this, there is a possibility of saving the hand, and to this end the doctors are working.

Mr. Heap has the sympathy of a very large number of persons, as he is a very popular young man. Amongst his fellow employees his misfortune is regarded as a personal misfortune, a feeling which is also shared by the management.

Re. "Medical Act of Canada."

Editor Morning Times

Dear Sir,—There is now before Parliament a bill entitled "The Medical Act of Canada," the purpose of which is to incorporate "The Medical Council of Canada," which shall have power to prescribe a course of studies, appoint and conduct examinations and grant licenses to practice medicine in any part of the Dominion under certain conditions. The importance of the subject is our excuse for addressing you.

At a meeting of the Kingston Medical and Surgical Society, held on February 5th inst. the provisions of the "Bill" were discussed. The members of the Society unanimously approved of the general principles of the "Bill" believing that a Dominion Council with power to issue a Dominion License is in the best interests of the Medical Profession and of the general public and recognizing that such a Council would be one more aid in unitying and solidifying our Dominion. Feeling thus and being desirous of having the Dominion Council established upon a basis of justice to all portions of the Dominion and to all interests and of injustice to none we were compelled to protest against certain provisions of the proposed "Bill." We desire to call your attention to these objectionable features of the "Bill" to submit "for your consideration what we regard as more equitable proposals and to ask you, if you agree with us, to use your influence in having the "Bill" amended.

By section 6 of the "Bill" it is proposed that the Council shall consist of twenty-four members, three representatives from each of the seven Provinces and three from the Territories. To us this seems unfair—Ontario and Quebec with an approximate population of four millions have only six representatives and the remainder of the Dominion with an approximate population of one and one-half millions have eighteen representatives—We do not ask for representation by population in its entirity, but we are of opinion that population should receive some consideration in arriving at the representation in the Council. We would suggest that the precedent adopted by those having in charge the clauses of the "British North America Act" dealing with the composition of our Senate should be followed in this case. As the Dominion for that purpose was arranged in three divisions and an equal number of representatives was alloted to each division, we would suggest that the Dominion Ontario, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and Manitoba, British Columbia and the Territories and six representatives allotted to each division. Thus the four millions of Ontario and Quebec would have twelve representatives and the remaining one and one-half millions would have twelve representatives.

No provision is made in the "Bill" for University representation on the Council. We believe this is unwise. As the proposed Council will have to prescribe the course of studies, appoint examiners and conduct the examination of intending liscentiates, we are of the opinion that those who are engaged in the teaching of medicine are by training and experience peculiarly fitted for the discharge of the duties of the members of the proposed Council. We would, therefore, suggest that the precedent established in the formation of the General Medical Council of Great Britain and Ireland and of the Medical Council of the Province of Ontario should be followed in the formation of the proposed Dominion Medical Council. In accordance with this precedent we would, therefore, recommend that to each University in Canada having a Medical Faculty actually engaged in teaching there should be allotted one representative.

Subsection 2 of Section 13, reads as follows: "All practical and clinical examinations shall, until otherwise decided by the Council, be held in the cities of Montreal and Toronto alternately." As will be seen, no provision is here made for written examinations. This provision for practical and clinical examinations is, in our opinion, legislation in favor of particular institutions as against other similar institutions. We must, therefore, protest against this clause. As an amendment we would propose the following: "All written examinations shall be held simultaneously at all centres at which there are Medical Schools and that all practical and clinical examinations shall be held in succession at the same centres. Thus justice would be done to all and injustice to none, and no Medical School would be prejudicially legislated against. We ask for ourselves nothing which we are not willing to grant to others, but we strenuously object to advantages being granted to others which are denied us."

Trusting that you will give this communication a careful perusal and seeing that the "Bill" has been introduced into Parliament you will take such action as you may deem suitale with the least possible delay. We remain, yours faithfully,

Signed on behalf of the Society,

John Herald, M.A., M.D. President.

A despatch to the Daily Mail from Naauwpoort, dated Thursday, says nothing of the return of the Wiltshires.

London, Feb. 16, 11.30 p.m

The Hous eof Commons passed the supplementary army estimates, 13,000,000 pounds, by 213 votes to 32.

Outside Jacobsdal, Orange Free State, Thursdya, Feb. 15.

The road between Modder River nad Jacobdia is now open. The distance is only nine miles. The road is available for sending reinforcements nad supplies. When the Boers evacuated Jacobsdla they were obliged to pass over a ridge, where they afforded a splendid mark for the British guns, which showered shrapnel upon the retreating enemy. The convoy which was attacked at Riet River had been countermanded, but the order did not arrive in time nad the experience was a very warm one, though the Boers did little material damage. As Generla French with the strengthened division pushed forward towards Kimberley, he found the beleaguering Boers deserting their position to Alexandersfontein, thus allowing aportion of the Kiberley garrison to occupy nad entrench the place.

London, Feb. 16

The following despatch has been received from Lord Roberts: "Jacobsdal, Feb. 16.—I have good authority to believe the Magersfontein trenches have been abandoned and that the Boers are endeavoring to escape General French is scouting the country north of Kimberley. One of Gen. Kelly-Kenny's brigades of infantry is in pursuit of a large Boer convoy moving toward Bloemfontein.

London, Feb. 16.—9.30 p.m.

The foregoing despatch from Gen. Roberts fills the gaps in the earlier despatches.

Modder River, Feb. 16

The sixth division left Waterfall drift early yesterday morning and marched here, going on the same evening to Rondevaal Drift to hold the crossing of the Modder River and leave General French free to act.

"Shortly after arriving here the mounted infantry visited Jacobsdal and found it full of women and children with four of our wounded men doing well.

"On the way back the mounted infantry were attacked and nine men were wounded. Col. Henry and Maj. Hatchell and ten men were missing. Both officers were subsequently found at Jacobsdal, slightly wounded.

"The cavalry division is moving in a northerly line and has apparently already reduced the pressure on Kimberley, as Kekewich signals the enemy have abandoned Alexandersfontein and that he has occupied it.

"French has advanced as far as Abons dam with slight loss and is pushing on the posts, his rear being held by mounted infantry."

General Roberts adds:

"Clements, having been pressed by the Boars has retired to Arundel to cover Naauwpoort."

The War Office points out that the word "here" in the above despatch means some point on the Modder River other than the Modder River Station."

London, Feb. 16.—10.55 p.m

The War Office has issued the following from Lord Roberts:

"Jacobsdale, Feb. 16.—7.45 p.m.—Much gratified on arrival here to find admirable hospital arrangements made by the German Ambulance Corps under Doctors Kastner and Hildebrand who with their staffs have shown the greatest kindness to our wounded as they have to the Boer wounded. Some of our wounded have been here since December. Some were brought in yesterday.

Head Laager, near Ladysmith, Wednesday, Feb. 14.

The British from Chieveley have been bombarding the Boer forces at Blaauw Krantz east of Colenso since yesterday afternoon, the bombardment continuing throughout the night. The Boers responded with rifle fire. Particulars are lacking. All is quiet around Ladysmith.

Pretoria, Feb. 13.

A smart rifle and artillery duel took place at Mafeking, Feb. 12. There was no Boer loss. The British attacked Fort Eloff, south of Gaberones, at daybreak, Feb. 12, but the Johannesburg men under Vendelweig forced the British to retire, leaving six dead and four wounded on the field. Capt. Friend was among the killed. The Boers suffered no casualties.

London, Feb. 17

The Daily Telegraph has the following despatch from Naauwpoort, dated Feb. 13 and delayed in transmission Very severe fighting occurred on both our flanks near Rensberg. The enemy ghastly outnumbered our troops being about 4000 in number. They attacked the Worcestershire regiment on their hill and with desperate determination charged, only to experience such a heavy Maxim and rifle fire from our men that the death roll of the assailants must have been considerable. A patrol of the Inniskilling Dragoons was surrounded by some 500 Boers and gallantly cut their way through without losing a man, but a company of New South Wales Mounted Infantry were unfortunately annihilated, most of the men's bayonets however bearing the impress of sanguinary conflict with their foes. Col. Conyngham was shot through the heart at the outset of the engagement. The enemy choose the time of the moon's setting for their onslaught. Out of five colonial officers only one returned to camp.

A stragetic nad concentrative move back to Arundel has been decided upon. Our guns from Coles Kop hvae been safely removed, one Maxim being destroyed to prevent its fillang into the hands of the enemy.

Nine wounded officers nad thirty-nine men were brought into the Naauwpoort field hospital. Our death roll at present is not known.

KIMBERLEY RELIEVED.

London, Feb. 16,—9.51 a.m.—The War Office announces that General French reached Kimberley Thursday evening.

Following is Lord Roberts' message to the War Office.

Jacobsdale, Feb. 16.—2 a.m.—French with a force of artillery, cavalry and mounted infantry reached Kimberley this evening, Thursday.

FRENCH'S ACTIVITY.

Riet River, Orange Free State, Wednesday, Feb. 14.—General French in command of the cavalry division and with a strong force of horse artillery left Modder River Sunday morning for Rambam, 12 miles east of Enslin, where the whole division concentrated. The next day he made a rapid march to Riet River, where a party of Boers contested his passage at Dekil's and Waterval drifts. After some hours' shelling, General French drove the Boers away and crossed the river.

Yesterday, Tuesday, the column continued its march to Clip and Rondeval Drifts on the Modder River, where again a short engagement ensued. General French shelling the Boers vigorously and forcing a passage. The Boers precipitately retired, leaving five laagers in the hands of the British, besides a great quantity of cattle and 2,000 sheep.

From this point Gen. French made another dash of twenty miles to Kimberley, which he entered on Thursday evening.

The rapidity of Gen. French's march and the overwhelming nature of his force enabled him in spite of the difficulties of water transportation to thoroughly outwit and surprise the Boers.

The British casualties were slight.

POSITION OF LORD ROBERTS.

London, Feb. 16.—A remarkable feature of Lord Roberts brief cablegram is the fact that it is dated from Jacobsdal, which was Gen. Cronje's advance base of supplies, and there is no word explaining the British commander's presence there, nor word of any opposition which he or Gen. French encounted. Had Lord Roberts inflicted a decisive defeat on the Boers, it is believed he would have mentioned it, as such a success would be greatly paramount to the relief of Kimberley. However, Gen French's entry into Kimberley has been effected and doubtless brings joy to the hearts of those who have been shut up in the city for 119 days. Their defenders number about 2,000, while General French's force is estimated at about 10,000 men. The sixth and seventh division have already crossed the river and one of them is probably with Lord Roberts at Jacobsdale, while the other has by this time occupied Clip Drift and enabled French to push on to Kimberley.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

London, Feb. 16, 7.44 p.m.—The War Office makes public a despatch from Field Marshall Lord Roberts saying:

"Jacobsdal, Feb. 16.—The following from General French was received this morning.:

"I have completely dispersed the enemy from the southern side of Kimberley, from Alexandersfontein to Oliphantsfontein, and are now going to occupy their ground. Have captured the enemy's laager and store-depot supplies and supplies of ammunition. Casualties about 20 of all ranks wounded.

"Kimberley cheerful and well."

GRENADIER'S BAYONET CHARGE.

London, Feb. 16.—A mutilated despatch from Cape Town, dated Wednesday, Feb. 14, says some Grenadiers went through a body of eighty Boers four times and that only 17 of them escaped. As the Grenadiers form part of the Modder River column this bayonet charge may be connected with Lord Roberts' movement.

BOERS LEAVING MAGERSFONTEIN

London, Feb. 16.—A despatch from Cape Town, dated Wednesday, February 14, received this morning, says:

"The Boers are leaving Magersfontein to reinforce other positions. It is estimated that between 7,000 and 10,000 men remain there."

Lord Roberts' wide turning movement via Jacobsdale has cut of these troops from Bloemfontein. But while the British forces have intercepted the Boer communications there is a Boer column near Colesberg, trying to cut off the British lines south of De Aar. General Clements' retirement to Arundel, it is said, was undertaken for strategic purposes, and that during the course of the march the Boers were driven off by a heavy fire, the Inniskillings charging brilliantly and inflicting great loss on the burghers.

A Boer despatch from Lorenzo Marquez, dated Thursday, Feb. 15, says the initial attack on Colesberg on Feb. 12, resulted in a Fedral loss of 9 men killed, 14 wounded, and 5 prisoners. The British, it is added, were driven out of their camp, and one of their Maxims was captured.

THE NEWS NI LONDON.

London, Feb. 16.—The news of Gen. French's entery into Kimberley was received on the Stock Exchange here today with rousing cheers. No boom in stocks was created, but a satisfactory strong undertone prevailed. De Beers rose 1 7-8, but subsequently receded 1 1-4 on a Paris rumor that General French had merely fallen into a Boer trap.

BOER GUNS OUT OF ACTION.

London, Feb. 16.—According to a despatch from Chieveley dated Wednesday Feb. 14, it has been ascertained that the British artillery during last week's fighting rendered two large Boer guns and one Norden feldt ineffective.

TELEGRAPH IS NOW OPEN.

New York, Feb. 16.—The Commercial Cable Company at 2 o'clock this afternoon sent out the following notice:

"We are advised that telegrams can now be accepted for Kimberley, South Africa, at sender's risk, and not exceeding 12 words."

CLEMENTS FALLS BACK.

Arundel, Wednesday, Feb. 14.—Gen. Clements withdrew from Rensberg during the night, his rear guard arriving at Arundel early this morning. The Boers promptly followed, re-occupying their old position in the Taaibosch Hills, whence they have been shelling the British cavalry patrols ineffectually. The British guns returned the fire, making fairly accurate practice.

BOERS NEAR NAAUWPOORT.

Cape Town, Thursday, Feb. 15.—There is considerable alarm at Naauwpoort owing to the report that a Boer force has occupied a position on a hill ight miles off that town.

Naauwpoort is in the rear of Arundel, whither Major-General Clements has retired, and is the base from which Gen. French acted against Colesberg.

HORSE AND MULE FLESH.

London, Feb. 16.—The correspondent of the Associated Press at Ladysmith, from which place he escaped February 10 and arrived at Durban, Feb. 14, sends the following, written before he left Ladysmith.

"Since the furious cannonade in the early part of the week quietness has reigned. The hills on which the relief column's lyddite shells were bursting in hundreds a few days previously are now only occupied by grazing cattle. Further away on the north side of Spion Kop the Boer laagers can be seen, evidently bigger than before, showing that they have no idea at present of retiring from their position.

"Much disappointment is felt at the non-appearance of Gen. Buller, as from the severity of the fire every heart was glowing with hope and excitement at the prospect of immediate relief; not that we are at all in the blues, for everyone capable of shouldering a rifle is confident of our ability to hold the town against any force the Boers are capable of putting in the field. Still, the continued diet of horse and mule flesh is getting somewhat monotonous, although the health of the camp, taking everything into consideration—is better than could be expected. Enteric fever and dysentery have abated. The camp fever is not virulent, but is slighting increasing. The scarcity of vegetables is very trying to the troops. Luxuries are beyond the means of the majority. Eggs are thirty-six shillings a dozen; a small fowl is eighteen shillings six-pence; pumpkins twelve shillings each; small vegetable marrow six shillings; a tin of jam twelve shillings sixpence; a tin of milk seven shillings sixpence; a box of sardines three shillings; tobacco ninety shillings a pound. A case of whiskey was raffled for 145 pounds.

Smuggling Tobacco.

"The Boers are smuggling tobacco into camp through natives. A local factory is turning out excellent horse sausage, and another is making nourishing soup which is much appreciated by the troops, who certainly have increased in strength since these were served out."

The escape of the Associated Press correspondent was most adventurous and arduous. Leaving Ladysmith the evening of February 10, guided by a native, he soon encountered a Boer patrol, who fired upon him. Escaping the patrol he crawled twenty-two miles over the roughest and stoniest paths, hiding in native huts and kraals during the day, and proceeding at night. Once a Boer patrol came to the door of the hut where he was hidden under blankets. He swam the Tugela river, and reached Chieveley the morning of Feb. 13, where he took a train for Durban.

BOERS WERE TREACHEROUS.

Riet River, Feb. 14.—Colonel Hannay while on his way to Ramdam encountered 500 Boers with two guns holding a kopje commanding the valley leading to the drift. The fighting lasted all day long, and the Boers disappeared during the night. Thirteen men reported missing from Hannay's force are prisoners. They were captured treacherously during the fight. They were informed that an agreement had been reached between the British officer commanding the extreme left and the commandant of the Boer ambulance that half a company of the British should be permitted to fetch water from a neighboring farm house. The ambulance then retired, and the Boers rushed out of concealment and cut off the water party. The thirteen prisoners included an officer.

Plum Pudding Plentiful.

A letter has been received from Mr. Joe, Matthews, written to a friend in Lindsay, who is with the first contingent which was then at Belmont. On Christmas they had lots of plum pudding, but chickens were evidently scarce, one solitary bird being served amongst fifteen.

Kruger has become very despondent since he learned that the Strathcona Horse is composed of Steel and Belchers. He is even very tired of the way the British have been belching steel into him already.

IN FAVOR OF GREAT BRITAIN.

Preference in Favor of British Imports May be 35 per cent Instead of 25 per cent as the Tariff Stands To-day.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—It is the intention of the Government to raise the tariff in one very important respect. For some time the advisability of increasing the preference in favor of British goods has been considered, with the result that a higher preferential tariff is practically assured.

What the increase will be is not openly suggested by any of the Ministers, but it will not be surprising if in the budget speech of Hon. W. S. Fielding announces that the preference in favor of British imports shall be 35 per cent., instead of 25 per cent., as the tariff stands to-day.

The Government's aim is to re-establish its tariff in the eyes of the public as indisputably pro-British. The proposed increase will oppose the Opposition's theory that the preference is not large enough to give Britain a decided advantage in the Canadian markets. Incidentally it will weaken the loyalty cry which the Conservatives were able to raise on account of the Government's tardiness in offering military aid to Great Britain in the South African war.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE IS IN GREAT DANGER

Earl of Rosebery Says the Government's Plans Are Insufficient.

LORD SALISBURY VERY CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

He Refuses to Discuss the Movements of Russia, and Says the Old Britons Were Not Discouraged—Some Treasonable Talk From Redmond.

London, Feb. 16.—In the House of Lords yesterday the Earl of Dunraven raised a question on the Government's military proposals, and expressed a doubt as to whether these were sufficient.

The Earl of Roseberry said he fully recognized the gravity of the situation, and agreed with the previous speaker in thinking that the measures adopted were inadequate to the circumstances. He also doubted whether the "paper force of 400,000 men in Great Britain," to which the Secretary of State for War had referred, would stand analysis. For the volunteers, Lord Roseberry said, he had the highest respect, but by no stretch of the imagination could they be called soldiers, as it was admitted they needed months of training annually to render them efficient.

Need For Haste.

"The auspicious news of the morning from South Africa," said Lord Roseberry, "led to the hope that there might be better news to come, but when fighting in our territory we have been unable before to advance an inch, and if another 50,000 men should be wanted for South Africa, I do not know where they would be got. It may be said that it is unwise to lay bare the weakness of the country, but depend upon it, other nations know our position as well as, if not better than, ourselves.

"I would like toa sk whether the fleet is to be strengthened or mobilized. It is not a time when we can leisurely discuss what we are to do a fortnight or month hence. The crisis is urgent. The danger is upon you, and you, at such a time, come to the House with proposals that in the month of May, if weather permits, you will put volunteers under canvas, and that thent his island and Empire will be safe. (Cheers).

"The crisis in South Africa is urgent," continued Lord Roseberry, "but we must not keep our eyes upon South Africa alone. Last December the Government made vigorous overtures to two great powers, Germany and the United States, for an alliance, but those overtures were not received with such cordiality as to encourage the Government to pursue them. It does not appear that the friendship of France would bear any great strain, and as to Russia, events have been recently witnessed in Persia about which England formerly would have had something to say, but which now she passes unnoticed.

"It becomes the Government to take a large grasp of the situation and to make adequate preparations.

Adequate Preparations.

"Time is the essence of the situation. The Government never realized it, out the burghers have, and the present situation in South Africa has arisen from this fact. Lord Blythswood has referred to the armies of the Northern States of the American Union in their civil war, and to the vast forces raised there within a year. Some on emight say that in the United States at that time it was a matter of life and death, aGnd I would tell Her Majesty's Government oow, that it is for a matter of life and death."

"If Great Britain were to lose South Africa, she woul dlose th emost important bas eoutside of the United Kingdom, and she would lose that colonial support which has been given, because the colonies have believed that they were associating themselves with a powerful Empire, and thus the Empire would break away from us. If this be not a life and death crisis I do not know what is."

Russia's Movements.

The Earl of Kimberley, the Liberal leader, said he felt the danger of the situation equally with Lord Robeberry. Although he would not ascribe a direct hostile intention to Russia at the present moment, he said he could not overlook the fact that there was a movement of troops in progress which, if not menacing, showed possibilities of the future that were not absent from the Russian mind.

Premier Replies.

The Marquis of Salisbury, the Premier, in the course of his reply for the Government, said—

"I cannot enter upon the springs that guide the Russian Government or the course it is likely to take, nor can I discuss the health of the Ameer of Afghanistan. As to whether our forces are adequate for the work in South Africa, or whether it is true that the Government have always been too late and have neglected opportunities, I would gladly accept a challenge provided the words would not go beyond this chamber. The present troubles are not due to the expansion of the Empire, but to miscalculations made in 1881 and 1884. Our forefathers were not discouraged by bad beginnings, and we should follow their example and not be cast down. The Government are convinced now, as they always have been, that the issue will be brought to a successful conclusion. I do not think any advantage is to be obtained from taking a gloomy view."

Challenging His Critics.

In its leader to-day the Times says—"Lord Roseberry's criticisms upon the items composing Lord Lansdowne's total availavle r awmaterial for troops is the criticism of almost everybody who has given the matter nay serious consideration. In response to the demand for 50,000 more troops, the Government said they were sending that number, but in the number is included a o far asme, be seen, some already at the Cape, some on the way ando ome not yet ready to start. Lord Lansdowne's general defence of his scheme only amounted to a challenge to the critics to sya how hee ould do any better withth e resources in sight, and Lord Salisbury, whoset one was not at all to be desired,t ook much the same line. This, unfortunately, confirms what Lord Roseberry says lal anguage which we venture to sya will find echo everywhere."

Some Treasonable Talk.

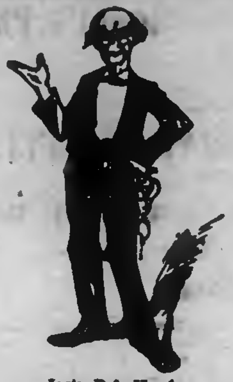
In discussing the supplementary estimates yesterday, Mr. Redmond said that England is now "engaged n a war which is an insult to God, a war waged by Christian England against a Christian people, who only desired to retain their own land. British reverses are due to the fa t that the British cause is unjust."

At midnight, the closure having been enforced, a division was taken and the House adopted the Government's military scheme by a vote of 229 against 34, the minority consisting chiefly of Irish members.

THE LIME JUICE CLUB

A Long Way After
The Lime Kiln Club

The Hall of Wisdom presented an animated picture last week as the president ascended the dias. Every seat in the spacious building was held down by a member, while many were packed around the large double door way leading into the museum and library. It was evident that there was something more than ordinary on the tapis.



Jack Pot Hunt.

The Ball Opens.

Bro. Ed. Brown broke his suspenders square in two in his haste to read the following letter which had been placed in his hands on his way to the Hall by a stranger. The letter was addressed to Sir Ricchard and read as follows:

Dear President,—Judge Johnston will soon appear before your august body to enlist the sympathy and practical assistance of the Lime Juice Club in establishing a mouth organ factory amongst the Indians of Chemong. I would respectfully ask that you receive my compeer with due consideration for age, and give your earnest support to the measure presented.

J. HENRY SMITH.

Toronto, Feb. 15, 1900.

Pile driver Riley, the Janitor, was called in and asked if he had seen any distinguished stranger hanging around the place, it appeared that he had. A person, who was probably Judge Johnston himself, had come up stairs soon after the opening of the session, but being taken for the person who stole three of the rat traps, he was given the bounce in a way to keep him mad for the next four weeks.

Forever Lost.

Darkness Ross, chairman of the Committee on Applications, rose and said that he desired to make a statement. Two days previous to the meeting his Committee had decided favorably upon a batch of 13 applications and he had tied up the letters with a piece of rope and placed them in his boot for safe keeping.

"And they are now missing?" said the President.

"Yes, sir. I conjecture at the time I was run over by a milk wagon and had two ribs splintered, these applications must have been lost in the snow."

"Brother Ross, no man's ribs must be allowed to interfere with the regular business of this great Club. Thirteen people anxious to join us are delayed and disappointed because you stopped in the middle of the street to hear a band play and was run over by a milk horse and left for dead. In the future all papers belonging to this Club must be left at the Hall, and can only be removed in case of fire."

The Librarian reported the receipt of two valuable almanacs of last year from Bro. Salisbury, who also announced that the roof leaked in twelve different places, and that much of the literature had to be placed in the oven and dried previous to being lent to members. He asked for an appropriation of $42 to stop the leaks.

"That's exactly the way with some folks," replied the President. "They buy a $500 carriage to be pulled by a $30 horse. When we spend $42 to preserve $19 worth of books, we shall have inaugurated a financial policy that will soon oblige us to rent post office boxes to relieve our dunning letters. This Club does not intend to be so generous to Col. Rogers, the postmaster, or to the public. Let other business at once proceed."

A New Bank.

"I feel it my duty," said the President, "to mention the fact that I am in receipt of a letter that I can't just make out. It reads as follows—

(Confidential)

Toronto, Feb. 14, 1900.

Hon Richard McBride, President of the Lime Juice Club, Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—I shall leave here on or about the 21st instant for Peterborough, where I propose to open a "bank," and the object of this letter is to secure your co-operation.

I have been engaged in the business for a number of years and feel assured that, with my long experience and knowledge of the business, I can offer you and the club a "system" that will command your confidence and support. By this "system," which is the result of years of constant study and practice, a carefully conducted "bank" will easily earn 300 per cent. per annum upon its capital stock.

It will be necessary to have some well-known and reputable citizen to act as President to inspire confidence and attract business. You are the man. A good, strong, sharp man will be required as doorkeeper, or, I should say, janitor. How would Bro. Tyrrell do? Or can you suggest some one else whom you would like to have the position.

Give this matter your careful consideration and be prepared to give me a definite answer upon my arrival.

A Member.

Please observe this communication as strictly confidential, and whether you accept or decline, "keep mum."

Yours truly.

JACK POT LIMIT.

"There is the letter," said the President when he had finished reading it, "and perhaps some of the members can explain what it means. Seems to me that I have at some time in my life known a man named Jack Pot, but this person seems to have gone and got a 'limit' hitched to his cognomen. If a respectable person is going to arrive here to open a bank, I feel that he ought to be encouraged, but there is something about this letter which strikes me as ambiguous. I will appoint as a Committee of investigation, Bro. Wroughtiron McWilliams, Cautious Miller and Anvil McCann, with instructions to report at their earliest convenience."

The Harmony Club now filed in and rendered the following original lines written expressly for the occasion by Bro. Tyrell, junior poet of the Club—

Music.

This great club has now assembled
In the body of these Halls,
Here the trample of his footsteps
As they come within our walls.
Darkness' here
Eddy's here
Cautious' here
Jamfed's here,
Waiter! won't you bring along
Another glass of beer?

Hear the murmur of their voices
As they crowd the spacious aisles,
Rubbing, shoving one another
Some have walked for many miles.
Backup's here
Fardown's here,
Darkness' here,
Stepoff's here,
Waiter! won't you bring
Along another glass of beer?
The Council sits upon the sidewalks,
When the mayor and all the boys,
Are painting red this wicked movement,
With their powder, smoke and noise.
Wroughtiron's here,
Tiedup's here,
Razor's here,
Henroost's here,
Waiter! won't bring along another
Glass of beer?

Hear the rustle of the river
As it glides along its bed
Heaven help the weary reader
After these lines he's read.
Deacon's here,
Buckskin's here,
Windy's here,
Mozart's here,
We're all here,
Waiter! roll 'em in a barrel
Or two of beer!

The music was received with such volleys of applause that the bust of Pontus Pilate and Christopher Columbus which stood on the museum shelf, were upset, and seven length of stove pipe came tumbling down.

The Wind Up.

The Harmony Club again pealed forth in melodious strains, and rendered several selections from Mozart, Bro. Croft was aroused from his seventh nap and the meeting went home for a week.

Now

Medicine methods differ with those of long ago. The old-fashioned paraphernalia of bottles, pestle and mortar, etc., with their mystic symbols, no longer create any impression on the people. The world has advanced. Medical science is enriched with new discoveries, and the people are educated.

Hutch

Is but the creation for a demand induced by the new order of things. Hutch cures dyspepsia and painful digestion. The tablets are heavily coated with chocolate, and they are delicious to take. Sealed in glass, their prime virtue is retained unimpaired by the action of moisture or the atmosphere. Their convenience insures a regular treatment—a regular treatment insures a cure. Ask your neighbor.

The fermentation in your stomach comes from indigested food. Gases are generated and poisonous liquids form, which empoison your entire system and tear down the essential and delicate functions of the stomach. Hutch induces secretion of the gastric juices, promotes assimilation, and by being slightly cathartic expels excrement. Ten Hutch ten cents. MRS. ALBERT WETTIN.

Such Would be Victoria's Name if She Were a Simple Commoner.

"It is a matter of common belief," says T. P. O'Connor, "that in the extremely unlikely event of the entire abolition of all titular distinctions in England, her majesty's present royal designation would be reduced to the simple formula of 'Mrs. Guelph.' This is an entire mistake. The Queen's legal name, were she by some mysterious process to become a simple commoner, would be 'Mrs. Wettin,' by virtue of her marriage with Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, whose name, stripped of territorial and other garnishings, was plain Albert Wettin.'

"Wettin is the patronymic of King Leopold of Belgium, of King Albert of Saxony, of Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the Duke of Saxe-Weimar and the Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, as well as of the Prince of Wales and his brothers and of Prince Charles of Portugal. Wettin, who died in 1156, was a descendant of one Wittikind, who was a contemporary of the great Charlemagne. The majority of the reigning princes of Europe claim to be descended from Wittikind.

"The Queen, prior to her marriage, was entitled to the patronymic of Azon—she was Miss Azon, in fact. The foundr of the house of Azon died in th eyear 964, and was Margrave or Marques or Este. It is for this reason that the royal house of Great Britain had sometimes made use of the name d'Este, notably in the case eof the Duke of Sussex, a younger son of King George III, who gave the name of d'Este, after marriage, to his morganatic wife."

Napoleon at School.

The first few months at school are certainly not the least unhappy of a great life. Papa Charles leaves his sons at Autun, the preparatory school for Brienne, two little waifs in a hostile world. All the other boys are French—enmies and conquerors— and these two, Corsicans and vanquished.

"What's your name?" says a little Frenchman to one of them, and according to that time honored formula of schoolboys.

"Nabulione de Bonaparte," he replies in his Ajaccian.

And there is a roar of laughter. They laugh at everything from the first—at his accent, his country, his Paoli, his poverty. One does not like to think of the passion of rage, scorn and hatred that surges into that childish heart. Little Joseph is a great deal more equable and soon takes the teasing pretty well for what it is worth. But Napoleon can't. He remembers now with a torrent of regrets the place where he was happy—Mammucia, easy going Papa, Mamma Letizia. He walks about the playground alone, angry, surly, wretched. He begins to learn French "with a frenzy." To laugh at him—no one shall laugh at him. "You Corsicans are des laches!" cries some little demon of a schoolfellow. The boy is white with passion, with his eyes blazing "It is you French who are des laches, with your 20 to 1," said he, and he fisticuffs the little Gaul in a fury.

Was Andree Murdered?

New York, Feb. 15.—The following is printed here to-day under a London date:

"Letter received in London from Bishot Newnham, of Mossinee, dated October 1, Fort Churchill, Hudson Bay, says:

"The Eskimos came here this summer, travelling from the far north to tell that two white men had come down from the sky in a balloon, the remains of which they had seen, and had been murdered by some Eskimos there.

"I believe this is authentic, but have not had time to enquire. Sad, if this be the last of poor Andree and his companion."

A Rheumatic Cripple's Release

A "jury" of doctors, specialists and medicine vendors decreed that James Smith, of Grimsby, Ont., should spend the rest of his days in the agonizing chains of rheumatism

But common sense and modern medical science produced rebuttal evidence and procured his release.

The Great South American Rheumatic Cure turned the tables, relieved the pain in a few hours and healed, cured and freed.

To the man or woman suffering the agonies of pain produced by Rheumatism, of whatever form, no essay on its causes, its symptoms and its action, are idle; the one desirable objective point with the sufferer is the shortest cut to relief from the pain and the surest cure from the distressing, wracking, burdensome ailment.

No medicine of modern times has proved half so effective in giving almost instant relief, or has made as many cures bordering on the miraculous, as the great South American Rheumatic Cure. So often has it proved its efficacy in cases that were placed on the "no cure" list by doctors and specialists that many of the most eminent lights in the profession have been frank enough to make confession that South American Rheumatic Cure, without discussing its formula at all, has proved the most efficacious of remedies, and to back up their convictions, are prescribing it daily in practice; and doctors have always been the slowest to convince of the merits of any proprietary remedy.

South American Rheumatic Cure is powerful, potent, but harmless. It is a specific for all phases of Rheumatic Ailments; it goes directly to the seat of the troubles, dissolves and eradicates from the system the foreign matters which cause the excruciating pains which stiffen and swell the joints. It acts quickly and surely, and as proof of it there is ample testimony to show that in cases of many years' standing, where the patient was almost helpless, bedridden and so acute was the suffering that it was necessary to turn the victim in sheets, because it was torture to have even the gentlest touch of the hand on the body. In twelve hours after the first dose was taken all pain was gone, and inside of three days recovery was so marked that the patient walked without assistance. Many have had a similar experience and have testified to it.

James Smith, a dairyman of Grimsby, Ont., was a great sufferer from sciatica and rheumatism. He was almost helpless, could not walk without crutches. He had tried any number of remedies, and had been treated by almost innumerable doctors without any permanent help. He began using South American Rheumatic Cure. In a few hours the pain left him; in a few days he threw away the crutches and has never had a touch of the trouble since. You are at liberty to write him about his own case. No need for an hour's suffering. South American Rheumatic Cure can do as much for you as it has done for thousands.

South American Nervine is a wonderful tonic for the stomach. It cures all disorders of the digestive organs, repairs exhausted nerve-power, puts on flesh, and is a general health builder.

South American Kidney Cure is a liquid kidney specific; it cures Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Inflammation of the bladder and all disorders arising from imperfect working of the kidneys. It gives relief in six hours.

A $15,000 SHAKESPERIAN COTTAGE.

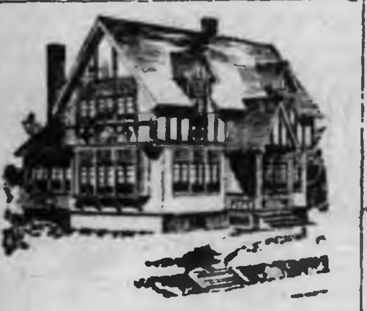
Build a New House not an Old Design.

Copyright 1899 by Charles Willard Leighton, Architect, N. Y. City.

This is the second in the series of the illustrated architectural articles running in our Daily and Weekly edition, prepared especially by the well-known architect, Mr. Charles Willard Leighton, for the Times.

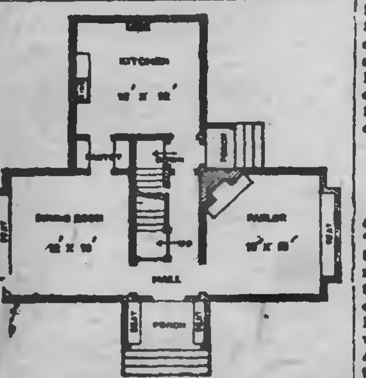
"There is "nothing new under the sun" but there is much improvement in the old, especially in the architecture of modern low cost houses.

The original conception of Gothic, Italian, Queen Anne, Colonial and other standard types of architecture were very crude and almost impossible to apply practically to the accomodation desired in small cottages and low cost residences for the suburbs and country building. But of late years as architects have exhausted their resources in patchy effects of "box" houses, they have drawn for detail on ancient designs. Much of this is meritorious as it has enhanced the picturequeness of our towns, much of it has been condemned by the owner home-builder who has not seen the goal of the architect's idea but derides a Colonial effect or a Shakespearean panel which is used only to enhance the beauty of an otherwise plain house, because the whole scheme of Colonial or Shakespearean architecture has not been carried throughout the design. If it had been, the effect might have been ludicrous whereas the simple design is attractive.



Perspective.

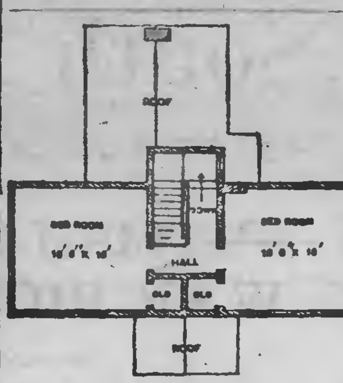
The design illustrating this article, (referring to the perspective view) will also illustrate the foregoing ideas for, whereas the cement or pebble dash panels of the second story and the bullseye leaded windows of the first and second story are pure features of the Shakespearean architecture, yet the entire design is not a pure example of the Shakespearean period. If the design was not enhanced by these beauteous effects, its appearance would be exceedingly plain and boxy. If, on the other extreme, the Shakespearean effect was wrought in every feature, the exterior would present anything but a pleasing appearance and the interior arrangement would not be accomodative to the resident. As it is designed, its exterior view presents a most pleasing effect and by reference to the floor plans, one sees a compact and commodious dwelling that can be built for less than one would suppose and which can be modified, altered or extended for a larger family than the floor plans show.



First Floor Plan.

The foundations are of red brick faced with buffor mottled brick above grade. Cellar under the dining room, hall and parlor, the floor of which is covered with concrete three inches thick with clay well tamped and a six inch cinder bed before receiving cement. The ceiling may be plastered, if required. The kitchen extension is placed on piers and the space between the piers filled in with lattice work causing a good circulation of air thus doing away with any dampness or wet rot which would certainly occur if the cellar were inclosed in brick walls. The wall of the first story are finished in best hard white plaster and the interior trim and doors are of first quality white pine free from all large and loose knots and rifts and well seasoned. In entering we find seats at the side of the porch; and here we might well state that the veranda could be enlarged by extending the porch both sides of the house and yet not detract from the beauty of the exterior but rather add to it.

Inside, the Hall is planned separate from the parlor. The design could be planned (if the partition between the parlor and hall were taken down) to make one large reception room. The staircase has a platform turn about half way up which is more attractive than a straight flight. The parlor has a large open fireplace with brick or wood mantle of stock design. In both the dining room and the parlor is a seat, detailed to come about 16 inches above the floor. These are not strictly "box" seats but simply window stools and should be upholstered and have a few pillows on them. The kitchen pantries are fitted up with all requirements of modern ideas,—butler's pentry, sink and range; an inside staircase to the cellar and a back entrance through the rear porch for the delivery of groceries, meats, etc.



Second Floor Plan.

dormar window which shows on the secdormed window which shows on the second floor plan. There are two bedrooms upstairs. The kitchen extension could be carried up another story giving bath room and servant's room if desired, though the house would cost about $200 more for such an extension and the plumbing for the bath. The windows in the main house have a stationary transom and are glazed with bullseye glass giving a very pleasing effect. Ample closet room, and plenty of light and ventilation have been provided for.

The exterior of all roofs are covered with sawed pine shingles laid five inches to the weather and made to be laid for weather stain or finished as detailed in the description of the design. The second story exterior panelling is that of weather proof cement or pebble dash. The stiles may be rough hewn two inch oak plank which has a very artistic effect. Chimney stacks are finished above roof with oud hard burnt squared edged brick laid up in cement and joints neatly pointed, colored the color of the brick. Most all the wood work for this design can be readily obtained of any mill from their stock, saving a good deal by not having it cut to order. The house may be heated by hot air furnaces if same is desired. A storage room is also provided for in the loft. A technical description of this design is given as follows—General Dimensions—Extreme width, 35 ft., not including porch. Heights of stories—Cellar, 7 ft.; first story, 8 ft.; second story, 8ft. Exterior materials—Foundation, brick, first story, shingles; second story, cement panels; roof, shingles. Interior Finish—hard white plaster, Trim, white pine, painted. Flooring, N.C. pine in first story, white pine in second story. Staircase, N.C. pine, with ash rail. Colors—First story, dark red. Woodwork in second story and gables, dark red. Roof left natural. Cost—$1,500, complete. The estimate is based on New York prices for material and labor. In many sections of the country the cost should be less.

Off to the War.

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 15.—An enthusiastic farewell was tendered the men of "C" Battery this morning, from 12,000 to 15,000 people gathering at the barracks, along the line of march and at the depot. The men were bid farewell on the barrack square by Mrs. (Colonel) Drury and Mrs. (Major) Huddon, after which Lieut.-Col. Montizambert, D.O.C., addressed them, saying he hoped to see them return covered with glory and medals. A telegram breathing patriotic sentiments was read from B. M. Britton, Q.C., M.P.

Headed by 400 men of the locomotive works, 500 students and about 2,000 citizens, the soldiers marched to the Grand Trunk station, the 14th Battalion band playing appropriate marches. At the station again there was another enthusiastic ovation as the train pulled out.

Many Wrecks Reported.

Paris, Feb. 15.—Advices from all the ports record wrecks and injuries to vessels. During yesterday's gale an unknown sailing vessel stranded on the reefs outside Brest, and four bodies have come ashore. A number of fishing boats were lost or seriously damaged along the north coast. The French battleship Admiral Duperre broke from her mooriage in the Brest Roads and drifted shorewards, but was held up in the nick of time by her anchors.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

In Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Lambezi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and heralded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain, but magnificent edifices of the most modern type, beautiful botanical gardens and the public improvements are evidences of the wonderful advance of civilization.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial center, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxurious vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals, lend an air of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders," whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

So great has been the interest manifested in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before though of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its characte, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Afrikander, whose authority upon South African matters is world-widely acknowledged. This gentleman,—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Lambezi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been a ofavorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work,—will present South Africa as it is today, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collectoin of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

Was Andree Murdered ?

New York, Feb. 15.—The following is printed here to-day under a London date:

"Letter received in London from Bishot Newnham, of Moosinee, dated October 1, Fort Churchill, Hudson Bay, says:

"The Eskimos came here this summer, travelling from the far north to tell that two white men had come down from the sky in a balloon, the remains of which they had seen, and had been murdered by some Eskimos there.

"I believe this is authentic, but have not had time to enquire. Sad, if this be the last of poor Andree and his companion."

Back to Coal Oil.

Brampton, Ont., Feb. 15.—Brampton's electric light plant, situated at Huttonville, four miles west of the town, was completely destroyed by fire this morning. The workmen did not leave until almost 2 o'clock, and one hour afterwards the building was in flames. The structure was of brick, and how the fire started is a mystery. The insurance carried was $2,000.

He Lost the Hole.

Ed Tufts of Los Angeles was playing golf with a friend. When he drove from the third teeing ground, he sliced the ball badly and sent it away to one side. It stopped in front of a grazing cow, and Tufts came up just in time to see it disappear into the bovine mouth. When his opponent had made his stroke, Tufts untethered the cow and, with many sounding thwacks of his club, drove the beast to the third hole. There he made her disgorge the ball and, neatly holing it, announced that he had made the hole in two strokes. His opponent calmly finished the hole in seven and claimed the hole.

"But I made it in two," protested Tufts gleefully.

"No, you didn't," declared the other. "You made it in 39. You hit that cow 37 times, for I counted every stroke," and Tufts conceded the hole.—San Francisco Argonaut.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 15, 1900

CANADA'S GREATEST RAILWAY.

In the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway. After paying running expenses and fixed charges of every description, the company declared a five per cent. dividend on the common stock, after which there was still left a surplus of $2,203,874, which is carried over till next year. This surplus is equivalent to 3 1-2 per cent. in the common stock, so that the company really earned 8 1-2 per cent. on the capital stock.

This magnificent showing speaks volumes for the business of the country, as well as for the perfect system of management which Mr. Shaughnessy and the directors have inaugurated. The C. P.R. is the most representative Canadian business concern in the country. Its business extends in every part of Canada and over its immense roadbeds throbs the life-blood of the young Dominion. The showing for the past year will be published in all important commercial centres of Europe, and will be of great benefit to Canada.

President Shaughnessy and those immediately under him connected with the direction of the Company's affairs, have just reason to feel proud of the year's operations.

CIVILIZATION THROUGH CONQUEST.

Under this heading the Providence Journal of Jan 28th gives such a strong view of the war in South Africa that it will be read with interest by every lover of liberty. These words come with especial force from a contemporary in another nation at this particular time. The Journal says—

The Boer sympathizers in this country do not seem to be able yet to fix upon a consistent line of argument. On the contrary their views are so full of contradictions that it is impossible to see what they really desire us to believe. According to some of them England is an all-conquering tyrant that is menacing the liberties of the world; according to others England has run her race and is powerless at the hands of even so small a country as the little South African Republic. Both these views certainly cannot be right; and it would simplify the discussion which we are asked to take up if one or the other were fixed upon as the one to meet.

It makes no difference, however, which is selected; for either can be easily refuted by the facts of history. It is absurd, for example, in the light of history, to talk about England nearing the end of her race because of the difficulties she is now encountering. The history of England shows nothing more plainly than that of all the nations of the earth she is the most dogged in holding to her own side of a controversy. Her policy of expansion—a policy that has not so much been voluntarily adopted as it has been forced upon her by moral responsibilities that honor could not allow her to ignore—has sometimes involved long and bloody wars, but she has always stubbornly persisted, regardless of the cost in money and lives. Examples of this are to be found in the wars of aggression she has waged in Egypt, Afghanistan, India and other regions where early reverses or even apparent defeat have never turned her from her course. We cannot be convinced that she has now become discouraged and frightened by the reverses and delays in South Africa without first rejecting practically everything that history teaches us about the English people.

As for the assertion that Englands conquests mean death to liberty and a check to civilization, an examination of history refutes that view as well. It is the habit of those who have read little and thought less to jump to the conclusion that the stronger nation is always wrong and the weaker always right in any contest between them. But the fact is, of course, that the history of the advancement of the world has been one long session of conquests by the more efficient of the less efficient peoples. We need not go out of our own country to find an example. Every foot of American soil has been conquered from races and governments that had just as much right to retain their dominion as is now claimed for the Boers. Yet who can say that liberty has been crused or civilization retarded in consequence? On the contrary, it has been through these conquests that civilization has made some of its greatest gains in the last four hundred years. An intelligent American should be the last person to prate about the "tyranny" that forces a less civilized people to give way before the progress of the world. So, too, all who are familiar with English history must see that England's conquests have uniformly been benificent. Civilization through conquest has been the law of progress. The real liberties of today are built on the ruins of overthrown political systems which abstractly considered, had as good a right to continue existance as the systems that were put in their places.

It is nonsense to talk of possibilities of a reversal of the order now. The whole tendency of the human race is toward the goal of greater liberty and the more complete utilization of natures resources. It is a movement of too colossal proportion and irresistible force to be stayed by any nation, however powerful and however antagonistic to real progress. So, if England were the reactionary conqueror that some people would convince us, there would still be no occasion to fear her conquests. As a matter of fact, of course, she is far more democratic and progressive than the South African Republic; and her coming conquest, like those that have gone before, will make at once for liberty and civilization. It is freedom and progress that are being driven into the Transvaal by powder and bayonets, not tyranny and reaction. We may rejoice, then, and those American sympathizers with the Boers who believe that England hasbecome too weak to perform her mission are as wrong as those who believe that her mission is not one of benificence.

Plum Pudding Plentiful.

A letter has been received from Mr. Joe. Matthews, written to a friend in Lindsay, who is with the first contingent which was then at Belmont. On Christmas they had lots of plum pudding, but chickens were evidently scarce, one solitary bird being served amongst fifteen.

ROYAL HANDSHAKES.

European Royalties Have Their Own Peculiar Ideas of the Matter.

Royal personages have their own ideas of handshaking. The soverign who is most democratic of all in this respect is King Humbert of Italy, who, while he will readily grasp the grimy hand of any laboring man or peasant, only manifests reserve in this respect when dealing with the partician houses of Italy. He is very cordial to foreign diplomats, and his attide toward the patricians of his own country is only to be explained by the circumstance that they have always manifested a disposition to question the blue blood and the superiority of the royal house of Savoy, of which he is the head.

Emperor Francis Joseph, on the other hand, although the kindliest of monarchs, rarely extends his hand save to the members of his family. He will often lay his hand in kindly fashion on a man's shoulder, or will pat him on the back. But he will not shake hands save on rare occasions, and then the efact of his having accorded a handshake to this or that personage or dignitary is considered of such importance that special mention is made thereof in the newspapers, and even in the official gazette.

Emperor William follows the example of his immortal ally at Vienna, and rarely shakes hands, at least in public, save as a demonstration of special regard and recognition to commanding generals at the close of reviews or maneuvers.

Queen Victoria seldom extends her hand, and then only to be kissed, while King Leopold is even still more reluctant than the rulers of Germany and Austria to shake hands with men, although he is always ready to extend his hand to women.

THE WONDERS OF SCIENCE.

Oh, what's the use of working
And waiting day by day?
Let's watch the moments flying
And hear the music play.
For the sea is full of water
And the earth's a molten mass,
And they tell us an explosion
Is sure to come to pass.

So where's the use of striving
For greatness year by year;
Of dreaming and scheming
To improve this spinning sphere;
Of struggling 'mongst the million
For a drop from fortune's cup,
When a small leak in the ocean
Will blow the whole thing up?

BILLS OVER A CENTURY OLD

They Show Tea to Have Been a Cambridge Student's Favorite Drink.

There is a bill for groceries, etc., furnished for an undergraduate at Cambridge in the year 1786. The bill contains one or two items of furniture. Apparently the undergraduate took over rooms already furnished at a valuation, and certain articles had to be bought new, such as a hearth brush, a pail, a mop and a "Holland gotch." One knows not what this means, but it cost 2 shillings 9 pence (48 cents).

The undergraduate would seem at first sight to have consumed tea in a most reckless manner. On Oct. 24 he is charged 2 shillings for Hyson and 1 shilling 6 pence for Congo. On Nov. 1 he is charged 2 shillings for tea and on the same day, which looks odd, 6 shillings 6 pence for tea. On the 9th of the month he buys a new teapot, the old one, one supposes, worn out with hard service. However, this tea lasts him till the end of the term, so that his tea costs him for the two months no more than 11 shillings, or $2.75, and as the price of tea at this time varied from 8 shillings to about 25 shillings we may conclude that he got through no more than a pound during the term.

In other words, this young man took for breakfast a slight repast of weak tea and bread and butter. Dinner was then served at 12, so that breakfast was only what the Indians call a "chota hazri." On sugar he spent 4 shillings, which means six pounds at 8 pence a pound. On candles he spent 24 shillings 8½ pence, or about 3 shillings a week. He burned wax candles, mold candles and "wax twist." Salt was a shilling a packet. On two occasions he bought sand. Was, then, the floor of his room sanded? It would seem so.

A QUEER EXPLOSION.

HOW A MOUNTAIN LOCOMOTIVE CAME TO AN UNTIMELY END.

There Was Neither Fire in Her Furnace Nor Water in Her Boiler, and Yet She Managed to Blow Up in the Most Approved Style.

Mr. Henry Alquist, a prominent railroad man, relates the story of a curious wreck, the facts in which he will vouch for.

"It is such a remarkable thing," said Mr. Alquist to a reporter, "that I fear many will be inclined to brand it as 'pipe.' I have been railroading now for over 20 years, and never in all my varied experience have I seen such a unique and complete wreck as the one I speak of—that of engine 1,120 of the Rio Grande Western. Railroad men will tell you that locomotives seldom explode nowadays, but 1,120 did and in a very peculiar way.

"At the time this wreck occurred I was holding down the job of train dispatcher at Soldier Summit, Utah, and a tough old job it was. Never been there, I suppose? Well, Soldier Summit is a station on the top of one of the Wasatch divides, a bleak and lonely place, where the Rio Grande Western has a roundhouse and coal chute located. At the summit are long snowsheds covering the tracks. These sheds protect the line from the winter. And it is only due to this method that a train ever gets over the mountain.

"On both sides of the mountain the line winds down in a succession of winding curves to lessen the grade. Running off from the railway are switches, which, diverging from the grade, run up into the hills and gradually come to a dead level. These switchbacks, as they are called, are so constructed that they can be thrown from any point on the grade. And if a train breaks in two while ascending the steep grade the runaway cars can be switched on to one of these spurs, where the breakaway finally stops after it has run up the spur as far as the momentum attained in its descent will take it.

"All heavy trains have an extra locomotive before the grade is tackled. These are called helper engines and are kept in roundhouses at each side of the mountain with steam up.

"One night I got word from Clear Creek, a town in the western valley, that the 9:20 freight would be 30 minutes late on account of having to pull out a crippled engine, 1,120. She had burned out her flues and had to be hauled to Grand Junction for repairs.

"That night about 10 o'clock, after I had passed down the Salt Lake express, I heard the freight coughing up the long grade from Clear Creek. There was a snowstorm raging, and the wind howled around the station like the mischief. When the overdue 9:20 pulled into the shelter of the big snowsheds on the wind swept summit, the first thing I asked was, 'Where's the dead engine?'

"'Behind the doghouse!' shouted the 'con.' But as I held my lamp above my head I failed to see it. I was just about to call his attention to it when, during a lull in the storm, we plainly heard the familiar rattle of the rails as the runaway engine flew at lightning speed down the mountain. No. 1,120 had broken loose and was tearing down the grade to destruction.

"I jumped and pulled the lever which opened the spur switches. This I knew would prevent a smashup, as the engine would run up on the switchback and come to a stop. But I was too late. Almost at the same instant I threw the lever a terrific explosion was heard from far down the mountain. The runaway had exploded."

"I thought you said a moment ago, Mr. Alquist," interrupted The Scimitar man, "that the locomotive was a 'dead one?' If she had no fire under her boiler, how could she explode?"

"That was the only thing I couldn't understand myself," the railroad man replied. "I could easily see how the dead engine could break loose on that grade, and I could understand not hearing its descent during such a howling blizzard, but the explosion floored me. The only theory which in any way solved the mystery was that the old kettle was blown up by compressed air.

"You see, when the engine broke loose from the freight and started down the mountain the pistons in the cylinders began to act as air compressors. During the rough trip up her throttle probably jarred open, and as the speed increased with every revolution of her drivers her boiler soon filled with compressed air. It was not long before those flying pistons had worked up a pressure of nearly 500 pounds to the square inch, which came in faster than it could escape by the safety valve, and before the old machine reached Clear Creek her boiler let go."

Wanted to See the President.

The Washington Star says that a big, gawky country lad went to the White House the other day just as the president had gone out for a morning stroll.

"I wants ter see the president," he announced to the first man he met.

"Well, there goes the president now," said the man addressed, pointing to the president's retreating form.

"Durn my time!" the young man ejaculated. "He walks just like any other man," and the fellow struck out so that he could get close enough to see the president well.

Warwick castle is held by many to be the most beautiful seat in England. The large baronial hall is a magnificent room. It is decorated with the most perfect specimens of armor, furnished in a luxurious manner, and masses of flowers and large palms abound on every side.

DEADLY SNAKES.

Various Signs by Which Their Character May Be Recognized.

To distinguish between venomous and harmless snakes is easy in practice, but it is difficult to explain in words alone, as there is one external characteristic which distinguishes them. It is rather a peculiar, varying union of many separate marks that brands the dangerous reptile.

Generally speaking, all snakes may be divided into two great classes—those which have the head covered with numerous small scales and those which have it covered with large, regularly fitted plates. Leaving out the elipidæ and the poisonous sea snakes, with which the hunter will have nothing to do, all snakes with small head scales move about by night and those with the large plates on the head by day. This may be known by their eyes, for the first have vertical pupils like the cat's, while those of the latter are generally circular in form. The long, active day snake, gliding about from bush to bush or hurriedly taking refuge beneath some protruding rock or tree stump, is harmless. Even should he lie coiled in the sunshine he will flee from approaching danger. But a serpent nicely coiled in some secluded nook which instead of fleeing gathers himself closer together is most probably dangerous, particularly if he be more or less marked with a suggestion of irregular crossbars or whitish or dirty yellow and darker brown or blackish. This is the characteristic coloring of our most dangerous snakes, the rattler, the copperhead and the moccasin.

The following points embrace all the peculiarities of our American vipers, and the last two are especially noteworthy as the crowning proofs of venom:

(1) Moving about at dusk or by night, generally on the ground, and very rarely ascending trees or bushes. (2) Seldom flying in alarm, but rather coiling for defense. (3) Colors generally subdued in tint, with a semblance of irregular crossbars of lighter and darker shades. (4) Tail short, body stout, neck thin, head flat and very broad, especially behind. (5) Scales keeled—i. e., each scale has a ridge down the middle, which gives the skin a rough appearance like a rasp. (6) Head covered with small scales, sometimes larger over the eyes or nose. (7) Eyes with vertical pupils like a cat's. (8) Two pits or holes between the eyes and nose, suggesting four nostrils. (9) Two long, curved, perforated fangs in the upper jaw just in front of the eye, one on either side and so hinged that they lie backward, hidden from view in a membranous sheath, but erectile at will.

Some of the first seven peculiarities may be found in harmless snakes, but it is only in the vipers that they are united.—Outing.

How She "Guides" Them.

There is a jolly mother in Brooklyn who has several grown up sons boarding at home with her, and they declare she wants to "boss" them all the time, just as if they were children. She laughingly repudiates their charge and declares that she merely wishes to advise and guide them, but has long ago ceased to rule them. Here is an example of the way she "guides" them: At dinner the other night a big meat pie and a small roast duck were brought on together. The duck was intended for the father principally. The boys were death on duck, their mother well knew, but it would not make a mouthful apiece for them; so, addressing the boy who sat nearest her, she said, "Which will you have, Bobbie, duck or pie?" and at once began cutting the pie.

"Duck!" said Bobbie promptly.

"No, Bobbie," answered his mother cheerfully, "you can't have duck, dear. Take your choice, my son, take your choice, but you can't have duck!"—New York Tribune.

New Zealand Oddities.

The crow in New Zealand strikes as sweet a note as any heard in the woodland, says Henry D. Lloyd in The Atlantic. The robin has no song and no red breast; the native hen is the greatest of rat killers; there is a caterpillar which turns into a plant. These and some other productions of nature have done for New Zealand what the kangaroo and the ornithorhynchus have done for Australia—given it the suggestion of oddity and the marvelous. Rabbits and sweetbriers, introduced for pleasure, spread like wildfire, and it is an attraction to be duly advertised in the sale of land that it has been cleared of sweetbrier and fenced against rabbits, and then later the rabbit becomes a profit instead of a pest and is exported by millions to feed the English.

Amateur Photography.

Let me call attention to one of the most universally popular mistakes that have to do with photography—that of classing supposedly excellent work as professional and using the term amateur to convey the idea of immature productions and to excuse atrociously poor photographs. As a matter of fact nearly all the greatest work is being and has always been done by those who are following photography for the love of it, and not merely for financial reasons. As the name implies, an amateur is one who works for love, and viewed in this light the incorrectness of the popular classification is readily apparent.—Alfred Stieglitz in Scribner's.

Minnesota's First Book.

The Rev. S. W. Dickinson, an agent for the American Bible society, says that the first book printed in Minnesota was a Bible. It was printed in 1836, about 13 years before the first issue of a newspaper in St. Paul. The Bible was in the Ojibway language and was printed on the mission press at Lake Pokegama, Pine county, under the supervision of Rev. Mr. Ayer, who likewise had charge of the mission farm at that point.

Victim—Probably not. You see, it has all healed up now.—Melbourne Times.

Making Things Worse.

When a man gets nervous prostration, all his friends remind him how they warned him years ago.—Chicago Record.

Four Doctors Failed.

Think of a woman being sick and suffering six years when she might have been well all that time! Think of her taking the treatment of four doctors and getting no better. Think of the pain she endured—of the uselessness of her life in those six long, dreary, miserable years.

Think of the distress of a refined, modest woman during the useless examinations and treatment of four different doctors who each and all failed to give her any comfort.

Think of all this and then think that she was finally cured—completely, wholly, permanently cured right in the privacy of her home without the abhorrent "examinations" and local treatment so uniformly insisted upon by home physicians—cured just as she might have been six years before.

These are simply the facts in the case of Mrs. M. B. Wallace, of Muenster, Cook Co., Texas, who writes:

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness. I tried four doctors and none did me any good. I suffered six years, but at last I found relief. I followed your advice, and took four bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and eight of the 'Favorite Prescription.' I now feel like a new woman. I have gained eighteen pounds."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a medicine made for just one purpose—to cure disorders or diseases of the feminine organism. It is the only preparation of its kind introduced by a regularly graduated physican—a skilled specialist in the diseases of women, whose thirty years of successful practice are a guarantee of health to all sufferers who consult him.

Every woman may write fully and confidentially to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and may be sure that her case will receive careful, conscientious, confidential consideration, and that the best medical advice in the world will be given to her, absolutely free.

In addition to this free advice Dr. Pierce will send a paper-bound copy of his great 1,000-page book "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," to any one who will send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of customs and mailing. French cloth binding, 50 stamps.

A PLACE FOR ALL.

The brewers should to Malta go, the boobies all to Scilly;
The Quakers to the Friendly Isles, the furriers to Chili;
The little, crying, caroling babes, that break our nightly rest,
Should be packed off to Babylon, to Lapland or to Brest.
To Spithead cooks go or to Greece, and while the miser waits
His passage to the Guinea coast, spendthrifts are in the Straits.

Spinsters should to the Needles go, winebibbers to Burgundy,
Gourmands to lunch at Sandwich Isles, wags to the Bay of Fundy,
Bachelors to the United States, maids to the Isle of Man;
Let gardeners go to Botany Bay and shoeblacks to Japan.
Thus emigrate and misplaced men would then no longer vex us,
And all who are not provided for had better go to Texas.

MEN OF ALL AGES

PETERBOROUGH IN 1876

A FEW LIVE ITEMS TAKEN FROM THE TIMES OF 24 YEARS AGO.

The Ryan Murder and the Pathetic Scenes Connected therewith — Dr. Harvey makes a wonderful Catch.

On July 29 Dr. Harvey, a noted fisherman of that day, caught a 50 pound 'lunge at Buckhorn. The fish was weighed in the presence of Wm. Hall and John Ludgate, and measured six feet one inch in length.

In the Times of August 5th is the notice of the appointment of Mr. Jas. Stratton (father of Hon. J. R. Stratton) to the position of Collector of Customs. Mr. Stratton succeeded Mr. Chas. Perry, deceased.

On Monday, July 31 Mr. Robert Michalls asked the Council to furnish outdoor relief to the unemployed. Councillor Taggart moved that the application be received, and the Clerk was instructed to reply that the best solution of the subject would be for Mr. Michalls to build and endow a poor house.

At a target practice of the local volunteer companies held on the 7th of August I notice the following: Sergt. J. W. Miller made the highest score, 44 points out of a possible 60, thus carrying off the N.Y. gold medal for the second time. Sergt. Miller is now Major of the 57th.

The Times evidently did its duty in 1876 as fearlessly as it does now. I notice the following in the issue of Sept. 23rd: Lindsay Post—"The Times is just now criticising municipal matters with great vigor and fearlessness. It charges Mayor Toole with abandoning the dignity of his high office and occupying a subordinate place while others rule the roost."

I noticed the following startling paragraph: "Mr. Wm. Lech accidentally shot himself in the leg while cleaning a revolver." This wasn't our own Billy, however, who was never known to shoot anything, not even when he goes to the lakes.

In September Mr. Edward Clegg, father of Mr. Sam Clegg, purchased the Ontario Flour Mills from Munroe & Dawson. The latter is the father of Mr. Ed. Dawson, of the Canadian Express Co.

On the evening of Monday, May 8th, 1876, about 8 o'clock, a terrible tragedy was committed. James Ryan, a tanner, stabbed his wife to death in a drunken fit. Ryan lived just where Dr. Beatty's office now stands, on Simcoe street, in a frame house. Ryan was a well-to-do tanner, his tannery being in the rear of the house (the identical building that was lately used as a moulding shop for the Lock Works). He took a long tanner's knife and went from the tannery into the house and stabbed his wife through the heart as the poor woman was sitting at a sewing machine. The injured woman ran screaming into McDonald's hotel (now the C.P.R.) and dropped dead on the floor of the dining room of the hotel. Ryan was immediately arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to death, but was subsequently pardoned. A thrilling incident connected with this horrible affair took place just before the coffin lid was fastened down. The friends and relatives of the murdered woman were there in force when Ryan, who was undergoing a preliminary trial before Coroner Kincaid, asked to be allowed to visit his home and see the dead body of his wife. Permission was granted, and he walked over, accompanied by Chief Constable Johnston and a Times representative. When he entered the room where the dead lay, women screamed and fainted and men turned pale. He stepped up to the side of the coffin and gazed steadily on the face of his victim for a couple of minutes with tearless eyes and expressionless face. Then he stooped forward and kissed the cold lips twice, turned around, and without looking to the right or to the left, walked out and over to the Council Chamber, where the examination was under way. Ryan was defended by Hon. John Hillyard Cameron. After being sentenced to death the sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life. He was pardoned after about five years, strong influence, religious and otherwise, being used in his behalf. Amongst those who gave evidence at the trial were Messrs. James Stevenson, J. I. Davidson (Auburn Woollen Co.), J. Sherlock (bookkeeper at R. Neill's), Wm. Helen.

At a special meeting of the Town Council, held on October 16, at which Mr. J. H. Stratton acted as clerk, a petition was ordered to be presented to the Governor General in Council, praying for the commutation of the death sentence of James Ryan.

A paragraph appeared in the Times of October 21, stating that a bear had been killed on the farm of Mr. James Davidson Smith, by Mr. T. E. Fitzgerald. This was the plantation on which our genial and ever smiling townsman, Mr. R. S. Davidson, J. P. first saw the light of day.

On October 23 a petition bearing 1500 signatures was forwarded to the Minister of Justice, asking for the commutation of the death sentence of Jas. Ryan.

On Monday, October 30, 1876, the iron horse made its first appearance in Kinmount, the Victoria Railway having been completed to that point from Lindsay.

On Nov. 11, General Tom Thumb, Barnum's dwarf, was in Peterborough and while passing along George street, stopped to have a chat with Mr. Jas. Hogan, a man seven feet tall. It is not often that such extremes meet. They condoled with each other on the unequal way in which the world is divided, and it would seem that they had some reason to complain.

Bradburn's new Opera House was opened on Monday, Nov. 13, by the Ada Gray Company.

On November 18 Mr. Thomas Menzies consented to stand for Mayor against Mayor Toole, in compliance with a well-signed requisition signed by Messrs. W. Claxton, J. J. Lundy, Chas. Ormond, Wm. Walsh, Wm Fairweather, Isaac Robinson, W. J. Ferguson, Alex. Betham, J. T. Stenson, J. W. Miller, R. Kingan, Thos. Eastland, D. D. Galletly, John Erskine, A. Baptie, Geo. Claxton, F. Lemay, J. P. Metheral, Dr. Burnham, Dr. Boucher, H. LeBrun, Wm. Hamilton, J. T. Henthorn, J. P., and many others.

A notice appears in the Times of Nov. 25 of the late J. H. Rober's appointment to the management of the Bank of Toronto, succeeding Mr. J. Murray Smith, promoted.

A meeting was held on Tuesday evening, November 5, in Bradburn's Opera House, to organize for carrying the Dunkin Act. It was presided over by Mr. James Stratton.

SCAVENGER OF THE VELDT.

The Aasvogel, Which Keeps the Wide Plains Clean.

Although the term "vulture" has been used for all time as a term of the vilest opprobrium, no one who knows the bird, its appearance and its habits could doubt for a moment that it expresses a depth of degradation which is barely conceivable.

And yet the vulture does a great deal of good in acting as the scavenger of the veldt. But for his quick eye, carrion taste and love of dead meat the disease germs in the carcasses of dead oxen would be far more prolific and dangerous.

Throughout South Africa is found the aasvogel. Go anywhere you like on the veldt, and sooner or later—and in all probability the former—you will find the remains of his ghastly meal. There are hundreds of thousands of oxen used in the transport and trekking service. Many of them die from exhaustion, want of water or cruelty from their Boer masters. Or they may eat of the poisonous tulp, a bulbous plant growing in marshy places.

A kurneyor, or teamster, soon knows if any one or more of his oxen have been eating tulp. The neck of the ox swells, his eyes close up, he gives short, sharp coughs, and his case is generally hopeless. Sometimes, however, he may be saved, and this by a peculiar, homeopathic sort of remedy. If the bulb of the tulp plant is crushed into pulp, mashed with hot water and forced boiling hot down the throat of the ox he may recover.

The quickness of the eye of the aasvogel is simply astounding. An ox falls out of the team, evidently ill. He is outspanned from his yoke fellow, and he goes down to the spruit, or stream. The sky above and away to the horizon on all sides is absolutely clear and cloudless.

Hardly has the breath left the body of the poor ox than you may observe far, far away up in the sky a tiny black speck, then another and another and another, until there are 20 of them. Gradually they get larger and larger, circling round in ever diminishing circles all the while they descend. The dead ox forms the center of the circumference of their flight. Within a few minutes the grisly horde swoop down upon the still warm beast and commence their ghoulish task.

An hour afterward there is nothing in the spruit but a bundle of bleached white bones that might have been there for months. The sky is clear and speckless again. The aasvogel has scavenged the veldt.

Whittier's Predicament.

Whittier held "Gail Hamilton" (Abigail Dodge) in the highest esteem, and the letters that passed between them are really most delightful. Here is one of the series in The Ladies' Home Journal that is truly characteristic of Whittier. It was written in 1888:

"I must tell thee something droll. Last week the Amoskeag veterans from New Hampshire and a Massachusetts company, with military bands, came and paraded before our house, and Governor Smyth of New Hampshire and one or two officers called on me. When they left and I stepped out to see them civilly off, the men in epaulets got up a grand military salute, with music and three cheers to wind up with! Was ever a Quaker in such a predicament? I did, I fear, somewhat compromise myself by lifting, almost involuntarily, my hand to my hat. But I resisted the temptation and only pulled my hat lower down over my brows by way of testimony."

A Renegade Canadian.

Detroit, Feb. 15.—At a pro-Boer meeting held in the Turkish room of the Hotel Cadillac last night to arrange for a counter-demonstration to that recently made by the Canadian-American Club in the Chamber of Commerce building about thirty citizens were present.

The most notable utterance was that of Dr. Kenneth Gunsolus, who explained that he was born and reared in Canada, received a military education in the Canadian military school, and fought on the side of the Canadians at the time of the Fenian Raid. Continuing, Dr. Gunsolus said: — "I was a loyal Canadian, and now, after living in this country for several years, I am just as loyal an American."—Applause.

"To-day if I were called upon to select sides in the British-Boer war I would select the side of the Boers. If Buller ever goes to Pretoria I hope he will walk between Boer guards. If he ever eats a Christmas dinner or any other dinner in Pretoria I hope it will be in the stockade or in the jail."—Applause.

Her Spring Trip.

London, Feb. 15.—It is stated that if the war news is favorable, as is expected, the Queen will take a trip to France this spring as usual.

Strathcona's Cavalry.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—The first section of Strathcona's Horse arrived here at 9 o'clock this morning, and consisted of 206 men. As they passed to their temporary barracks at the Exhibition grounds, they appeared to be as good a body of men as the former Northwest contingent. They will be uniformed here, and before they leave it is probable that the whole body will parade and be inspected on Parliament Hill.

THE PRO-BOER VOTE IN THE U.S. SENATE

The Resolution was Passed While the Members Were Asleep.

HAS BEEN RE-INTRODUCED

And Sent to a Committee Where It Will Undoubtedly Perish—Canada and the United States in British Markets.

By Telegraph From the Times Correspondent.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The passage of a pro-Boer resolution in the Senate on Saturday last may be a cause of reproach to that body but cannot be considered as of any significance to the world at large. Those who have watched the sleepy way in which legislative bodies consider routine business will readily understand the situation Senator Allen, of Nebraska, a populist, who is always introducing resolutions on every subject in the world and out of it, asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of a resolution which he sent to the clerk's desk. There were not more than a dozen Senators present and all of them were engrossed in other business and apparently none of them heard it read. It ran as follows: "That the United States of America extends its sympathy to the people of the South African Republic in their heroic struggle for liberty and popular government and believes it to be the duty of the Government of the United States of America to offer mediation to the end that further bloodshed may be averted and an honorable peace may be concluded between the belligerent Governments." The President of the Senate put the question and no one bothered to vote in the negative while Senator Allen voted in the affirmative. There was no one to call attention to the absence of a quorum and the President was forced to declare the resolution adopted. The next moment, some of the other Senators woke up and began to raise objections. But the resolution was passed and all that could be done was to ask its reconsideration. This was done, reconsideration was ordered and the resolution was sent to a committee, where it will undoubtedly perish.

The Kentucky Troubles.

The popular mind in this country was diverted from the Boer war by the troubles in Kentucky, and does not readily fly back now that the latter are at an end. It has pretty well settled down to the opinion that the British are bound to win in the end but that the end is a long way off. Meanwhile a good many papers are asking on what grounds the Canadians send their soldiers to aid in the war for the South African Uitlanders, while they are passing legislation to exclude other Uitlanders from the British Columbia gold mines at Atlin.

Colonial Soldiers.

Criticisms of the British soldier as compared with the colonials are also heard. J. J. Sommenbeg, a London wholesale tobacco dealer, who is in this city, has called attention to his. He says:

"The British soldiers all look very puny and weak, compared with American and Canadian soldiers. I have just returned from England, and while there, saw some of the soldiers going to the front. They were very ill looking. I asked a military man about it, and he told me that the physical requirements for the English army had been reduced three times within the past few years. The Highland regiments are now made up of about one-quarter or more cockneys. These soldiers are not the same grade of men physically that formerly made up these regiments."

Canada vs. U. S.

The farmers of the United States are beginning to take notice of the way in which the Canadians are driving them out of the British market for butter. In 1897 the average exports of butter from Canada to the English market were 392,000 lbs. per month; in 1898 the average was 616,000 lbs. per month. In August, 1899, the tremendous total was recorded of 1,624,-000 lbs., or 52,387 lbs. of butter per day. The butter is said to be prepared especially for export, brings a high price, and the demand for it seems almost unlimited. United States butter makers are watching the situation with concern.

Electrical Industries.

Consul Brush, at Niagara Falls, Ont., writes to the Department of State as follows:

"Electrical industries in Canada have fully shared in the prosperity now felt throughout the Dominion. The volume of business for 1899 exceeded by upwards of 75 per cent. that for 1898. More than half the output of these companies was applied to the extension and improvement of existing plants, the bulk of the machinery sold being for lighting and power purposes.

"Improvement and development have been quite as marked in the commercial as in the mechanical field. The workshops of the electrical manufacturing companies are said to be crowded with orders to such an extent that no promise of delivery at a specified time can be made, and prices are firmly maintained."

Miller's Arrest.

William F. Miller, the ostensible head of the Franklin Syndicate of New York, which duped thousands of credulous people into believing that they would get 520 per cent. on their money if they placed it in the hands of Miller's concern, has returned to New York and surrendered himself for trial. He has been in Canada since he disappeared, spending most of his time at Montreal.

The New Gold Fields.

United States Consul Morrison, at Dawson City, reports to the State Department that it is now generally accepted that the route to Cape Nome, via Dyea and Dawson, will bring the traveler to his destination fully four weeks earlier than by the sea route. Sea captains assert that spring floods drive the ice out of the Yukon River and away from the shore lines as far north as Cape Nome a full month earlier than the pack ice, which shuts out vessels from the South in Behring Sea goes out.

TRY, TRY AGAIN.

Type of an Impromptu Topical Song as sung in London.

Tommy Atkins will again advance,
  And try try again.
He'll lead the Boers a blooming dance
  When he tries again.
On to rescue General White;
In Ladysmith he's shut in tight;
Show them, Tommy, how you fight,
  When you try again.

If at first you don't get there,
  Try try again;
Don't lose courage, don't despair,
  But try, try again.
Buller knows what he's about,
He'll put the enemy all to route,
And turn the burghers inside out
  When he tries again.

Then for your country and you Queen
  Try, try again.
Don't let them say its clearly seen.
  When you try again
That British soldiers were too slow
To tumble to Kruger's little go—
He's only a blooming Boer you know—
  So try, try again.

Give them shot and give them shell,
  When you try again.
And with the bayonet you use so well
  Try, try again.
Though the fight may cost you dear,
You will conquer, never fear,
Then go home and get good cheer—
  Try, try again.

Now just a word to all Pro-Boers—
  Try, try again.
In all of England's little wars
  She'll try, try again.
And when old Kruger's had his pill,
And of fighting has had his fill,
He won't forget Majuba Hill
  Nor, try try again.

THE WRONG RECORD.

A Stupid Young Man Who Couldn't See the Point of a Friendly Hint.

"No, thank goodness, he isn't calling here any more!" exclaimed the pretty girl in blue with a stamp of her foot. "I verily believe that that young man wouldn't take a hint if it were willed to him with $50,000 in government bonds attached! As a shining example of what a wooden automaton would be in a trance he is a distinct success.

"He called here the other evening, as he has been doing for some time, and I thought I would see if I could awaken a little enthusiasm in him. I turned the conversation around to Hobson and asked him if he wouldn't like a chance to equal Hobson's record.

"'Wouldn't I!' he exclaimed, with glowing face, 'just think of his taking that boat in there and sinking her without losing a man!'

"That settled it! I yawned in his face and looked at the clock, and slowly but positively froze that young man outdoors. If by any chance he should ever call here again I'll call the police!"

Plum Pudding Plentiful.

A letter has been received from Mr. Joe Matthews, written to a friend in Lindsay, who is with the first contingent which was then at Belmont. On Christmas they had lots of plum puddings, but chickens were evidently scarce, one solitary bird being served amongst fifteen.

STRANGE AMERICAN LAWS.

Those in the District of Columbia Are a Queer Conglomeration.

The laws of the District of Columbia, says a writer, are a curious conglomeration of antiquity and modern times. First came the old common law of England, which was adapted to colonial times; then the laws of Maryland and Virginia, which apply only to those sections of the District of Columbia which were part of those States respectively; then the statutes that from time to time were enacted by the Legislature of the district when we had suffrage here and by the municipal Common Council; laws that have since been enacted by Congress; and finally regulations adopted by the District Commissioners. As a result of this state of affairs there is great confusion and contradiction and the courts have had to be very arbitrary. Many laws are intentionally and others unwittingly violated every day, and there are some curious customs and regulations regarding proceedings in court which do not prevail in any other part of the country. For example, the law provides that "every juror shall be entitled to 30 pounds of tobacco per diem, and every full panel shall receive 120 pounds of tobacco upon giving a verdict in any cause, the same to be paid by the party in whose favor the verdict is rendered."

Tobacco was a recognized standard of value, and 30 pounds represented a very fair per diem compensation for a juror, even more than the $2 which he receives to-day, particularly when he got a bonus of 10 pounds at the end of a trial. This law was passed in 1715. Some years later it was discovered that litigants were taking advantage of it to bribe the juries, and in 1719 the law was amended by adding a provision that any person who should give the members of a jury more than 30 pounds a day should be severely punished.

Along in the course of time—the old lawyers say about the beginning of the war—when tobacco ceased to be a circulating medium, it became the practice to pay the jurors in money, and that has continued until the present day, and so an allowance of $2 is made them, although under the law they can claim the tobacco if they prefer it. This is probably the only place in the country where the compensation of the jury is paid by the successful litigant.

Another rule in force in the district is that the unsuccessful litigant in civil actions shall pay the fee of the opposing counsel; the sum is limited to $20 and it is regularly charged up by the clerk of the court and is collected by him.

Lost 2,000,000 in War Alone.

A statistician of Venezuela has just made public an interesting fact regarding the population of that country. His figures show that in the past 96 years Venezuela has lost 2,000,000 of its inhabitants in war alone, and he predicts that if such losses continue the republic in another century will be in the control of a foreign nation whose people are settling there.

To-day Venezuela has a population of about 2,000,000. Beginning with the war for independence in 1810, it is figured that more than 150,000 Venezuelans met their death in that struggle. Then in the five years' civil war, which began in 1866, another 50,000 men were killed. The other losses that make up the 2,000,000 occurred in the many revolutions which have continued to the month of October last, when another rebellion was started.

Of the foreigners in Venezuela the Germans predominate, and if the revolutions which have so greatly reduced the population continue for another hundred years it will be no difficult task for the German inhabitants, who increase at a greater rate than the natives, to acquire control of the country by reason of their greater numbers.

Cobourg After It Also.

A deputation has been appointed by Cobourg to wait on the Minister of Railways and Canals, to urge the claims of Cobourg for the outlet of the Trent Valley Canal. The deputation will consist of the Warden of the County, the Mayor of Cobourg and several of the leading citizens of the town. Are there any more towns along the front that want the canal? If so they had better speak up quickly, or forever hold their peace.

Off For the War.

Mr. Chas. N. Brown received intelligence that his youngest brother, Mr. A. S. Brown has received the appointment of Quarter-Master Sergeant in connection with the Strathcona Horse. Mr. Brown is an old member of the 57th Battalion and at present is a member of the Dragoons at Nelson, B. C., where he has resided for some time. It is 16 years since he left Peterborough, but he was home on a visit about 6 years ago.

C. P. R. Immigration Literature.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has just issued two excellent immigration pamphlets for 1900—"Western Canada" and "British Columbia"—which contain a great deal of useful and accurate information about the country west of Lake Superior, and are of special interest in the Canadian North-west or British Columbia. Large editions of these pamphlets are distributed gratuitously in Great Britain and the United States, as well as throughout the Dominion, and are eagerly read by those who are seeking a new home and desire to know something of the best country in the world in which to find one.

Mr. Heap's Accident.

The many friends of Mr. George Heap, who was so severely injured in the Times' pressroom on Thursday, will be pleased to know that he is doing nicely, and there is a good chance of saving the hand. The doctors are hopeful that amputation will not be necessary, as the main artery of the wrist is not injured. He passed a fairly good day yesterday, although suffering considerable pain. The wound, although at the wrist, broke the tendons of the arm at the elbow. The arm had to be opened up, and these tendons fastened together. George's host of friends will be pleased to hear that the outlook is so favorable.

Larkin, St. Catharines, Government contractor, and J. Alex. Culverwell, Toronto, Electrical Engineer, managing owner Burleigh Falls power.

Mr. Culverwell, the promotor, is evidently determined to carry the scheme through, and judging from the names of those interested. he has made good progress.

Frightfully Burned.

A sad accident occurred to a Lakefield young lady now residing in Deseronto, named Mrs. John Smith, daughter of Mrs. E. Morin, of Lakefield. It appears that on Monday last she threw what she thought was coal oil on the fire to make it burn, it having gone down. The can contained wood alcohol, which her husband had been using for a particular purpose. The fire exploded the can, covering her with burning liquid. Her husband, hearing her screams, ran to her assistance and tried to smother the flames, and was also badly burned about the hands and face. His brother, who was near by, ran in and snatched the heavy quilt off a bed and succeeded in extinguishing the flames. Mrs. Smith was in fearful agony, her neck, right arm and hand, abdomen and lower limbs being burned in a terrible manner. The force of the fire can be estimated when it is considered that all her clothing was burned off, including her corsets and woolen underwear. When she was raised from the floor, great masses of flesh fell from her arm and hand. Dr. Passmore was called immediately and he done all that could be done to alleviate her sufferings. At first it was hardly thought she could recover, but at present he holds out a faint hope of her life being saved. The woodwork and curtains in the room were set on fire, but Mr. Wm. Smith put out the blaze without having to call the department.

Double Trading Stamps.

For the next few days double trading stamps will be given at the Times Bookstore. Our stock of fancy goods will be cleared out at cost to make room for fresh importations.

Mr. Smith's Opinion.

The British lion is a great growler. However, it may all come right in the end and the spanking received will make a more modest and better old cuss out of John Bull. In the meantime bring in your cordwood to Peterborough and get $4.50 per cord f. o. b. (free on the banks) for it. In Peterborough the people spend their best moments in sitting on the pavements which have been very slippery. Many people go round with cushions in their garments where they will be most serviceable. Indignation is general. Bill Brighton says that the Boers are a Boer lot. William, you know, was a great wit 40 or 50 years ago. He said a man told him that the British ought to get behind the Boers. Yes, so I have heard. Give us an article on the peat industry, can't you? That will soon be a burning topic.

Destroyed her Eyesight.

Mrs. Martin McGivern who resides on Murray street, met with an accident a few days ago which may deprive her of her eyesight. She had been mixing some quicksilver with some acids, when the bottle exploded, and the contents got into her eyes. She at once lost her eyesight. Medical aid was summoned, and everything possible is being done to restore her sight.

Orillia Cheap Power and Light.

Here is something for Peterborough to ponder over.

After much discussion the terms which will be offered to new industries wishing to locate in Orillia were settled as follows: For a term of five years, light at $1 per incandescent light per year; power, $5 per horse power for every $300 paid out in wages annually, exclusive of management, up to 50 horse power, over which amount $13.50 per h.p. will be charged. If wages paid out only entitles factories to a less quantity than 50 h.p. the surplus used will also be charged at rate of $13.50 per h.p.; above figures to include water for drinking and fire protection purposes. For the second five year term the price of power will be increased to $7.50 per h.p.

Patriotic Entertainment.

Westlake's busses will run from the Post Office corner, leaving at 7.30 sharp, to accomodate any Peterborough people that want to go.

Will Probably Remain.

A letter was received yesterday from Corporal Percy Price, of the second contingent, now at Halifax, by his mother, stating that the boys were having a good time. They were being feted and royally entertained by the citizens of Halifax. "The Little Corporal" said that several horses belonging to his company had the distemper so bad that he feared the company would not embark on the first vessel. This would mean a delay of a couple of weeks or so. The boys are all anxious to get away.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

There will be some justification for the kicking we hear from different towns if the O.H.A. does not mend its rules. At a meeting held at the beginning of the season, the schedule was made up, and at the same time a new rule was made for the senior teams. The rule was that goals should no longer be a factor, but the club winning the majority of home and home games should be winners of each district. The clubs were then put in groups of three or four each; but in the junior and intermediate series the clubs were placed in pairs and the number of goals made in two games was to decide the round. The fact of putting all the junior clubs in groups of two showed that the paragraph on page 16 of the O.H.A. rules was to govern these contests. The referee, then, had no right to force our Colts to play after the game was over. The executive has to decide the question, but as the referee's decision was entirely in conflict with the rule above mentioned no one will be a loser by his decesion. There should be no trouble in the executive coming to a decision in favor of Peterborough.

What Does it Mean?

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—I am patiently waiting the action of the Council in regard to the Dalhousie Bridge matter. What can the Council mean by shilly-shallying with this matter? Their Engineer said that the bridge would cost $1700 and the Evans & Langford want nearly double that sum.

Mr. Denne, I understand, aspires to the position of Mayor next year. Let me tell him that if he allows this bill to be paid, it will tell against him. Either our Engineer is incompetent or the bill is a huge overcharge. Which is it? What means this delay?

The fact of the matter is the town has no use for a high-priced engineer. There should be an overseer of roads who knows how to go about his work. It is time for a change. Yours,

GEN. BULLER PREPARES TO STRIKE

BRITISH TROOPS STILL PURSUE FLYING BOERS

Kelly-Kenny Has Now Captured More Than One Hundred Supply Wagons.

UNCONFIRMED RUMOR OF CRONJE'S CAPTURE.

The Steamer Laurentian With First Artillery Section of the Second Canadian Contingent on Board Reaches the Cape.

Dr. Jrmeson Down With Fever.

Jacobsdal, Feb. 17.

General Kelly-Kenny is still pursuing the Boers. He has now captured more than 100 wagons.

The Highland Brigade reinforced him after a forced march.

General French has left Kimberley to join in the pursuit of the Boer army.

The Guards have occupied the Boer positions at Magersfontein.

Frere Camp, Feb. 16.

The Boers have abandoned several laagers. General Buller renewed bombardment of the Boer position without getting a reply. Another forward move is regarded as imminent.

London, Feb. 18.

Rumors have been in circulation at the clubs and elsewhere in London this evening that General Cronje with an army of 7,000 has been captured.

Apparently they emanted from the continent. No confirmation of them can be obtained here.

London, Feb. 18.—12 p.m.

The War Office has announced that it has no news from South Africa.

Ladysmith, Saturday, Feb. 17. — By heliograph, via Weenan.

The Boers have been very active here during the past few days and are evidently making a move somewhere.

The garrison is greatly delighted to learn of the relief of Kimberley and is in excellent spirits and fit for anything.

Cape Town, Feb. 17.

The British steamer Laurentia, Capt. Milnan, which sailed from Halifax, January 21, with the first artillery section of the second Canadian contingent of troops for service against the Boers reached this port to-day. The troops were welcomed by Major John Hanbury Williams, military secretary to the Governor of Cape Colony and British High Commissioner, Sir Alfred Milner on behalf of his excellency.

Ladysmith, Thursday, Feb. 15. — By heliograph and native runner via Chieveley.

Dr. Jamieson has the fever. The heat is tremendous, but the morale of the camp is excellent. Major Deveton's wife who was given a safe conduct through the Boer lines has arrived here to nurse her husband.

Ladysmith, Feb. 17.—By heliograph, via Weenan.

Major Doveton died on Wednesday, Feb. 14.

Birds River, Feb. 17.

General Brabants Horse, 2,000 strong, commenced the march from Penhoek, Thursday morning over a track less veldt and through a mountainous and difficult country.

On Friday they were fired on and the firing kept up all day and well into the night, the British cleaning the Boers out of successive positions under a terrific rifle fire lasting eight hours.

Toward midnight Friday the British forced the Boers at the point of the bayonet, out of their position, an important one overlooking Dordreicht. The artillery duel was continued to-day.

The British casualties were eight killed, including Captain Cralian and Lieut. Chandler, and eight wounded.

The British captured some prisoners and a quantity of forage and provisions.

Jacobsdal, Orange Free State, Feb. 17

Further details of the Boer retreat show that the enemy has been fighting a good, rear guard action and occupying successive kopjes in order to allow the moving of the convoy, which, however, has been goin gon at a very slow pace, the animals being apparently dead beat. The latest reports show that the Boers in the neighborhood of Klip Kraals are undoubtedly disheartened.

General French's magnificent march is still the subject of admiration, especially in view of the dust storm that all experienced.

The work of shelling the Boers proceeded vigorously. Owing to the style of action the Boers are bound to show in the open whenever they are obliged to leave the kopjes.

Chieveley, Sunday, Feb. 17th

General Buller has established headquarters on Hussar Hill. Heavy artillery firing was maintained at intervals by both sides from Wednesday until Friday. The British slowly pushed the advance and their infantry entrenched new positions in front of Hussar Hill with slight loss.

It is believed the lyddite worked havoc in the Boer trenches. The Boers are supposed to have removed their big guns back over the Tugela. The rifle fire has been very heavy at times. The whole country is thickly wooded. The British operations are directed to the capture of Hlangwana Hill, where the Boers are strongly fortified and from which they are shelling the British with great accuracy. The British infantry are now disposed along a line extending for seven miles to the small kopjes at the base of Monte Cristo Hill. From six o'clock Friday morning the British incessantly shelled Monte Cristo with the nek separatin git from Blaankrantz Hill on the right. The British infantry is making slow progress up the nek in endeavor to occupy Monte Cristo, which will enable them to enfilade the Boers on Hlangwano.

Buller's casualties during the last three days' operations have been about eight. The British forces have now probably ascended Monte Cristo Hill.

Bird's River, Saturday, Feb. 17

The position near Dordreicht now is that the Boers occupy a strong hill north of the town and that the British hold a commanding position to the south.

Both are maintaining a firing of shells over Dordreicht.

CRONJE IN RETREAT.

London, Feb. 17.—Cronje is in full retreat; French has dined in Kimberley; Roberts and Kitchener are harrasing the flying enemy; ere long the ubiquitous victor of Elandslaagte retracing his march, may dash with his ten thousand horsemen among their disorganized ranks and cut them to pieces. The lines of Magersfontein, held since December 11, against the flower of the Queen's soldiers, are abandoned. The path to Kimberley is clear. The Boer campaign fo the Modder has collapsed and if the enemy can be intercepted upon the open plains which lie on his route to Kimberley, the backbone of his resistance will be broken and the war of 1899-1900 near its conclusion.

Never in military history have movements been attended with such prompt and splendid results. The vigor and intrepidity of Roberts with the organizing ability of Kitchener are visible in every part of the sudden blow which has been dealt the Boers. On Saturday last the formidable kopjes north of the Modder appeared as impenetrable as ever. To-day British patrols are among them unchallenged.

The full story of Roberts' strategy can now be told, though its results are not not entirely developed. The ride of French through the Boer communications; the movement of three divisions of British infantry in support, their converging advance toward the Boer position, with slight intervals between; the abandonment of that position, are momentous events which have been compressed into a week. The story of General Cronje's adroit and bold attempt to withdraw his force through the gradually closing intervals of the advancing British columns has yet to be told. Upon the success or non-success of this intrepid tactical move depends the scene of the decisive action which must be fought shortly.

Should the Boer general, th ebest that the Republic has, be able to accomplish so masterly a retreat, he will have earned the right to compare his act with the best deeds of Wallenstein, Tilly and Napoleon. In such case he would make for Blomfontein, nearly a hundred miles away and would there be besieged by the British after, in all probability, having effected a junction with General Joubert, who is now bound to fall back from Natal. If he should fail his army, would be caught in open country and dispersed, mayhap cut to pieces, with th eloss of all its baggage, guns and stores.

Indications are that such will be the culmination of British strategy. The genius of Roberts and Kitchener will undoubtedly have foreseen the retreat and formed plans to intercept it, preventing the junction of the two Boer armies and defeat them in detail. The fact that Kitchener is in hot pursuit of the retreating enemy with his old pertinacity supports this view. The conqueror of the Soudan with 20,000 men is hanging in the rear of the discomfited enemy. The Ninth Division, under Gen. Colville, and including the Canadian contingent, is moving up rapidly in support. Already Cronje has been [illegible] to halt, his beasts of burden having proved unequal to the tremendous pressure of a forced march. Around the laager which he has formed in the neighborhood of Paarde Berg will probably be fought a decisive battle, under the personal direction of Kitchener himself.

Kelly-Kenny, who is in charge of one of Kitchener's two divisions, has had a running fight with the Boer rear guard, and has captured 78 wagons loaded with valuable war material. The impossibility of defending his remaining transport while on the march has undoubtedly induced Cronje to turn at bay. Even now the shelling of his position is going on, and by the time it is finished the Ninth division, with the Canadians, will have come up, and he will be surrounded by 40,000 men so that the escape of the Boers would be a miracle stamping their general as a genius.

It is true that some of his men have retreated by different routes to the northwest or, north-east, but General French will look after these, and they have small chance of escape.

MACDONALD AT KOODOOSBERG.

London, Feb. 17.—The Boers, though retreating from Magersfontein, are active elsewhere. A special despatch from Orange River, dated Friday, Feb. 16, says they are attempting to cut the British lines of communication at Gras Pan. But it is said they are not likely to effect a serious result, though they are undoubtedly making a strenuous effort to cut the British lines to the Aar.

On the other hand comes the news that General Macdonald has again occupied Koudburgh. What precautions Lord Roberts has adopted against counter-attack are not yet known, but that the War Office and the public are thoroughly convinced that he is fully able to cope with all contingencies, and that if it is within human possibility he will inflict the defeat on Gen. Cronje that is so much more important than the relief of Kimberley, brilliant as was the latter achievement.

While General Kelly-Kenny's—or rather Gen. Kitchener's—despatch referred to the Boer rear guard as being General Cronje's it is still doubtful if that general is personally with it, and it is possible he may be employing more than one line of retreat.

LORD ROBERTS MAY WIN A DUKEDOM.

General Kitchener Seems Destined to Attatn the Position of Commander-in-Chief of Brittsh Army and to Reorganize the Forces.

London, Feb. 17.—The western border has been cleared by Lord Roberts' first stroke, since the relief of Kimberley carries that of Mafeking with it and secures the control of Barkly West district and Bechuanaland.

"Bobs'," halting in triumph at Jacobsdal, before turning eastward, is in a fair way to win a Dukedom, if he goes on without a check or reverse to Bloemfontein and Pretoria.

A Coming Commander-in-Chief.

Nor ought Lord Kitchener to be left out of view. He has transformed a British force, which was tied up to the railways into an army remarkable for its mobility, with a system of flying transport, and if all goes well he seems destined to attain the position of Commander-in-Chief and to reorganize the military forces of the British Empire. Lord Salisbury's intimate friends assert that this is what he intends as a sequel to the successful war, and that this was in the Prime Minister's mind when he sent Lord Kitchener to South Africa.

Lord Salisbury has considered Lord Kitchener the greatest organizer in the military service and expects that he will ultimately revolutionize both the War Office and the military system Prominence for Colonials.

One feature of Lord Roberts' campaign is the prominence which he gives to the colonial forces. It recalls his remark made at the Queen's Jubilee, when he was at the head of the colonial contingents, that he hoped to have them under his command if he were ever called upon to take the field Brigadier-General Brabant, who now leads a strong colonial mounted force under General French, has been a prominent figure in Cape politics, and founded the South African League, which took up the Uitlander's petition from Johannesburg. He has had a long experience in South African warfare, and is a wide-awake, bronzed veteran.

Another colonial officer whom Lord Roberts has honored with his confidence is Colonel Schermbrucker, the last survivor of the once famous German Legion, raised for service in the Crimea, but conveyed to South Africa in 1856 to assist in colonizing the eastern province of Cape Colony. He represents King Williamstown in the Cape Parliament.

WILL EFFECT A JUNCTION.

London, Feb. 17.—The Chronicle also has the following despatch from Wegedlies, undated, via Modder River, Feb. 16 morning—

"General Kelly-Kenny, with the sixth division, has entered Jacobsdal. The Boers made a feeble attempt to hold the eastern ridges, but were outflanked by the mounted infantry and retired. There were few British casualties. The division then evacuated Jacobsdal, marching north in the track of French's cavalry, which crossed the Modder river and engaged the enemy, who retired with heavy losses.

"The seventh division crossed the Riet River east of Koffeyfontein and drove the enemy before them.

"General Tucker is now on Gen. Kelly-Kenny's right and probably will effect a junction with his force. The enemy is retiring. The ninth division, under Gen. Colville, is in the rear of the sixth division. The enemy so far has made no determined stand.

"We have captured thousands of stock."

BULLER KEEPS BOERS MOVING.

Head Laager, Ladysmith, Feb. 14.—The The British from Chieveley have been bombarding the Boer forces at Blaauw Krantz, east of Colenso, since yesterday afternoon, the bombardment continuing throughout the night. The Boers responded with litle fire. Particulars are lacking. All is quiet around Ladysmith.

GENERAL FRENCH PROMOTED.

London, Feb. 17.—The Queen has promoted General French to be Majo-General. French heretofore has only ranked as a Colonel in the army, with the local rank of Lieutenant-General.

Lieut-Colonel Keckwich has been promoted Colonel for services in the defence of Kimberley.

CASUALTIES AT JACOBSDL.

London, Feb. 17.—General Roberts reports the British casualties during the fighting at Jacobsdal as one killed, 14 wounded and 3 missing.

BOER ARMY IS IN FULL RETREAT.

Jacobsdal, Friday, Feb. 16.—General Cronje and the Boer army, which has been holding the line of Magersfontein, is in full retreat towards Bloemfontein, with General Kelly-Kenny and the sixth division of infantry harassing his retreat.

TO COVER NAAUWPOORT.

London, Feb. 16.—Gen. Lord Roberts reports: "Clements, having been pressed by the Boers, has retired to Arundel to cover Naauwpoort."

CANADIANS CAPTURED OR IN HOSPITALS.

Five Members of the Regiment Succumb to the Heat or Fall Into Hands of Boers While Following Lord Roberts as Reserves.

Jacobsdal, Feb. 15, via Modder River, Feb. 16—delayed in transmission.—In the operations which have resulted in the occupation of Jacobsdal by the British troops, the hasty retreat of Gen. Cronje from Magersfontein, and the relief of Kimberley, the Royal Canadian Regiment was given a share.

In the advance from Wegedraal to Jacobsdal, several Canadians fell out on the march, and are either in the hospital or captured. Their names are:

Private James Drake, formerly of the 63rd Halifax Rifles.

Private T. J. Walsh, formerly of the 66th Princess Louise Fusiliers of St. John, of H. Company.

Private Bordonneas, of D. Company, —Ottawa and Kingston.

Private A. W. Woodward, formerly of the 26th Middlesex Light Infantry —London Company.

Private G. B. Corbould, formerly of the 5th Regiment Canadian Artillery, of A Company—Northwest Company.

Note.—The name of Bordonneas, of D Company, which appears in the above list from the Star's special correspondent, is not recorded in the official list of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

When the order to make the forward movement was given, the Canadians, who, as I before have wired were brigaded in the Ninth Division, moved out from Wegedraal, on the right flank of our forces, as reserves, preparatory to the attack on Jacobsdal General French arrived at Wegedraal on the 15th. A brigade of the Seventh Division advanced upon Jacobsdal from the east on the afternoon of the same day. This movement was a part of a general advance ordered through the Free State for the relief of Kimberley, and the discomfiture of Cronje. During his advance General French captured Brown's Drift on the Modder River.

After the junction of forces at Wegedraal, and the advance upon Jacobsdal, it was seen that a sharp fight was in store. The City of London Volunteers formed the advance guard, the South Wales Borders were placed in the centre, and the North Staffords on the right flank. These latter were the first in Jacobsdal. They cleared out the Boers opposing them, after a gallant charge with their bayonets.

GAY SOCIAL LIFE IN THE CITY OF OTTAWA

The Washington of the North Bright With Elaborate Social Functions.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

The Departure of Major-General Hutton for South Africa—Delegation of Soldiers' Wives See Mrs. Hutton Off.

Skating Party at Rideau Hall.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—The annual whirl of gayety attendant upon the deliberations of Canada's "collective wisdom" is in full swing once more, and the woman who has the fortune, whether it be considered good or ill, to be in the swim, is having all she can do to crowd each day's engagements into 24 short hours. Dinners, teas, suppers and luncheons, balls and receptions, concerts and theatre, skating and driving, calling and receiving, till up every available hour of the day and there is no prospect of relaxation until the faithful commons conclude their labors. Lent will bring a change of change of social pleasures, but not a cessation of them

The opening, the state dinner and reception following it, and the drawing room are now things of the past and though they occurred only a couple of weeks ago, so much has happened since that they seem very long past indeed. Nevertheless people still continue to talk of them, the manner in which the different victims acquitted themselves in the terrible ordeal of the Courtsey and the still more awful ceremony of retiring from the vice-regal presence being quite a favorite topic of conversation. On the whole, however, the ladies acquitted themselves nobly and if an occasional debutante was frightened, it was no more than was to be expected, and was nothing to Canada's discredit.

Those who have seen the drawing rooms for the last five years say this year's was the prettiest they have witnessed during that time.

The first lady to be presented was Mrs. Travers Lewis, wife of the Archbishop of Ontario. Mrs. Lewis looked very stately and handsome in a gown of black velvet, with a court train She, of course, wore the regulation veil and feathers, Her Excellency wore a lovely gown of silver embroidered chiffon, with a court train lined with turquoise velvet, and magnificent ornaments of diamonds and pearls. Lady Laurier was in pink and green brocade trimmed with pearl passementirre.

Social Incidents.

At the opening, the usual brilliancy of the scene was so much enhanced by the sweeping trains of the ladies' dresses that one could not help hoping that whatever might be the next vagary of fashion regarding the length of the skirt, nothing but trained gowns might ever be seen in the Senate Chamber again. During the first few days after the opening there were a great many teas and receptions for the strangers in the city. Mrs. Clifford Sifton gave a large reception for Senators, members of the House, and their wives and daughters, no Ottawa people except those under this head being invited. Lady Laurier received with Mrs. Sifton and looked very handsome in pink brocade with jeweled trimmings. Another tea at which the guests were nearly all sessional visitors was given by Mrs. R. W. Scott, Lady Laurier and Mrs. Clifford Sifton being among the few townspeople present.

The first social event of the season other than the state functions was a reception at the home of Sir Louis and Lady Davies. Many hundreds of invitations were sent out and the affair was very brilliant.

As usual during the Session, Lady Laurier is at home every Thursday evening, to senators, members of parliament and their wives and daughters.

Much disappointment was expressed last week when the falling rain necessitated the postponement of a skating party at Government House, but when it took place at last, on Saturday evening, everyone felt amply rewarded for the delay. Owing to the rain and succeeding cold weather the trees on the grounds were all white with frost and with the beacon fires and Chinese lanterns used in the illumination the scene was like one from fairyland. His Excellency led the opening torchlight march with Miss Mary Scott, and Her Excellency led in the second march with Mr. J. A. Ritchie. The Countess was most becomingly gowned in black and red, and a great deal of red was worn bythe other skaters.

An event which has awakened considerable interest in society circles was a hockey match which took place last Saturday morning between two clubs of young girls, the Sandy Hills, Miss Jessie Gilmour, captain, and the Union Jacks, Miss Frankie Geddes, captain. The game resulted in a draw and a hockey breakfast was served at its conclusion. There is to be another match on Saturday.

The Humane Society.

In the midst of all these gaieties graver matters have not been forgotten. On the Tuesday after the opening the annual meeting of the Humane Society was held at the City Hall, and many of the leaders of society, including the president, Mrs. Gwynne, were present. Her Excellency the Countess of Minto remained through the whole meeting, and Mrs. George E. Foster left the House while her husband was speaking in order to be present; a number of the gentlemen also left the House for the same purpose. On the following Friday there was a sale of fancy work done by Doukhobor wo- fancy work done by Doukhobor women at the Russel, under the auspices of the Local Council of Women, and many of the visiting strangers were among the purchasers. The work will thus be scattered throughout the Provinces, and will be a means of diffusing knowledge regarding the resources of these remarkable women who can do anything from building a house to the finest drawn work and embroidery. The annual meeting of the Local Board of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held this afternoon with the Countess of Minto present and Mr. Justice Burbridge in the chair, and the annual meeting of the Local Council of Women will take place tomorrow night. The May Court Club have just had a lecture on Buddha from Dr. S. E. Dawson, and another one on Savonarola by Mr. J. F. Watters for next week. The Women's Historical Society held a very interesting and largely attended meeting last week at the Y.W.C.A. and the Home Reading Union met at the home of the Hon. Mrs. Lombart to discuss Richard III. Vladimir de Pachman, the great Russian pianist appeared at the Russell on the same evening as the State reception, and in spite of the counter attraction drew a large audience, and Mr. Ernest Sharpe's recital a few days later was equally well attended. On the latter occasion the boxes were all taken and their Excellencies were present. Yesterday evening, February 15th, the twenty-first annual exhibition of pictures by the Royal Canadian Acedemy was opened.

The departure of Major General Hutton and his charming wife has been the occasion of a number of farewell functions. A fairwell dinner was tendered to the General at the Rideau Club by a number of leading citizens on Wednesday evening, and the Women's Art Association, of which Mrs. Hutton is present, gave a farewell tea for her on the afternoon of the same day. Yesterday afternoon a delegation from the Soldiers' Wives League, organised by Mrs. Hutton, went to the station to bid her God-speed, a bouquet of flowers being presented on their behalf by Mrs. Cotton. Mrs. Hutton will be greatly missed in Ottawa, not only by society, but by the various organizations in which she was interested.

BRITISH CAPTURE BOER SUPPLIES.

London, Feb. 17.—A despatch to the War Office from Lord Roberts says that Gen. Kelly-Kenny's brigade on Friday captured seventy-eight wagons of stores and ammunition belonging to Gen. Cronje.

Following is the text of Lord Roberts' despatch—

"Jacobsdal, Feb. 17, 5.50 a.m.—General Kelly-Kenny's brigade captured yesterday seventy-eight wagons laden with stores, two wagons of Mauser rifles, eight boxes of shells, ten barrels of explosives and a large quantity of stores, all belonging to Cronje's laager, which was still being shelled by our artillery when Kitchener despatched his message."

A BRITISH CONVOY CAPTURED.

Jacobsdal, Friday, Feb. 16, via Modder River.—General Cronje, with 10,000 men, is in full retreat towards Bloemfontein. General Kelly-Kenny is fighting a rear guard and harassing the retreat.

The Boers are reported to be leaving Spyfontein going in a northwesterly direction.

The Boers from Colesberg to the south captured a large British convoy of 200 wagons as a result of yesterday's, Thursday's, fighting at Riet River. The British casualties were comparatively slight in view of the tremendous bombardment. Less than thirty men were wounded, and but one killed.

General French's division was enthusiastically welcomed at Kimberley. The officers dined at the club last evening.

The news of the entry into Kimberley has greatly cheered the troops who are working splendidly.

CANADIAN CONTINGENT.

Jacobsdal, Feb. 17.—The Ninth Division under General Colville, is cooperating with General Kelly-Kenny and Gen. Tucker in cutting off the Boers retreat. The Ninth Division includes the Canadian contingent, who are now between the Riet and Modder Rivers, and likely to engage the Boers at any moment.

EUROPEAN WAR DISCUSSED.

It is a matter for profound astonishment, also regret, how the British reverses in South Africa have intensified the malignity of the European nations. Because the British army has been hitherto unable to cope successfully with the entrenched Boers in their natural rocky fortresses, armed with the most perfect modern weapons of precision, therefore the British nation is now in her decadence! If one Boer so entrenched is equal to five British soldiers not so protected—and even that is a small estimate—the reason is clear why, up to the present, non-success to rout the enemy from Natal and Cape Colony have attended British efforts. As we pointed out some weeks ago concerning the battle of Plevna about twenty years ago between the Russian and Turkish forces, it took the Russian army 143 days of continuous fighting against the entrenched Turks to capture the stronghold, and that, too, at a loss of 40,000 men. It is a little over eight weeks since the bulk of the British troops arrived at Natal, and though some tough fighting has occurred the British have held their own on the Tugela and Modder rivers, whilst the Boers have had to be on the defensive, fearing to retreat and unable to advance.

Foreign critics both in Europe and the States are too eager in their desire to belittle the British arms, and fail to take into consideration the enormous difficulties that have to be overcome before success ultimately crowns their efforts. Because of this failure, a failure soon to be remedied we trust, the very stability of the Empire is now called in question. "If," say the critics, "Britain is unable to put down the Boers with the enormous forces at her disposal, where would she be if the nations conspired against her?" Ah! where indeed! It delights the enemies of the Empire to advance these dogmatic theories, to propound these knotty problems for solution. If France, Russia, Germany, Austria and Spain were to form a quintuple alliance for the avowed purpose of crumbling up the British Empire they might succeed if they could only agree amongst themselves. But, their interests are widely diverse, and having succeeded (say for the sake of argument) what about the division of the spoils? Before such a catastrophe could come about, the British fleet would have something to say on the ocean. An universal war for the extinguishment of the British Empire as a political entity would bring untold calamities upon the human race successful or otherwise. All the pent up forces of revolution socialism would be let loose; liberty would expire; and absolutism become triumphant.

The N. Y. Journal of Commerce, one of the few respectable papers published in the States, speaks candidly of the hopefulness of the ultimate failure of the British in South Africa from a Continental point of view; it writes—"As a German critic has remarked, the fellings of the Continental nations of Europe at this moment are in an astonishing unision against England, and they are ready to greet with joy and measures that their Governments should happen to undertake against her." This is true enough as we are painfully aware; but to ameliorate the antagonism one has to balance facts as against mere desire. Our contemporary adds—"It is not at all probable that any European combination will be formed against England without the active participation or passive consent of the Emperor of Germany, and there is no evidence that Germany's neautrality at the present crisis is as much the result of her own self-interest as friendship. With Russia to the one side and France at the other she needs the moral as well as physical support of Britain to save her from being crippled. The hostile nations may threaten and jeer but that is about all they can do. As the contemporary we have quoted in summing up the argument observes—"The influences which tend to make a European combination against England improbable are, therefore, more powerful than those calculated to promote it. In the play of international selfishness, of mere greed and vindictiveness even, considerations of cautious calculation must have their place, even if it be assured on the Continent that England is the common enemy, and that it would be to the general interest that her Empire should be broken in pieces. It must be evident that the attempt to crush her would bring about one of th agreatest convulsions of history. Such a struggle would be attended by widespread financial ruin."

For these and other reasons that will occur to the reflective, it is evident that however much the Continentals may revile and hate the British Empire they are powerless to effect her ruin. There is no great Napoleon to lead France and Europe on as he did from 1803 to 1815 when he met his deserved fate; and there is no reason for a crusade against the Empire. "Malice, hatred, and all uncharitableness" underlie the hatred which manifests itself in Europe. The enormous military and naval preparations now going on, and which was so graphically set forth by Mr. Wyndham, the parliamentary secretary of the war office, in the House of Commons on Monday, will act as a warning to the Powers not merely that Britain is not in her decadence, but that she will, in triumphing in South Africa, appear before the civilized world more powerful, more undaunted, more resolute than ever to defy her enemies and uphold the national flag. The Boer war has cemented in one solid phalanx the entire British race, at home and Colonial. It has united all classes in the common defence; it has stimulated the nation to make ungrudged sacrifices of men and money in the great cause of National defence. The opportunity will be seized to remodel the army, equip it with the most improved weapons and to place the navy in a condition of unparalleled fitness. All this is due to President's Kruger's vanity and ambition. In the words of Shakespeare—"We thank thee, Jew."

A Good Old King.

The old Emperor William was announced to pay a visit to Baden-Baden says a writer in Chambers' Journal, while I happened to be staying there in 1879. Shortly before his arrival he must have accomplished a feat in a railway carriage which a "change artist" at a music hall might have envied Only a few minutes before the train actually stopped I had at a point on the line seen him in a costume of an old gentleman en voyage. When the station was reached the kaiser stepped forth on the platorm blazing in a magnificent and bejewelled uniform A little later on the same day his majesty once more in unofficial costume was inspecting on foot the pretty things in the shops of the Baden kursal, rather suggestive, as they are, of a section of the Paris Palais Royal.

Two peasants from the neighboring Black forest, evidently a young man and his sweetheart, wistfully eyed some little object timidly asked the price, and on hearing it almost tearfully turned away. The grand and kind old kaiser had noticed it all. The peasant pair had just reached the exit from the inclosure when one of the people of the shop came up to them and placed the object in the arms of the young girl which had been bought for her by the Kaiser.

NOTHING SLOW ABOUT HIM.

The Gravedigger Made Ample Provision for "Si" Johnson's Demise.

One day early in November a commercial traveler was walking aimlessly through the graveyard in a little village in Connecticut. It was a dreary-looking place. The commercial traveler was about to seek a more cheerful scene for the continuation of his stroll when he caught sight of a man carrying a spade coming through the gate.

"Business pretty brisk around here?" asked the drummer, throwing away his cigar and joining the man with the spade.

"Not very," replied the man, as he bent to measure off a parallelogram eight feet by four. "Only two funerals since August and one of these was a baby, so I only got half price for diggin' the grave."

The business of the grave digger was not exactly what the drummer had referred to, but he let the matter drop, and, seating himself on a large, flat stone in the vicinity of the parallelogram, watched the progress of excavation with apparent interest.

"By the way," said the drummer, "whose grave is that you're digging now?"

"Old Si Johnson's."

"Si Johnson," repeated the drummer. "Si Johnson! It seems to me I have heard the name before. Isn't he father of the man that keeps the store up at the Corners?

"Yes, that's Si," answered the gravedigger.

"But I didn't know that he was dead," said the drummer. "I was in his son's place this morning, and—"

"Oh! he ain't dead yet," interrupted the gravedigger, resting for a moment on his spade, and contemplating the progress he had made. "He ain't dead yet, but the doctors say he can't last till New Year's, so I though I'd better get his grave ready before the ground freezes up to hard. Dreadful cold winters we have done here in Connecticut!"

Aggravating the Offense.

"You are charged, young man," the magistrate said, not unkindly, "with scaring the complaining witness nearly out of his senses by putting him through some mock ceremony of initiation. I can make allowance for exuberance of spirits among college students, but sometimes this exuberance is carried too far."

"It was this way, your honor," exclaimed the youth who appeared to be the spokesman—"we were out for a little lark, and we caught a jay."

"The fine will be $2 and costs each," said his honor, his face hardening.—Chicago Tribune.

Some Ready Made Law.

Bourke Cockran studied law under Judge Theodore L. Dwight. One day the professor asked a question which seemed easy, but was really difficult. With his magnificent voice Cockran answered the best he could, adding as a saving clause, "Such, I take it, is the common law."

The good old doctor gleamed benignantly through his spectacles. "That would be all right, sir, if you had made it uncommon law."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

IN BESIEGED LADYSMITH.

One of the Late G. W. Stephens' Interesting Letters—The Good Work that is Being done by the Naval Men.

London, Feb. 18.—Even if all eyes were not watching beleaguered Ladysmith, the accounts sent from there by the now dead Stephens would irresistibly enthrall those who follow the course of what promises to be the most crucial conflict of the country. The latest instalment of the work Stephens managed to send out of Ladysmith is dated December 6. The article, which appears in the Daily Mail, is as follows: "There goes that stinker on Gun Hill," said the captain. "No, don't get up; have some draught beer."

"I did have some draught beer."

"Wait and see if he fires again. If he does we'll go up into the conning tower, and have both guns in action toge——"

"Boom,—the captain picked up his stick. "Come on," he said.

"We got up out of the rocking chairs and went out past the swinging meat safe, under the big canvas of the wardroom, with its table piled with stuff to read. Trust the sailor to make himself at home.

"As we passed through the camp the bluejackets rose to a man and lined up trimly on either side.

"Up a knee-loosening ladder of rock and we same out on the barren hilltop, where they first had their camp. Among the orderly trenches, the sites of the tents were rougher, irregular blotches of hole-foot prints of shell.

"That gunner," said the captain, waving his stick at Surprise Hill, "is a German. Nobody but a German atheist would have fired on us at breakfast, lunch and dinner the same Sunday. It got too hot when he put one ten yards from the cook. Anybody else we could have spared; then we had to go."

"We come to what looks like a sandbag redoubt, but in the eyes of Heaven it is a conning tower. On the other side from beside a sandbag epaulement a 12-pounder and a Maxim thrust forth vigilant eyes.

"The sandbag plating of the conning tower was six feet thick, and shoulder high; the rivets were red earth, loose but binding on the parapets sprouted tufts of grass, unabashed and rejoicing in the summer weather. Against the parapet leaned a couple of men with the clean, cut, clean shaven jaw and chin of the naval officer, and half a dozen bearded bluejackets. They stared hard out of sunpuckered eyes over the billows of kopje and veldt.

"Forward we looked down on the 4.7; aft we looked up to the other. On bow and beam and quarter we looked out to the enemy's fleet. Deserted Pepworth's was on the port bow, Gun Hill, under Lombard's Kop, on the starboard, Bulwan abeam, Middle Hill astern, Surprise Hill on the port quarter.

"Every line was cut in adamant. The Helpmmaaker ridge with its little black ants a'crawl on their hill was rushed flat beneath us.

"A couple of vedettes racing over the pale green plain northward, look- i as if we could jump onto their heads. /e could have tossed a biscuit over Lombard's Kop. The great yellow opiacement of their big piece on Gun ill stood up like a spit-head fort.

"Through the big telescope that ings on its pivot in the centre of e tower you could see that the Boers re loafing around it dressed in dirty stard-color.

"'Left hand Gun Hill fired, sir,' said bluejacket with his eyes glued to binoculars, 'at the balloon,' and ently we heard weary pinions of the shell and saw the little puff of hite below.

'Ring to Mr. Halsey,' said the captain.

'Then I was aware of a sort of tar- cupboard under the breast- k of creeping trails of wire on the nd and of a couple of sappers. The corporal turned down his page larmsworth Magazine, laid it on parapet and dived under the tarin.

Ting-a-ling-a-ling, buzzed the telephone bell.

The gaunt-towering mountains, the smoothe, deadly guns——and the phone bell.

The mountains and the guns went and there floated in that roar- office of the Daily Mail instead, the warm, rustling vestibule of play-house on a December night. is is the way we make war now, only r the instant it was half joke and lf homesickness.

"And yet, if they never hit a man, his handful of sailors have been the aving of Ladysmith. You don't know till you have tried it what a worm you feel when the enemy is plugging shell into you and you can't possibly plug back. Even though they spared their shell, it made all the world of difference to know that the sailors could reach the big guns if they ever became unbearable. It makes all the became unbearable. It makes all the diference to the Boers, too, I suspect, for as sure as Lady Ann or Bloody Mary gets on to them, they shut up in a round or two. To have the very men among you makes the difference beteen rain water and brine.

"The other day they sent a 12-pounder up to Caesar's camp under a boy who if he were not commanding big men round, a big gun in a bigwar might with luck be in the fifth form.

"'There's a 94-pounder up there,' said a high oficer who might have been his grandfather.

"'All right, sir,' said the child serenely, we'll knock him out.'

"He hasn't knocked him out yet, but he is going to next shot, which in a siege, is the next best thing.

"But the sailors have not seen home for two years, which is two less than their usual spell. This is their holiday.

"'Of course we enjoy it,' they say, almost apologizing for saving us; 'we so seldom get a chance.'

"The royal navy is the salt of the sea and the salt of the earth also."

RAN A RACE WITH DEATH.

Narrow Margin by Which a Man on a Railway Bridge Won.

A high trestle bridge more than a quarter of a mile long, supporting the single track of the Nickel Plate railroad, spans the valley of Grand river, east of Painesville, O. The bridge is little wider than the distance between the rails, and the ties are placed eight or ten inches apart, the space between being open to the river below.

A young man who crossed recently had a thrilling experience on the bridge. He had just passed the center when a fast train rounded the curve behind him. As the engine whistled he quickened his pace. With every step the train was rushing nearer, and there was not a moment to lose.

Once the young man stumbled and seemed about to fall, but quickly regained his balance and hurried on. As he reached the place for which he had started the train was close behind, and he had just time to swing himself over the side of the bridge as the locomotive thundered by. The ends of the ties were slippery with grease from dripping axle boxes, and his foot slipped wide as he left the track. His right hand, stretched blindly out before him, touched a round iron bar, bracing two parts of the bridge, and, with a grip like that of a drowning man, his fingers clasped around it. For a moment he swung in empty air. In another his left hand had found a place beside his right, and his feet touched the welcome edge of a brace below. With bleeding fingers clutching the slender iron bar that vibrated widely from side to side, moments seemed hours.

At last the train passed, and the young man was able to climb slowly to the track above. Unnerved by the trying experience, he lay for a moment stretched across the rails and, then rising to his feet, with blanched face and unsteady limbs, made his way to firm ground.—Cleveland Leader.

Sing While Marching.

A German army doctor has discovered that singing possesses health giving properties. He claims that it intensifies the respiratory movements, thus rendering the lungs capable of dealing with more air. This increases and strengthens the action of all the organs of the body. Appetite and thirst increase, and the more frequent movements of the diaphragm materially aid digestion. German foot soldiers are therefore encouraged to sing on the march.

Electric Bell Substitute.

A substitute for an electric bell has been devised by a deaf couple. Not being able to hear the bell themselves, and having no servant, they have fixed up an arrangement by means of which when the button at the front door is pressed, the electric lights all over the place light up, and remain so until the button is released. By a reversal of the arrangement, all the lights are switched off when the button is operated after dark.

To make paper fireproof nothing more is necessary than to saturate the paper in a strong solution of alum water, and when thoroughly dry it will resist the action of flame.

The inhabitants of Cochin China much prefer rotten eggs to fresh ones.

Kruger has become very despondent since he learned that the Strathcona Horse is composed of Steel and Belchers. He is even very tired of the way the British have been belching steel into him already.

CLEVER, BUT SOULLESS.

One Woman's New Way in Which to Pay Social Debts.

"I don't know much of the ways of fashionable people," said a young physician not long ago, "for I am not in society, but if many society women are like one I know here in town I think I'm safer to be out of it. It was not this season, but it wasn't so long ago but that plenty of people can remember the circumstances. I had among my patients an elderly woman who lived with the daughter's family. The daughter lived, if not beyond her means, at least up to the very edge, went out a great deal and was entertained a great deal.

"The mother fell sick with a complaint which I knew would prove fatal. I did not inform the family till one day the daughter asked me to tell her frankly what her mother's condition was and just how long she could live. I told her that the old lady could not possibly last more than a fortnight. She begged me not to let anybody know how serious the case was. She didn't want her young daughters distressed, she said.

"Of course I told nobody, and just a week after that I read in the papers that Mrs. Dash, the daughter of my dying patient, had sent out invitations for a large dancing party, to be given on an evening a fortnight away. My patient did not live as long as I had expected. The day after she died I read in the papers that 'owing to the sudden death of her mother Mrs. Dash had been compelled to recall her invitations.'

"She had never intended to give a ball. She could not have afforded it, and she 'bluffed.' I have cold shivers every time I see her."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AN EXCITING LIFE.

Why the Chicago Girl's Brown Hair Turned Golden Hued.

"Gosh, Marier, but that wus a close shave!" exclaimed Uncle Eben as he dragged his worthy spouse out of the way of a street car that was yet 20 feet away. "This yer Chicago life is 'nough to make a man's h'ar turn gray."

"Turn gray!" snarled his wife. "'Twouldn't be so bad of thet wus all it done. It's decent and respectable to have gray ha'r, but when it comes to makin a poor young gal's ha'r turn yaller jist on account of the excitement uv all these cars an railroads on stilts an howlin people then's when I say it's a sin to hev sich big cities. I'm a-goin right out to 'Liza Jane's house, of I kin ever find it, an stay right in it till we leave Chicago."

"How do you know it makes people's ha'r turn yaller?" asked Uncle Eben. "I ain't never hearn tell of ennything of that kind."

"Well, I see it with my own eyes—leastwise I see it turn brown agin after the poor dears wus rested all summer in the country. You know them four gals what staid all summer over at Cousin Ellen's? When they fust come, they'd big brown eyes an fa'r complexions an right yaller ha'r. Purty soon every one of 'em's ha'r begin to get streaked in spots, an before the summer wus gone they all had rich brown ha'r. Then I ast one of 'em what made their ha'r turn brown, an she said it wus alla's brown, but that the excitin life she'd been livin in Chicago, whar she had to act in a theater every night, made it turn yaller. Poor thing! She looked so much better at the end of the summer that I hate to think of her comin back to this great, wicked city."—Chicago Journal.

Jimmy and the Baby.

Jimmy's mother kept cows and sold milk. Jimmy himself had nothing to do with the cows, though sometimes he used to carry the milk pail to his mother's customers. The customers all liked Jimmy, with his round, freckled face and bashful grin, and they used to ask him how business was, for, although Jimmy was only 13 years old, he had a business. He made coffins—baby coffins—and sold them to the undertaker. They were nice pine coffins, with all the edges carefully joined. Jimmy received 50 cents for each one.

One day Jimmy stopped at the house of one of his mother's customers to leave some milk. A little boy met him at the door.

"We've got a new baby!" said the little boy. "Would you like to see it?"

Jimmy nodded. The little boy's aunt laughingly led Jimmy to the cradle where the new baby was. Jimmy gazed at the infant for some time, speechless with admiration or some such emotion.

"What do you think of it, Jimmy?" asked the aunt.

Jimmy grinned.

"I guess I'll have to make a nice little coffin when I go home," he said.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

RETRIBUTION

He saved a little day by day,
Withheld from something that he craved.
"The dollars grow," he used to say,
"From extra pennies that are saved."

His pile of savings grew and grew.
Each day he hoarded more and more;
Each night he ran his fingers through
And gloated o'er his golden store.

And as his wealth increased his heart
Shrank, hardened, shriveled and decayed.
He cheated, gouged and played the part
That many another fool has played.

He rose to power through his wealth;
He crushed those who were in the way;
He gained a fortune, lost his health
And miserably died one day.

Then came his drunken cousin, who
Had thrashed him when the two were boys.
His savings and his stealings, too,
One whom he hated now enjoys.

MATRON AND MAID.

Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain is not the typical American girl which some people represent her to be.

Mrs. Mary Lease has renounced her residence in Kansas and will hereafter make her home in New York.

The Duchess of Sutherland frequently attends meetings of socialistic women in company with Miss Margaret MacMillan, a socialistic lecturer.

Miss Mayme Jester, a niece of Buffalo Bill, is said to be the only female press agent on the road. She left the newspaper business to go into this new field.

Miss Emma Thursby has returned to New York and will resume work with her pupils at once. A recent report of her illness was unfounded, as she is quite well.

Dr. Cornelia de Bay of Chicago, a successful woman physician among the Dutch of that city and herself of Dutch descent, is about to give up her practice and go to the Transvaal as an army nurse.

Mrs. Julia Grant, widow of General Grant, will complete her personal memoirs before Christmas. She has been engaged on the work for nearly ten years. Society is interested in the appearance of Mrs. Grant's book.

Miss Anne M. de Beck, who heads the movement among Chicago women for the presentation of $5,000 swords to Generals Wheeler and Lee, has already had the designs for the swords worked out and announces that over half the necessary funds have been promised.

A young girl, Miss Emma M. Hery, is the superintendent of the Denver public schools. She was a newspaper woman and an active member of the Denver Woman's Press club. She is a Democrat and was elected on the straight ticket. Her opponent was also a woman.

It is rumored in Paris that Amelie Rives, now the Princess Troubetzkoy, will settle there permanently and establish a literary salon for the purpose, primarily, of securing a French translation of her literary works and such other recognition as she thinks they deserve.

Mrs. John M. Thurston, the bride of the Nebraska senator, is described as of medium height, graceful, with changeful dark gray eyes, occasionally flashed with blue, perfect figure and mobile features. She was born in Tallahassee, Fla., 27 years ago and is a graduate of Wellesley.

CHICAGO AND GRAND OPERA.

Chicago, having tired of grand opera, now proposes to become the world's art center, regardless of expense.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

One explanation of the failure of the grand opera season in Chicago is that the people are saving their money to buy automobiles.—Kansas City Star.

Mr. Grau says Chicago is a poor town for grand opera. The people out there will probably strike back by declaring that Grau is an all fired poor judge of packed meat.—Washington Post.

After losing a great deal of money Manager Grau has discovered that Chicago does not care for grand opera, her people being busy listening to the grunt of dying hogs and having no time to hark to the trills of a Sembrich.—Louisville Post.

Chicago is feeling rather mortified over the cold reception it gave to Mr. Grau. It would seem that Chicago is about on a par with Rochester as a "musical center" in the matter of giving welcome and support to great artists.—Rochester Democrat.

THE FRENCH PRESS.

Sober minded Frenchmen think that undue attention has been paid in England to the obscure draftsmen whose vulgarities have adorned the pages of the Parisian gutter press.—Philadelphia Record.

Considering all the abuse the English papers heaped upon France in the matter of Dreyfus, it is not surprising that the French papers should retaliate with unfavorable comments upon English policy.—Philadelphia Times.

The sort of cartooning to which Queen Victoria is being subjected in the comic papers of Paris is a reminder of the fact that there is no country in the world where that sort of journalism descends to such depths as in France. Its cleverness and keenness are impaired by coarseness and indelicacy.—Boston Herald.

Boers Great Pioneers.

The Boer is the ideal pioneer. From the days of the great trek, in 1837, and even before that he opened up countries hitherto unexplored by a white man. A great deal of fuss has been made of mighty travelers, English and foreign, who have traversed Africa, to the vast pecuniary benefit of their publishers and with no small meed of fame to themselves, but there was scarcely one of the old voortrekkers and hunters of the forties and fifties who did not accomplish feats of endurance, pluck and lengthy travel which were ten times as trying.—London Mail.

A QUEER SENSATION.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE HELD UP AT THE POINT OF A REVOLVER.

Curious Phenomenon That Causes Each Man In a Roomful to Believe That a Weapon Is Pointed Straight at His Own Head.

"If you will take my word for a little experience I had recently, perhaps I can make clear to you how it is possible for three bad men to hold up a roomful of fairly brave men and get away safely with their money," said a merchant from the state of Washington who was a guest at the Lotos club one night recently. "I was in such a hold up not long ago, and I have ceased jeering at fellows who have been through similar experiences. I was one of 70 men who were held up in a big gambling hall, and as I am not a regular patron of such places I kept quiet about it at home. The gambling house is one of the best known in the west, and on the night of the hold up it was filled with a representative crowd. A search would have disclosed the fact undoubtedly that many of the men present were armed. No trouble in recent years has occurred in this place, and there was no reason to anticipate any. It was nearly midnight when the door opened and three men, masked and each holding two revolvers, entered the room.

"'Hands up, quick!' shouted the foremost man.

"I was sitting at a faro table when I heard this command, and as I looked up I found a revolver pointing straight at my head. When I compared notes with the other seventy odd men later, I found that each one had the same experience. There were only six revolvers, and yet each man in the room was willing to swear that one of them was pointed at his head all the time. The crowd was simply paralyzed with fright. For two or three seconds not a man moved. Then over in one corner a Leadville sport brought his hand around to reach his hip pocket.

"'Stop that or I'll shoot,' said one of the masked men, covering him with his revolver. 'Hands up, now; quick! We mean business.'

"Every man in that room did hold his hands up. There was no hesitation then. It was my first experience in that kind of game, but it was not until I was able to take my hands down that I realized how tiresome the operation was. There we stood, each man with his hands stretched high above his head, held up in a room on a busy street when an outcry would bring help at once. It was a pretty sure thing, however, that no one would make the outcry. The three masked men had eyes for every move, and their revolvers pointed all ways at once. It is easy for a man who has not been through such an experience to suggest that if several men had only made a break these fellows would have run. I can honestly say that the barrel of the revolver into which I looked seemed to me to be as large as a sewer pipe. I even thought that I could see the end of the bullet, and I was awfully afraid that the man who held the revolver might get nervous and shoot me by accident. I tried to look pleasant to appease him. All this had taken perhaps a minute and a half when the spokesman shouted to us:

"'Line up against that wall with your backs to me, and the man who takes his hands down will get shot. Quick now, gentlemen, if you please. Obey orders, and you won't get hurt.'

"We lined up as directed like a lot of schoolboys.

"'Now then, my friend here will relieve you of your valuables without your assistance,' said the spokesman. 'Don't move, because there are two dead shots behind you. Keep quiet, and it will soon be over.'

"It was a very cool piece of work, I can assure you. One of the three went straight down the row, taking each man's watch and money. He didn't get as much as he expected, and as near as we could estimate later the total haul was under $5,000. There was over $100,000 in the safe which the robbers overlooked. When we had been cleaned out, the spokesman said:

"'Now, gentlemen, we are sorry to inconvenience your further, but we shall have to request you to stand just as you are for five minutes more. Don't cut the time short, or you will get hurt.'

"The side door opened at this instant, and we heard the order 'Hands up, Chink, or you are a dead man!' It was one of our Chinese servants who was returning with a tray filled with drinks. He promptly dropped his tray, smashing all the glasses and threw up his hands. We heard no other sound for five minutes. Each men counted the seconds to make sure that he shouldn't take down his hands ahead of time. The proprietor was the first man to move. As soon as he felt that it was safe he turned and found the robbers gone. He picked up a heavy chair and threw it through the window. It carried the sash with it, and the crash that followed attracted general attention in the street below. The proprietor stuck his head out of the window and profanely shouted such details of the hold up as might put the people in the street on the track of the robbers. It was useless, however. The fellows walked out quietly, took off their masks and disappeared without leaving any clew. We all piled out of the place to aid the search. When we found out that a chase was hopeless, most of us came back to the gambling room to talk it over. When we entered the place, we found the Chink standing in the ruins of his glasses with his hands still above his head. The proprietor told him to take his hands down. The Chink wouldn't do it, and two men who pulled his arms to his side had all they could do to hold him. He had looked in the big barrel of one of those small revolvers, and he hadn't forgotten it.

"Now this was an actual experience, and some of your New York papers had accounts of it. If I were mixed up in an affair of that sort again, I would raise my arms just as quickly. It was expediency and not a yellow streak that made that crowd act as it did."

In Lake Derwentwater, in England, there is a species of fish called vendace, which are never caught alive. They are said to frequent the deeper parts of the lake and are never met with in the rivers. SHAVING ACCIDENTS.

THE BARBER DISCUSSES THEM WITH THE MAN IN HIS CHAIR.

Chances to Cut Throats That Are Not Often Taken Advantage Of—Narrow Escapes From Serious Mishaps—A Father's Dream.

"Did it ever strike you," asked the little barber, "how easy it would be for the man that shaves you to kill you?"

The man in the chair sat up quickly and looked carefully at the barber, who was feeling the edge of the razor with one finger. The barber smiled to reassure his customer and said:

"It seems a queer question, I know, but it is a wonder to me that there are not a number of people killed in that way every year. It would be the easiest thing in the world for the barber as he wielded his razor to make one sweep with it and sever the jugular vein, and you would be dead almost on the instant. Suppose, for instance, that the barber should go insane. There would be nothing to prevent his doing such a thing, and you would have no warning nor any opportunity to save yourself.

"There is always a chance of a serious accident happening to the man in the chair. I have seen a number of such accidents and have a horror of even nicking the man I am shaving. In fact, such an occurrence makes me feel out of sorts for the rest of the day. It was only a few days ago that I almost had an accident that gave me a great fright and completely unnerved me. I was shaving a young man, and in passing from one side of the chair to the other a button of my waistcoat caught in his hair. It pulled a trifle, and he moved his head suddenly just as I went to put the blade to his face. I came within an ace of slashing him, and only a quick jump back saved him. The perspiration stood out on me, and I had to call one of the other men to finish shaving my customer.

"But the worst accident I ever saw in a barber shop occurred while I was working in a small town in the west. One of the patrons of the place was a business man whose 8-year-old daughter was lying at the point of death. Her father put in most of his time at her bedside. One afternoon while she was asleep he came in here to get shaved. He was so exhausted through lack of sleep that he fell asleep immediately after he had taken his seat in the chair next to the one behind which I was at work.

"He dreamed that some one had come into the place to tell him that his child had died. With a cry of alarm he started up just as the barber laid the razor against his neck. Into the flesh it sank. He was not yet thoroughly awake, and as he imagined that some one was holding him back from his child he threw out his hand to free himself, and his fingers closed over the blade of the razor. So dazed was he that he could not realize what had happened, but sat there in the chair, with the blood streaming from his throat and fingers.

"The man who had done the cutting was the first to act, although half crazed. He hurried for a doctor while we stanched the flow of blood the best we knew how. Even as the doctor was at work sewing up the wounds a messenger came to say that the little girl had died suddenly in the greatest agony, calling for her father just before she died. He was under the influence of ether at the time and did not know, but afterward, when he heard of the circumstances attending her death, he insisted that he had heard her call as he lay there asleep in the chair and that it was her cry that had caused him to make his sudden movement.

"For years after the accident he continued to shave in the same shop where it had occurred, and it was never mentioned. He carried a reminder of it for the remainder of his life. In addition to the scar on his throat, the fingers of his right hand were all drawn up and useless.

"Sudden movements while in the barber's chair are always apt to be attended with serious results, and I could recall dozens of instances where it has been only the merest chance that has prevented serious if not fatal mishaps. Nine times out of ten where the person getting shaved receives a nick and lays the blame on the barber he should thank the wielder of the razor that it was no worse. The probabilities are that it was quick action by the barber that prevented a bad cut. A slight nick often would have been a case for the doctor or coroner were it not for the watchfulness of the barber. Here yesterday I happened to draw blood from a young fellow's face near his ear, and he made a great fuss about it, until I showed him that it was only the sudden withdrawal of the razor which resulted in the slight nick that prevented him losing a good part of his ear. Then he was grateful and thanked me, besides promising to be more careful in the future.

"But there are other ways the barber has of getting even," continued the little barber after relathering one side of his customer's face. "There is no need of his slashing a man. He can inflict injuries that will make his victim decidedly uncomfortable, and at the same time the latter will not be aware of what is being done." What the barber meant by this last remark his victim did not ask.—New York Sun.

HUMAN BRAIN CELLS.

THEY REFUSE TO WORK UNDER TOO HIGH A PRESSURE.

Put on Too Much Steam and These Minute Organisms Go on Strike. Why Men Go Crazy or Become Absentminded.

Keeping pace with scientific thought and progress certain problems which in the past have been shelved for want of light being thrown upon them have been taken up again one by one to undergo further examination by the aid of improved science.

The newest revelation in this direction tends to the science of the mind and includes the following problems:

Why does a man act queerly when he is intoxicated?

Why is a man absentminded on occasions?

Why does a man sometimes become violently insane, often a dangerous, raving lunatic?

Such questions as these have puzzled our immediate fathers, who have hardly ever satisfactorily explained them away or indeed thrown much reliable light upon them. The human brain is composed of cells, and each cell is a simple bit of nerve substance, from one end of which, like an octopus, spring a number of tentacles, while from another part arises an arm different from them and of great length. The long arm is intended for transmitting impressions from one portion of the brain system to another, it being made to touch the tentacles or short arms of the next one to it, the latter in its turn effecting contact with a third cell, and so on.

Thus a message is conveyed and the mind gets its news. The entire brain is made up of these cells, whose number is legion and whose full strength is grouped in systems, these systems in turn being arranged in communities, the communities in clusters and finally the clusters in constellations, by which divisions they are known to physiologists.

So long as the mind is in a healthy condition each little cell, or brain octopus, attends to its business faithfully and gives no trouble, but as man generally is an animal who usually refuses to live the life spanned out by nature and adopts instead the life laid down by the modern artificial process of living, instituted forsooth by civilization, mental disturbances frequently arise through the brain becoming abused in various ways, from overwork and alcohol principally.

Your octopuslike brain cell is a living little thing, and it can endure a great deal of abuse from you, but if you should go a little too far it rebels and refuses to work any longer by breaking contact with its companion cells, which it can do by withdrawing its long arm and getting itself out of circuit. But this rebellion is conducted by whole groups of cells acting together in full harmony.

Now, the object of this "strike" is simply to avoid overwork, for each tiny cell has stored within its minute space only a certain amount of energy, but if you put on the high pressure this is easily consumed by the operation of the brain, and the organism breaks down from exhaustion. Now, take the first of the problems just stated. When a person takes too much to drink, the cells in those patches of the brain that are responsible for the conduct of muscular movement become affected and the man staggers.

When the dose is very large, the cells, which, although stupefied, have tried to keep their master on his legs, now cease working, and the man sleeps like one dead. Finally, if more than enough of alcoholic drink be taken, the effect on the cells is to paralyze them, and the unfortunate man dies.

There is some relation between extraordinary activity of the mind and insanity. Geniuses are apt to exhibit symptoms of mental alienation, and, singular to relate, their children are usually inferior to those of average men.

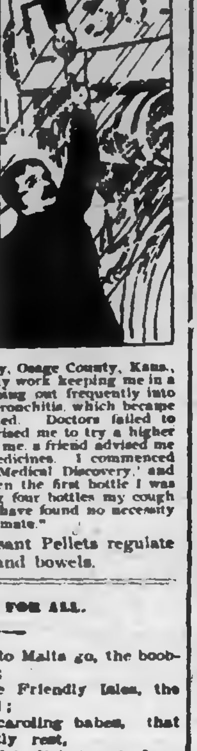
For instance, not to go out of England for example, Cromwell was a hypochondriac and had visions, Dean Swift inherited insanity and was himself not a little mad, Shelley was called by his friends "Mad Shelley," Charles Lamb went crazy, Johnson was another hypochondriac, Coleridge was a morbid maniac, Milton was of a morbid turn of mind, nearly approaching insanity (modern ideas of hades are largely formed on the description evolved by his diseased imagination), and Byron said he was visited by ghosts.

This mental alienation occurring in the foregoing cases shows that certain specific groups of brain cells have come under the baneful influence of the guiding spirit called talent or genius, which has used up all the energy stored in each cell and each group of cells, to the detriment of the whole, with the result that their ceasing work has brought about various types of insanity as depicted or, to phrase it more softly, induced disturbance of the mental equilibrium.

The remaining problem is absentmindedness. This is produced by a temporary disjunction of certain groups of cells. A man becomes so absorbed in his study of some particular subject and lends his whole mind to thought that the hard thinking disorganises the groups of cells employed in the process of reflection, their tentacles being turned all one way, to the detriment of mental action generally, and so the man with the tentacles of his brain cells turned in the one direction passes along the streets lost to all observation or mental reception and does all manner of queer things because he is not conscious of what he is doing.—Pearson's Magazine.

Rain or Shine,

The station agent is on duty. On his exact communication of train orders depends thousands of lives, and millions of dollars in property, each day. In his haste he runs out in the rain or the snow hatless and unprotected. Then comes the sequel — bronchitis, or some other disease of the respiratory organs. The most effective remedy for bronchial or pulmonary disease is Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Almost all remedies prescribed for such diseases contain opium or some narcotic which soothes by stupefaction. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains neither narcotics nor alcohol. It stops coughs by curing their cause. It heals weak lungs, builds up wasted tissues, and promotes the health of every organ of the body.



"I am a railroad agent," writes I. B. Staples, Esq., of Barclay, Osage County, Kans., "and four years ago my work keeping me in a warm room and stepping out frequently into the cold air gave me bronchitis, which became chronic and deep-seated. Doctors failed to reach my case and advised me to try a higher air, but, fortunately for me, a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and by the time I had taken the first bottle I was better, and after taking four bottles my cough was entirely gone. I have found no necessity for seeking another climate."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the stomach, liver and bowels.

A PLACE FOR ALL.

The brewers should to Malta go, the boobies all to Scilly;
The Quakers to the Friendly Isles, the furriers to Chili;
The little, crying, caroling babes, that break our nightly rest,
Should be packed off to Babylon, to Lapland or to Brest.
To Spithead cooks go or to Greece, and while the miser waits
His passage to the Guinea coast, spendthrifts are in the Straits.

Spinsters should to the Needles go, winebibbers to Burgundy,
Gourmands to lunch at Sandwich Isles, wags to the Bay of Fundy,
Bachelors to the United States, maids to the Isle of Man;
Let gardeners go to Botany Bay and shoeblacks to Japan.
Thus emigrate and misplaced men would then no longer vex us,
And all who are not provided for had better go to Texas.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

The Times on Saturday.

The Times on Saturday was in great demand. Although several extra hundred copies were printed, these were disposed of early in the forenoon. The excellent war service which we now get is putting the circulation away up. Advertisers should remember that "everybody reads the Times."

New Readers

We have just received a neat little book of new readings in Scotch and English for social gatherings. The selections are from the works of Mr. John Imrie, Toronto, and are up to date. For sale at the Times Bookstore.

Died in Cuba

News was received in Peterborough of the death in Havana, Cuba, of Morgan Percival Cottingham, formerly of Peterborough. The deceased was with Mr. George Stethem for a number of years, and left Peterborough in 1884, going into business in Montreal. He was afterwards in Mexico. Mr. Cottingham had many friends in town who will sincerely regret his death.

Double Trading Stamps.

For the next few days double trading stamps will be given at the Times Bookstore. Our stock of fancy goods will be cleared out at cost to make room for fresh importations.

Handsome Steam Launch.

The Peterborough Canoe Company is building a very pretty steam launch which it proposes to place on the Otonabee. It is 32 feet long, and will carry about 15 passengers with comfort. The launch will be propelled by a three h. p. engine.

Visited the Band.

Rev. Mr. Davidson, chaplain of the 57th battalion, with that thoughtfulness and regard for others that always characterizes him recently visited the band hall, while the members were at practice, and addressed a few words to the members, referring to the recent triumph in South Africa. The members then gave cheers for the British, after which the band played the national anthem.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The O.H.A. executive has decided against Peterborough in the game played at Toronto—Colts vs. U.C.C., and the game which has officially been declared a tie will have to be played off in Lindsay on Tuesday night. There will be a special train for the occasion leaving here at seven.

• • • • •

We are sorry to say that Chris Graham has been up against it, as the decision of the referee in his bout on Saturday night was against him. Scholes is in the final and will have an opportunity to win another championship to-night. The Herald does not fancy his chances.

Star Chamber Councillors.

The Board of Works is evidently afraid of the light. They refuse to allow press representatives to attend their meetings. What's on? What does it mean? They must have something to hide—to keep dark? It is altogether likely the crooked business is connected with the Dalhousie street bridge, and certain other matters, won't stand the light of day? It will be the duty of the Council to investigate and find out why this star chamber dares to exclude the press from its meetings. We look to such men as Ald. Denne, Sawers, Weir and others to bring the matter up in council at the very first opportunity.

Chicken Thieves.

It is said that there have been some big chicken festivals going on in town of late, the chickens being "lifted" at night. Several Smith farmers say they have lost a number of fat pullets, and are now trying to track the thieves. It is said that a rubber was found in one of the hen coops after a visitation, and that a clue has thus been discovered. Some of these farmers are as mad as a wet hen, so that no quarter will be shown.

Canoes for Abroad.

The Peterborough Canoe Company on Saturday shipped one crate of canoes consigned to the Paris Worlds' exhibition, which opens in May. The exhibit included cedar rib, butternut, basswood and longitudinal strip canoes all very handsome craft. The company also sent a crate of canoes to the west coast of Vancouver an done canoe for use of surveyors on the Nicaraguan canal. The canoe season is starting in and promises to be a lively one.

MAN AND WIFE.

See Changes as They Change.

To sweeten sour human nature, one of the best methods is to leave off coffee if it gives you dyspepsia or makes you nervous.

"I asked husband this morning to write out a testimonial for the Postum Cereal Co., and from it I quote, 'I am pleased to be able to state that my wife has been cured of sick headaches and "general cussedness" by leaving off coffee and using your Postum Food Coffee. My home is now a happy one.'

"I am forced to admit his joke contains more than a modicum control of my nerves, while formerly I was often irritable, and husband himself has been entirely cured of insomnia by leaving off coffee and taking up Postum. He sleeps now like a baby, from the time he goes to bed, until morning, and perhaps his improvement is partly a reason for his seeing such an improvement in me. At any rate, our old sickness and troubles have disappeared.

"I had tried everything for my sick headaches, but as long as I stuck to the coffee, the headaches stuck to me. It took us a little while to learn that we must follow the directions in making Postum, in order to obtain a really palatable, delicious beverage. People must get over the idea that they can make it in any kind of a slipshod way and have it good. The great element in making good Postum is to allow plenty of time to boil. That is certainly simple enough, and when the cook becomes accustomed to making Postum, one can depend upon a regular quality every morning.

"I know people who seem to be able to drink coffee, with no bad effects; and on the other hand, I know that probably one-half of all my friends are more or less unpleasantly affected with coffee, when they persist in using it, but Postum has obtained a strong hold since its qualities have become known, and a great many of our friends are steady users of Postum in place of the ordinary coffee, and you may be sure every family that has used Postum for even one month will be ready to testify to the improvement in health.

"If you should publish this letter, please suppress my name, as I have a horror of undue notoriety. If any one will take the trouble to write to you for my name and address, I will cheerfully answer any questions that may be asked, and furnish satisfactory evidence to substantiate this statement, unquestionably." Mrs. — [illegible], London, Ont.

The 20th. Century.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I read the letter which appeared in your issue of a short time ago, in regard to the new century. I can't see how people are so stupid as to argue that we are now in the 20th century. Here is the matter in a nutshell. It will prove that the 20th century begins after the year 1900 has ended.

Question.—What is a year?

Answer.—Three hundred and sixty-five days.

Q.—What is a century?

A.—One hundred years.

Q.—When did the year No. 1 end?

A.—December 31 of the year 1.

Q.—When did the year No. 2 begin?

A.—January, 1, of the year 2.

Q.—When did the year 99 end?

A.—December 31, A.D., 99.

Q.—Did that complete a century?

A.—No.

Q.—When was the century completed?

A.—At the close of the year following 99, or at the close of the year 100.

Q.—When did the second century begin?

A.—January 1, of the year 1 of the second century, that is January 1, A.D. 101.

Q.—When does the 19th century end?

A.—At the close of the nineteenth hundredth year, or at the close of 1900.

Q.—When does the 20th century begin?

A.—It begins on day No. 1 of the year No. 1 of the 20th hundred years—that is, on Jan. 1, A.D., 1901.

We must still see another Christmas before the twentieth century dawns.

By inserting the above in the Times you will oblige,

Delinquent Paymasters

Editor Morning Times:

Sir,—Permit me to ask you to publish an article which recently appeared in the Monetary Times, and which is well worth reading. Your contemporary draws attention to the discomfort and hardship frequently suffered by artisans and shopkeepers through the neglect of well-to-do people to pay their bills. The evil seems to be a growing one. In every community and especially in the larger towns and cities there is a considerable section of the community who never appear to be without money, and who spend it freely on personal luxuries, who will not pay certain of their bills until absolutely compelled to do so. It is nothing to these people that a tailor, or a dressmaker or a trader, or even a newspaper publisher may be actually suffering for the money they are owing them. They will deprive themselves of nothing they may want in order to discharge their honest obligations. The Monetary Times recalls the case of a painter in poor circumstances in the Province of Quebec whose bill against a well-known resident was $100. The debtor went off to the New Orleans carnival leaving the bill unpaid. Meanwhile the painter, for lack of its payment, was thrown into insolvency. A Toronto lady, owing a bill of $800 to her dressmaker, paid $200 on account and went to Europe. She was absent six months, and the dressmaker was put to great financial straits in the meantime. This dressmaker might have done as did a milliner in another Canadian town. One day a customer remarked while trying on a bonnet, "By the way, Mrs. Dashaway is going to England next week." At this, the milliner turned quickly, and excusing herself, went down to the office of her lawyer. Next day she thanked her informant for telling her about Mrs. Dashaway's movement and added, "I have ordered my lawyer to take proceedings against her. She shan't go to England on my money." And the bill was paid next day.

It might offend rich folks, or fine ladies to ask them to read and profit by the sentiments of "The Song of the Shirt." But if this poem should seem to reflect too severely upon them we would recommend that they read "The Lady's Dream," by the same great moralist, and learn that Evil is wrought by want of thought As well as by want of heart.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space, I am, etc.

The Cocking Main.

The Times received a letter asking why action is not being taken against those engaged in the cocking main in Fraserville on January 9th. The letter does not bear the signature of the writer, and therefore cannot appear. We might say, however, that the matter has not been allowed to drop. Upon enquiry the Times learns that as soon as the necessary evidence is secured, steps will be taken to punish the offenders. The $100 reward offered by the Fraserville Orange Lodge will, it is said, be claimed.

CRONJE COMPLETELY CORNERED

BRITISH TROOPS CUT OFF CRONJE'S RETREAT

A Member of Cabinet Says War Office Has Word That He is Hopelessly Surrounded.

THE QUEEN CONGRATULATES LORD ROBERTS.

Lord Roberts, in a Proclamation, informs the People of the Free State of British Good-Will—A Soldier of the Royal Canadians Loses an Arm.

London, Feb. 20.—12.30 a.m. The War Office at midnight announced that it had nothing further for publication from South Africa.

In the lobbies of the House of Commons last evening, however, it was remarked that General Cronje's army seems surrounded. That Gen. French has got between the Boers' army and Bloemfontein, and that he was only waiting reinforcements to close in on the enemy. No confirmation of the rumor is obtainable; although the general idea is that the Government has received important despatches.

London, Feb. 20.—3.45 a.m. A member of the Cabinet told Mr. H. W. Lucht to-night that the War Office had received a telegram announcing that General Cronje was hopelessly surrounded.

Mr. Wyndham was beset by anxious members of the House but would only reply that the Government's news was extremely satisfactory. The sole explanation of the Government with holding good news is that confirmation and more details are awaited. The situation as disclosed by correspondents over the Free State border is tantalizing to the public expectation. The elementary facts are that the Boers are treckking eastward toward Bloemfontein, with slow moving baggage trains and that they are pursued by Lord Kitchener, with Gen. Kelly-Kenny's division. Gen. Macdonald, with the Highlanders made a forced march to Kocoos Randi Ford and on Sunday pushed twenty miles eastward. General French left Kimberley Saturday going east along the Modder River. Lord Kitchener is trying to outmarch and outflank the Boers, thus checking their retreat if possible, and driving them back into the hands of Macdonald and French.

The War Office message communicated to Mr. Luchet seems to indicate that Lord Kitchener has either got ahead of the Boers or is about to realise his plan and that the War Office waits to announce a decesive result.

Meanwhile Commandant Delarey with the Boers from Colesburg is hanging on the right flank of the British pursuing columns, seeking to delay their movement and so to assist the Boer wagon trains to escape.

Students of topography think the Boers will hardly risk a fight until they get into the rough country north of Blomfontein.

A Daily Mail correspondent who was with the British convoy attacked by the Boers at Riet River Ford, wires—"Ultimately the British abandoned the convoy in order not to check the advance. Thus 200 wagons and 600 tons of stores fell into the hands of the Boers, though it is doubtful if they will be able to carry them away."

General Buller has achieved a real success seemingly in capturing the range of hills south of the Tugela. It makes more feasible another attempt to relieve Ladysmith.

The Queen has sent a direct message to Lord Roberts congratulating him and his troops. General French and Col. Keckwich have been acquainted with their promotions.

Dr. Leyds, at Brussels, says the Free State troops who were besieging Ladysmith have withdrawn in order to defend their homes. In this way he accounts for Gen. Buller's success against the weakened forces. He will forego his projected trip to Rome, he says, because of "decisive events now taking place in the theatre of war."

Lord Roberts' generalship was conducted with such secrecy, says a telegram from Modder River, that even the censor officials who took the sixth division through the preliminaries of their operation did not know what they would finally have to do.

CANADIAN LOSES AN ARM.

Hespler, Feb. 17.—In a letter just received from private Dalgleish of this town, who is serving with the first contingent in South Africa, occurs the following paragraph:

"One man from E company went down to the hospital to-day for the purpose of having his arm amputated. He fell over a fence and pricked his arm on a thistle, which latter caused blood-poisoning, and the operation was necessary to save his life. The poor fellow takes it very hard."

FRIENDSHIP OF ITALY.

London, Feb. 19. —Lord Rosebery writes to the Times expressing his regrets that in a recent speech he forgot to mention the "singular instance of open friendliness displayed by Italy" during the present war He says:

"I mean the declaration made on behalf of the Italian Government by the statesman who bears the honored name of Viscounte Venosta. I regret that I did not recall it for it is memorable and should be remembered."

THE BAYONET AT DORDRECHT.

Bird's River Camp, Feb. 17.—Late on Friday night, B squadron of Brabant's Horse, under Capt. Flanagan, made a fine attack on the Boer entrenchments outside Dordrecht with bayonets, when the Boers fled through the town, leaving their laager containing numerous wagons, carts tents and much forage. The Boers were followed by Major Henderson. At daybreak the Boers to the east overlooking the town opened fire on Brabant's men in the town below. When the British guns began the Boers' Krupp guns opened fire, two shells bursting over the captured position. The enemy are appearing in great numbers about the crest and towards a lofty hill northwards of the town. Our men are behaving admirably.

On advancing yesterday morning on Dordrecht we encountered the enemy holding the heights about two miles from the town. The advance guards drove the enemy from the position. The Boers—without cannon —offered an obstinate resistance. A detachment of the Cape Rifles passed over the heights at Anderson's farm in gallant fashion, but subsequently evacuated them. Our casualties were eight killed and four wounded. At dusk the British retired from Dordrecht, but their position overlooking Dordrecht was maintained and strongly held. The operations were conducted by Col. Grenfell under the supervision of Brig-Gen. Brabant. An advance will be made to-day, and unless the Boers are strongly reinforced will lead to our reoccupying Dordrecht.

LORD ROBERTS' PROCLAMATION.

Cape Town, Feb. 18.—Lord Roberts has issued a proclamation to the burghers of the Orange Free State saying that he feels it his duty to make known to all the burghers the cause of the coming of the British, as well as to do all in his power to terminate the devastation caused by war, and issues the proclamation in order that if the burghers should continue fighting they may not do so ignorantly, but with a full knowledge of their responsibility before God for the lives lost in the campaign.

The proclamation goes on to say:

"The British Government believes that the wanton and unjustifiable invasion of British territory was not committed with the general approval of the people of the Free State, with whom the British Government has lived in complete amity for so many years. It believes the responsibility to rest wholly with the Government of the Free State, acting not in the interests of the country, but under mischievous influences from without.

"Great Britain, therefore, wishes the people of the Free State to understand that it bears them no ill-will, and that so far as is compatible with the successful conduct of the war, and the re-establishment of peace, it is anxious to preserve them from the evils brought upon them by the wrongful action of their Government."

BOERS ABANDONED THEIR GUNS.

London, Monday, Feb. 19.—A despatch to the Daily Nwes from Modder River, dated Sunday, says that the whole of the enemy's force is in flight.

Their big guns at Magersfontein and Kimberley were left behind.

Commandant Cronje moved his transport, consisting of many hundreds of wagons, along the kopjes north of the Modder River towards Koffeyfontein, in a position near which he is said to be very strong.

The transport moved out at dawn on Friday.

Mounted infantry, which were despatched in pursuit from Klip drift, were repulsed, and the enemy's wagons passed them.

Gen. Knox's Twelfth Brigade attacked the main body, and there was severe fighting the whole day along a very extended line.

The enemy made a desperate effort and finally escaped owing to a serpentine bend in the river.

A MONUMENT OF THE EMPIRE.

Proposal in London to Commemorate the War Services of the Colonies as Welding Them to the Motherland.

London, Feb. 19.—Already suggestions are being canvassed in the press how best to commemorate here in the heart of the empire the splendid sacrifices of Canada and Australasia for the Empire.

The Spectator recently proposed a worthy monument in London to the colonists who fell in the war. Another proposal is the erection in front of St. Paul's Cathedral of four such masts as decorate the front of St. Mark's, Venice. These masts, set in rich, emblematic bronze sockets, would represent Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Upon them the standards of the various colonies would be poised on all national occasions.

The Spectator makes this significant comment—

"The colonies are not dependencies, but parts of a whole, of which we also are only the part major. But the idea of flying flags of four free nations is certainly excellent."

WHERE IS GENERAL CRONJE?

London, Feb. 19.—Practically nothing is known of the progress of Lord Roberts' column during the last day or two, and speculation as to the ultimate gain from the recent movements is rather unsatisfactory when based on belated telegrams.

The statement that a large Boer force was massing northward of Kimberley once more raises in the minds of some experts the whole question whether Gen. Cronje is really with the force retreating on Bloemfontein. It is suggested that the latter is really the Free State main army under General Prinsloo, supplemented by a portion of the Magersfontein command, while the main body of the latter under Gen. Cronje is trying to secure the Vaal bridge at Fourteen Streams, thus barring the way to Mafeking.

IRISH CALLED TO ARMS.

Maud Gonne Addressed a Pro-Boer Mass Meeting.

New York, Feb. 20.—The meeting arranged by people of this city who, for various reasons, favors the Boers in their war with England, was a largely attended one in the Academy of Music last evening. Most of the seats were occupied, the stage was filled and many persons stood. It was distinctly an Irish meeting, presided over by a Dutchman, as the chairman, George W. Van Sicien, called himself. The chief attraction was Miss Maud Gonne who has been engaged for several years in seeking to prevent Irishmen from enlisting in the British Army. Mr. Van Sicien in his introductory address said—"It looks to me as though England had succeeded in buying some officials of the United States Government." He spoke of the English Colonial Minister as "the dishonorable Joseph Chamberlain." "When England by her tyranny forced the Irish out of Ireland," he concluded, "she scattered the seeds of liberty throughout the world."

Miss Gonne said, going directly to the subject of the Boer War—

"One of the greatest crimes the world has ever known is being perpetrated. England's history in South Africa is one long record of hypocrisy, violence and deceit, all for lust of gold. With Irishmen it makes no difference whether the nation with which England is at war is right or wrong. When it fights England it comes Ireland's ally. England asserts that Uitlanders in the Transvaal are not allowed the right of attending public meetings. Well, we in Ireland are not. If England should win in this war two liberty-loving nations would die. Only a coward would stand idly by and watch a murderer commit his crime. England intended to do in the Transvaal what she did on the field of Omdurman. She intended to murder the wounded on the battlefield. You have to murder men who have surrendered and laid down their arms, according to the English jingo press in the stories they printed of the work of the Fifth Lancers at Elandslaagte, where the Lancers, under orders, went over the battlefield despatching the wounded."

Miss Gonne read some extracts from the papers, one telling of an English officer who shot a wounded Boer through the head. "Now that there are several thousands of British prisoners in the hands of President Kruger, it is probable that the open murder of helpless Boer wounded will be put a stop to," she said. Two men, she said, were shot by Lord Methuen because they were Irishmen. She read what purported to be a report what she called the murder of two Irishmen by Baden-Powell. She continued—

"The English authorities dare not now let regiments raised for South African service pass through the streets of Dublin. The Boers have destroyed forever England's boasted greatness. Is that not an encouragement to all oppressed peoples? But there is another lesson. It is that liberty is never won without the shedding of blood. Ireland may have her opportunity. Irishmen, do not let the hour of destiny go by. Fellow countrymen, has not Ireland been the land of sorrow long enough."

Former Judge George M. Curtis echoed Miss Gonne's call to arms "Men of Ireland," said he, "let me tell you that there is no possible emancipation of Ireland save by the sword. And any statesman or politician in America who preaches a different doctrine is either ignorant or insincere."

The meeting was prolonged for more than three hours by songs and recitations.

CANADIANS WITH THE HIGHLANDERS.

Hurried Forward by Forced Marches to Participate in the Expected Fight

Modder River, Feb. 19.—The Royal Canadians are in the midst of the hard work involved in the advance of Lord Roberts' column. It may be because of the evidence given by our men during their stay at Belmont, but it seems as if we get our share of the hard work that is going. We left Graspan with the nineteenth brigade of the seventh division on Tuesday last, and that day marched 30 miles to Wegerdal.

Helped Naval Guns.

There we were enabled to render invaluable services by hauling the naval 12-pounders across the difficult drift.

On Friday we marched on to Jacobsdal, and then on to Klipfontein, where we arrived on Saturday morning. After the drift had been captured, as Commandant Cronje's army had retired up the Modder River, on Friday night, the sixth division followed by the Highland Brigade, marched across country to Klip Krall Drift, where the Boers crossed the river.

The ninth brigade, with the Canadians, left last night by forced marches to catch up to the Highland Brigade and the sixth division, which are trying to intercept the Boer army.

Canadians Just Missed It.

After the Canadians left Klip Kraal, the rear guard with a convoy of wagons of food was attacked by a large force of the enemy with two guns. Our troops fought all morning, until they were ordered to abandon the wagons by Lord Roberts.

The Canadians had only left the place a few hours when the attack was made, and so we escaped the surprise.

Our men are standing the fatigue and the intense heat with great pluck, and their enthusiasm is most contagious. Our long marches are enlivened by Canadian songs in both French and English, and all are eager for a battle in which they can prove their mettle. The heat and dust is dreadful, but we are all well.

AN AMERICAN WITH THE BOERS

According to Him England Has a Herculean Task Before Her.

New York, Feb. 20.—An American volunteer, who is serving with the Boers, makes some interesting statements in a private letter relative to the war. The writer described Gen. Joubert as an old fox, who knows his business well, and who will not move unless he is sure of success. He says that he leaves the attack to the English, the result being that while they lose five men he loses only one. The English artillery is good, although the guns are inferior in range to those of the Boers, but the English cavalry is far less useful than theirs. Gen. White and his 10,000 men are closely blockaded, and the town is bombarded from time to time, but the Boers reckon on sickness, thirst and hunger to reduce the garrison of Ladysmith, which they regard as important on account of the arms and ammunition that it contains. The Boer forces, continues the writer, are increasing every day, and, including the reinforcements which have arrived from England and America, they now exceed 100,000 men. They have allies and spies everywhere, and they know everything that is being done and planned in the British army. Then, if the worst comes to the worst they have their mountains to protect them, and if the English would seek them there they would require a force of a quarter of a million troops. Volunteers, moreover, are still pouring in and only a few days previously a body of 50 arrived from the United States. They had all served in the American army, most of them in Cuba and the Philippines, and they came from New York and Chicago. John Bull, concludes the writer, will have hard work before him if he is to beat the Boers, and will find that all this is not a mere picnic.

THEY ARE MOVING FROM LADYSMITH.

Several Boer Laagers and Hospitals Have Already Gone From One Position.

New York, Feb. 19.—The Journal has the following heliogram—

Ladysmith, Feb. 15.—The sound of steady cannonading along the Tugela was heard here to-day and revived our drooping hopes. It stirred the town and the camp into wild excitement. We all feel confident that Buller is again striving to reach us and that he will succeed this time, and hundreds climbed the hills for signs of advancing forces.

Our confidence this time is strengthened by the discovery of indications of Boers' retreat. Their wagon laagers, which were clearly visible near Taba Inyama, have all disappeared, and the Boer hospitals on the Colenso road have also gone. The only signs of Boers we have are a few horsemen on the plains with a number of cattle. We know Roberts has initiated a great movement on the western frontier, and we conjecture that the Free State commando has gone back to meet him.

The heat is intense, but our hopes are equally high.

BULLER DRIVES BOERS ACROSS THE TUGELA!

The Enemy Abandons a Strong Position, Leaving Camps, Wagons, Etc., Behind.

BRITISH CASUALTIES SAID TO BE VERY LIGHT.

Reported Annihilation of Australians Turns Out to be False—Dr. Leyds Asked the Kaiser to Sanction a German Protectorate Over Transvaal.

London, Feb. 19.—The War Office has received the following despatch from General Buller:

"Chieveley Camp, Feb. 19.—I, yesterday, moved around the enemy's flank. The Queens, who bivouacked on the northern slope of Cingolo crossed the Nek, and supported by the rest of the second brigade under Hildyard assaulted and took the southern end of Monte Christo.

"The fourth brigade on the western or left flank, and the Welsh Fusiliers, supported by the rest of the sixth brigade assaulted the eastern flank of the enemy's position, while the second brigade cavalry on the extreme right watched the eastern slopes of Monte Christo, and drove back those of the enemy attempting to escape their from our artillery fire.

"Assaulted by heavy artillery fire on their front and flank and attacked on their flank and rear, the enemy made by slight resistance, and abandoning their strong position, were driven across the Tugela. I have taken several camps, a wagon load of ammunition, several wagons of stores and supplies, and a few prisoners.

"The weather has been intensely hot, and the ground traversed was exceedingly difficult. But the energy and dash of the troops have been pleasant to see. They have all done splendidly. The work of the irregular cavalry, the Queens, the Scotch Fusiliers, and the Rifle Brigade was perhaps most noticeable, while the excellent practice of the artillery and naval guns and the steadiness of the gunners, under, at times very accurate fire, was remarkable. The accurate fire of the naval guns from Chieveley was of great assistance."

"Our casualties are not, I think, many."

BULLER ATTACKS HLANGWANE.

London, Feb. 19.—The Times thus describes the renewal of active operations by Gen. Buller:

Chieveley Camp, Feb. 14.—Hussar Hill, which is to the south of Hlangwane, the position east of Colenso and south of the Tugela still held by the Boers, was taken by our mounted infantry after a sharp fight of half an hour, not being strongly held. The infantry then pushed forward slowly to the right, occupying a series of low wooded ridges, till evening, when they reached a high ridge, three miles long, strongly entrenched, and connecting Hlangwane with the higher mountains on the east. There was desultory musketry and shell fire all day.

Chieveley Camp, Feb. 16.—After two days of rest our troops attacked Cingolo, a wooden hill, and part of a high range east of Hlangwane, running northwest to the Tugela. The infantry, by a right flanking movement, gained the top of the hill, and by evening the whole hill was ours. A low nek connects Cingolo with the next hill, Monte Cristo, before us. There was a sharp musketry fire this morning; our casualties are few, owing to dense cover. These hills are necessary in order that the Hlangwane may be captured.

Chieveley, Feb. 14.—Delayed by censor.—The movement northeastward began this (Wednesday) morning. Lord Dundonald, with cavalry, infantry and artillery, occupied Hussar Hill, five miles north of Chieveley. The infantry entrenched the hill.

Gen. Lyttleton worked around to the right and Sir Charles Warren in front and to the left. The Boers were heavily entrenched on Hlangwane and Monte Cristo hills.

A steady, independent fire, with occasional volleys, was maintained for some hours and the enemy's trenches were vigorously shelled. The Boers had one gun in action during the early part of the day, but when we began shelling they moved across the river. They used one Nordenfeldt in the afternoon. Our casualties were few.

It is believed that the lyddite worked havoc in the Boer trenches. The Boers are supposed to have removed their big guns back over the Tugela. The rifle fire has been very heavy at times.

A GERMAN PROTECTORATE.

New York, Feb. 19.—A despatch to the Herald, says that Dr. Leyds had for his sole purpose in going to Germany the establishment of a German protectorate, amounting almost to ownership, over the Transvaal Republic. The Emperor refused to consider it at this time.

RETIREMENT WAS ORDERELY

Arundel, Feb. 16.—All quiet to-day. No Boers about. The British outposts are guarding the railway. Reinforcements have arrived.

The retirement of the British from Rensberg was most orderly. The railway had withdrawn the stores on the previous day and the baggage wagons left before the evacuation took place A part of the two companies of the Wiltshire Regiment, which were missing, and the members of which were presumably asleep after having been on outpost duty, have since arrived. The other members of the two companies have probably been taken prisoners.

It had been previously reported that the British left large quantities of stores at Rensberg, and that in the retreat a company of Australian mounted infantry, erroneously stated to be 50 strong, had been cut to pieces. Reliable despatches do not bear out these stories.

IS BULLER AT FAULT?

His Methods Thoroughly Denounced by the New York Times.

New York, Feb. 20.—Relatives of officers in Buller's army say that he has proved himself utterly incapable in the field, and a startling letter from an officer who was in the Colenso fight has found its way into print, charging Buller with every sin a general could be guilty of. Orders were issued in the most slovenly manner, without being committed to paper; troops were flung about promiscuously, ignorant of the position of the enemy they were sent to attack; ambulances were posted in front of big naval guns, and close under them, so as to be in the direct line of the enemy's fire. No reconnoissance was made; artillery was dumped around without purpose or definite plan. "It is little short of murder," the officer wound up, "to intrust the lives of the troops to the hands of such leaders."

As Carlyle remarked about the ideas on army leadership current in the early part of the last century, "The English have a notion that generalship is not wanted, that war is taught by nature as eating is, that courageous soldiers led on by a courageous wooden pole with a cocked hat on it will do very well."

The plain people, however, are beginning to tire of this style, and although the multitude shouts and raves for "revenge," it is not probable that General Buller will be allowed to remain longer at the head of the Natal army. His incompetence and blundering have been worthy of Burgoyne, a name not unknown in our annals, but then, as I told you at the outset, he was a dark horse, never having commanded an army in the field until sent out to conquer the two South African republics in a six weeks' campaign.

THE NEW ALASKA BOOM.

Dawson's boom, it appears, has collapsed already. The crowds of adventurers are leaving for the newest El Dorado, at Nome, and the merchants and gambling house keepers and other agents of civilization are following them. As an indication of Dawson's departing glory we are told that the Grand Palace Theatre is to be floated down the Yukon and established anew at Nome, two thousand miles away.

While Cape Nome is not very far from the jumping off place, it has the great advantage of being accessible by sea. The climate is less inhospitable than that of the upper Yukon, and there can be no boundary dispute or question of jurisdiction. The Nome gold fields are within the unquestioned territory of the United States, though nothing has been done by the United States for the reasonable administration of civil order there or elsewhere in Alaska.

Of the relative attractiveness of the gold fields in the two regions it is not easy to form an opinion. The newest discoveries are always held up as the greatest and best and the rush of prospectors is always to the latest find. This has been the experience in California, in Australia and South Africa. Out of the crowd, a few understand the business and these remain behind while the others drift on to make new experiments elsewhere. It is probable that when Dawson is deserted by the crowd, its real prosperity will begin. As much gold will be mined, and there will no longer be a great population of idlers to maintain.

We may expect to hear next of destitution at Cape Nome, among the people who have gone there with no means of support and often without the ability to do anything for themselves, for not even in the richest diggings can gold be picked up without intelligent labor. Perhaps there will be now a smaller proportion of absolutely inexperienced "tender-feet" at Dawson, but the proportion of those who achieve the fortunes they are seeking will probably be as small at one place as the other.

A SENSIBLE GIRL.

She Learned Spanish Before the War and is Now Reaping the Reward.

An ambitious young woman who this time last year was a stenographer and typewriter, receiving $20 a week for her services with no prospect of ever getting more, became discontented with her lot. She pictured herself growing old, being obliged to give up her work and trying to live on what she had been able to save of that $20 a week salary. When the talk of war began and a man who looked into the future said to her: "Why don't you study Spanish? Who knows but we will all have to speak it soon. You might as well begin now." The jest gave the discontented one an idea and she bought a Spanish Primer the same day. In a week she had secured a teacher and had learned to pronounce her j's like h's and her g's like c's. Last week she accepted a new position as secretary, stenographer, translator and general valuable accessory in the office of a steamship company that ships people and parcels to Cuba. Her salary is $40 a week.

She does not think her improved prospects due to "luck." She lived all spring and summer in Spanish boarding houses, assiduously cultivated every greasy and tiresome boarder for the sake of his or her conversation, ate oily dishes and paprika, and garlic and onions, and permitted herself to be serenaded nightly by a black-eyed caballero who stationed himself in the back yard with a mandolin and addressed love songs to "the third floor back." She does not regret any of her sufferings, for she learned Spanish. But she thinks she deserves her $40.

SCAVENGER OF THE VELDT.

The Aasvogel, Which Keeps the Wide Plains Clean.

Although the term "vulture" has been used for all time as a term of the vilest opprobrium, no one who knows the bird, its appearance and its habits could doubt for a moment that it expresses a depth of degradation which is barely conceivable.

And yet the vulture does a great deal of good in acting as the scavenger of the veldt. But for his quick eye, carrion taste and love of dead meat the disease germs in the carcasses of dead oxen would be far more prolific and dangerous.

Throughout South Africa is found the aasvogel. Go anywhere you like on the veldt, and sooner or later—and in all probability the former—you will find the remains of his ghastly meal. There are hundreds of thousands of oxen used in the transport and trekking service. Many of them die from exhaustion, want of water or cruelty from their Boer masters. Or they may eat of the poisonous tulp, a bulbous plant growing in marshy places.

A kurneyor, or teamster, soon knows if any one or more of his oxen have been eating tulp. The neck of the ox swells, his eyes close up, he gives short, sharp coughs, and his case is generally hopeless. Sometimes, however, he may be saved, and this by a peculiar, homeopathic sort of remedy. If the bulb of the tulp plant is crushed into pulp, mashed with hot water and forced boiling hot down the throat of the ox he may recover.

The quickness of the eye of the aasvogel is simply astounding. An ox falls out of the team, evidently ill. He is outspanned from his yoke fellow, and he goes down to the spruit, or stream. The sky above and away to the horizon on all sides is absolutely clear and cloudless.

Hardly has the breath left the body of the poor ox than you may observe far, far away up in the sky a tiny black speck, then another and another and another, until there are 20 of them. Gradually they get larger and larger, circling round in ever diminishing circles all the while they descend. The dead ox forms the center of the circumference of their flight. Within a few minutes the grisly horde swoop down upon the still warm beast and commence their ghoulish task.

An hour afterward there is nothing in the spruit but a bundle of bleached white bones that might have been there for months. The sky is clear and speckless again. The aasvogel has scavenged the veldt.

Whittier's Predicament.

Whittier held "Gail Hamilton" (Abigail Dodge) in the highest esteem, and the letters that passed between them are really most delightful. Here is one of the series in The Ladies' Home Journal that is truly characteristic of Whittier. It was written in 1866:

"I must tell thee something droll. Last week the Amoskeag veterans from New Hampshire and a Massachusetts company, with military bands, came and paraded before our house, and Governor Smyth of New Hampshire and one or two officers called on me. When they left and I stepped out to see them civilly off, the men in epaulets got up a grand military salute, with music and three cheers to wind up with! Was ever a Quaker in such a predicament? I did, I fear, somewhat compromise myself by lifting, almost involuntarily, my hand to my hat. But I resisted the temptation and only pulled my hat lower down over my brows by way of testimony."

A Race With the Sun.

The London Daily Mail says if an aerial machine were capable of traveling at any rate up to 1,000 miles an hour a traveler in it, starting westward from London at a speed of 660 miles an hour, would arrest the progress of time. If he started at 10 a. m., it would always be to him 10 a. m. Should he find his unending day monotonous, he could reverse his direction and get a quick succession of short days and nights of some six hours' duration, but he could regulate the length by the speed of his machine. Suppose he traveled from London one night at 10 o'clock westward at a speed of 1,000 miles per hour. He would soon experience the sensation of seeing the sun rising in the west where it had set a short time before.

SOME COVETED SCRAWLS.

Rare Autographs For Which Immense Prices Have Been Paid.

The most prized autographs in the world are those of Shakespeare. Only seven are claimed to exist, three signatures to his will (each with a different spelling), two to conveyances of property, one in the folio edition of his plays (doubtful) and one in a Tudor translation of Montaigne. This last is in the British museum and cost over 3,000 guineas.

One thousand guineas was the price given by the late Mr. Alfred Morrison of Carlton House terrace for an autograph letter written by Marie Stuart to the archbishop of Guise. This and two other letters (one to the pope and the other to the king of France) were written by the unfortunate queen of Scots on the morning of her execution. The letter to the French king was destroyed during the days of the terror, while that to the pope is still preserved at the Vatican.

The well known bookseller Bernard Quaritch gave £1,000 for an autograph of Columbus, which was exhibited at the World's fair at Chicago. A Chicago autograph dealer is said to have offered to give $100,000, or over £20,000, for a genuine autograph of Shakespeare if brought to him within a year of making his offer. It was a safe bluff, for since the tragic fate of Chatterton no forger has cared to tackle the quaint scrawl of the Bard of Avon.—Collier's Weekly.

BILLS OVER A CENTURY OLD

They Show Tea to Have Been a Cambridge Student's Favorite Drink.

There is a bill for groceries, etc., furnished for an undergraduate at Cambridge in the year 1788. The bill contains one or two items of furniture. Apparently the undergraduate took over rooms already furnished at a valuation, and certain articles had to be bought new, such as a hearth brush, a pail, a mop and a "Holland gotch." One knows not what this means, but it cost 2 shillings 9 pence (43 cents).

The undergraduate would seem at first sight to have consumed tea in a most reckless manner. On Oct. 24 he is charged 2 shillings for Hyson and 1 shilling 6 pence for Congo. On Nov. 1 he is charged 2 shillings for tea and on the same day, which looks odd, 6 shillings 6 pence for tea. On the 9th of the month he buys a new teapot, the old one, one supposes, worn out with hard service. However, this tea lasts him till the end of the term, so that his tea costs him for the two months no more than 11 shillings, or $2.75, and as the price of tea at this time varied from 8 shillings to about 25 shillings we may conclude that he got through no more than a pound during the term.

In other words, this young man took for breakfast a slight repast of weak tea and bread and butter. Dinner was then served at 12, so that breakfast was only what the Indians call a "chota hazri." On sugar he spent 4 shillings, which means six pounds at 8 pence a pound. On candles he spent 24 shillings 8½ pence, or about 3 shillings a week. He burned wax candles, mold candles and "wax twist." Salt was a shilling a packet. On two occasions he bought sand. Was, then, the floor of his room sanded? It would seem so.

India Rubber Industry.

The bulletin of the Royal gardens, Kew, states that the falling off in the production of India rubber at Lagos is due to the reckless way in which the trees are being exhausted. There is a want of control over the collectors, who tap young trees and destroy whole rubber forests by overworking, so that this industry, which is an important source of wealth to the colony, is in danger of extinction. A similar disaster occurred in Madagascar, and now active steps are being taken to preserve the industry by the establishment of plantations of rubber producing plants.

To make paper fireproof nothing more is necessary than to saturate the paper in a strong solution of alum water, and when thoroughly dry it will resist the action of flame.

The inhabitants of Cochin China much prefer rotten eggs to fresh ones.

NO SYMPATHY FOR BOERS.

Maryland House Votes Down Resolution After Considerable Debate.

Annapolis, February 20.—The resolution expressing sympathy with the Boers, introduced in the House a few days ago by Delegate Robinson, was unfavorably reported to-day by the committee on Fedral relations. Mr. Robinson moved to substitute the bill for the unfavorable report, and the debate that followed furnished the only incident of the session. Mr. Robinson former Mayor of Baltimore city, F. C. Latrobe, and A. Leo Knott, for several years State's Attorney for Baltimore city, endorsed the resolution and said it should be passed. The latter declared that the English people were against the war, and that two men are responsible for it. "One of them," he declared dramatically, "is Joseph Chamberlain, a renegade Radical."

"I am satisfied," he concluded, "that if the English people could be magnanimous they would say, 'We have been trapped and surprised into a war to further commercial greed.'"

Mr. Latrobe said he sympathized with the Boers, and reverting to American issues said: "Personally, I hope the Filipinos will be cleaned up, for I am opposed to hauling the old flag down wherever planted."

The vote to substitute the bill for the unfavorable report was lost— 26 to 52.

A DISASTER PREVENTED.

Runaway Locomotive Stopped By Trainmaster's Plucky Clerk.

Shamokin, Feb. 20.—Locomotive No. 3060 was standing at the Northern Central round house last night, when an unknown person opened the throttle and started it northbound. In a few seconds the engine was tearing past street crossings, narrowly escaping running down teams and pedestrians.

After half a miles was covered, George Fulton, a clerk in the trainmaster's office at the Northern Central and Lehigh Station, saw the runaway, and knew that if the engine traveled several miles more it would collide with a Lehigh Valley passenger train near Excelsoir.

Quickly running to the edge of the platform, Fulton waited until the locomotive was abreast of him. With a spring he landed on the tender, and after recovering himself crawled into the cab and brought the engine to a standstill.

The Architect.

One must wonder why it really is that so little is said or thought about architecture, the grandest, the mother, of all arts, a great, a most useful, science, one in which a greater revolution has lately taken place and in which more progress has been made, with more stupendous results, than in any other, remarks a writer in The International Magazine.

Was it not Richelieu who, paraphrasing an ancient writer, said: "If it is versatility you seek, go find an architect. He must be an artist, or his buildings will offend the eye; an engineer, or they will crumble into trouble; a lawyer, or he will get his patrons into trouble; a doctor, or his buildings will be hygienically unfit to live in, and, last, but not least, he must be a gentleman, or we will have nothing to do with him."

Time to Give Up.

An Iowa judge recently related an amusing incident that had occurred in his court when a colored man was brought up for some petty offense. The charge was read, and as the statement "The state of Iowa against John Jones" was read in a loud voice the colored man's eyes bulged nearly out of their sockets and he seemed overcome with terror and astonishment. When he was asked if he had anything to say or pleaded guilty or not guilty, he gasped out:

"Well, yo' honah, ef de whole state o' Iowa is ag'in dis one pore niggah I'se gwine to give up right now!"

WARNED BY A DREAM.

Fireman Graw Foresaw His Fate Before Starting on His Trip.

Renovo, Feb. 20.—With a fear of death, William Graw, a fireman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, went out to the very fate this morning that a dream had revealed to him. Graw left here at an early hour this morning as one of the crew of a west-bound freight. His home is in Kane, where he has a wife and two children. When at this end of the run he boarded with his grandmother.

This morning his grandmother found him pacing the floor of his room terribly agitated. He declared that he had had a dream in which he saw himself thrown from his engine and mangled to death against a bridge. He said he was afraid to go out on the train, for the vision was so terribly realistic. But after a time he concluded to go out on the run.

Shortly before noon word was received here that fireman Graw was fatally hurt, having been thrown off his engine against the end of the Sterling Run bridge. He had gone out on the running board of the engine when his coat caught on the bridge and he was thrown violently against the structure, sustaining internal injuries that caused hemorrhages. He was taken to the Kane hospital, but a telegram from Emporium stated that when he passed through there he was dying.

ABOUT GRIZZLIES.

The Strength of These Monarchs of the Sierras is Marvelous.

The strength of grizzly bears, says an old Californian is wonderful. The forepaws are masses of tough muscles and short, heavy bones. A grizzly bear has been known to hug a horse into a shapeless mass, but Bruin prefers to deal his victim deadly blows. Some of the tales of the strength of grizzles in their shoulder and forepaws border on the incredible. Doors of heavy redwood planks on log cabins have been knocked and beaten into splinters. The skull of a man who trapped and chained grizzles for exhibition purposes was smashed at one blow by the beast in San Louis Obispo about 1884. Years ago the Spanish ranchmen and vaqueros in the San Joaquin valley used to find sport in witnessing combats between grizzly bears and bulls, and it is said that frequently an ox would be killed by one blow from a grizzly. The bear lore of California is full of stories of grizzlies that have carried a carcass of a 200-pound calf or colt or pig straight from a corral up a precipitious mountain side, and then about a rocky peak to the beast's mate, 15 or 20 miles distant. All the old-time hunters tell wonderful anecdotes of grizzly bears that have been shot through the heart and have lived 10 or more minutes, meanwhile performing almost incredible feats of physical prowess.

An interesting characteristic of the grizzly is his omnivorous diet. Comparatively few people know that grizzlies never eat human flesh. Common grubs, ground mice, gophers, are delicacies for the fierce monarchs of the Sierras and the Rockies. Occasionally a grizzly family will feast upon a deer, a wildcat, or some beast of the mountain. In former days, before the grizzly was driven far away from the edge of civilization, cattle, sheep and pigs furnished the grizzly's larder, but poisoning, traps and rifles have made the beasts wary of things in the valleys and foothills. Wild honey is a prime article of diet with grizzlies, and the mountain trees holding wild honey are quickly detected and lined by grizzly bears. The grizzly prefers a brushy country such as affords a good cover and an abundance of berries, edible roots and honey. Berries are his favorite food. In carrying off a calf or young steer the bear will sometimes walk upon his hind feet, clasping his prey in his forearms, and in this way lift it over rocks or other obstructions. He has been known to attack moose and elk, springing upon them from ambush and biting the spinal column through the neck. In California and Oregon he has displayed much fondness for fish, gorging upon salmon at the headwaters of the streams in which the spawning beds are situated. The bears wades upon the riffles and lies upon projecting rocks, where he can easily claw out the fish from the water.

The Center of Population.

"Census experts estimate," says the Chicago Post, "that the center of population will be found next year to be in Indiana, close to the Illinois line, at a point not far removed from the town of Vincennes. The last census showed the population center to be between Columbus, Ind., and Cincinnati. The increase in the population of Georgia, Texas, the Indian Territory, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona during the last ten years has been sufficient, it is thought, to offset any increase in the northwest and to possibly pull the center somewhat to the south of the 1890 parallel. The wealth center is thought to be in the neighborhood of Sandusky, O."

MYSTERIOUS OCCURRENCE.

The Remarkable Alpine Experience of a King's Messenger.

At a critical moment of international complication which occurred a good many years ago it was found necessary to send a king's messenger across one of the Alpine passes charged with dispatches the importance of which was so great that they practically involved the issue of peace or war. It was in the depth of winter, and in those days, even under the most ordinary circumstances, a journey across Europe meant no trifling undertaking. The first part of the journey was safely accomplished in postchaise as far as the foot of the pass, where a transfer to a sleigh was necessary. Here, on inquiring at the posting inn for horses and a sleigh, the messenger found to his dismay that none was to be had. "Impossible, monsieur, to go forward this night." Toward evening, however, a private carriage arrived, occupied by one traveler, with a sleigh, several spare horses and plenty of servants—evidently the equipage of a personage of distinction. The traveler halted at the posting inn and after a short parley determined to enter and have dinner, the journey across the pass to be continued at nightfall, when a clear moon might be expected.

Under these circumstances the king's messenger and the other traveler naturally dined together and entered into friendly conversation, with the result that an offer of a place in the traveler's sleigh was gladly accepted by the former. At nightfall the journey across the pass was commenced, the messenger carrying in his hand a small dispatch bag containing his dispatches. The route wound up and up the mountain side, all being soon covered deep in snow. The horses seemed fresh and high mettled and were urged at full speed by the driver. Suddenly, at a turn of the road, a man jumped out from a rock. The horses seemed to shy, and in less time than it takes to tell the sleigh was rolling over and over in the snow, with its occupants tossed hither and thither. Some moments elapsed before the half stunned messenger came to his senses, and when he did so the first thing which struck his astonished eyes was the sleigh tearing back down the pass at breakneck speed. No human being was to be seen beside him, his late companions and, worse still, his bag of dispatches, which had escaped from his grasp in the tumble, having vanished like magic. Nothing remained but to plod wearily through the snow back to the inn, where all that he could ascertain was that the strange traveler was unknown to the landlord and that he had returned by the way he had come with his own horses, explaining that there had been an accident. Neither the mysterious traveler nor the bag of dispatches was ever traced, nor has the full history of the adventure ever come to light up to the present day.—Quarterly Review.

Monkey and Mirror.

I saw a performing monkey the other day. He went through many tricks very successfully. Toward the end of the performance he was ordered to put on his cocked hat before a hand mirror, which he did. He was next told to set it straight, and he tried on his general's headgear repeatedly at different angles, causing much laughter. When all was over and the organ man, his helpers and the two monkeys were preparing to depart, I saw that "the general" had possessed himself of the little mirror and was studying his own countenance with great delight! He had placed the glass on top of the barrel organ, and he bent over it again and again, grimacing energetically. He afterward picked up his mirror and contemplated himself earnestly and contentedly at different angles. His face had been profoundly sad, like the faces of most monkeys I have seen, but now the wrinkles smoothed themselves out, and he nearly smiled.—London Standard.

He Lost the Hole.

Ed Tufts of Los Angeles was playing golf with a friend. When he drove from the third teeing ground, he sliced the ball badly and sent it away to one side. It stopped in front of a grazing cow, and Tufts came up just in time to see it disappear into the bovine mouth. When his opponent had made his stroke, Tufts untethered the cow and, with many sounding thwacks of his club, drove the beast to the third hole. There he made her disgorge the ball and, neatly holing it, announced that he had made the hole in two strokes. His opponent calmly finished the hole in seven and claimed the hole.

"But I made it in two," protested Tufts gleefully.

"No, you didn't," declared the other. "You made it in 39. You hit that cow 37 times, for I counted every stroke," and Tufts conceded the hole.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Family Peacemakers.

More family troubles are adjusted by the magistrates in this city than the average person would willingly believe. There is hardly a day passes that every member of the minor judiciary is not called upon by a determined husband or wife, usually the latter, to issue a warrant. Nine cases out of ten the applicant is considerably excited and is eager to invoke the aid of the law in settling some trifling controversy. By calm argument and assurances the visitor can usually be persuaded to give the offender of her or his peace and happiness another chance, and a home is perhaps saved from being broken up.—Philadelphia Call.

SOME QUEER DREAMS.

VISIONS THAT RESULTED IN THE CAPTURE OF CRIMINALS.

Marvelous Manifestations That Baffle the Ingenuity of Man to Explain and Which Prove Anew That Truth Is Stranger Than Fiction.

A very remarkable instance of the tracing of a criminal by means of a dream occurred in St. Louis. A woman named Mary Thornton was detained in custody for a month, charged with the murder of her husband. A week or so after her arrest she requested to see one of the prison officials and told him she had dreamed that an individual named George Ray had murdered her spouse, giving the official at the same time full details of the tragedy as witnessed in her vision. The man Ray was not suspected at the time, but the prison authorities were so much impressed by the woman's obvious earnestness that a search was at once made for him.

After some delay he was traced and charged with the crime, the details of the same as seen in the dream being rehearsed to him. Overcome with astonishment, he then and there confessed that he had committed the crime. Curiously enough, the woman had only met the murderer once and believed him to be on the very best of terms with her husband.

Almost as remarkable was the case of a woman named Drew, who dreamed one night that her husband, a retired sailor, had been murdered by a peddler at a Gravesend tavern, where the said husband was in the habit of putting up when visiting the town in question. The first news that awaited her on rising in the morning was that her spouse had been assassinated at the very tavern she had seen in her extraordinary vision, whereupon she burst into hysterical tears and cried out that her dream had come true.

She calmed down somewhat after a few hours and then handed the police officials an exact description of the peddler of the vision, giving a minute account of his dress, which included a blue coat of a very peculiar pattern. Marvelous as the fact may appear, a man wearing such a coat and following the occupation of a peddler was discovered two days later at an inn some six miles from Gravesend, and, on being taxed with the crime, he at once admitted that he was guilty and that robbery had been the motive of the outrage. He was hanged soon afterward, his doom having been brought about by the flimsy evidence of a woman's dream.

Women as dreamers seem more successful than men, but a rather peculiar instance of a crime being traced by a vision and in which the dreamer was a member of the male sex comes from Rennes, in France. A worthy merchant, having quitted his office one Saturday evening, proceeded home to dinner and after enjoying a substantial meal lay down on the couch and fell into a light doze. A very vivid dream then came to him wherein he saw two men of the burglar type engaged in rifling the safe in his office, and so much impressed was he by the vision that he resolved, upon awakening, to at once go to the office and see that everything was under lock and key.

His amazement may be imagined when, on arriving there, he discovered the door forced and a burglary in progress. To summon a couple of gendarmes was the work of an instant, and five minutes later the thieves, who proved to be notorious housebreakers, were on their way to the police depot, where the prosecutor told his extraordinary story. In view of the fact that the safe contained valuables to the extent of some thousands of pounds, the dream in question proved a very fortunate one for the dreamer.

How to explain these marvelous manifestations, which prove once more that truth is stranger than fiction, is a task beyond the ingenuity of man to compass. Perchance the theory of telepathy may have something to do with the mysterious business, but even that theory would appear rather inadequate in such cases as the aforementioned.

A skillful forger who moved in the highest circles of society was once detected by the agency of a dream. The affair occurred in Boston and caused the greatest excitement of the time.

The forger, a young man of eight or nine and twenty, had become acquainted with a rich publisher, at whose house he became a constant guest. One day the publisher's bankers discovered that some one was forging their client's signature to various large checks, and two detectives were at once instructed to look out for the culprit.

Their efforts proved useless, but one evening the publisher's youngest daughter, a little girl of 11, dreamed that she saw a man whom she described as "like Mr. Blank," the visitor to whom reference has been made, sitting in a room in Maine street copying her father's signature. The child's dream was communicated to the police, who, though inclined to ridicule the same at the outset, eventually promised to have the gentleman in question watched, with the result that his lodgings were raided and a complete plant for the making of bank notes found there. It then transpired that he was a man who was wanted for manifold forgeries throughout the Union, and he was sent to prison for a very long term.

The child's dream was all the more extraordinary in view of the fact that she was too young to understand the leading incidents of the business and attributed the copying of her father's signature in the dream to the "gentleman wanting to write nicely, like papa." Strange, very strange, but none the less true, and proving once more that, as Hamlet remarked, "There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamed of in your philosophy."—Philadelphia Times.

NORWOOD.

From our own Correspondent.

The Norwood Curlers, although unsuccessful in winning the double rink cup at Campbellford, won the single rink cup, a beautiful trophy, standing about a foot and one half high. The following are the names of the players: H. Cuthbertson, G. Keefer, T. E. Finley, J. Cumming, (skip). Score, 166 to 11.

Mr. Hudson, inspector, expressed himself as highly satisfied with the High school staff, and the work of the students.

Several from Norwood attended the hockey assembly at Keene.

The funeral of W. J. Elliott, Mary'sville, Kansas, took place from Mr. Brown's residence, King street, on Saturday last.

Mr. R. J. Stewart, of town, is journeying in the Maritime Provinces, organizing Forester's Courts. While there he made a call at Halifax on the four young volunteers to South Africa from here and was given a good time.

Several from Norwood attended the Foresters' carnival, Peterboro, and report a good time.

Mr. Harold McGregor is taking up a commercial course at the Business College.

Division Court was held here Wednesday afternoon.

Several cases of scarlet fever have been reported around town but the health officer has promptly suppressed any fear of its spreading.

All the snow has disappeared and consequently no sleighing.

The Rink Company intend holding their first carnival a week from next Friday, February 23. Valuable prizes will be offered for best costumes.

A QUEER EXPLOSION.

HOW A MOUNTAIN LOCOMOTIVE CAME TO AN UNTIMELY END.

There Was Neither Fire in Her Furnace Nor Water in Her Boiler, and Yet She Managed to Blow Up in the Most Approved Style.

Mr. Henry Alquist, a prominent railroad man, relates the story of a curious wreck, the facts in which he will vouch for.

"It is such a remarkable thing," said Mr. Alquist to a reporter, "that I fear many will be inclined to brand it as 'pipe.' I have been railroading now for over 20 years, and never in all my varied experience have I seen such a unique and complete wreck as the one I speak of—that of engine 1,129 of the Rio Grande Western. Railroad men will tell you that locomotives seldom explode nowadays, but 1,129 did and in a very peculiar way.

"At the time this wreck occurred I was holding down the job of train dispatcher at Soldier Summit, Utah, and a tough old job it was. Never been there, I suppose? Well, Soldier Summit is a station on the top of one of the Wasatch divides, a bleak and lonely place, where the Rio Grande Western has a roundhouse and coal chute located. At the summit are long snowsheds covering the tracks. These sheds protect the line from the winter. And it is only due to this method that a train ever gets over the mountain.

"On both sides of the mountain the line winds down in a succession of winding curves to lessen the grade. Running off from the railway are switches, which, diverging from the grade, run up into the hills and gradually come to a dead level. These switchbacks, as they are called, are so constructed that they can be thrown from any point on the grade. And if a train breaks in two while ascending the steep grade the runaway cars can be switched on to one of these spurs, where the breakaway finally stops after it has run up the spur as far as the momentum attained in its descent will take it.

"All heavy trains have an extra locomotive before the grade is tackled. These are called helper engines and are kept in roundhouses at each side of the mountain with steam up.

"One night I got word from Clear Creek, a town in the western valley, that the 9:20 freight would be 20 minutes late on account of having to pull out a crippled engine, 1,129. She had burned out her flues and had to be hauled to Grand Junction for repairs.

"That night about 10 o'clock, after I had passed down the Salt Lake express, I heard the freight coughing up the long grade from Clear Creek. There was a snowstorm raging, and the wind howled around the station like the mischief. When the overdue 9:20 pulled into the shelter of the big snowsheds on the wind swept summit, the first thing I asked was, 'Where's the dead engine?'

"'Behind the doghouse!' shouted the 'con.' But as I held my lamp above my head I failed to see it. I was just about to call his attention to it when, during a lull in the storm, we plainly heard the familiar rattle of the rails as the runaway engine flew at lightning speed down the mountain. No. 1,129 had broken loose and was tearing down the grade to destruction.

"I jumped and pulled the lever which opened the spur switches. This I knew would prevent a smashup, as the engine would run up on the switchback and come to a stop. But I was too late. Almost at the same instant I threw the lever a terrific explosion was heard from far down the mountain. The runaway had exploded."

"I thought you said a moment ago, Mr. Alquist," interrupted The Scimitar man, "that the locomotive was a 'dead one?' If she had no fire under her boiler, how could she explode?"

"That was the only thing I couldn't understand myself," the railroad man replied. "I could easily see how the dead engine could break loose on that grade, and I could understand not hearing its descent during such a howling blizzard, but the explosion floored me. The only theory which in any way solved the mystery was that the old kettle was blown up by compressed air.

"You see, when the engine broke loose from the freight and started down the mountain the pistons in the cylinders began to act as air compressors. During the rough trip op her throttle probably jarred open, and as the speed increased with every revolution of her drivers her boiler soon filled with compressed air. It was not long before those flying pistons had worked up a pressure of nearly 500 pounds to the square inch, which came in faster than it could escape by the safety valve, and before the old machine reached Clear Creek her boiler let go."

Wanted to See the President.

The Washington Star says that a big, gawky country lad went to the White House the other day just as the president had gone out for a morning stroll.

"I wants ter see the president," he announced to the first man he met.

"Well, there goes the president now," said the man addressed, pointing to the president's retreating form.

"Dern my time!" the young man ejaculated. "He walks just like any other man," and the fellow struck out so that he could get close enough to see the president well.

Warwick castle is held by many to be the most beautiful seat in England. The large baronial hall is a magnificent room. It is decorated with the most perfect specimens of armor, furnished in a luxurious manner, and masses of flowers and huge palms abound on every side.

DEADLY SNAKES.

Various Signs by Which Their Character May Be Recognized.

To distinguish between venomous and harmless snakes is easy in practice, but it is difficult to explain in words alone, as there is one external characteristic which distinguishes them. It is rather a peculiar, varying union of many separate marks that brands the dangerous reptile.

Generally speaking, all snakes may be divided into two great classes—those which have the head covered with numerous small scales and those which have it covered with large, regularly fitted plates. Leaving out the elipidæ and the poisonous sea snakes, with which the hunter will have nothing to do, all snakes with small head scales move about by night and those with the large plates on the head by day. This may be known by their eyes, for the first have vertical pupils like the cat's, while those of the latter are generally circular in form. The long, active day snake, gliding about from bush to bush or hurriedly taking refuge beneath some protruding rock or tree stump, is harmless. Even should he lie coiled in the sunshine he will flee from approaching danger. But a serpent nicely coiled in some secluded nook which instead of fleeing gathers himself closer together is most probably dangerous, particularly if he be more or less marked with a suggestion of irregular crossbars or whitish or dirty yellow and darker brown or blackish. This is the characteristic coloring of our most dangerous snakes, the rattler, the copperhead and the moccasin.

The following points embrace all the peculiarities of our American vipers, and the last two are especially noteworthy as the crowning proofs of venom:

(1) Moving about at dusk or by night, generally on the ground, and very rarely ascending trees or bushes. (2) Seldom flying in alarm, but rather coiling for defense. (3) Colors generally subdued in tint, with a semblance of irregular crossbars of lighter and darker shades. (4) Tail short, body stout, neck thin, head flat and very broad, especially behind. (5) Scales keeled—i. e., each scale has a ridge down the middle, which gives the skin a rough appearance like a rasp. (6) Head covered with small scales, sometimes larger over the eyes or nose. (7) Eyes with vertical pupils like a cat's. (8) Two pits or holes between the eyes and nose, suggesting four nostrils. (9) Two long, curved, perforated fangs in the upper jaw just in front of the eye, one on either side and so hinged that they lie backward, hidden from view in a membranous sheath, but erectile at will.

Some of the first seven peculiarities may be found in harmless snakes, but it is only in the vipers that they are united.—Outing.

How She "Guides" Them.

There is a jolly mother in Brooklyn who has several grown up sons boarding at home with her, and they declare she wants to "boss" them all the time, just as if they were children. She laughingly repudiates their charge and declares that she merely wishes to advise and guide them, but has long ago ceased to rule them. Here is an example of the way she "guides" them: At dinner the other night a big meat pie and a small roast duck were brought on together. The duck was intended for the father principally. The boys were death on duck, their mother well knew, but it would not make a mouthful apiece for them; so, addressing the boy who sat nearest her, she said, "Which will you have, Bobbie, duck or pie?" and at once began cutting the pie.

"Duck!" said Bobbie promptly.

"No, Bobbie," answered his mother cheerfully, "you can't have duck, dear. Take your choice, my son, take your choice, but you can't have duck!"—New York Tribune.

New Zealand Oddities.

The crow in New Zealand strikes as sweet a note as any heard in the woodland, says Henry D. Lloyd in The Atlantic. The robin has no song and no red breast; the native hen is the greatest of rat killers; there is a caterpillar which turns into a plant. These and some other productions of nature have done for New Zealand what the kangaroo and the ornithorhynchus have done for Australia—given it the suggestion of oddity and the marvelous. Rabbits and sweetbriers, introduced for pleasure, spread like wildfire, and it is an attraction to be duly advertised in the sale of land that it has been cleared of sweetbrier and fenced against rabbits, and then later the rabbit becomes a profit instead of a pest and is exported by millions to feed the English.

Amateur Photography.

Let me call attention to one of the most universally popular mistakes that have to do with photography—that of classing supposedly excellent work as professional and using the term amateur to convey the idea of immature productions and to excuse atrociously poor photographs. As a matter of fact nearly all the greatest work is being and has always been done by those who are following photography for the love of it, and not merely for financial reasons. As the name implies, an amateur is one who works for love, and viewed in this light the incorrectness of the popular classification is readily apparent.—Alfred Stieglitz in Scribner's.

Minnesota's First Book.

The Rev. S. W. Dickinson, an agent for the American Bible society, says that the first book printed in Minnesota was a Bible. It was printed in 1836, about 12 years before the first issue of a newspaper in St. Paul. The Bible was in the Ojibway language and was printed on the mission press at Lake Pokegama, Pine county, under the supervision of Rev. Mr. Ayer, who likewise had charge of the mission farm at that point.

Making Things Worse.

When a man gets nervous prostration, all his friends remind him how they warned him years ago.—Chicago Record.

A Happy Mother

Frolicking with her baby makes one of the prettiest spectacles ever seen in the home. But nothing is sadder to see than the unhappy mother, weak and nervous, striving in vain to hush the cries of her weak and nervous babe. There can be no happiness for either mother or child without health. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription "has done wonders" for many a woman, by restoring her health and opening for her the way to happy motherhood. This really wonderful medicine is not a cure-all. It is a preparation specially designed to cure diseases peculiar to women. It dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, cures female weakness, and removes the causes which generally make women nervous and sleepless.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

Mrs. James W. Blacker, of 629 Catherine Street, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "Your medicines have done wonders for me. For years my health was very poor; I had four miscarriages, but since taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I have much better health, and now I have a fine healthy baby."

Use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets with "Favorite Prescription" if the bowels are inactive or irregular.

Steel Combs.

A man who saw in a sidewalk showcase some steel combs and who wondered what steel combs could be used for found upon inquiry that they were used by furriers in combing furs. There was one of these combs that looked much like a comb of the ordinary kind, coarse toothed for half its length and finer toothed the other half. And then there was one comb that had teeth for half its length, the solid end serving as a handle.

There are other steel combs that are used for a similar purpose, as steel combs made to comb dogs with. The dog comb looks somewhat like the fine toothed comb in its general shape, but it is larger, toothed on one side only and coarser toothed than the so called fine comb. The untoothed side combs of this sort are used on various kinds of dogs, including, for instance, long haired dogs like the French poo-

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Foolish Young Man.

John Dundas, a young man about 18 years of age, was arrested on Saturday night by P. C. McGinty, charged with collecting a sum of money on behalf of the 57th Battalion, without having authority to do so. On Monday he acknowledged his sin when brought before Police Magistrate Dumble and was remanded for sentence.

A Card to the Public.

Having disposed of my baking business to my brothers, Messrs. Fred and Stanley Bates, I take this opportunity of thanking my numerous customers in the town and surrounding country and villages and the public generally, for their liberal patronage for the past seven years, and I feel assured that the new managers will serve out in a prompt and business-like manner. Walter Bates.

The Patriotic Dance.

The ladies who have the management of the patriotic concert have requested the Times to announce it has been deemed advisable to secure the opera house in which to hold the dance. This will give ample room, so that all who come may thoroughly enjoy themselves. It was originally intended to hold it in the Oddfellows' hall, but on account of the large attendance which is sure to follow, the opera house was engaged. We think the committee acted wisely.

Children's Aid Society.

Applications are requested by the Children's Aid Society, for the position of Agent. If so desired application will be received for the positions of Keeper of the Shelter and Constable separately. Applications to be addressed to the President.

Another Milk Case.

County Magistrate Edmison heard evidence in the case of Daniel Moloney, who is charged with sending deteriorated milk to the Maple Leaf cheese factory last summer. The charge is laid by the inspector, R. W. Ward. The case is one in which many difficulties present themselves chiefly on account of the unskillful manner in which the act is drawn up. Mr. Moloney denies the charge emphatically. Judgment was reserved till Saturday next, when it is likely the magistrate will hand out a written decision.

New Readers

We have just received a neat little book of new readings in Scotch and English for social gatherings. The selections are from the works of Mr. John Imrie, Toronto, and are up to date. For sale at the Times Bookstore.

MR. MILLER RESIGNS

AND THE CHILDREN'S AID SEEK ANOTHER AGENT.

The McConnell Children to be Disposed of on Friday by Police Magistrate Dumble—The Society Recommend That They be Given Back to Their Mother, Which Will Probably be Done.

Yesterday afternoon the Children's Aid Society held a special meeting to consider the resignation of Mr. F. W. Miller, as agent of the society. The various members did not consider it to be a question between the society and Mr. Miller, but rather between the public and Mr. Miller. Although the members seemed of the opinion that the recent trouble would be a lesson to him and that he would if retained, be more careful in future, it was deemed advisable to accept his resignation, as it seemed to be the public opinion that he should be relieved of his charge. It was accordingly moved by Rev. Mr. Shorey, seconded by Rev. Mr. Armitage, that Mr. Miller's resignation be accepted, to take place April 2nd, next, thereby allowing him the use of the shelter during the cold weather. The motion was carried unanimously.

The question of dividing the offices of caretaker of the society was also discussed. It was suggested that some respectable married man be given the use of the shelter and supplied with fuel and water, as has hitherto been done, and that the office of agent be given to some man who has other responsible positions which would necessarily make him careful.

Mr. Max Dennistoun did not consider the salary sufficient for the responsibility.

It was moved by Rev. J. C. Davidson seconded by Rev. Dr. Torrance, that an advertisement be inserted in the local papers for tenders for either or both offices.—Carried.

Mr. Miller, though acting in the name of the society in the matter of the McConnell children, did so without their knowledge or consent, and allowed the children to be taken from the shelter without consulting anyone, although he should not allow any children to leave the shelter without an order from the magistrate. Mr. Miller admitted that he gave up the children to Mr. McConnell without even knowing whether he was their father or not. The Society has recovered the children and placed them in the shelter. The magistrate has instructed that all parties concerned be notified, and that the children be brought before him on Friday next at 10 a.m., when the society will request that the children be restored to their mother.

Among those present at the meeting were: Messrs. J. J. McBain, President; J. H. Burnham, Secretary; W. Bamford and R. M. Dennistoun, Revs. J. C. Davidson, Armitage, Shorey and Crossley, and Rev. Dr. Torrance, beside a number of ladies.

Farewell Supper.

A number of the members of the E.K.O. Club, entertained Mr. George Armstrong to an oyster supper on Saturday night. Amongst those present were Jack Gemmell, in the chair, and Messrs. R. M. Glover, W. Higgins, W. B. Bletcher, W. J. Squires, M. Comstock, H. Clegg, Jack Milne, George Milne, W. Ackerman, C. LeLean, W. Comstock, and E. M. Elliott. A pleasant two hours was spent in extending to Mr. Armstrong, who goes to Toronto, the good wishes of those present.

Notice.

Messrs. Fred W. Bates and Stanley G. Bates beg to notify the public that they have purchased the baking business lately carried on by Mr. Walter Bates and will hereafter carry on the same under the name and style of Bates Bros., and hope to merit a continuance of the patronage enjoyed by their predecessor. Everything will be run in first class style and customers may depend on getting nothing but A1 one goods from the new firm. Bates Bros., the wide awake bakers, 654 Stewart street. Telephone 303.

Blown to Pieces.

Robert McGibbon, an employee on the extension of the Central Ontario railway, met with a horrible accident. He was working near Ormsby, assisting in blasting, when a blast of dualin prematurely exploded, blowing off both hands, destroying one eye, tearing off his nose, and otherwise injuring him. The unfortunate man died soon after admission to the hospital in Belleville. He was 30 years of age, and leaves a widow and children. His home was in Dungannon township, Hastings county.

Acknowledged.

Trooper Thompson wrote to the Warden thanking the County Council for its grant of $25, which he received at the hands of Major Greenwood. He says the boys are all well.

DEWEY'S SON HERE.

The Great Admiral's Son Stops off at Peterborough.

George Dewey, Jr., son of the great American admiral, who smashed the Spanish fleet at Manila in May 1898, was in town yesterday. He stopped off on his way west. He came from Montreal, and will stop in Toronto a day or two.

Mr. Dewey has accepted the western agency of a large New York dry goods concern, and will reside in Chicago, hereafter.

To a Times representative Mr. Dewey said—"I am willing to talk about my father, but not of myself. I am simply George Dewey, Jr., a business man, and not 'George Dewey, son of the admiral.'"

To be Appealed.

Mr. Robert Stewart, the well-known drover, appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday, charged with cruelty to animals. It appears that on Wednesday last, Mr. Stewart, as usual, brought a large number of live hogs on the market. These were being driven to the Matthews Company's premises and when they reached the custom's building, one of the animals turned to go back. Mr. Stewart himself was helping to drive the pigs, and, it appears from the evidence, had a small stick in his hand, with which he attempted to strike the pig over the nose, to prevent its escape. Blood was found on the sidewalk, which Mr. Stewart alleges, was caused by the driver of Mr. Denne's delivery wagon kicking the pig as it passed him. Mr. Stewart alleges that he did not strike the pig at all, although he admits he tried to do so. Credible witness swore that Mr. Stewart was always humane in his treatment of pigs. The magistrate felt it his duty to punish Mr. Stewart, and imposed a fine of $5 and costs. Mr. Stewart at once entered an appeal.

Death of Mr. Garnet Green.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Garnet G. Green, photographer, a well known citizen, which occurred Sunday evening about ten o'clock, at his residence, 342 Stewart street. He was taken ill about two weeks ago with inflamation of the brain and, the disease becoming acute about a week ago, the death was not unexpected. Mr. Green was twenty-eight years of age. He was a son of Wm. J. Green, formerly of town, now of British Columbia, and has two brothers, Messrs. B. F. and Fred. Green, both residing in town. He leaves a widow, formerly Miss McBurney, and one child to mourn his death. Mr. Green was highly esteemed and many friends will be sorry to learn of his death. The funeral will take place from the family residence, 342 Stewart street, on Tuesday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The Girls' Guild of All Saints' church will give an "At Home" to the congregation and friends this evening between 8 and 10 o'clock.

One of the wells at the lift lock in Ashburnham is now down about 60 feet, whilst the other has reached a depth of 45 feet.

The women of St. Paul's church Auxiliary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society contributed the sum of $61.75 towards the famine fund for the starving millions of India. Other contributions are yet to come to hand.

Mr. J. J. Turner yesterday received a letter from "Chill," posted at Montreal, on board the train. The boys were having a good time, and everybody was happy. Two homesick soldiers jumped the train at Toronto. At Montreal a dining car was put on, and the journey continued. The boys are now at Halifax.

Messrs. E. F. Mason & Co. yesterday received a letter from Chase and Sandborn, Montreal, stating that they would supply their celebrated Java and Maco coffee free of charge at the patriotic concert to be held next Friday. The firm also kindly offer to send Mr. Small, one of their representatives, to grind and make the beverage on this occasion. This generosity will be appreciated by the ladies who have the affair in hand.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. Nugent are in Toronto.

Mr. A. Wannfried, of Toronto, is in town.

Miss Ethel Crossley is the guest of Miss Effie Sanford, Belleville.

Miss Robinson, of Omemee, is in town for a few days visiting friends.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams is away inspecting the lumbering districts on the West Shore.

Mrs. McGivern, who had her eyesight seriously injured a few days ago is getting better.

The many friends of Mrs. T. W. Martin will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from her serious illness, and is now able to sit up.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The fastest and best played hockey match ever seen on the St. Nicholas rink this season was played between Pittsburgh and the St. Nicholas club. Pittsburgh is the team with which our "Walter" is supposed to play, but his name does not appear on the list.

To-night's game in Lindsay ought to be a warm one.

•• • ••

Lindsay and Fenelon Falls will have another go to-morrow night. Ernie Wasson will act as referee. His winning ways seem to have captured the hearts of both teams.

Chris. Graham has arrived back from New York, none the worse for his experience in the boxing tournament. It is likely he got a pointer or two, although by all accounts he should have had the decision, as he had his man hanging on to the ropes in the third round.

WHAT THEY SAY.

Kind Words for the Times from many Quarters.

The Times has many "walking advertisements" these days—that is, men who go about saying a good word for the paper whenever or wherever they can. All who read the paper (and who does not?) tell the same story—the Times is essentially the contentment of its many thousands of readers. Here is a few samples—

F. J. Lillicrop, Lakefield — Please find enclosed $4 to pay for your bright daily up to July next.

R. J. Munro—I would not be without the Times. It is the people's paper. Everybody in Lakefield reads it.

A. P. Poussette, Q.C., Peterborough — The Times is the brightest local paper. Its war news is even better than given by the larger city papers.

John Bullied, Millbrook—The Times is the best newspaper we get.

J. D. Pettigrew, Norwood—I regard the Times as a thoroughly up-to-date newspaper.

R. J. Kidd, Peterborough—I have better results from my ad. in the Times than from any other paper. I consider it the best paper in Eastern Ontario.

J. J. Lundy, Ashburnham—The Times is all right. It gives the latest war news, and helps one to digest his breakfast.

Commodore Calcutt, Ashburnham — I would rather miss my breakfast than miss getting the Times. One seems to be essential to the other.

Gus. Hay, Peterborough—I like the Times very much. It contains the same news that is given in the Toronto papers, which do not get here till noon.

W. Salisbury, Peterborough—Since I began taking the Times at my house, I have learned to appreciate it very much. It is all right.

W. Snowden, Peterborough — Please send half a dozen copies down here every day until further notice for the use of our guests. Everybody asks for the Times.

Is it Good Policy. ?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I was very much surprised on reading the Review this evening to learn that Mr. Robert Stewart had been fined at the police court for cruelty to animals. I say I was surprised for two reasons; (1) I happened to witness the alleged act of cruelty, and can say that it requires an awful stretch of imagination to form the conviction that the abused the animal to the smallest extent, and (2) anyone who knows Bob Stewart is aware that he is the last man on earth to hurt anything.

Now, Mr. Editor, the blood on the pavement which appears to have shocked the young quill-driver of the Review, was caused by a kick which the pig received from a man near Mr. Denne's store. This I know, for I saw it. He is the individual that should be punished, and not Mr. Stewart.

I consider it one of the many fool cases which our Chief of Police brings on. He has nothing to put his time in at, and has to make some pretence of earning his money.

I am surprised that our worthy Magistrate, who is generally level-headed, should not have got at the facts.

If it was not for such men as Mr. Stewart and a few like him, who distribute hundreds of thousands of dollars among the farmers every year, the outlook for our business men would be blue indeed.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am.,

AN EYE WITNESS.

Some War Information.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—1 What is meant by the "right of search"; when, where and how has a belligerent the "right" to stop and search the vessel of a neutral? 2 If arms or munitions of war are found what are the "rights" of captor? 3 Have neutrals the "right" to ship arms, munitions or mules, and has either belligerent the "right" of capture and confiscation? No reference is had to a blockade runner seeking to enter a blockaded belligerent port. 4. Is a neutral vessel, from a neutral port to a neutral port, containing or supposed to contain arms, munitions or mules, subject to stoppage and the right of search? 5 If food and flour be subject to capture, has a neutral the "right" to allow mules to be shipped to a belligerent?

G. D. B.

Reply.—1 The right of a belligerent to stop and examine a vessel, to see if it is what it purports to be. If the vessel prove to be a neutral, trading between neutral ports, the right to search is ended for the time being, so far as that vessel is concerned. 2 If the cargo's ultimate destination is the enemy, it may be seized, together with the vessel. This question is not settled definitely; the "Peterhoff case" is a leading case. 3 Citizens have such right; the belligerent has the right of capture. 4 Yes, but not to seizure. Only recently Great Britain attempted to seize vessels bound to Delagoa Bay, a neutral port, because they carried such cargoes; but, on second thoughts, decided not to do so. 5 Food and flour are not, ipso facto, contraband of war. Subjects of neutral powers may ship anything they choose; but their shipments, if contraband, are liable to be seized. The whole matter of trading practically is this: There is no crime in dealing commercially with belligerents; the crime is in being caught.

THE CANADA BUSINESS COLLEGE
CHATHAM, ONT.

Canada's greatest school of SHORTHAND and BUSINESS training, still holds a very strong lead over its contemporaries.

No better evidence of this claim need be offered than the following, which shows how widely this justly popular school is patronized.

17 Cities, Towns and Villages in Canada, United States and Newfoundland represented in the attendance during the year to date.

30 Counties in Ontario, six of the United States, together with five from Manitoba and Alberta, have sent their representatives. They come from the Atlantic on the East to the Pacific on the west. Distance proves no hindrance to those who are determined to attend the best.

This is an excellent time of year to make a start. Pupils are admitted at any time. For catalogue, address.

BRITISH STILL PURSUING CRONJE

BOERS FAST LEAVING BRITISH TERRITORIES.

General Buller Thinks the Enemy is About to Raise the Siege of Ladysmith.

BOERS RETRACING THEIR STEPS FROM ZULULAND

Details of General Cronje's Retreat From Magersfontein on Thursday Night—No News Heard of Cronje and His Pursuers for Two Days—War Office Satisfied.

London, Feb. 21

Mr. Spencer Wiininson, reviewing the military situation in the Morning Post to-day, says:—"The meaning of the position in Natal is that the Boers have sent the bulk of their forces to resist Lord Roberts. Gen. Buller's aim is to join Sir Geo. White, and then either push on to Laing's Nek or to send back two divisious to reinforce Lord Roberts, retaining two in Natal to complete the recovery of the northern triangle. It is to be hoped that Lord Roberts will overcome General Cronje before the latter is reinforced, otherwise the British commander may find himself facing a Boer army equal in strength to his own, as all the Boers appear to be hurrying towards Cronje. The British commanders ought soon to be able to free Natal and Cape Colony from the enemy. The actions now in progress are the decisive battles of the war and every effort must be made to reinforce Lord Roberts."

London, Feb. 21

A correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, telegraphing Sunday, thus describes Gen. Cronje's retreat with the Boers at Magersfontein, on learning of General French's success—

"On Thursday at midnight, headed by General Cronje, five thousand Boers with their heavy guns and ox wagons evacuated the Magersfontein lines. At Daiva on Friday the retreating Boer army was seen from the British naval gun station on Klip Drift kopje, trekking eastward across the British front at a distance of 5,000 yards. Our guns opened upon them and a force of mounted infantry crossing the river, made a dashing charge in the attempt to cut off the head of the enemy's column. But in half an hour their whole force had gained shelter under a line of kopjes.

"Meanwhile two of our batteries had come up and the Oxfords, Buffs, West-ridings and Gloucesters. Our infantry crossed the drift and for three hours were engaged with the enemy, while our batteries shelled his positions. The mounted infantry kept hard at work.

"Unable to withstand our galling fire, the enemy retired, disputing every inch of of the way and took up a second position on the kopjes to the eastward. It was a magnificent spectacle to to see the Boer army thus at bay. Their rear guard, two thousand strong, fougnt us, while the main body trekked further east and then brought their guns into action, while the rear guard retired.

"The action lasted through the day. Our infantry fought splendidly, but the enemy held his ground onder the continued bombardment.

"Later on the Boer commander ventured on a bold stroke, leaving two thousand of his men under cover, he withdrew the rest from his main position and headed for Klip Kraal Drift six miles east. The movement was soon discovered. Our mounted infantry come back across the drift and marched along the south bank to endeavor to head off the enemy.

"When they reached the neighborhood of Klip Kraal Drift night had fallen and half of the Boers were already across to the south side. Our mounted infantry harassed their movements.

"Meanwhile the Boer rear guard, having covered the crossing of the main body, retired slowly and successfullyy passed the drift. The rear guard fought desperately, and as it fell back to the river it was harassed on the flank and rear by the British.

"Having thus passed the Modder under cover of darkness, the Boers trekked throughout the night in the direction of Bloemfontein. Gen. Kelly-Kenny with the sixth division pursued them at daylight, General Macdonald with the Highlanders following him. Macdonald reached Klip Kraal Drift by forced marches Sunday. General Kelly-Kenny moving from Klip Kraal Drift was endeavering to outflank the enemy and to cut them off from Bloemfontein, so as to drive them back into Gen. Macdonald's hands. When I left the front General Kelly-Kenny had not come up with the enemy."

Bulawayo, Monday, Feb. 12.

Col. Piumer sent Major Bird with two hundred colonials to attempt the capture of the Boer 12 pounders on a kopje near Crocodile Pool.

Major Bird met with such a terrific rifle and shell fire that he considered the position too strong and ordered a retirement.

Col. the Hon. H. F. White was slightly wounded, Major Straker was severly wounded, nineteen privates were wounded and Capt. Sampson French and nine men are missing.

London, Feb. 21.—4.15 a.m.

The Boers are leaving all the positions held by them on British territory and are concentrating for the defence of their own. Sir Redvers Buller thinks that they are about to raise the siege of Ladysmith and this is the large news of the day.

General Clements reports that the force confronting him has been greatly diminished. Ten thousand men are estimated to have gone from the Colesberg district alone. The Boers are also retracing their steps from Zululand. Thus they are relaxing their hold on all positions in order to assemble to oppose Lord Roberts. He is pressing on steadily towards Bloemfontein. This is shown by his inconsequential telegram from Paarederberg, forty or sixty miles away.

Doubtless he is miles behind the column that is pursuing the Boers, and the next important news may be the occupation of Bloemfontein.

Nothing has been heard from the chase of Cronje for two days. Although the last words of the War Office to-night were that there was no news for publication, there is a strong disposition to believe that favorable information has been received but is being held until the operations culminate in something more conclusive. There is an equally strong disposition to think that General Crónje had got away.

Owing to the lack of transport the British are not likely to invade Boer territory except where Lord Roberts is operating. General Buller will have to stop at the Drakensberg mountains. Probably a part of his 40,000 men will ultimately join the legions of Lord Roberts.

If, as General Buller avers, the Boers are retreating from him, then the news on every side is favorable to the British Nevertheless troops continue to go up. The War Office thinks that the call to veterans to rejoin the colors, together with the bounty, will bring 45,000 men to the home defence. The urgency with which home defence is pressed excites some wonder.

With the casualties just reported the British losses in killed, wounded and captured, now aggregate 11,102.

THE WAR SITUATION.

London, Feb. 20.—Speculaiton is rife as to the good news which the Queen is said to have received from South Africa. The theory that it concerns the operations in Natal is barely a feasible one, for it is not to General Buller that the eyes of the Empire are turned at this moment, but to Generals Roberts and Kitchener. Important deductions can be drawn from the fact that General Buller is able to make his first successful advance against the Boers on the Tugela shortly after the invasion of the Free State by French. The capture of the Boer position south of the river reported yesterday and the occupation of Colenso by General Hart and the Irish Brigade this morning, cause one to infer that large numbers of Boers have been withdrawn from Natal to assist Cronje in the Free State. Ere long the relief of Ladysmith may be accomplished, owing to the melting away of the investing force for operations elsewhere. This, of course, justifies the plan of campaign which Buller is said to have formed early in the war, but which political considerations forced him to abandon. There is no reason now why General Buller should not assault and carry the once formidable Boer lines, now probably depleted of men and guns, and relieve Ladysmith by the Weenen route. The Boers who remain in Natal are in great peril, for the victorious Kitchener may appear in their rear at any moment and close the passes which form their only avenue of escape. It would appear, therefore, that the siege of Ladysmith cannot last much longer.

"FOR ENGLAND, HOME AND BEAUTY!"

Her Majesty Calls Upon All Old Soldiers to Rejoin the Colors For Home Defence.

London, Feb. 20.—The Queen, through her private secretary, Sir John Arthur Bigge, has sent the following letter to the commander-in-chief of the forces, Field Marshall Lord Wolseley:

"Osborne, Feb. 17.

"My Dear Lord Wolseley—As so large a proportion of the army is in South Africa, the Queen fully realizes that necessary measures must be adopted for home defense. Her Majesty is advised that it would be possible to raise for a year an efficient force from her old soldiers who have already served as officers, non-commissioned officers and privates, and confident in their devotion to the country, and loyalty to her throne, the Queen appeals to them to serve her once more in place of those who, for a time, side by side with the peoples of her colonies, are nobly resisting the invasion of her South African possessions. Her Majesty has signified her pleasure that these battalions should be designated the Royal Reserve Battalions of her army.

ARTHUR BIGGE."

GOOD NEWS RECEIVED.

London, Feb. 20.—The Queen, prior to leaving Osborne House this morning on her return to Windsor, inspected the fourth battalion of the Lincolnshire militia. Her Majesty announced with a gratified smile that good news had been received this morning from the seat of war.

Another account says the Queen specified that the good news was from Ladysmith.

HLANGWANA HILL OCCUPIED.

London, Feb. 20.—The following despatch has been received at the War Office from Gen. Buller:

"Blows Farm, Feb. 20.—The Fusilier Brigade yesterday took Hlangwana Hill, the right of the enemy's position, and commanding Colenso, the rest of the force advancing towards the Tugela This morning the enemy had withdrawn all the troops north of the Tugela and had practically evacuated To-day Gen. Hart occupied Colenso after a very slight resistance by a weak rear guard, and we hold the line of the Tugela on the south side from Colenso to Eagle's Nest. The enemy seem to be in full retreat, and apparently are only holding the position the occupy across the Colenso-Ladysmith railway, where it is close to the angle of the Tugela, with a week rear guard. Hart's advanced guard in crossing at oClenso.

"Our casualties yesterday and to-day have, I hope, been very few."

GEN. ROBERTS AT PAARDE BERG.

London, Feb. 20.—The War Office has issued a despatch from Lord Roberts, the main importance of which is the fact that it is dated Paardeberg, 7.05 p.m. Monday. Paardeberg is thirty miles east of Jacobsdal, on the road to Bloemfontein. The despatch announces that the railroad to Kimberley is open and that General Methuen will proceed there with reinforcements forthwith, and that large supplies will be forwarded to that town.

HORSES, HORSES, HORSES.

London, Feb. 20.—The Standard's correspondent at Modder River, under date of Sunday, Feb. 18, wires as follows:

"The magnificent successes of the plan of campaign of Lord Roberts must be ascribed in great part, after full credit has been given for careful and brilliant strategy, to the extreme mobility of the newly organized forces employed; but this mobility has to be paid for. It involves a great expenditure in horses. Those of the Boers for instance, are nearly finished. If we are to retain our advantage there must be an unstinted drawing upon every possible source of supply throughout the Empire. Otherwise we shall soon be without enough horses of the suitable kind to furnish the necessary remounts.

"The infantry under Lord Roberts have done some marvellous marching, mostly at night. Their pluck and endurance have gone very far towards ensuring the safety and success of the cavalry operations."

NEARLY 150 WILTSHIRES TAKEN.

Lorenzo Marquez, Feb. 19.—A correspondent who was with the Boer force in the attack upon Rensburg gives further particulars regarding the capture of the Wiltshires. He says "Commandant Petter, who arrived first, found two companies of the Wiltshires, and began attacking in the open. Soon after he was joined by a body of Free Staters and together they drove the British back from the neighboring kopjes, capturing all but three.

"It is impossible to say exactly how many of the British were killed and wounded, but of the 200 Wiltshires, 142 were captured, and of these 44 were wounded.

BOERS SNIPE BULLER'S FORCE.

Durban, Feb. 19.—Evening.—While Gen. Buller is continuing his movement on the extreme right, and has made every disposition for the defence of his position to the left and south of the Tugela by maintaining there a force adequate for that purpose, isolated parties of Boers sometimes cross the river There is much sniping.

ELECTRICAL RANGE-FINDER.

London, Feb. 20.—The Daily Mail today says:

"For two years the War Office has been testing an electrical position finder invented by an Australian named Alcock, who claims that it will give the range and bearing of a fixed or a moving object, and at the same instance will give information to any number of fortress guns, attached by wire to the instrument, thus enabling a hundred guns, for instance, to concentrate their fire simultaneously on a single ship. It is to be hoped that the War Office will arrive at a decision before this invention is offered to the United States."

MORE TALK ABOUT A FENIAN RAID.

The Globe Says Canadian Troops Are to be Mobilized to Repel Invaders.

Toronto, Feb. 20.—The Globe this morning says:—Ominous rumors are in circulation in the city regarding the likelihood of a Fenian invasion of Canada in the spring. A meeting of the commanding officers of the Toronto garrison was held on Saturday evening to make arrangements for carrying out the war game settled upon by General Hutton some weeks ago. At this meeting, it is said, the possibility of a Fenian raid was brought up, and the statement made that positive evidence existed in high quarters that a Fenian coup is contemplated as soon as the weather will permit of operations in the field. Curiously enough the troops of the Toronto military district and other sections of Canada will assemble on the frontier for ostensible tactical operations just about the time when the Fenians, according to the report, would be making their attempt to cross. For the purposes of the war game every available branch of the services in the various military districts will be mobilized, including cavalry, artillery and infantry. The troops are to be equipped just as they would be if they were entering the field for a long campaign. Military men about town are not disposed to discuss the matter, but it is said in influential quarters that if the Fenian raid is intended it will not find the Government of Canada unprepared.

THEY OPENED HIS OFFICIAL LETTERS.

Consul Macrum Alleged to Have Produced Proofs in Support of His Charge.

New York, Feb. 20.—Charles E. Macrum, former Unnited States consul at Pretoria, who is now in Washington, has—according to despatches from that city—added to his testimony that the British opened his letters, by publicly showing some of the mail which he claims was opened.

Mr. Macrum has several envelopes, each bearing the British sticker applied to the envelope after it had been opened by the censor. He has one envelope which contained mail matter from Consul-General Stowe at Cape Town. It is the regulation blue of the Consular service. It bears upon its face the legend "U.S. Consular service" and a stamp "Mail suspended." On the reverse side is the United States Government seal impressed upon the red sealing wax of the consular service. The British sticker, resealing the letter after it had been opened, bears the letters "V.R."; also the initials of the clerk who opened the letter and the name of the place where it was opened.

This letter was mailed at Cape Town October 4, by Consul-General Stowe. It was held there one month, apparently, for the next postmark is that of Durban, dated Nov. . From Durban it was sent to Pretoria.

It is also claimed that the British authorities are familiar with the American consular code.

HUTTON IGNORED THE MINISTER OF MILITIA.

The Premier Says He Assumed Authority Which This Country Cannot Tolerate.

HUTTON WAS INSUBORDINATE AND INDISCREET.

The General Commanding is to be Regarded as the Adviser, But Not as Entitled to Control the Department of Militia.

Announcement in the Commons.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's sensational statement in the House of Commons yesterday respecting the Government's difference with Major-General Hutton was in response to th efollowing question placed on the order paper in the name of Col. Prior.—

"Has the attention of the Government been called to the following words made use of by Major-General Hutton in a speech delivered by him at a farewell dinne rtendered to him on the 14th inst. by the officers of thee Ottawa Brigade—

"I have used my utmost endeavor to create a national militia army worthy of the responsibilities which are peculiarly its own, and which, to ensure success, must be placed upon a plane above all possibility of party political interference as regards its discipline, its personnel and its military machinery.

"I should however,, feel more hopeful of the future of Canada if the Government ha deven shown active interest in our recent efforts for a higher efficiency or indicated their approval of the principles upon which our efforts are based.

"I would ask you, however, in all due seriousness not to oppose that the severance of my ties with you is due to petty misunderstandings with the Minister of Militia, upon mino rissues of appointments or disciplinary matters, but that it is due to broader, wider and vastly more important issues.

"Is it true that the Government have not approved of th epolicy of the Major-General commadning as set fort above?

"Can the Governement inform this House what was the cause of the disagreement between them and the major-general?"

General Hutton's Offence.

In reply the Premier said—

"Yes, the attention of the Government has been drawn to that portion of Major-General Hutton's speech mentioned in the question, and to other portions equally reprehensible.

"There have been differences of opinion between the Government and General Hutton. The Government were disposed, now that he has been recalled for service in South Africa, to let those differences pass without any comment. The Government had reason to believe that this was in accordance with General Hutton's views and therefore when the subject was brought up in the house a few days ago the Government refrained from making any statement on the subject.

"There is now no reason to follow that course any further. General Hutton in his speech has insinuated that his differences with the Government are due to a desire on the part of the latter to exercise improper political influence on the militia organization of the country.

"I desire on the part of the Government to say that there is absolutely no foundation for such a statement. The causes of differences between the Government and General Hutton were not over any broad questions of general policy. The causes of differences were that General Hutton was insubordinate and indiscreet and deliberately ignored the authority of the Minister in the administration of the Department.

Simply an Adviser.

"The Government desire to state that, while they will at all times be prepared to give the moist careful consideration to any suggestions which may be made by the officer commanding the militia it must be distinctly understood that any such officer on accepting the position in question becomes from that time an officer in the employment of and subject in all respects to the Government of Canada, and that he is to be regarded as the adviser, but not as entitled to control the Department of Militia.

"The Government are responsible to the Parliament and people of Canada for the due administration of each and every branch of the public service, and they would be derlict to their duty if they were to permit a subordinate official under any circumstances to take upon himself to disregard the instructions he may receive from the constitutional chief of his department."

FOUGHT TO THE LAST.

London, Feb. 19.—A despatch to the Times from Naauwpoort, describing the retirement to Arundel, draws attention to the devotion of twenty men of the Victoria Mounted Rifles who were caught in a trap and died to a man, fighting to the last.

PRIVATE WOODWARD FELL OUT.

London, Ont., Feb. 19.—Pte. Albert W. Woodward, whose name appears in despatches along with other members of the first Canadian contingent as having "fallen out" or been captured in the Jacobsdal fight, lived at No. 58 Waterloo avenue. Young Woodward was one of the first to volunteer when the call came. He was just twenty-two years old two weeks before the contingent left. He had been a member of the 7th Fusiliers, but at the time of enlisting was color-sergeant in the 26th Batt. He was a member of the signalling corps at the front.

FIRST TRAIN TO KIMBERLEY.

Cape Town, Feb. 19.—Repairs to the railway have sufficiently advanced to enable the despatch to-night of the first train to Kimberley, laden with coal. After that the military requirements will be the first consideration second foodstuffs, and then passengers, the train for the last of which it is anticipated will start on Wednesday or Thursday.

CAPTURED A BOER GUN.

Kimberley, Feb. 18.—By heliograph to Modder River, Feb. 19.—The country is all free around Kimberley. The Boers have evacuated Dronfield, Saltpan, Spyfontein and Scholtz Nek. One of their 12 pounders with ammunition was captured, as was also their laager at Dronfield, which was abandoned on Friday night. Rails are being laid to Modder River. Several herds of cattle have been captured. Cecil Rhodes is in excellent spirits.

FRENCH WAS UNOPPOSED.

Modder River, Feb. 19.—Although the rapid march of Gen. French's division was marked by a number of conflicts his actual entry into Kimberley was unopposed. When the British were still eight miles off the signalling corps intercepted a heliograph message from the beleaguered garrison to Modder River, saying:

"The Boers are shelling the town."

The advancing column replied: "This is Gen. French coming to the relief of Kimberley."

The garrison was incredulous, and thought the message was a Boer ruse, and flashed the query:

"What regiment are you?"

The reply satisfied the defenders of Kimberley.

Anxiously awaited succor was at hand, and a few hours later, General French, at the head of a column made a triumphant entry into the place, the people surrounding the troops and intermingling with them.

The people cheered wildly, grasping the soldiers hands, waving flags, hats, and handkerchiefs and exhibiting in a hundred ways the intensity of their joy. The inhabitants had been on short rations for some time, eating horseflesh and living in burrows under heaps of mine refuse. Diminishing rations had been served out daily at 11 o'clock in the market square under the shell fire of the enemy, whose guns opened on the square whenever the inhabitants assembled.

Throughout the siege Cecil Rhodes provided the natives with work and food, and thus kept them quiet.

A Long Convoy.

The miles of convoy bearing provisions for the relief column of the town slowly winding its way across the plain in the direction of Kimberley was the gladest sight which had greeted the eyes of the besieged for four months.

Gen. French's march was so rapid and th eheat so intense that many of his horses died of exhaustion.

At the crossing of the Modder River the Boers bolted, leaving their tents, guns, oxen, wagons and large quantities of ammunition in the hands of the British. Moving northward, the Boers again attempted to stem the advance but Gen. French turned their flank, and reached his goal with insignificant losses, seven men killed and 36 wounded during three days, from Wednesday, February 14, to Friday, February 16. After a night's rest at Kimberley, Gen. French's column pursued the Boers to Drontveld, surrounded the kopjes on which they were posted, and shelled them till nightfall, when the Boers fled, leaving many dead.

BOERS KILLED IN AN EXPLOSION

Over Sixty Perished in the Arsenal Disaster at Modderfontein.

Pietermaritzburg, Natal, Feb. 20.—Major Brazier-Creagh, the surgeon in charge of the ambulance train from Frere to Mooi River, brought ninety-five wounded British soldiers here today. Six of them were officers. He also brought in three wounded Boers, all of whom had been shot in the thigh.

On the way down the Boers talked freely to the surgeon. They told him the Boers were fighting for their independence and hoped they would win.

The Boer Mauser cartridge manufactory at Modderfontein has been blown up. Between sixty and seventy workmen were killed by the explosion.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 21, 1900

THE BOER FAILURE.

It is stated that the Boers do not intend to shoot Cecil Rhodes, as at first announced, but will hold him as a hostage. They have not got him yet, however, and seem quite incapable of capturing anybody who follows their own cautious plan of settling down behind a rock and shooting from cover. The Boers are fighting well, but it still remains to be seen whether they have the courage to meet an equal force of British on equal terms. They have not yet done this. They have declined several times to do this. Naturally enough, being now largely outnumbered, they are very careful to avoid battles that might result in equal losses of men, because they cannot afford to lose equally where their total available forces are inferior. But those who praise the Boers for their fighting qualities are more generous than just, for it is probably true to say that the British army never met an enemy, who were, man for man, so reluctant to meet in fair grapple. There is nothing admirable in the fighting qualities of the Boers, but the success that has so far attended their efforts in defending almost impregnable positions against attack. Whatever superiority of numbers the British may now possess, there is no such disparity in our favor anywhere as the Boers possessed for a long time around Ladysmith, where forty thousand of them have tried in vain to reduce a garrison one-fifth as large. Wherever the British have been content to stand still and take the defensive, they have been able to defy many times their own numbers.

The incontrovertible fact is that the Boer campaign has failed, and no other success can now come to them, but to postpone the day of their overthrow, in the possible hope that other nations may be induced to interfere in their behalf. To say that the Boer campaign has failed, is justified by the facts as they are now coming to be understood. The Boers have revealed a military strength, an extensiveness of preparation, that can only be explained, as British residents of the Transvaal explain it, by saying that this war was expected and welcomed as a means of procuring Dutch ascendancy in South Africa. Nor was it all a wild scheme, as we must conclude when we reflect upon the thousands of miles of ocean over which British reinforcements would have to come, and also upon the powerful engines of war that the Boers had secretly gathered in their country. They must have founded great expectations upon this hidden strength, and perhaps their campaign would have succeeded, even to the extent of "dictating terms at Cape Town," but for the splendid defence of Ladysmith that General White has put up.

BRITAIN'S MILITARY STRENGTH.

In speaking about the forces engaged at the battle of Waterloo, Napoleon remarked that one Frenchman was a match for one Englishman, but one Frenchman or one Englishman was able to whip four of the Prussians or other auxiliaries. Whether that was true or not in 1815, it is not true now. After Napoleon went to St. Helena, he said that it would be a great mistake for Britain to undertake to maintain a large standing army, as she had not a sufficient population from which to recruit it; she could defend upon her navy for defence. Things have changed in that respect too. Although the population of Britain does not equal that of Germany or that of France, Britain can raise without conscription all the soldiers she has any need for, and quite enough to suggest to any possible enemy the inexpediency of attempting to invade the tight little island. Mr. Wyndham, speaking in the House of Commons recently, showed in detail how "the country would soon have at least 517,000 men," and he "anticipated that the number would be nearer 600,000 than half a million." There are plenty to garrison all the coast towns, and the fleet is in a splendid state of efficiency. Thus it appears that the defensive strength of the country has not been endangered by sending 200,000 British soldiers to carry on the war in South Africa. A statement of this kind will have the effect of making any would-be meddler pause and think twice before deciding that it is his duty to side with the Boers.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Major-General French has been the man of the war so far. Nearly every aggressive movement that the British have successfully made, has been managed by this officer, and Lord Roberts has evidently chosen him for important work.

* * *

When we read that our troops in Africa are moving upon Ramah, it makes us feel as if we were Philistines.

French has smashed the egg shell, he'll soon get the White, and then—but it is only another case of the British yolk.

* * *

The announcement that General Hutton is going to South Africa on special service leads us to fear that the next disaster to British arms will take place somewhere around Cape Town, where Colonel Hughes at last accounts was entrenched and waiting for the enemy with his sleeves rolled up.

MOUTH FULL OF TEETH.

Ailment of a London Boy Which Puzzles Doctors and Dentists.

A 17-year-old boy of London, Eng., is an object of great interest to physicians and dentists of that city, he being the victim of an ailment seldom heard of in medical annals. Some little time ago the boy began to be afflicted with acute toothache but, as all his teeth were apparently sound, no local cause could be ascribed for the trouble.

Finally, his gums began to swell on the outer side, and this grew worse, until one morning he awoke to find the soreness and pain gone, and that he had an almost duplicate set of teeth growing on the outside of both the top and bottom set of natural ones. At first this did not interfere with him, but later it was found that his speech was beginning to get imperfect. An examination revealed the fact that the new teeth were growing to an abnormal size, while in proportion as they increased his physical strength decreased.

He was then taken to the hospital, where it was decided to extract a number of the teeth. This was done, but almost as fast as they were taken out new ones grew in other places until almost the entire roof of the patient's mouth had been taken up by this peculiar ailment. Altogether, 18 teeth have been extracted, and recently it has been noticed that the growth of further teeth have stopped. Whether this condition will be permanent is a mere question time alone will answer, but meanwhile the extraction of his teeth has ceased.

AFTER A BRITISH DEFEAT.

A Correspondent's Graphic Description of the Retreat From Stormberg.

A correspondent writing of the British retreat from Stormberg, where Gen. Gatacre met with a serious defeat, thus describes the affair.

After our repulse at Stormberg we had the humiliating experience of being chased back all those weary ten miles to Molteno, retreating as fast as we could in small groups, sometimes crouching against the right side of the road — the Boers being on our left flank—sometimes making our way into the cornfields, or along the interminable veldt, or now and again falling prone on the ground as a shell came hissing overhead, waiting with breathless suspense until we heard its dull thud as it struck the ground then, with an exclamation of thankfulness, as we found the uncanny thing did not burst, up and off again, ravenously hungry and utterly fatigued as we were, harrassed and hurried by the Boers, who accompanied us for a distance of eight miles with the attention of their artillery. At last, when the major portion of our force, which had left the night before so full of promise and so brimful of eagerness, had straggled into Molteno, about 11 o'clock, and when we all generally found our feet again, we formed up and got into line for the roll-call. When name after name was called; when silence—dead silence—was the only answer; when 306 of the sturdy Northumberland were missing, and when 294 of our gallant Irish comrades failed to give response, then the grim reality of the disaster came home to us, and we silently thanked God that we were safe, and thought very sadly, of the comrades, dead, wounded and missing, left behind in the terrible trap at Stormberg from which we had just escaped.

Wanted to be Present.

A worthy young Scotchman, residing in the old land, was about to be married. The bride-elect lived at a village some distance from her future spouse and the marriage was to take place at her home. The eventful day having arrived the prospective bridegroom started for the station. On the way, however, he was hailed by the village grocer, who entertained him so heartily that the end of it was William missed his train. The grocer suggested sending a telegram, and at the young man's dictation wired as follows—

"Don't marry till I come.—William."

A Military Number.

The March number of the Canadian Magazine will be a special Military Number, with colored Military cover, the design of which shows the Canadian Mounted Rifles parading on a Canadian street. The organization of the Second Contingent and the embarkation will be described by two writers and each of the articles will be illustrated with a number of photographs which have been taken specially for this purpose. Mr. J. Castell Hopkins writes the opening article in which he gives the history of British policy in South Africa during the present century. Malcom Ross, a member of the artillery brigade in the Second Contingent, has an excellent article entitled "Types of Artillery." C. A. Matthews writes a short biographical sketch of the Minister of Militia. The publishers announce that this will be the finest number of the Canadian Magazine they have ever turned out and will be superior in many ways to their Christmas number, which won them so much praise. The Canadian Magazine is so exceptionally well printed that no person who may conceive great expectations with regard to this Military Number can possibly be disappointed.
